BELIEF GROWS THAT COLONEL LINDBERGH AND BRIDE ARE HONEYMOONING ON ROMANTIC SAPELO ISLE

Peace Pact Is Signed in City Park Concession Row

BEALL WILL DROP CHARGES LODGED AGAINST WALLIS

Under Agreement, City Superintendent Will Not Have To Stand Trial in Judge Rosser's Court.

CHOSEWOOD BEGINS OPERATIONS TODAY

Concessionaire Agrees To Pay Beall "Certain Consideration" for Equipment Thrown Out by Park Head.

Out of the storm of legal entanglements over concession privileges at Grant and Piedmont parks Saturday came sunshine when warring interests staged a peace pact.

L. L. Wallis, superintendent of parks, will not be tried at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning before Judge Luther Rosser on charges of forcible entry of concessions, operated for the past five years by J. A. Beall, nor will he face the court on another charge of forcible detainer, complaints lodged against him Saturday by Beall. The charges will be dropped. Wallis was free under a $1,000 bond on the complaints.

Pending litigation over authority of the parks committee of city council to award the contract for concession rights to Charles L. Chosewood, Jr., for five years in return for which Chosewood is to erect a $35,000 concession stand and memorial in Grant park, also will be dismissed, and Chosewood will begin operation of the concession stands this afternoon.

Litigation Dropped.

Neither will an injunction to prevent payment on certain parks brought on a deferred payment plan be pushed, and the city may proceed at once to make payments on the newly-acquired Chosewood park in the third ward; a park site in the 11th ward, and $26,000 voted as interest payment on the I. N. Ragsdale park, formerly known as the Perkerson tract.

In return for the dismissal of the pending litigation, Mr. Chosewood agreed to pay a "certain consideration" for equipment and fixtures owned by Beall and which Wallis tossed out of the concession stands at the two parks Saturday morning, the very day on which Beall's concession contract expired.

The agreement to drop the suits was reached Saturday afternoon at a meeting held in the office of W. Paul Carpenter, attorney representing Chosewood. Attending the conference in addition to Carpenter and Chosewood were Beall and his attorneys, Walter A. Sims and Joseph E. Berman; Councilman John A. White, of the fourth ward and chairman of the parks committee of city council; Wallis and City Attorney James L. Mayson, representing the city.

Rights Surrenders.

Under terms of the agreement, Mr. Beall surrenders all right he might have had to the concessions and also his contention that his bid for payment of $32,000 in cash for the rights, which he held should have been accepted by the parks committee.

Early Saturday morning a force of city employes under the direction of Wallis forced their way into the concession stands and dispossessed Beall of the concession privileges. The act

MacDonald Picks Labor Cabinet as Baldwin Schemes

Prime Minister May Force Liberals To Oust Him; Labor Issues Demand for Co-operation.

London, June 1.—(AP)—Ramsay MacDonald tonight was reported to have decided upon a tentative list of ministers in event he is called upon to form a government, that does not include any of the new labor recruits in parliament. The projected cabinet follows:

Chancellor of the exchequer, Philip Snowden; foreign secretary, MacDonald or J. H. Thomas; admiralty, Captain Wedgewood Benn; secretary of war, Hugh Walton; secretary of air, Lord Thompson; minister of labor, Arthur Greenwood; health, Margaret Bonfield; transport, Tom Shaw; agriculture, Noel Buxton; board of trade, William Graham; mines, Emanuel Shinwell; education, Sir C. P. Trevelyan; dominions, Lord Olivier; postmaster general, Vernon Hartshorn; attorney general, Sir Henry Slesser; solicitor general, J. B. Melville.

Other high offices will be filled by Arthur Henderson, home secretary in the former labor cabinet, and J. R. Clynes. Oswald Mosley would probably be under-secretary for foreign affairs and Commander Kenworthy possibly secretary for India.

LABOR HAS 287 SEATS IN COMMONS.

The standing of the parties late tonight, with nine results still unreported and one election deferred, follows: Labor, 287; conservatives, 253; liberals, 57; others, 8.

All three major political parties went into the trenches tonight for a post-election campaign for power.

After the costliest election in the history of England, with expenditures running into millions of dollars, Great Britain found itself today with a new house of commons but no majority government capable of directing it. Ramsay MacDonald supplied labor's answer to the question of the hour in England, which is "coalition government or general election." The labor leader declared he would use every ounce of influence he possessed to prevent another election for two years.

"If I can prevent it, there shall be no disturbance of the country by an election within the next two years."

Lloyd George In Power.

Conservatives, liberals, laborites and independents alike thus entered upon a political battle of wits and all the party strategists were busy studying the contours of the new house and maneuvering for position.

Upon the action of the defeated conservative ministry depends the manner in which the struggle will begin. But the liberal party is the fulcrum for the governmental lever, whether the conservatives or the laborites wield it.

David Lloyd George, with a net gain of only 14 liberal seats, finds himself in the position of holding the balance of power.

Liberal party chiefs, with one important exception, kept silence on their plans until they could meet to discuss the best way to utilize their advantages.

"The liberal party," significantly remarked Sir Herbert Samuel, chief liberal organizer, "is likely to exercise considerable influence in the councils of the nation."

The conservative leaders who are faced with the extremely grave problem of how to maneuver the Baldwin ministry into or out of power, were expected to gather at Chequers, country estate of British prime ministers, to confer with the premier over the week-end.

Mr. Baldwin went to Chequers early in the day. With the leading members of his party he will devise a campaign to be presented to the cabinet when it meets next week. At the cabinet meeting, the government's course of action will be decided upon.

Baldwin May Fight.

This was expected to follow one of two directions.

Mr. Baldwin gave the resignation of his ministry to the king and thus put up to labor the difficulty of forming a cabinet, or he may reconstruct his shaken ministry, face parliament again and throw upon the liberals the burden of decision.

Conservative opinion is divided as to which of these courses Mr. Baldwin should follow.

It was freely predicted today that the second course would prevail and Mr. Baldwin would meet parliament.

Sir Austen Chamberlain favors it.

"It is for the prime minister and for him alone, after taking such advice as he likes, to decide what he will do in the circumstances," Sir Austen said.

"But I hope that he will face the commons and leave Lloyd George and what is called the liberal party responsible for the situation they have created."

The powerful Daily Telegraph, conservative, particularly presses this course.

"The idea of resignation would be intolerable either to himself or his party when no other party is possessed of a clear majority," was its comment upon the premier's dilemma.

WOMAN OBTAINED $8,000 BY DEATHS

Sudden Death of Overseer on Mrs. Powers' Farm Is Probed—Received $8,000 Insurance.

Macon, Ga., June 1.—(AP)—Police investigating the "insurance plots" in which they said Mrs. J. C. Powers had been engaged for many years before her arrest last week on a charge of inducing Earl Manchester to kill James Parks for $14,000 insurance, announced today she had collected $8,000 insurance on the life of Sam Wright, who died several years ago.

Wright, overseer on a farm owned by the 71-year-old rooming house proprietor, took out one $5,000 policy and two others totaling $3,000, with the widow named as beneficiary. Claims on all three were paid, police said they had learned, when Wright died suddenly.

Officers also said the woman collected insurance on the life of a negro farm hand for whom she had taken out a policy.

Going back some 25 years, they learned she had been paid insurance on a house and barn that burned and on several horses and mules that died in the fire.

While Mrs. Powers has repeatedly denied she confessed last Wednesday to Sheriff James R. Hicks, Jr., Manchester has held to his story that the woman offered him $1,000 to kill Parks, who was his roommate in the Powers rooming house, so that s' might collect $14,000 on a $7,000 double indemnity policy she held on Parks' life.

Parks' body was found near the Ocmulgee river the morning of May 28, with two bullet wounds in the head. Mrs. Powers and Manchester were arrested the same day, and police announced both confessed. The woman later repudiated her confession.

A Bibb county grand jury will consider the charges against the pair June 17, and Solicitor Charles H. Garrett said a speedy trial would follow if they are indicted.

JUDGE MAYNARD CLARIFIES STATEMENT.

Macon, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Judge E. W. Maynard, counsel for Mrs. Sarah Powers, 71-year-old widow in jail here charged with participation in the slaying of James Parks, 25-year-old printer, upon whom she held a $14,000 insurance policy, today clarified statements attributed to him concerning the possible fate of Mrs. Powers.

"Whether or not Mrs. Powers ever will be convicted remains to be seen," Judge Maynard said. "In my opinion she is of unsound mind. Since she has been in jail she has babbled incoherently and those who have tried to talk with her have been unable to get any response from her concerning her actions."

Judge Maynard added that he was laying plans for a determined fight for his client and that he would be ready to combat fully any indictments which a grand jury may return.

"Mrs. Powers has said nothing in answer to these charges," he said. "When her time comes she will have plenty to say. The public has heard only the state's side of this case."

FOURTH NATIONAL OF ATLANTA BUYS BIG BANK AT ROME

Rapid Expansion Continues as One of Oldest Institutions in State Is Acquired.

Acquisition of the First National bank of Rome, Ga., by the Fourth National bank of this city, marking another step in the rapid expansion of the local institution's affiliations, was reported Saturday in news dispatches from the north Georgia city, and confirmed by John K. Ottley, president of the Fourth National.

The transaction, in which a large block of stock in the Rome institution was acquired by the Fourth National Associates, a holding company owned by the shareholders of the Fourth National bank of Atlanta, is in line with the policy of Fourth National shareholders to broaden the facilities of their organization through the purchase of stock interests in outstanding banks in leading Georgia cities, and likewise in accord with the desire felt by the First National bank of Rome to meet in a most comprehensive way the rapidly increasing banking requirements of its city and section.

Increases Resources.

By this action, banking resources totaling more than $54,000,000 with capital assets in excess of $5,000,000, are brought into a group of the oldest and strongest banks of the state, including, besides the Fourth National bank of Atlanta and the First National of Rome, the National Exchange bank of Augusta, and the Fourth National bank of Columbus.

The First National bank of Rome has been a landmark in the financial life of northwest Georgia for more than half a century. Established September 10, 1877, it has been characterized by rapid growth as well as by sound policy. Within the last ten years, its deposits have increased 280 per cent. A notable and significant distinction which it enjoys is its record of one hundred and two consecutive semi-annual dividends. Present resources are more than $3,500,000.

The linking of this institution with the Fourth National group attracts further attention to the increasing importance that Rome has assumed as a trade and industrial center in recent years. In addition to the substantial industrial enterprises which have been impressive factors in the city's progress for many years, nation-wide recognition of the section's advantages have been seen in the location there within the past few months of such units as those of the Southern Brighton Mills and the American Chatillon Corporation.

Headed By Nixon.

Its board of directors, composed of a number of the most widely known and successful men in northwest Georgia, includes Julian Cumming, John L. Brannon, Reuben N. Towers, George T. Watts, G. E. Maddox, R. L. Wilson, George F. Nixon and R. M. Gibson.

The Fourth National of Atlanta, one of the south's most representative banks, includes among its officers, besides Mr. Ottley as president, Charles I. Ryan, vice president; James D. Robinson, vice president; Robert Strickland, Jr., vice president; William T. Perkerson, vice president and trust officer; Stewart McGinty, vice president; R. Clyde Williams, vice president; Frank M. Berry, cashier; Edward H. Daly, assistant cashier; Henry B. Longino, assistant cashier; Samuel J. Fuller, assistant cashier; Edgar A. Stubbs, auditor, and W. Leroy Daughtry, assistant trust officer.

KING IS BETTER, DOCTORS DECLARE; BAND SERENADES

Windsor, June 1.—(AP)—A definite feeling of relief characterized the news and comment of the illness of King George tonight following issuance of a medical bulletin. His majesty must spend his 64th birthday tomorrow in bed at Windsor castle instead of being the central figure in the ceremony of trooping the colors.

The sovereign is cheerful despite his renewed affliction after his long winter of illness. His bed is mounted on rubber wheels and can easily be moved from corner to corner of his big bedroom in Victoria tower to catch the sunshine. A military band in the castle grounds plays his favorite airs.

Romantic Trysting Spot of Lindberghs?

Idyllic isle where pirates once strode may be honeymoon place of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, whom persistent reports say are spending their bridal vacation at the beautiful home (shown above) of Howard Coffin on Sapelo Island, off the Georgia coast. Former President Calvin Coolidge was a summer visitor at this quiet and romantic spot and President Hoover will visit it soon. Rumor assigns this spot as the honeymoon castle of the world's most famous couple because Colonel Lindbergh previously had visited the island as a guest of Mr. Coffin and was greatly impressed with the beauty and solitude of the place. At the right is a map showing location of Sapelo and marking the Coffin home. All communication, telephone and telegraph, have been broken between Sapelo Island and the rest of the world, and landing docks are patrolled by armed guards. The fleet of boats usually for hire at the Cloister hotel, owned by Mr. Coffin, on St. Simon's Island, have been chained to the dock and are not rented to anyone.

Youth Saves Life of Girl 'Chute Jumper

Atlanta Girl Rescued From Tangled Parachute at Macon.

Macon, Ga., June 1.—(AP)—A youth of 21, inexperienced in "wing-walking," climbed down through the undercarriage of a plane high over Miller field today, and rescued a 19-year-old girl parachute jumper, who dangled helplessly over crowds attending the Southeastern Aeronautical exposition.

Reo Flock, of Atlanta, fastened one catch of her parachute to her and swung below a biplane, clinging to the bar between the wheels. With a jack knife tied to her wrist, she looked up to find the shroud lines of her parachute loose and tangled.

For more than mile, while the hundreds below waited for the girl to let go, the parachute jumper clung to the bar 1,500 feet above the field, and motioned and shouted to C. Bass Butts, who was crouched overhead on a wing. The youth, came down from his perch, clutched the arm of the girl and slowly drew her back to the wing. The pilot, R. G. Statham, of Albany, then made his landing.

"Free-for-All."

In the "free-for-all" race over a 30-mile trangular course, marked by beacons, Frank J. Andre, of Atlanta, was first, in 13, minutes; Johnnie Kytle, also of Atlanta, was second in a mail plane, being clocked at 13:18. Third place went to Douglas Davis, of Atlanta, 15:31.

A feature of the program was a pursuit race, with the three navy planes from Pensacola showing the fastest speed of any of the ships. The three planes whirled around the beacons, close to the ground, at about 140 miles an hour, it was estimated.

Lieutenant R. R. Darron had the best time, completing three laps in 11:33. Lieutenant R. S. Warrack was second in 11:39. Lieutenant H. E. Regan, just eight seconds behind, was third. Naval pilots brought their ships from Pensacola, Fla.

Stribling Places.

Twelve planes were entered in a "dead stick" landing, with several of the contestants maneuvering their ships within a 50-foot circle. The contest called for landing with an idling motor from 2,000 feet.

C. C. Taliaferro, of Atlanta, won. W. L. Stribling, Jr., fighting aviator, of Macon, was second. Third place went to F. J. Andre, Atlanta.

The events Sunday afternoon will bring the largest exposition ever held in Macon to a close, after three days of performances by the latest models in aircraft.

HEARING WILL AIR HIGHWAY RECORDS

Walton County Ready To "Go to Bottom" of State Department Affairs; Case Comes Up June 8.

Officials of Walton county are ready to "go to the bottom" of the state highway department affairs at a hearing to be held at Commerce Saturday, June 8, and summons will be served Thursday on several officials of the department to bring to the courtroom all records of the department connected with the letting of road contracts by the board, it was announced Saturday by Orrin Roberts, of Monroe, representing the Walton county board of commissioners.

Injunction proceedings were brought Tuesday to restrain the state highway board from letting $4,000,000 in road contracts. The proceedings were brought by Mr. Roberts and Carl Davie, of Atlanta, representing the Walton county board. It is claimed that the state highway board was preparing to discriminate against Walton county and other counties of the eighth district in awarding contracts and that these contracts were to be awarded "contrary to law." Judge W. W. Stark, of the Piedmont circuit, will hear the case at Commerce Saturday.

Mr. Roberts said Saturday that notices would be served on the following officials to produce the required records in court: John N. Holder, chairman of the state highway board; John R. Phillips and Stanley S. Bennet, associate members of the board; Seward M. Smith, secretary and treasurer; W. R. Neel, state highway engineer; F. P. Van Story, assistant secretary and treasurer; J. P. Marshall, federal engineer; S. P. Slack, bridge engineer, and Sam J. Slate, state auditor.

"We are not interested in any matters except those involving Walton county," Mr. Roberts said. "We are not fighting any other counties and are not trying to get any of their share of road money. We are acting purely on a business proposition with absolutely no political tinge."

Mr. Roberts said he and his associates would seek to bring to light the exact amount of money due the counties of Georgia by the state highway board and to what counties such funds are due. They also will seek to determine the exact number of miles of hard surfaced roads in the state and the counties in which these roads are located. The attorneys also will endeavor to find out how bridge money, federal funds and other funds have been apportioned.

FIRST CHIEFS HERE FOR POLICE MEET

Nearly 200 Delegates and Their Families on Hand for Monday Opening; 1,000 Are Expected.

Blazing the trail for the more than 1,000 members of the International Association of Chiefs of Police who are expected to attend the 36th annual convention of the organization at the Ansley hotel June 3-6, inclusive, a vanguard of approximately 200 police heads and their families arrived in Atlanta Saturday.

Chiefs from all over Georgia, from every part of the United States, from foreign countries will participate in the four-day parley here to study crime, discuss its prevention, and hear the cream of the nation's authorities and experts give the results of many years' labor and experimentation.

Many to Arrive Today.

They will arrive on all trains reaching Atlanta today and tomorrow. Chief James L. Beavers, president of the association, declared Saturday night, and the probability that all hotels will be taxed in taking care of the delegates seems imminent, he said.

Elaborate plans for social galeties and other entertainment have been made for the visiting chiefs, in connection with the more serious phases of the convention, and in no way will traditional hospitality of the south be allowed to lag during the session.

ALL INDICATIONS POINT TO PAIR'S PRESENCE ON ISLE

All Communications Cut Off—Dock Patrolled by Armed Guards, While No Boats Are Available.

COFFIN YACHT MISSING 3 DAYS

St. Simon's Residents Positive Couple Near There—Official Admits Every Precaution Taken

St. Simons Island, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Colonel Charles Lindbergh and his bride of five days, the former Anne Morrow, are honeymooning on Sapelo Island or are cruising in nearby waters on the Howard Coffin yacht, Zapala, according to unanimous belief of residents of this island.

All indications point to the almost certainty of the presence of the couple. An impenetrable line of defense has been thrown around the islands; all communications have been cut off and the Coffin yacht cannot be located. Armed guards patrol docks at Sapelo Island, while all of the fleet of the speedboats which ordinarily are for hire, have been withdrawn and no boats of any kind are obtainable.

Telephone communications from Sapelo Island, which is 50 miles from here, have been cut off. No communication of any kind with the island is possible.

Residents of St. Simons and Brunswick are positive the famous pair are honeymooning somewhere in the vicinity of the two islands. They point out as irrefutable evidence the fact that Colonel Lindbergh previously had visited the island and was well aware of the idyllic and romantic surroundings, and also of the almost impregnable state in which the island could be and has been placed.

Admitting that every precaution had been taken to prevent communication with Sapelo Island, C. F. Redden, vice president of the Sea Island Company, today said he did not know whether Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh were on Sapelo.

"I don't know whether or not Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh are on the island," he said, "and if I did know I would not be permitted to tell. However, it is the first time I have never been able to communicate with Mr. Coffin. I have not heard from him, nor been in communication with him for the past three days.

"It is true that every precaution has been taken to prevent any possible communication with the island, but I have had no hand in this, nor have I been consulted in any way. I do not know where the Coffin yacht is."

NEWSPAPERMEN SEARCH FOR PAIR.

Brunswick, Ga., June 1.—(United News)—A birdseye view of the sea islands of Georgia would have revealed today a series of expeditions to find

HOLDER GIVEN AUTO BY BOARD EMPLOYES

Highway Chairman Deeply Affects Friends at Farewell Luncheon.

John N. Holder, retiring chairman of the state highway board, delivered his farewell address to the employees of the state highway department and many friends from various parts of the state at a luncheon tendered the employes by the chairman Saturday afternoon at the East Point offices. Approximately 700 people were present at the meeting and after the speech of Chairman Holder, he was presented with a new automobile of the sedan type by the employes.

The scene at the offices was an affecting one as the chairman in a broken voice expressed his appreciation of the gift while many of the employes openly shed tears. The presentation speech was delivered by Thomas Hamilton, editor of the Augusta Chronicle, who paid tribute to the record the chairman had made and to his loyalty to his friends. Other speeches were made by Judge J. J. Flynt, of Griffin, and Stanley S. Bennet, of Quitman, associate member of the highway board, who presided at the meeting.

Makes Farewell Speech.

In his farewell speech, Chairman Holder said that he had been forced to fight "as no man holding this office ever fought before" during the time he has served as chairman. He said he had been maligned and persecuted and said he had not been given a fair chance, but said he was at loss to explain the reason for such a situation.

The chairman said he had never, during his entire career, asked any employee of the department to do an unclean, a dishonorable or an illegal act.

Chairman Holder's speech is as follows:

"On January 1, 1922, I became chairman of the state highway board. At that time, except the membership of the board, I knew only three persons in the employ of the state highway department. During the years that I have had the honor of being at the head of the state highway board of Georgia, I have endeavored to know those who were also working for the department. I have endeavored to know each one by name—where reared and the aspiration of each; I have endeavored to prove myself to be your co-worker and your helper.

"It has been my sincere desire to share with you your burdens and to help you to attain to a higher degree of efficiency in the position occupied by you. I have put forth every effort to serve you and to help you and to be your friend. I appreciate you all more than language can tell. You know whether or not you have been loyal and to all those who have cooperated with me and manifested loyalty to me, I will hold in grateful remembrance as long as I live and shall never forget you—no, not until the stars grow old, the sun grows cold and the leaves of the judgments book unfold.

Stood for Right.

"As I stand in your presence today, looking you in the face, I can say from the bottom of my heart, that I have never encouraged nor asked nor suggested to either one of you that you do an illegal, an unclean or dishonorable act.

"As far as opportunity presented itself, I have endeavored to lend you every encouragement and help to attain success. During these years I have endeavored to learn the business in which I was engaged. I read the latest and best publications on road improvement; heard lectures from experts and made careful study of the road problems which confronted me. I visited and inspected roads in other states but above all, I have tried to know Georgia.

"It has been my pleasure to visit every county in this state not less than five times during my incumbency in this office; to visit every county seat as many times as I have visited the county and I have visited almost every town and hamlet and I have covered every mile of road on the state aid system not less than six times during these years I have had the honor of being chairman of the State Highway Board. I have traveled almost 300,000 miles in the state during these years, but I believe that you all will bear witness that I have done something more than travel over Georgia. I have answered thousands of letters—talked to hundreds of people and helped to solve many problems. I spared no time and no effort to carry on the work successfully, but in spite of all this I have been fought as no man ever has who held office in this state. I have been maligned and persecuted and, as you all know, have not had a fair chance. Just why, I do not know because I do not hate, but I believe you all know that my dipsosition is friendship, kindness and love. I do not know whether I have fought a good fight or not, but I do know that I have kept the faith. I have been true to myself because one endowed with wisdom said: 'To thine own self be true and as sure as the night follows the day thou canst not be false to any man.'

Loyal To Friends.

"I have been loyal to my friends. Someone said to me a few days ago, if I had a fault it was in being too loyal to my friends. I thank God that I am loyal to my friends, but I never do anything for them that penalizes the state.

"As I have just said to you, I have given the very best there is in me to the state. I have endeavored, at all times, to be faithful to the state but be obedient to my God. In the language of Israel's sweetest singer and greatest king, 'I will not be afraid of what men can do to me.' At all times I have looked unto the hills from whence cometh all help. I have endeavored to do justly and to love mercy and walk humbly before my God. I love peace rather than war, but as long as my own heart speaks to me that I am doing right. I am not afraid of anything on the earth, beneath the earth nor above the earth. In spite of all the handicaps and hindrances that have come beforg us I am proud to say that no state in the Union has accomplished more in road building with the amount of funds at hand than has the state of Georgia. No state has accomplished it with less expense than has the state of Georgia. In all this you have had a part and I am proud of the part that you performed.

"This is the last day I will spend with you at East Point as chairman of the State Highway Board. It is gratifying to me that so many of you are present today. Some of you I will see again on this earth. I regret to part with you. It is going to be no easy thing for me to eliminate from my mind the thoughts of road building and road improvement. During these years that I have been chairman of the board I have not only been interested in this matter, but I have loved the work. Yea, I have had a passion for it. I have talked of roads by day and dreamed of roads by night. As I said, it will be no easy thing to take these road thoughts and road problems out of my mind and let something else take their place. But more difficult than this will be to do without your companionship, your association, your words of encouragement and cheer and your friendship. It is difficult for me, indeed, to part with you, but I pray that we may all so live that when we have crossed the bar that our Great Friend and Leader will carry us into the sweet fields of Eden, where the tree of life blooms and where the sun never sets, in order that we may and be with each other throughout forever and ever bask within the sunshine of His omnipotence and enjoy eternity."

Native Georgia Milk Cow Sold for $600, Record Price

SAPPHO.

Lawrenceville, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—J. H. McGee, Lawrenceville merchant, and breeder of purebred Jersey cows, has sold one of his Jerseys for $600 an unheard-of-price for a Gwinnett county cow. The cow was bought by Miss Pearl Baker, of Bolton.

Sappo, a fine register of merit cows, speaks well for the quality of Jerseys being bred in Gwinnett county and $600 is among the highest prices ever paid for a native-bred cow. She recently completed a 365-day register of merit test in which she gave 13,278 pounds of milk and 650 pounds of butter fat, which is equivalent to 780 pounds of butter.

When her calf was 15 months old she gave as high at 32 pounds of milk per day. Sappho is said by experts to score 100 per cent Jersey type and to be one of the great cows of the south. Mr. McGee has other cows that he has refused to price.

STORES PROTECTIVE BODY HERE THIS WEEK

An interesting program of educational talks by veteran special officers will feature the fifth annual convention of the National Association of Stores Mutual Protective Association, which meets Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Henry Grady hotel.

The convention will be called to order at 10 o'clock Monday morning by V. D. Young, president of the association. After the address of welcome by the president, W. H. Uecker, of Seattle, Wash., will deliver the principal speech of the morning session. His subject will be "Benefits Derived From a National Organization If Properly Functioned."

Monday afternoon speakers will include Howard Edwards, of Detroit; Leo. E Welch, of Akron; Louis H. Leff, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and S. H. Gresham, of Atlanta.

The annual dinner will be given Monday night, with Judge Luther Z. Rosser, of the municipal court of Atlanta, as the toastmaster. Speakers at the dinner will be Frank E. Neely, general manager of Rich's, Inc., and Judge John S. McClelland, solicitor of the city criminal court, Atlanta.

Speakers on the Tuesday program include W. H. Grey, of Cleveland; J. J. Dillon, of Memphis; W. H. Jenkins, of St. Louis; E. H. Milleson, of Baltimore, and V. D. Young, of Atlanta.

Tuesday afternoon will be given over to a barbecue and a visit to the various points of interest about the city.

The annual election of officers and reports of the various committees will climax the convention Wednesday morning.

EDISON SCHOLARSHIP EXAMINATION JUNE 10

Candidates Given List of Subjects Tests Will Cover.

Candidates for the Edison Scholarship in the fifth congressional district of Georgia will be given their examinations at 10 a. m., June 10, in room 102 at the Tech High school, it was announced Saturday by W. O. Cheney, president of the fifth district Georgia High School Association, principal of Tech High school and chairman of the committee appointed by Superintendent M. L. Duggan to conduct the examinations.

The examinations are to cover English, history, mathematics and science. In mathematics, questions will be asked in elementary algebra, plane geometry and arithmetic. In science, the subjects covered will be general science, chemistry and physics, the applicant to chose two of these three science subjects.

To be eligible to enter the congressional district contest, each boy must present to the examination committee satisfactory testimonials from his school principal and a citizen of his community, testifying to his good character in the community and satisfactory deportment record throughout his high school course.

In addition the examining committee will require the following: Satisfactory evidence of physical fitness and superior mental abilities; a transcript of satisfactory high school scholarship records; testimony from his superintendent or teacher of his special aptness and favorable attitude in science.

In addition to Mr. Cheney, the committee has as members, H. Reid Hunter, district vice president of the Georgia Education Association and superintendent in charge of high schools, Atlanta, Ga., and Thomas W. Clift, principal of the Atlanta Opportunity school.

"SOUTHERN CITY," NEW PUBLICATION, IN DEBUT MEET

"The Southern City," a civic interest publication, made its debut here Saturday with issuance of a 60-page magazine for June. The periodical is published by the Walter W. Brown Publishing Company of this city as a monthly organ devoted to municipal developments in cities of the south.

A series of articles citing outstanding developments in southern cities feature the first issue of the new publication. A sketch of Atlanta's new city hall as it appears under construction constitutes the subject for the front cover in colors.

Topics in the table of contents include "Houston Cuts Her Garbage Cost," "The Nation's Cleanest Milk Supply, "Mobile Specializes in Recreation," "World Police Heads Meet in Atlanta," "Texas Municipal League Meets," "Viaducts Speed Atlanta Traffic," and similar items about other southern cities.

PROF. T. D. BURLEIGH TO SPEAK TUESDAY BEFORE BIRD CLUB

Professor Thomas D. Burleigh, of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, is slated to be the principal speaker at the monthly meeting of the Atlanta Bird Club at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night, in the Boy Scout headquarters, 79 1-2 North Forsyth street. The subject of his talk will be on the economic study of birds being made at the state college. George Dorsey, noted imitator of bird calls and songs, will give a recital.

The discussion for the meeting will center about plans to have the state legislature give official recognition to the brown thrasher at its coming session. Mrs. Kate Green Hess, president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, who aided in the statewide selection of the brown thrasher, will be a guest of the club.

Lakewood Band Will Play Today In Weekly Concert

"Provided it does not rain on Sunday afternoon," said Bandmaster Johnny Lee Saturday, cautiously knocking on wood meanwhile, "we will give a concert at Lakewood park which will make up for the cancellation of last week's program, due to the storm which came up almost at the hour set for the beginning of the concert, 3 o'clock."

The Sunday afternoon concerts, which began four weeks ago, have drawn immense crowds to Lakewood park, for Mr. Lee's band is composed of some of Atlanta's best musicians and has won an enviable reputation for itself. The concerts begin at 3 o'clock and last until 5 o'clock, for which there is no admission charged.

Lakewood park has been thronged every afternoon and evening when the weather was favorable. The midway shows and rides are crowded every evening, and on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights, in the new pavilion, Porter Keheley's "Playing Kards" attract dozens of couples for the public dances.

The program for the Sunday afternoon band concert is announced as follows:

"Houstrausers March".....Chambers
"Morning Noon and Night," overture....Suppe
(a) "Favors for All".....Barnhouse
(b) "The Drummer's Delight," drum novelty.....Edwards
"Lucrezia Borgia," from Donizetti's opera.....Tobani
"A Night in June," serenade.....King
"Popular Songs".....Kahn
"Fontelle," Cuban dance.....Kiefer
"Muttering Frits," trombone smear.....Lossy Intermission.
"Gold and silver," waltz.....Lehar
"Popular Songs".....Woods
"Mikado," comic selection.....Sullivan
"Marche Indienne," Hindu march.....Sellenick
"Woodland," musical fantasy.....Luders
"Egyptia," intermezzo.....Olman
"Colossus of Columbia," march.....Alexander
Finale—"Star Spangled Banner."

CHURCH TAG SALE

Woodward Ave. Church To Raise Funds for Building.

A "red" brick tag sale by members of the Woodward Avenue Baptist church, for the purpose of raising money to go toward the building of a new church, is to be held in Atlanta Monday. The sale will last throughout the day.

This sale was permitted by city council and is sponsored by the Sunday school of the organization, Leonard Camp, secretary. The new church is to be built on the corner of Park avenue and Sydney street, in the near future.

Atlanta Negroes Gather Monday At Annual Fete

More than 10,000 of Atlanta's negro population will flock to Lakewood park on Monday, the one day in the year when white persons are excluded from the premises. Representing various churches and other organizations, the colored folk will attend the all-day outing given under the auspices of the Atlanta Educational, Recreation and Charity Association.

The celebration will begin with the opening of the park gates, at 9 o'clock Monday morning, continue almost until midnight, and will be featured by automobile races and bicycle races, foot races and various other athletic events. There will be several brass bands, and the quartets from a number of churches will compete in a singing contest. Fireworks will be given in the evening. All the attractions on the midway will be open to the negro visitors.

An admission fee of 25 cents for grown-ups and 10 cents for children will be charged at the park gates. The Georgia Power Company has arranged extra trolley schedules to take care of the throngs expected.

Announcement was made by Oscar Mills, general manager of the Southeastern Fair Associatoin, of cash prizes amounting to $100 to be awarded to the colored churches present having the largest representation of membership present.

The first Monday in June has been given over to the colored folk of Atlanta for the past eight years, and the crowds have grown each year. The good order preserved is indicated in the fact that only one arrest has been necessary in that period of time.

John C. Hallman, Confederate veteran and father of Henderson Hallman, will accompany the party as a guest.

PLANS FOR FREEING MISSION WORKER ARE UNDER WAY

Amoy, Japan, June 1.—(AP)—Negotiations now proceeding for the release of Dr. C. R. Holleman, medical missionary of the Reformed Presbyterian church, who was kidnaped last week, are likely to be delayed because of the handicaps of conditions. Little fears are held for his safety although his captors urge immediate payment of $25,000 gold as ransom.

Telegraph communications are disrupted and it will take a messenger a other difficulty is in meeting the demand for payment in silver dollars since the wealth of influential citizens has been largely carried out of the district for safekeeping. There also would be the danger of meeting bandits along the roads while transporting such a large sum in silver.

Body of Sun Yat Sen, Father Of Chinese Republic, Laid To Rest on Mountain Side

Nanking, China, June 1.—(AP)—The nationalist government today intered the body of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, "father of the republic" in a national mausoleum on the side of Purple mountain seven miles beyond Nanking.

While airplanes, giving a strangely modern touch to the ceremonies, droned overhead, the body was carried by 32 pallbearers to a hearse and thence conveyed over a special road to the tomb designed as the permanent resting place of the revolutionary leader. The ceremonies marked the conclusion of two weeks of observances in the course of which the body was removed from its former sepulchre near Peking and brought here.

The ceremonies began at 3 o'clock this morning when the highest authorities of every branch of the nationalist government as well as the foreign ministers to China who came here for the burial gathered at the koumintang party headquarters. Here the body had laid in state for three days since its arrival from the former capital, for the special memorial ceremonies.

Madame Sun Yat Sen, widow of the late leader; his son, Sun-fo, and other relatives attended the ceremonies.

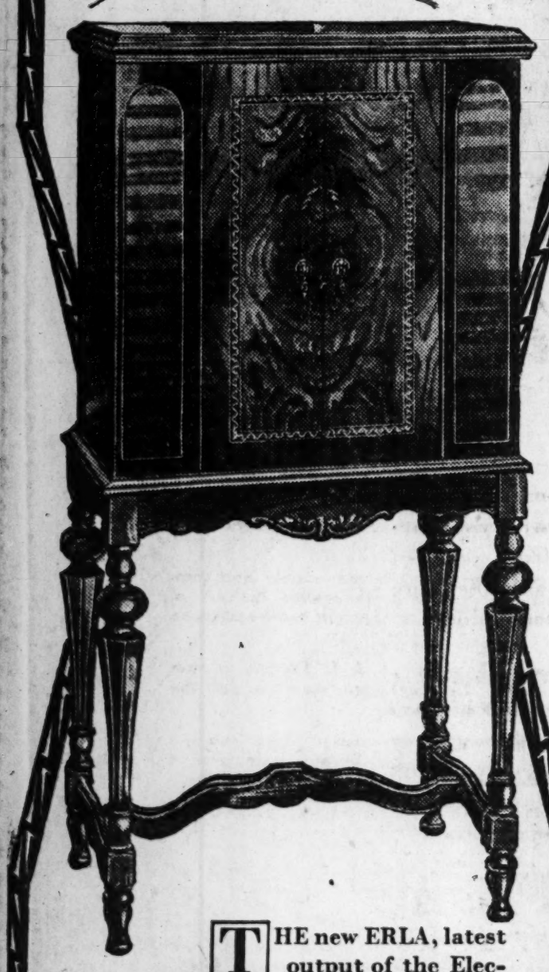

The procession arrived at the base of the grand stairway leading up the side of the mountain to the mausoleum at 10 o'clock after which the 32 pallbearers began the ascent of the 400 steps in the marble stairway carrying the casket to the tomb.

During the entire ceremony numerous airplanes hovered close over the procession and as the casket was lowered into the crypt, a further salute of 101 guns boomed out, marking the end of the state burial of the founder of the kuomintang.

Hines will be the principal speaker at the banquet. A tea will be served for the ladies at the Atlanta Woman's Club at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

ATLANTA POULTRY ASSOCIATION PLANS FOR ANNUAL SHOW

Plans for an annual poultry show, to be held in the winter, were discussed Saturday night at a dinner given by the Atlanta District Poultry Association at the Ansley hotel. The association was addressed by Dr. J. H. Wood, of the State College of Agriculture, Athens, who said that increasing interest in poultry raising has caused the organization of eight associations within the past six weeks in Georgia.

Officers of the newly-organized association were installed. The officers are: Robert N. Springfield, president; Mrs. Donald Donaldson, vice president; E. H. Kinnebrew, treasurer, and E. R. Adlington, secretary.

John P. Frash, Mrs. Donaldson, Mr. Kinnebrew and several other members of the association made short talks. In his address Dr. Wood said that where a few years ago 80 per cent of the poultry in Georgia was of mongrel stock, today 80 per cent of it is purrebred. He said that the poultry breeder has an important job in keeping the strength of the stock up to standard.

STORE OPERATOR RESISTS BANDIT AND KEEPS CASH

G. E. Silverblank, operator of a grocery at 408 Gartrell street, late Saturday night resisted the attempts of a negro bandit, kept his day's receipts intact, but bears a slight wound under his eye as the result.

Silverblank and his wife were in the store when a large negro with a gun in his hand commanded the storekeeper to give up his money. Silverblank refused to do so, whereupon he was struck in the face with the butt of the pistol. The negro then fled and fired several shots as he ran from the store, it was reported.

Call Officers Floyd and Ratledge investigated.

TWELFTH CRUISE OF ITALIAN NAVY LEAGUE TO SPAIN

Naples, Italy, June 1.—(AP)—Spain is the main objective of the twelfth cruise of the Italian Navy League, which set forth today from this port. The navy league, composed for the most part of civilians desiring to know more about the Italian navy and mercantile marine at first hand, has had a great growth in membership since the war.

The itinerary of the tourists embarking today includes Cagliari in Sardinia, Gibraltar, Tangiers, Valencia, Barcelona and return to Genoa. They will see the Seville exposition and make an inland journey to Madrid.

Thrilling Story Of Amundsen's Flights Is Told

To aviation enthusiasts, to lovers of sheer, thrilling adventure and to the legion admirers of Roald Amundsen one of the most picturesque and heroic figures of this era, "Air Pioneering In the Arctic," a graphic story of the two polar flights of the immortal Norwegian and Lincoln Ellsworth, will prove a delight and will provide a permanent and lasting charm. It is published by the National Americana Society, of New York.

In this beautifully-bound volume have been brought together from many sources the complete story of the airplane expedition of Amundsen and Ellsworth in 1925, during which the N24 and N25 penetrated to within 130 miles of the North Pole, and the expendition of 1926—the passage of the dirigible Norge from Spitzbergen over the pole and straight on to Teller, Alaska, a distance of 3,393 miles. The 1925 flight made possible this first crossing of the Polar sea by the airship Norge, which blazed the trail for the shortest route between the Orient and the Occident.

Timely and Timeless.

"Air Pioneering In the Arctic" is a timely and timeless book. Timely because the air lanes today are the main highways of achievement. It is a timeless book, as timeless as the exploits of Marco Polo, of Columbus, of De Gama, of Vespucci, of Magellan and Peary. Much of it has been written by Lincoln Ellsworth, himself a scientist of distinction, and he writes not only with scientific accuracy, but with a refreshing directness and simplicity. A modern Sir Galahad this, whose Holy Grail lies in the mystery of the inaccessible frozen wastes.

It is a graphic tale of courage and adventure equal equal to that of any old Viking legends. Telling the life and death struggle of six men lost for 26 days in the interminable ice floes of the vast and desolate Arctic ocean, it explains why men will suffer and face death for day after day and, having miraculously escaped, will make plans immediately to return.

Beautifully Printed.

The book is beautifully printed and bound, and is illustrated with a wealth of impressive pictures—all steel engravings—of a portion of the globe never before seen through the eye of the camera. The illustrations drive home the full meaning of the daring exploit where nature is relentlessly cruel yet ravishingly beautiful.

Commander Richard E. Byrd, in commenting on the volume, had the following to say:

"The epochal flight of the Norge across the north polar regions not only accomplished one of the greatest non-stop flights on record, but also performed one of the greatest feats of exploration in all history. The flight has had a profound and benefical effect upon aviation. Those hardy pioneers have performed a tremendous service in exploration, have accomplished one of the greatest feats of our age which will shine through future ages as the feats of Columbus, the Cabots, Magellan and other great navigators of the past shine through our age."

AMERICAN MILLS TENDERS DINNER TO ARMAND MAY

Armand May, president and treasurer of the American Mills Company, was honor guest at a dinner Saturday night at the Henry Grady hotel, given by the company. The occasion was a farewell "get-together" of salesmen and the general office employes, before Mr. May departs for a two months' trip to Europe. Mr. May will leave the city this afternoon for New York, where he will sail within a few days.

There were about forty-five representatives of the American Mills Company present at the dinner Saturday night.

DEMOCRAT WINS KENTUCKY SEAT IN LOWER HOUSE

Louisville, Ky., June 1.—(AP)—On the face of practically complete unofficial returns tonight, John W. Moore, democrat, had been elected to the house of representatives from the third congressional district of Kentucky.

He defeated Homer Beliles, republican, by a majority of more than 1,000 votes. With returns received from 269 of the 275 precincts the vote stood: Moore 19,465; Beliles 18,228.

STORE IS HELD UP, CLERKS, PATRONS ARE ROBBED OF $60

Fourteen customers, four clerks and the manager of an A. & P. grocery at Marietta street and Ponders avenue late Saturday night were victimized by two white men, who with brandished guns, held up the establishment and escaped with $60 in cash and a large amount of checks, according to police reports.

Call Officers Carroll and Southerland were told that one of the bandits told the customers to "stand by" while the other forced the manager, A. M. Pressly, of 747 Marietta street, to open the cash register. After taking the contents of the cash register, one of the bandits grabbed a $5 bill which a customer had placed on a counter to make some purchases.

Splendid Tribute Is Paid To Memory of Asa Candler By Emory Trustee Board

Late Business Leader Is Lauded for Life of Service in Memorial Resolutions.

Outstanding among the action taken by the board of trustees of Emory university at its annual session at Emory Friday, presided over by Bishop U. V. W. Darlington and H. Y. McCord, Jr., secretary, was the following memoir to one of Emory's founders and their chief benefactor, Asa G. Candler, Sr. The board requested that copies of the resolution be mailed to the family of Mr. Candler and published in full in the press.

The resolution, in full, is as follows:

"During the past year our board has suffered one of the greatest losses in its history. Death has claimed from among our number Emory's chief benefactor, the Maecenas of southern Methodism, Honorable Asa Griggs Candler, senior. With his passing, there closed a career that embraced in itself a romance of modern business achievement; a record of personal development in mind, heart and character that produced a master man; a service to church and state of individual activity and of liberal financial benefaction rarely equalled in any generation. Entirely fitting, therefore, is the placing of this memorial tribute to him "whose name has been almost synonymous with that of Emory," upon the official records of Emory university.

Born in 1851.

"Honorable Asa Griggs Candler, Sr., was born at Villa Rica, Carroll county, Georgia, December 31, 1851, son of Samuel Charles and Martha Beall Candler. He was a member of a family notable alike in church and state; one of his brothers is a leading jurist of the south, another has been a leading member of the legal profession in a sister state, while a third, himself a member of this board, is one of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, our beloved and honored senior bishop, Warren Aiken Candler. Although without advantages of collegiate training, the subject of this memoir suffers naught in comparison with these stalwart brothers as to affluence of gifts or volume of service.

"After a brave struggle, Mr. Candler attained eminent business success. Once having secured foothold upon the commercial ladder, he leaped forward with the force of original business genius to the summit, being for over 30 years of his life one of America's multi-millionaires. Despite that terrific test of character which always comes with the handling of large possessions, Mr. Candler ever retained the modest simplicity and unspoiled naturalness with which he began his phenomenal career. Moreover, there have been few among America's public men who were more truly Christian, more deeply devout. Amid the solicitations to worldly vanity by which he was ever surrounded, he kept his feet firmly planted upon the rock of fundamental Christian principles and succeeded in rearing his children to the habits and principles which had contributed to make him the man whom all delighted to love and to honor. It is with acknowledgment of gratitude to the Divine Father, that we record the continuance of his beneficence to worthy causes by his children, one of whom, Charles Howard Candler, is a beloved and valued member of this board. Through his children, it seems—a rare achievement—he has succeeded in handing down the lighted torch of Christian service to further generations. Could we hear him speak, we feel sure, that, among all his notable achievements, this is the one upon which he would set the highest value. With our condolence, therefore, to his stricken loved ones, there mingles a sense of admiration which has been embodied in the above statement.

Public Servant.

"Besides his generosity and devotion to the church and to Christian philanthropy, Mr. Candler was a great public servant. State and city alike were benefitted by his elevated patriotism. With one accord, therefore, his fellow citizens of all kinds broke into exclamation of appreciation and sorrow when he passed away. One says, 'He looms a giant figure in the progress and development of this community and has contributed directly and indirectly to the welfare of every person that lives in Atlanta.' Another says, 'I cannot remember anyone who did as much for Atlanta.' Still another adds, 'He was a great citizen and a great Christian. Atlanta has suffered an irreparable loss.' Once again, 'The passing of Mr. Candler is to my mind an irreparable loss, not only to Atlanta, but to the state and the south.'

"His life was one of service to his city, country and fellow men.' Another adds this impressive tribute. 'He was a man who seemed to inject his ardent religion into his work, always looking to the protection of the oppressed.' A former governor of Georgia, Honorable John M. Slaton, bears this witness, "He held the confidence of every person who knew him, and his many acts of service in philanthropy and education will always endear his memory to future generations. I cannot express a tribute that is too high for him.'

"Into this chaplet of immortelles from his fellow citizens Emory would weave today the gratitude of students, the inarticulate appreciation of new-born babes, the pain and anguish assuaged by medical skill and nursing, the joys of minds and hearts enlarged by culture and, above all, the prayerful thanksgiving of numberless souls who have been lifted heavenward—these as representing the benefactions of this noble son of God, assembled upon the campus here and represented in affiliated institutions elsewhere. Living, we loved him; dying, we mourn him; cherishing his memory, we would brighten our lives by his example and perpetuate his influence to aftertimes."

HEALTH IS BETTER THAN IN 10 YEARS, SAYS J. H. DAVIS

Asst. Yardmaster So. Rwy. Says Sargon Is Only Medicine He Ever Found That Does All They Say It Will.

"Sargon is the only medicine I ever took that does what they say it will do. It put me in shape to where I am stronger and in better health than I have been for ten years.

J. H. DAVIS.

"My whole system was badly rundown, and my work was just a hard drag on me. I had no appetite, just had to force myself to eat enough to keep going, and my food would form gas and nauseate me. Bad dizzy spells would sometimes come on me while walking along, and I would have to grab hold of something to keep from falling. I was so badly constipated that sometimes I would go three or four days without a bowl movement. I didn't sleep well and felt weak and tired all the time.

"Sargon proved entirely different from any medicine I ever took. It gave me a fine appetite and I can eat any kind of food put before me now without any bad after effects. I have gained seven pounds; sleep like a log; feel full of energy and my work is easy for me. Sargon Soft Mass Pills overcome my chronic constipation completely and did it without causing any griping or nausea.

"I have told lots of my friends about Sargon and will gladly tell anybody what it did for me. I never expect to be without this remarkable treatment."

The above statement was made by J. H. Davis, 142 South Forsyth St. He is assistant yard master of the Southern Railway, and is well known. He is Past Chancery Commander of the Knights of Pythias; and is a member of the Masons and Odd Fellows.

Sargon may be obtained in Atlanta at Jacobs' Main Store, 6 and 8 Marietta St., and at all Jacobs' drug stores throughout Atlanta.—(adv.)

GRIEST TO ADDRESS FIVE POINT LEAGUE

J. W. Griest, general manager of the Retail Merchants' Institute of Chicago and a nationally-known business economist, will address the next meeting of the Five Point League at the Biltmore hotel at 6:30 o'clock Monday night, June 10.

This announcement was made Saturday by J. L. Nave, chairman of the program committee of the organization of local advertising men and women, which has arranged for a series of addresses by outstanding leaders in advertising and allied lines.

Mr. Griest will come to Atlanta specially to address the league. His lecture will treat in a general way of the need of practical training along the lines of community development, co-operation, trade extension, salesmanship, advertising, personal efficiency and organization work.

The Chicago executive comes here recommended as one of business' most engaging and authoritative speakers. He has appeared before commercial organizations in numerous other southern cities and from these come reports that his speeches are instructive, helpful and interesting.

Mr. Griest follows on the Five Point League program O. C. Karn, managing director of the Audit Bureau of Circulation, who was the league's May speaker. A heavy attendance greeted Mr. Karn and officials of the league Saturday announced that they expect an even larger gathering to be on hand to hear Mr. Griest.

Reservations for the meeting and dinner may be made through Mrs. Virginia Gouedy in the Hurt building. As was the case with the may meeting, league members will be allowed to bring guests to hear the speaker.

Poet Laureate Returns to Home After Long Tour

Ernest Neal, Georgia's poet laureate, returned to his home in Calhoun Saturday afternoon following a tour which practically covered the state and which consumed about three weeks.

During his trip he was feted guest of many prominent Georgians and made numerous addresses at commencement exercises and similar gatherings. He was enthusiastic about the receptions which were accorded him all along the line.

He visited during his trip Swainsboro, where he was the principal speaker at some pre-commencement festivities; Sparta, where he was the guest of the Round Table Club, and where he addressed the Tenth District A. and M. school; Mayfield, Warrenton, Decatur, and many other cities.

He passed through Atlanta on his return home Saturday afternoon.

"It was a great trip in every respect," he declared.

Dr. Lewis Sees Milk Drinking Dairy Solution

It is a far cry from the Republic of Argentina in South America to the Empire State of the south in North America, but the methods used in this republic to make the dairy industry prosper would have the same result if employed in Georgia and the answer is very simple—drink more milk.

This was the message of Dr. Burdette C. Lewis, president of the Foremost Dairy Products, Inc., and vice president of the J. C. Penny-Gwinn corporation, in addressing the delegates to the annual convention of the Georgia Banker's Association at the Biltmore hotel last week.

"In the Argentine, a western nation not given to co-operation," said Dr. Lewis, "wonders have been accomplished in the development of the dairy industry. Milk is served everywhere. It is available everywhere. It occupies a place in the scheme of things held by tea in England. What is the result? The people of Argentine talk, think and drink milk. As a result, they have a prosperous cattle and dairy industry where none existed before."

Dr. Lewis declared that unless steps were taken here to copy Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Finland and Germany in the use of group planning, group producing and group marketing as well as group financing, the American farmer is destined to become a farm slum dweller.

The speaker cited the fact that group action had proved successful where it had been tested, both in North Carolina, under the direction of Hugh MacRae, and in Florida, under the direction of the J. C. Penny-Gwinn corporation.

"Ask your cronies to drink cultured milk or buttermilk," he admonished his audience. "Lactic acid has a good kick in it. Alcohol often has a bad one."

BAN ON MOTORS AT YALE EXTENDS TO MOTORCYCLES

New Haven, Conn., June 1.—(AP)—Yale undergraduate students will not be allowed to operate motorcycles after September 24, the deans of the three undergraduate schools have announced. The order did not give the reason for the ban.

Five years ago a ban was placed on student automobiles, with the exception of the seniors, but the latter are included in the new order.

Two Will Get Sullivan Award At Mercer U.

Macon, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Dr. William Heard Kilpatrick, an alumnus of Mercer university and now professor of the philosophy of education at Teachers' college, Columbia university, and J. Q. Davidson, senior in the Mercer law school, will receive the Algernon Sydney Sullivan award from Mercer at the graduation exercises on June 4.

The presentation this year will mark the first time the award has been given a Mercer student and the second time it has been made at the university here. It was conferred upon Dr. Albert Henry Newman, professor of church history, in 1927. The graduate committee of the faculty chose Dr. Kilpatrick and Mr. Davidson to be honored.

The award consists of a bronze medallion, a certificate of award and a biographical volume about Mr. Sullivan, the founder of the New York Southern Society.

Dr. Kilpatrick was a member of the Mercer faculty for a number of years and later was acting president of the university.

Mr. Davidson, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Davidson, of Fort Valley Ga., broke all scholastic records in the Mercer law school when he made an average of 91.4 in the fall term of 1928. He has led his class consistently since he entered Mercer in 1926, after getting the bachelor of arts degree from the University of Georgia. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and other honorary fraternities and is prominent in student activities.

BAINBRIDGE BOY NAMED TO ATTEND NATIONAL CAMP

Bainbridge, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Bower Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Campbell, is one of two boys selected in Georgia to attend the National Club Camp in Washington city, according to a wire from G. V. Cunningham, state boys' club agent, at Athens, to County Agent D. E. Sawyer today.

Counties having county agents are entitled to one or two candidates and that Decatur county has won reflects great credit on Agent Sawyer and young Campbell whom Dr. Sawyer placed on the agricultural board to represent club work.

The scholarship is given by the Atlantic Coast Line railroad and lasts from June 19 to 25 inclusive.

Holleran Heads Pictorial Activities of Constitution

Effective today, Cecil J. Holleran, for 14 years associated with the editorial and advertising departments of The Constitution, becomes assistant managing editor in charge of pictorial production, and will direct the activities of all pictorial departments of the paper. Mr. Holleran is well known in newspaper and advertising circles throughout the south as well as in Chicago, where he attended the Chicago Institute and the Academy of Fine Arts prior to becoming connected with The Constitution.

The consolidation is due to the ever-growing importance of pictures in the newspaper field which makes it essential for the up-to-the-minute newspaper to extend every effort to fulfill the public's desire for the best possible pictorial representation. The telephoto now brings news photos by wire with the rapidity of telegraphic messages; the air mail cuts many hours from former methods of transportation and the gravure process reproduces pictures to the finest detail, an achievement impossible in a newspaper until recently.

In keeping with its ever-expanding program The Constitution is constantly searching the world centers for pictures of outstanding events to be placed before the multitude of readers of the South's Standard Newspaper.

CECIL J. HOLLERAN.

1,000 Years Old, Saxony City Noted for China, Celebrates

:: PORCELAIN CHIMES PLAYED IN CIVIC CHURCH ::

Meissen, Saxony, June 1.—(AP)—Meissen, city of world-famous chinaware, is a thousand years old today, and is telling the world about its anniversary by means of chimes of porcelain which were played in the belfry of the stadtkirche, or civic church, overlooking the ancient market place. They were designed by Professor Boerner in the historic Meissen "porzellanmanufaktur" and represent a new departure in bell construction.

The tone is declared by experts to be quite as full and round as that of metal bells, and in some respects even more pleasing.

Another memorial of the thousand-year celebration is the renovated interior of St. Nicholas church, which was dedicated May 26. Meissen porcelain has replaced wood and stone in the interior, and the walls are covered with huge porcelain tablets to the memory of the 1,700 citizens of Meissen who fell during the World War. In the intervals between these tablets are large figures in porcelain of crying children and of mothers bearing torches.

On the altar is a large porcelain figure of the Christ, stretching His hands in blessing to groups of mourning mothers and children.

Besides the dedication of this war memorial and of the porcelain chimes, the thousand-year festival program included historical pageants, and daily concerts and historical theater plays.

U. S. INSPECTORS ALLOWED TO GRADE GEORGIA ROSIN

Savannah, June 1.—(AP)—Producers, dealers and users of rosin may call upon government inspectors under the naval stores act to grade any lot of rosin in which they are interested, it was said in a recent bulletin issued from Washington. A charge of seven cents for each round barrel is made for this work, the bulletin said.

Georgians interested in rosin were referred to H. M. King, Box 330, this city, for inspections in this state.

U. S. AMBASSADOR TO CUBA LEAVES, THOUGHE RESIGNED

Havana, June 1.—(AP)—American Ambassador Noble Brandon Judah today departed for the United States accompanied by his family, after paying official farewells at the presidential palace and state department yesterday.

He had been ambassador to Cuba one year and six months.

It is understood that no papers of recall were filed and that his resignation tendered Washington is still unaccepted. His absence from the embassy will constitute an official leave of absence. Charles C. Curtis, counselor, will act as ambassador pro-tem until a successor is named.

FREE BAGGAGE ENTRY IS RULED OUT BY TREASURY

Washington, June 1.— (AP) —A blanket order intended to eliminate all favoritism in customs examinations of passengers' baggage at all ports of entry into the United States, and which will seriously restrict the customary issue of "expedite orders," was made public today at the treasury department.

The "expedite orders" have given certain persons priority in passing through customs and the statement accompanying the notice of the treasury action said that there had been serious abuse of its use. Hereafter such privilege will go only to persons who have specifically obtained the privilege from the treasury department, and to others landing under emergency circumstances, which include serious illness, the return to the United States to meet affliction or disaster, or travel in company with the body of a deceased friend or relative.

FATHER OF BRIDE DEAD, NEWLYWEDS ARE SOUGHT HERE

The father of the bride having dropped dead shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Howten, of Birmingham, were married Friday in the Alabama city, Atlanta police have been requested to look out for the newlyweds, who are on their honeymoon, and inform them of the tragedy.

The couple had lunch in Villa Rica Saturday and started for Atlanta a few minutes before the information was communicated to Villa Rica authorities, it was said. They are traveling in a new Ford roadster with an Alabama license tag

Plans for Transcontinental Air Route To Include Atlanta To Be Mapped Out at Meeting

Mayor Ragsdale Invited To Send Representative to Gathering in Some Centrally Located City.

Atlanta will be represented at a meeting in some centrally located city, probably New Orleans, within the next week, when a concerted fight to obtain a transcontinental air mail route to include Atlanta, Birmingham, Mobile, New Orleans, Houston, Beaumont and San Antonio will be mapped out, it was announced Saturday. A telegram accepting an invitation to have a representative at the meeting was sent by Mayor Ragsdale to A. E. Feille, president of the San Antonio chapter of the National Aeronautic Association.

This meeting will be in advance of the interdepartmental conference to be held in Washington on June 12 at Postmaster General Glover's office. A wire from Mr. Beille informed Mayor Ragsdale that on June 7, a conference will be held in Louisville with the aid of routing the transcontinental mail through Louisville, Dallas, Fort Smith, Midland and El Paso, and that the Louisville meeting plans sending a delegation to the Washington conference.

"There is grave danger unless immediate steps are taken to safeguard the logical route, this line," Mr. Feille wired.

Mayor Ragsdale's telegram to Mr. Feille follows: "Will have representative meet at any place you may designate. Think meeting should not be later than June 6 or 7. Route indicated by you via Atlanta, Birmingham, Mobile, New Orleans, Beaumont and San Antonio the logical one. We would use every effort to secure same. Advise at once place of meeting and anything that I may do to advance the cause."

Word was received from Macon Saturday that a protest against Atlanta and Birmingham being included in the proposed western air route from the east to Texas will be made at the Washington meeting by the Southern Airways Association. J. Ralston Cargill, of Columbus, president of the association, will represent the association at the meeting, it was said. Cities with membership in the association are: Washington, Raleigh, Columbia, Augusta, Macon, Columbus, Montgomery, Selma, Jackson, Monroe, Dallas and Fort Worth.

FORMER GOVERNOR M'RAE NEAR DEATH IN ARKANSAS HOME

Prescott, Ark., June 1.—(AP)—Former Governor T. C. McRae, who has been seriously ill for four months, is not expected to live 24 hours, his physician, Dr. S. J. Hesterly, announced early today. He is 76 years old.

Dr. Hesterly's bulletin given to the Associated Press said:

"Ex-Governor McRae, who has been ill four months, is losing strength. He is unconscious, and is not expected to survive 24 hours."

Sudden Gale Fells Tree at East Lake

Any number of golf matches were thrown into a temporary panic and the landscape of the East Lake Country Club changed Saturday afternoon, when a sudden and severe wind and rainstorm paid a brief visit to the place made historic by Bobby Jones. The big tree on the edge of the lake, which was blown down in the sudden onslaught, was one of the landmarks of the club's premises. A group of swimmers are pictured here standing on the once mighty monarch. The storm did little other damage to the East Lake section and it avoided Atlanta completely, only a dozen raindrops or so having fallen throughout the afternoon.

MAY BUILDING PERMITS HIT $1,518,637 TOTAL

First Five Months' Activity Aggregates $7,282,443. $11,288,851 in 1928.

Atlanta building permits for May totaled $1,518,637, according to figures released Saturday by A. C. McDaniel, assistant building inspector. This pushed the total for the first five months of this year to $7,282,443 as against $11,288,851 for the first five months of last year. Included in the aggregate of last year's figures was May with a total of $5,910,349, the biggest single month in Atlanta's history.

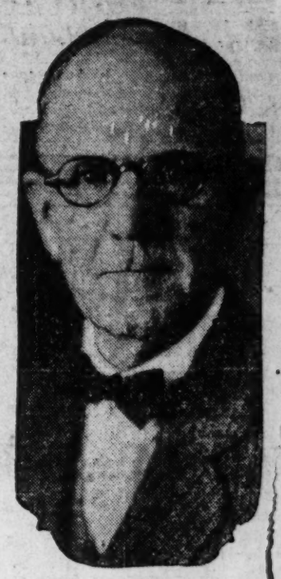

"Building activity in Atlanta for the first five months of 1929 is well over the average of other years and is indicative of the manner in which Atlanta is growing and prospering," Mr. McDaniel said. "This activity is a good barometer of the business activity of any community and Atlanta is well to the fore."

The following tabulation of the first five months of this year as compared with the same months of 1928 follows:

January	$2,014,307	$ 1,396,150
February ...	880,137	1,119,254
March	1,772,214	1,840,301
April	1,097,148	1,022,797
May	1,518,637	5,910,349
Totals ...	$7,282,443	$11,288,851

May permits of last year were pushed to the $5,000,000 mark by new schools, viaducts and city hall construction by funds provided in the 1926 bond issue of public improvements.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds.—(adv.)

JAKE JACOBS ISSUES PLEA FOR HEAVY VOTE

Calling on voters of the second ward to give him a "handsome" majority in the city democratic primary Wednesday, Jake Jacobs, candidate for city council, Saturday issued a statement of his qualifications for the post he seeks.

"I feel that the people of the second ward want more efficient, business-like administration of city affairs, and that is what I propose to seek if elected," Mr. Jacobs said.

"It was false economy to make large investments for the new city hall on the Washington and Mitchell street site, if there was any possibility that the site adjacent to Fulton county courthouse could be acquired.

"My campaign promises have been few. I will endeavor, to the best of my ability, to administer the office in a creditable manner, always being at the service of my constituents and working for the best interests of Atlanta as a whole.

"I have been a resident of Atlanta for 31 years, practically all my life. During that time I have lived in the second ward, and the people know my ability. They know that I have made a success of my own business and therefore, believe that I will make a success of the people's business. I am confident of victory. The only thing which might cause my defeat will be the overconfidence of my friends, who may feel that I have the race won and not visit the polls. I wish to ask all of them to visit the ballot boxes."

COMMERCIAL HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNI MEETS WEDNESDAY

An unusually interesting program has been planned for the twelfth annual dinner-dance and election of officers of the Commercial High School Alumni Association Wednesday night at the Atlanta Woman's Club. Roy LeCraw, well-known Atlanta, will be toastmaster.

Included in the entertainment program are instrumental numbers by Cecil White and his "Boiles of Hawaii," popular radio stars, crayon impersonations by Moore Pearson, vocal numbers by the Commercial High quartet, a novelty tap dance by Ruth Palmer and several "surprise" numbers.

A feature of the business meeting, which follows the dinner program, will be the election of officers. Two candidates already have been selected by the executive council and a third candidate for each place will be named at the election.

Several important matters will be discussed at the meeting and every alumni member and graduate of the school is specially urged to be present. Immediately after the business meeting is over a two-hour dance will be enjoyed.

Hiscox Announces Many Improvements Completed at Binder's

Under direction of Freeman Hiscox, general manager and veteran authority on gift goods, lamps, china and pictures, Binder's at 117 Peachtree street has just completed a number of improvements that are meeting with wide popular favor.

A new and attractive gift shop, featuring popular-priced novelties and bridge prizes, has been opened in the basement with a comprehensive stock of fresh merchandise. On the first floor is located the main gift shop and on the second floor are lamps, mirrors and pictures. Every department has been remodeled and redecorated, and Mr. Hiscox says that the summer stock is one of the choicest and most beautiful he has ever assembled.

For the past 30 years Mr. Hiscox has been engaged in this line of business, having for many years been associated with the firm of Dobbs & Wey. He has been with Binder's for the past year.

SAPELO BELIEVED HAVEN FOR LINDYS

Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

There was little else but deduction and imagination on which to base credibility of the numerous reports that the vanished honeymooners had sought refuge on these shores. Newspapermen and cameramen, however, remained on the chase.

The fact that those who might know either evaded direct answers to the question, or remained out of reach, spurred the hunters on.

The following facts were of interest:

1. An amphibian plane landed Wednesday at Sapelo Island, the estate of Howard E. Coffin, multimillionaire friend of Lindbergh.

2. About the same time Coffin's yacht, the Zapala, left the island dock and has been cruising among the islands since.

3. A "Mr. Struck," manager of the estate, and the only person in authority reachable there by telephone, said "Lindbergh may be on the yacht."

4. For inaccessibility, loveliness and solitude, the Lindberghs could not have picked a more ideal spot for a honeymoon than one of the sea islands.

5. The rambling colonial mansion of James C. Wilson, official of the National Air Transport Company, on St. Catherine's Island, was recently opened and renovated in preparation for—what?

6. Clement Keyes, Wilson and Howard Coffin arrived at their island homes the last few days, and were reported on the yacht today. Who else was with them was not known.

7. Newspapermen for the first time were banned from Sapelo Island, and a speedboat, the only one in this vicinity, was guarded by employes of Coffin, so newspapermen could not use it.

There were three possibilities that led the searchers on. One was that the Lindberghs might be at St. Catherine's, another that they were at Sapelo, and the third, that the couple was on the yacht.

PEACE PACT SIGNED IN PARK ROW

was over the vehement protest of the concessionaire.

Beall's contract for the concession rights expired Friday night, though he claimed that his bid for renewal was the only properly submitted one, and therefore should have been accepted. However, under the advice of attorneys, the park department took action Monday to remove the concessionaire and forcibly took possession of the stands.

Chosewood Bid Accepted.

Members of the park committee of city council several months ago accepted a bid of Charles L. Chosewood, Jr., to construct a $35,000 concession stand and memorial in Grant park for which Chosewood was to have concession rights at Grant and Piedmont parks for five years. Against this Beall offered $32,000 in cash for the concession rights.

When the parks committee accepted the Chosewood bid, Beall through his attorneys, Sims & Berman, appealed to the courts, with the result that the court held that the park committee had no right to contract for city council. Only the committee accepted the bid and the matter was never taken to council. The committee held that under a charter amendment passed at the last session of the legislature that the committee was within its rights in acting on the paper without the sanction of council.

Before Supreme Court.

The committee appealed the decision to the supreme court and the matter now is pending there. Beall notified members of the park committee that he would not relinquish his claim on the concession rights until the supreme court hands down its decision, and action of the committee Saturday morning was on advice of City Attorney James L. Mayson, according to John A. White, chairman of the parks committee of city council.

Wallis and his men acted under written orders from four of the five members of the parks committee of council, only the name of William B. Saunders being absent from the paper, it was said, and park committeemen gave the instructions following a written opinion from the city attorney that the committee would be justified in using force to regain possession of the concession stands if necessary.

Counsel for Beall appeared late Saturday morning before Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy with a petition for an injunction to prevent Wallis from tossing Beall out, but it was refused.

Members of the parks committee who ordered the dispossession of Beall were Mr. White, Charles L. Chosewood, Oscar H. Williamson and James T. Osburn.

Boy Thrill Slayer Studied By Officials; Killed Two

:: SET FIRE TO BABY IN 1924; SHOT PLAYMATE ::

Springfield, Ill., June 1.—(United News.)—Back through the brief but eventful life of nine-year-old Jimmy Harrison, "thrill slayer," authorities tonight looked for an explanation of the boy's mania for guns and fire.

With the killing of a playmate and a baby recorded against him, Jimmy sat in a detention home, oblivious to officialdom's investigation, but reading with intense interest every line in the newspapers about the death of Norman Conwill, 16, killed when he and Jimmy scuffled for possession of a revolver Jimmy had stolen.

With even more interest Jimmy pored over the parts of the stories that told about the warm September day five years ago when he set fire to the clothing of little Robert Endres, 21 months old, burning the child so severely that he died in a few hours.

Delving back into Jimmy's career, police questioned Mrs. Peter Endres, mother of the dead Robert and nine other children. From her they learned Jimmy was in the habit of shooting chickens with an air rifle.

"When I asked him why he did such things," Mrs. Endres said, "he just grinned and kept shooting them.

"Five years ago when he touched a match to little Robert's dress, he said he 'didn't like the child and wanted to see a bonfire.' Because Jimmy was so small—only five—we didn't prosecute, but I think he should be put into a reform school where he can't run wild."

Mrs. Endres said she had forbidden her children to play with Jimmy after the episode five years ago.

Wanted Thrill.

"He always wanted to do things for a thrill," she concluded.

With the evidence investigators turned to the Harrison family for more clews to Jimmy's nature.

Jimmy is the second oldest of five children in the family of Albert Harrison, a coal miner.

When the father learned his son was facing charges of slaying a playmate he got drunk on moonshine and mixed in a fight. He was arrested but later released. He said he was brooding over his son's predicament.

One of Albert Harrison's brothers is a member of the Springfield police department.

The other children are Ruth 12, Albert, Eleanor and Jerry.

Admits Killing.

Jimmy readily admitted that he had killed Conwill, but was indifferent, under questioning. He advanced no motive. He was found hidden under the covers of his bed when police went to his home after the shooting.

The Conwill family, grief stricken after burial of their son this afternoon, would not press charges against Jimmy because "he's too young to know what he's doing," but were of the opinion he should be watched for further outcroppings of cruel tendencies.

Under Illionis laws a child must be at least ten years old before he can be held responsible for crimes, but there is ample precedent for confining Jimmy in the reform school.

County authorities have not indicated what course they will take against the boy after they have finished their investigation. An assistant state's attorney told the United News he would make no moves until after the coroner's inquest into the death of young Conwill next week.

Question of Ranking Lady Puzzles Confederate Chief

:: REUNION DISTINCTION TROUBLES VETS' LEADER ::

Nashville, Tenn., June 1.—(AP)—Major General Harry Rene Lee, adjutant general and chief of staff of the United Confederate veterans, has been called upon by officials of the organization to solve a problem as perplexing as that which recently agitated Washington society over the status of Mrs. Edward Everett Gann.

In this case the problem is this: Who is to be the ranking lady at the reunion of veterans and affiliated organizations at Charlotte, N. C., next week?

The governor of North Carolina in behalf of the state, has given $25,000 toward the expenses of the reunion. Last Wednesday 200 members of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, meeting in Charlotte, expressed the opinion that Mrs. O. Max Gardner, wife of the governor, should have distinguished recognition. The outstanding distinction is leading the grand march at the annual ball with the commander-in-chief of the U. C. V.

This has never been allowed anybody but the sponsor for the south of the U. C. V. If an exception were to be made, it was found there would be six claimants of the honor; Mrs. Gardner, wife of the North Carolina governor; Mrs. Priscilla Goodwyn, wife o fthe commander-in-chief and first lady of the Confederacy; Mrs. B. B. Gossett, hostess of the headquarters committee; Mrs. Bibb Graves, wife of the governor of Alabama and personal appointee of the commander-in-chief, General A. T. Goodwyn; Mrs. W. M. C. Merchant, president general of the U. D. C., and Miss Robina Wedd, sponsor for the south in the U. C. V.

The predicament was explained to Captain Edmond R. Wiles, reunion manager and commander-in-chief of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, who was present at the meeting. He declined to offer a suggestion.

Dr. Albert Sydney Johnson, Charlotte's official representative in extending the invitation for the convention, also declined to act as arbiter. And now, on the eve of the reunion, General Lee says he does not intend to be made responsible. "I am no secretary of state and refuse to allow myself to bear the responsibility for the decision."

He has called a meeting in Charlotte Monday morning of the personal aides of the commander-in-chief, the parade chairman, and the commander-in-chief of the Sons of the Confederacy, to debate the question and, if possible, arrive at a solution.

Plans To Change Ward Lines And Tax Problem Command Council's Attention Monday

Creation of 13th Ward and Effort To Override Segregation Law Veto To Be Considered Also.

A veritable deluge of proposals to change ward lines and to create a 13th ward in Atlanta; the city tax problem and efforts to override the veto of Mayor I. N. Ragsdale to a new segregation ordinance passed at the last session of city council will be important matters to come before the regular semi-monthly meeting of that body at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The large number of ward line changes will be made by several different members of council, but will be intended, it was said Saturday, to prevent passage of a measure designed to create a new ward in Atlanta, thus pushing the total number of ward divisions to 13.

Those sponsoring the proposals offer them as measures intended to divide the city more equitably.

A proposed charter amendment which would create a 13th ward by placing all property north of Ponce de Leon avenue, beginning at the Southern railway underpass and running to Highland, thence out Highland to Virginia avenue in the new ward, will be before council. A reservation even if the matter is approved by the legislature, is that a referendum must be held by the voters of Atlanta and that it must get their sanction before going into effect.

First Ward Abolition.

Another proposal is to abolish the first ward and divide the territory so that parts of it will be annexed to the fifth, sixth and seventh wards. Councilman James L. Wells, of the eighth ward, is author of this measure.

Councilman Tom C. Morris, of the fifth ward, will offer a paper to include that part of the eighth ward west of Kontz street in the fifth ward. A companion paper then would annex all that portion of the fifth ward lying south of North avenue into the first ward.

A fourth ward line measure would annex certain tenth ward property to the seventh ward and seventh ward lines would be shifted so that additional territory would be added to the first.

Appointment of a special tax commission will be recommended by the finance committee of council, headed by Councilman Wiley L. Moore, of the seventh ward. The commission would study methods of procuring additional revenue for the city and cooperate with the state commission in studies of municipal taxation and its reflection on state revenue.

Personnel of Body.

If recommendations of the finance committee are approved, the commission will consist of three bankers, three businessmen, and five members of city council. The major problem would be to "evolve some equitable method of getting hidden assets, such as stocks and bonds, on the tax digests at a fair rate of taxation."

When Mayor Ragsdale vetoed the segregation law, he acted on the advice of City Attorney James L. Mayson, who held that the courts would not sustain such an effort. Several measures designed to place a segregation law into effect have been declared unconstitutional, and the ordinance on which the Atlanta paper was based has since been ruled unconstitutional.

The latest effort of council to pass a segregation ordinance carried with it the signature of 25 members of city council, more than the two-thirds vote necessary to pass it over the mayor's veto. Alderman Ben T. Huiet, of the third, and Councilman John White, of the fourth, will lead the fight.

Many other routine matters are slated for consideration of council.

City Limit Extension.

Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, of the twelfth ward, and chairman of the charter revision committee of city council, will offer a new proposal for extending the city limits. The proposal is termed "comprehensive" and would extend the limits in all directions, taking in only highly developed areas. He will ask that the paper be referred to the committee which he heads for a report.

Territory which Alderman Gilliam plans to include in his annexation measure embraces most of the thickly populated areas contiguous to the present limits. North of the present boundary the area includes residential sections on either side of Peachtree road to a line slightly north of Buckhead, and including the Pace's Ferry road section. On the east the measure would take in all of Druid Hills to the Seaboard belt line. On the south there would be a general extension of boundaries to a line just south of Lakewood park. On the west slight extensions are contemplated to make the boundary more even.

Widening of Boulevard and the underpass where that thoroughfare passes beneath the Southern railway will be asked by Councilman Joseph E. Berman, of the fourth ward.

SPELMAN CLASS WILL HEAR NOTED EDUCATOR TODAY

Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, and one of the most eminent educators in America, will deliver the baccalaureate address of Spelman college at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Sisters chapel on the college campus. Much interest has been expressed in Dr. Vincent's appearance here, and a large attendance is expected. At 7:30 Sunday evening in the same auditorium a public vesper service and organ recital will be held.

At 10:30 Monday the Spelman High school will hold its class day exercises, at which the salutatory will be delivered by Mildred Dee Moore, the ivy oration by Cora E. Douthard, and the valedictory by Ida Louise Miller. The college department will hold its exercises at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. Those taking part will be Frankie J. Clark, Alma C. Ferguson, Julia E. Pate, Willie H. Barnett, Anne E. Nabrit and Irene C. Dobbs.

Miriam F. Carpenter, registrar and adviser of women in the school of education of Harvard university, will deliver the commencement address at 10:30 Wednesday morning. As former dean of Spelman college Miss Carpenter made many friends in Atlanta who will be glad to welcome her return on this occasion.

Family Reunion Draws Attendance Of Five Generations

Seat Pleasant, Md., June 1.—(AP)—Five generations of one family, in which all members of the maternal line have been born within the last 82 years, gathered today for a reunion.

The youngest is Rosemary Penkert, the 10-day-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Penkert, of Washington. At the other end of the line is her maternal great-great-grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Bender, 81, also of Washington, who has 50 other direct descendants.

Others taking part in the reunion include all of Rosemary's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Penkert and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Braun, of Seat Pleasant, and her great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Thomas, of Washington.

Fourth National Officers Given Air Ride As Award in Air Mail Letter Contest

Officers of the Fourth National bank, who were taken for an airplane ride over Atlanta Friday by J. Ben Faulkner, local manager for Pitcairn Aviation, Inc., are shown above. The Fourth National won the prize offered by the aviation committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce to the Atlanta business concern sending the most letters by air mail on May 13. Left to right, they are: W. LeRoy Daughtry, John A. Massengale, A. G. Mathews, W. D. Murrah and Mr. Faulkner, who did the piloting.

An airplane ride over the city, the prize offered by the Aviation committee of the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce to the Atlanta business concern which sent the largest number of letters by airmail on May 13, was won by the Fourth National bank, it was announced Saturday by Dr. Herbert B. Kennedy, chairman of the junior chamber's aviation committee.

The prize was awarded Saturday morning when four members of the bank force were taken for an aerial trip by J. Ben Faulkner, local manager for Pitcairn Aviation, Inc., at Candler field. The offer allowed any member of the bank personnel to take the ride, and the following were chosen: W. G. Murrah, manager, business development and advertising department, Fourth National bank, Atlanta; A. G. Mathews, manager, West End branch, Fourth National bank, Atlanta; W. LeRoy Daughtry, assistant trust officer, Fourth National bank, Atlanta, and John A. Massengale, resident manager, Fourth National Company, Columbus.

Work on Bobby Jones Course Brings War Relics to Light

FRAGMENTS OF SHELLS AND BULLETS FOUND DAILY

Out on the banks of Peachtree creek, in Peachtree Battle Memorial park, reminders and mementoes of the day in July, 1864, when Captain Evan P. Howell's battery in its position on the Jack Spalding place kept up its hot fire on a Union battery across the creek, are being found daily in large numbers.

A fragment of a shell, soft-nosed bullets by hats full and other souvenirs of that July 21 fight, a part of the major battle of Atlanta, are sawed out of timber being cut from the Bobby Jones golf course in the park.

Word of the finds has spread around that section until every day there gathers a crowd watching the operations, persons who have lived half a century and more close by, including now and then a Confederate veteran who helped supply the guns of Captain Howell's battery.

W. A. Phillips and sons, who run the sawmill which is cutting the timber for the county, reported Friday that the most important find so far is a shell fragment, probably shrapnel, several inches across, which was embedded in a popular 35 feet above the ground. The fragment was eight inches from the heart of the tree, which squared 28 inches across.

In this same poplar was found a rifle bullet about 20 feet from the ground and in the very heart of the tree. But finding relics of the fight is costly as well as interesting. Saw teeth are being jammed right and left (literally) and when the shell fragment was hit, operations with that saw just shut down for the day.

One veteran of the fight by Captain Howell's battery, on a visit recently to the scene of the sawing, told workmen and others where the troops dug in and located other spots where fighting was hot. He remembered details well, he said, and gave an eyewitness account of some of the fighting.

The shell fragment will be presented to the state for its museum of war relics as will some of the bullets and any other interesting souvenirs of that July day 65 years ago.

State Forest Board Reclaims Indian Springs; Show Place

Indian Spring, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—A new and glorified Indian Springs is presented to Georgians, for through the efforts of B. M. Lufburrow, of the State Forest Board and his associates, the state property has been brought back to its pristine glory. Cement and rock supplants rotting woodwork; plants and flowers supplant weeds and grasses. The surface water-overflow has been controlled, and by cementing the spring bowl the mineral water has been made as free from taint as human ingenuity could devise.

Two years ago $6,000 was appropriated by the state legislature for property, which had fallen into decay through neglect. The first years' appropriation was expended in reroofing the casino, pavilion and former bowling alley and billiard hall. The board walk was mended and some attempt made to control the surface water at flood time. This January the retaining wall was diked from the inside with rock and soil and planted to grass, raising the high water level two feet.

Spring floods came and seepage and water from a five-acre watershed drained into the basin, leaving silt and refuse on the cement floor. Electric pumpers were unable to cope with the situation. At this juncture, Mr. Lufburrow accepted the free services of W. B. Powell, a resident of Indian Springs, who transformed a duck pond into a sunken garden and a thing of beauty. Rock walls encircle the spring basin, keeping out the seepage from the dike. Behind these low-lying walls are plants and flowers, and the dike is green in Bermuda grass.

Promenade Deck.

The spring sits below a well-fashioned marquee—the background of cut stone. A dome light under the marquee remains lighted all night. The spring bowl has been cemented a pure white. A system of pipes and valves controls the waste mineral water to the cisterns where it is pumped to the bath house, and when the cisterns are filled to a well, where a pump raises it to a drain pipe leading to the creek. Numerous other springs in the basin area are piped to this well and carried off.

A large promenade deck of oak has been built in front of the casino and this ties unto a series of three cement steps to the parking place to the south, on the hill.

The former bowling alleys and billiard hall have been converted into sulphur bath rooms, resting room, Red Cross station, and an auditorium. The upstairs room have been converted into sleeping quarters.

Cement benches are being built about the grounds, the money donated by various womans' clubs of Butts county. Those benches are built at vantage points overlooking the creek where the waters tumble down a cascade of giant rocks.

Ten Weeks.

While Mr. Powell has given ten weeks of his time and talent in actual labor and planning and superintendency, Mrs. Powell has not been idle for she has also given ten weeks in the beautification program, and the ten acres of state property has been fashioned from a dumping ground of the debris of the old Wigwam to a tidy area admitting of further planting and landscaping. The terraces from the spring basin to the hill top is already abloom with flowers of many colors. Seventy-five shade trees line the roadway through the reservation.

This work has only been started, for the program as outlined means a continuation of this labor of love for years to come. Mrs. Powell's ideas for the summer include an amusement park with tennis courts, roque courts, shuffle boards, horseshoe pitching, lawn bowling, and so on. Mr. Powell has started a children's playground and already has erected a three-way child's swing, an adult swing, a giant stride, a parallel bar, a shoot-the-chutes, and a teeter board. The money for the playgrounds, benches and beautification is coming from generous clubs and citizens of Butts county, and elsewhere, Judge Ogden Person heading the list of outsiders with $50.

The Georgia Power Company will flood light the entire reservation in a short time. The swimming pool has been opened for the season, and the dance pavilion is giving weekly dances, and will shortly show moving pictures.

COINS SWALLOWED BY INFANTS CAUSE BUSY DAY AT GRADY

The child's natural eagerness to put everything possible into its mouth brought Grady hospital attaches a busy afternoon Saturday, when five youngsters were treated.

Jeanette Sullivan, 7, of 640 Tennelle street, swallowed a nickel and was taken to the hospital, where an X-ray showed the five-cent piece lodged in the child's stomach. She was given treatment and allowed to return home.

Agnes Crawford, 2, of 57 Weyman avenue, was reported to have swallowed a penny, but an X-ray examination failed to reveal any trace of the coin.

Tainted buttermilk is thought to have caused the illness of three youngsters, Vinton and Hazel Murphy, aged 2 and 4, respectively, of a Harper street address, were admitted for treatment after having consumed a quantity of milk said to have been impure. Kenneth Murphy, 12, of the same address, was given first aid treatment for illness from the same cause and was allowed to return home.

CHURCH REACHES FIRST GOAL OF BUILDING FUND

North Avenue Presbyterians Will Start $100,000 Sunday School at Once.

Completion of the $100,000 building fund being raised by the North Avenue Presbyterian church for the first unit of its proposed $400,000 religious edifice, will be announced to the congregation at services today in a report of the committee for raising subscriptions, Wilmer Moore, chairman of the committee, will make the report.

Plans for the large church plant, which will be featured by a main auditorium seating 1,700 persons, have not been altered from those originally announced several months ago. When completed this will represent an expenditure of between $400,000 and $450,000, it is estimated. Immediate erection of the new Sunday school department and recreation hall, constituting the first unit of the building program, will be undertaken, it was stated Saturday, with completion of the $100,000 subscription fund, which was the goal set for the first unit.

The church owns the southeast corner of Peachtree street and North avenue, extending through to Courtland street. The proposed church will front on North avenue and Courtland street and be set back about 60 feet from Peachtree.

U. S. Seeks To Deport Undesirable, But Cannot Find Place To Send Him

Rasit Mohamet Resit is in an unusual situation, according to the evidence brought out in federal court here Saturday, which may be tabulated thusly: He is Turk by birth; lived on the Italian possession, the Island of Coo; came to the United States in 1921; is under sentence in a North Carolina court and is facing deportation proceedings which have been blocked because Italy refuses to admit him and because it is said to be contrary to treaty agreements to deport him to Turkey.

It all came about following his sentence in North Carolina when he was turned over to the custody of immigration authorities here at their request to be deported on the grounds "that he has been sentenced subsequent to May 1, 1917, to imprisonment more than once for a term of one year or more for the commission subsequent to his entry of a crime involving moral turpitude."

Habeas corpus proceedings were instituted in his behalf by Attorney Frank Doughman, who sought his release on the grounds that his conviction was not for an offense involving moral turpitude; that he had been held in custody here for over three months awaiting deportation and that the deportation warrant was illegal.

At the conclusion of the hearing Judge Sibley remanded him to the custody of the immigration officials, with the understanding that he be returned to the court in North Carolina within ten days.

4,594 Meals Served By Salvation Army During Last Month

A total of 4,594 meals and 1,131 nights' lodging were provided for men who were "down but not out" in Atlanta last month by the Salvation Army industrial home through reclamation and sale of discarded rummage from Atlanta homes collected on phone calls to Ivy 2224, it was announced Saturday by Captain Hugo Bloomberg, social service officer. Included among the men helped were discharged prisoners, converted in prison and who are working themselves back into useful and productive lives through the Army's guidance.

The home also provided clothing for 56 charity cases under the Army's care outside the industrial institution and enabled several hundred poor families to obtain needed clothing, furniture and other articles at nominal prices.

CRESWELL GIVEN MAXIMUM FIVE-YEAR SENTENCE

Nashville, Tenn., June 1.—(AP)—Rainey M. Creswell, "go-between" in the second mistrial of Walter Liggett, alleged murderer of Turney Cunningham, was sentenced to serve not more than five years in the penitentiary when found guilty of bribery by a jury in criminal court here today.

Creswell was indicted on the bribery charge jointly with B. P. Osburn, Liggett juror, whose vote was responsible for the hung jury. Osburn was convicted and sentenced to serve five years for bribery.

TENNESSEE JUDGES IN ROW OVER PAY; $15,000 INVOLVED

Nashville, Tenn., June 1.—(AP)—Judge N. R. Barham, of Jackson, Tenn., whose contest with Judge W. H. Dennison, of Lexington, for the judgeship of the twelfth judicial circuit, was decided against him by the supreme court, has notified Edgar J. Graham, comptroller of the treasury, that he will protest the payment of approximately three years' salary to Judge Dennison.

The protest, Judge Barham pointed out, will be made on the ground that the law sets out that he holds over until such time as his successor is "duly elected, and qualified, and inasmuch as Judge Dennison has not qualified, he (Barham) is entitled to the salary as judge from September 1, 1926, to date."

Approximately $15,000 in back salary is involved, although Judge J. A. England, of Decaturville, who has been serving under appointment by the later Governor Austin Peay during the period of the litigation, also has drawn the regular salary of the office.

Judge Dennison was here today and secured his commission. He said he planned to open court Monday.

GEORGIA BANKERS' SCHOLARSHIP WON BY LOUIS GILMAN

Louis Gilman, student leader, and president of the 1929 graduating class of Oglethorpe university, has been named winner of the American Bankers' Association scholarship for the current year at that institution, it was announced Saturday by Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe.

The scholarships will amount to approximately $300 was founded by the bankers' association in memory of Colonel Robert J. Lowry, the first Georgian to become president of the organization, and upon completion of the Lowry School of Banking and Commerce at Oglethorpe, it was offered annually to the student in that department of the university "having a high academic standing and outstanding qualities of leadership."

Gilman in addition to having captained an Oglethorpe team to victory recently in a $100-prize contest offered by the J. M. High Company for the most successful student operation of its store, was also business manager of the Yamacraw and the Stormy Petrel, Oglethorpe publications.

INDICTMENT COPY SOUGHT BY STATE IN BURNS TANGLE

The Fulton superior court Saturday was asked for a copy of an indictment returned by the grand jury of Fulton county in 1922 against Robert Elliott Burns, escaped Georgia convict, who is now being held in Chicago pending extradition proceedings to be held in Illinois for the return of the convict to Georgia.

Burns was convicted on a highway robbery charge in connection with a holdup that netted him and a companion $4. He escaped a few months after his conviction, went to Chicago, entered the magazine publishing feld and was said to be making $20,000 a year in this business when he was arrested upon information furnished officers by his wife against whom he had filed divorce proceedings.

Vivian H. Stanley, member of the state prson commission, said the indictment is needed in the case now pending for the extradition of the convict. Burns is now at liberty under a $5,000 bond.

STATE OFFICIALS GO ON VACATION TO LAKE COTTAGE

Vacation time has begun at the state capitol, five officials having left Saturday for a week's trip to the mountains of Georgia. They will vsit the summer cottage of Albert B Mobley, superintendent of banks, on the shore of Lake Nacoochee.

Besides Mr. Mobley, those in the party were John B. Wilson, private secretary to Governor Hardman; Justice Samuel Atkinson, of the supreme court; R. C. Norman, state tax commissioner, and George H. Carswell, secretary of state.

Colonel E. W. Roberts and Morris Kelly, of Monroe, will join the Atlanta party at the cottage tomorrow.

Cannon Attempts To Widen Democratic Split

LETTER ADVISING BOLTERS TO STAY OUT OF PARTY HIT

Leaders Interpret Bishop's Advice to Virginia as Declaration of War on Jefferson's Party.

CONTINUES FIGHT AGAINST RASKOB

Chairman, However, Shows No Sign of Relinquishing Reins as Party Debt Decreases.

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

Washington, June 1.—Efforts of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., leader of the anti-Smith democrats in Virginia, to perpetuate the break in the party in the south developed during the recent presidential campaign has brought forth quiet but widespread expressions of regret among national democratic leaders in Washington, who see in the bishop's manifesto a move to weaken the party of Jefferson for years, if not to wreck it forever.

While few democratic congressional leaders would consent to be quoted, a storm of protest is brewing beneath the surface against the latest outburst of the Old Dominion cleric. He proposes that the anti-Smith democrats themselves put a candidate in the field for governor of Virginia this year, thus turning thumbs down on the three present contenders because of their support of the last party presidential nominee.

May Affect Other States.

If his suggestion carries through there is no reason why the same program might not be adopted in other southern states. The almost certain result in many of the traditionally democratic commonwealths would be the election of republican governors and United States senators. It would be the one thing, more than all others, designed to encompass democratic defeat, party leaders here agree.

Bishop Cannon's recommendations, just made public, are contained in a letter addressed to J. C. Moss, chairman of the executive committee of the Virginia anti-Smith democrats. If carried out they mean a triangular race for governor. Several years ago he was an important political influence in the state. Then he went away on a mission to the Orient. During the interim the forces of Senator Claude Swanson and Senator Carter Glass, combining with those of Governor Harry Byrd, subordinated him as a power. Upon his first political engagement after returning last year he espoused the anti-Smith cause in the Old Dominion and became perhaps the leading figure in the camp of revolting democrats in the south. The suggestion has been heard that he himself may be paving the way for running for governor or senator.

In any event, his proclamation has been received with forebodings in democratic circles of the national capital, where it is felt that no good will come to the party by seeking to keep alive recriminations of the 1928 campaign.

Not to Join G. O. P.

Bishop Cannon is out to rid the party of the dominance of the Smith-Raskob faction, which brought about the nomination of Alfred E. Smith for president last year. In order to do so, he proposes that Virginia democracy shall "set its house in order." He turns his back flatly against the announced candidates for the democratic nomination for governor, three in number, because they gave their support to Smith last year, remaining regular.

Apparently he has turned down the suggestion advanced in some quarters

Georgia Farmers Seek Protective Tariff Schedule

JOHN H. BANKHEAD TO OPPOSE HEFLIN

Bitter Fight Is Seen, as Incumbent Already Has Announced for Another Term.

Birmingham, Ala., June 1.—(AP)—John H. Bankhead, attorney of Jasper and Birmingham, announced here today that he would oppose United States Senator J. Thomas Heflin in next year's democratic primary. Senator Heflin announced several months ago that he would seek reelection.

Mr. Bankhead is a descendant of one of Alabama's most distinguished families. His father, John H. Bankhead died while a member of the senate, Senator Heflin being elected to the vacancy in the 1920 campaign. A brother, William B. Bankhead, of Jasper, represents the tenth Alabama district in congress. He is an uncle of Tallulah Bankhead, the actress.

Making his first appearance in politics in 1926, Mr. Bankhead ran second to United States Senator Hugo Black in a field of five candidates.

In his announcement, Mr. Bankhead said he had been urged by representative citizens in all parts of the state to make the race. He declared his candidacy against Senator Heflin would give the people of Alabama an opportunity to "give expression to the type and standard of senator they want to represent them."

I'LL PLUCK HIM, OPINES HEFLIN.

Washington, June 1.—(AP)—Commenting on the announcement of John H. Bankhead, Alabama attorney, that he would run for the democratic senatorial nomination there next year, Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, who will seek reelection, declared today he "would beat him or whoever they put up by 100,000 votes."

The "they" Heflin referred to was a "group," he said is opposing his reelection. He included in this group the "Roman Catholic interests," whose newspapers, he said, say I ought to be defeated."

"John thought he would run in 1924," Heflin said, "but he wrote a lot of letters and was advised not to. Then he did run for the nomination in 1926 and my colleague, Senator Black, beat him by 36,000 votes."

Heflin added that "I let my enemies pick my opponents and then I pluck them."

"I am getting very gratifying letters from my state all the time," he said, "and none of them say it will be very difficult to reelect me next year."

TAKE-OFF ON ROME FLIGHT BEFORE TUESDAY UNLIKELY

Old Orchard, Maine, June 1.—(AP)—Probability of a hop-off of the Green Flash for Rome or the Yellow Bird for Paris before Tuesday dimmed today with the report of clearing weather for 48 hours.

The weather report from Dr. James H. Kimball, meteorologist of the New York weather bureau, said a "trough" ran east and west just south of Newfoundland.

While the two planes, rested on the sands, mechanics busied themselves setting up an electric gasoline pump and covering the seams of the wing tanks of the Green Flash with cloth which then was shellacked.

Levy for Long Staple Cotton, Jute, Hides and Oils Is Demanded by Group Meeting Here.

Application of a protective tariff to long staple cotton, jute, hides, coconut oil and other edible oils, pimientos and pecans was recommended in a resolution adopted at a conference of farmers and business men of Georgia Saturday at the state capitol. The meeting was called by Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture, who presided.

Among the speakers on the program were Harry D. Wilson, commissioner of agriculture of Louisiana, and A. M. Loomis, executive manager of the American Dairy Federation, of Washington, D. C. They pointed out in their speeches reasons why southern states should seek the protective tariff provisions under discussion.

Not Taking Definite Stand.

A supplementary resolution, introduced by Representative T. N. Brown, of Swainsboro, made clear that the congress was not taking a stand either for or against a protective tariff policy in principle but was merely asking "for consideration of the rights of the south under the protective tariff policy now existing."

Both resolutions were adopted without dissent. The first resolution empowered Commissioner Talmadge to head a committee of five to appear before the senate finance committee in Washington with the resolution when the tariff bill again comes up for consideration. It will also be presented to the Georgia congressional delegation. Mr. Talmadge and his committee also were instructed to co-operate with similar committees from other southern states. Mr. Talmadge has not yet announced the members of the Georgia committee.

Emphatic on Oil Levy.

The resolution was particularly emphatic in demanding tariff on coconut oil, which is imported largely from the Philippine islands. It declared in favor of giving the islands their independence "which was promised them at the time of their purchase," but if that is granted it favored returning duties collected to the island government.

"The tariff measure as passed by the house," declared the resolution, "admitting all imports from the Philippine islands free of duty is a discrimination against the southern farmer in favor of foreign investors in the Philippines. It compels the south to yield the vegetable oil industry to the Philippines or adopt their standards of living."

With adoption of the resolution the congress adjourned.

CANDIDATES PLAN WHIRLWIND FINISH

After Day of Rest, Activities Will Be Resumed Monday Morning; Climax Comes Wednesday.

BY HERMAN D. HANCOCK.

Following a rally at Kirkwood Saturday night by friends of Ernest P. Titshaw, candidate for general manager of waterworks, opponents for contested positions in the city democratic primary slated for Wednesday, entered a 24-hour truce and will not re-open hostilities until Monday morning.

W. Zode Smith appeared at the Titshaw rally and both candidates were cordially received, as were representatives of J. W. Weaver and Dr. J. E. Turner, only other city-wide candidates opposing each other for the aldermanic nomination from the second ward.

The week-end rest will be for the second wind designed to furnish a whirlwind finish to several hotly contested races, and several meetings were scheduled for the last two nights—Monday and Tuesday—of the drive for ballots.

Prepare for Finish.

All of the entries were champing at their proverbial bits as they prepared to take their places at the barrier Wednesday morning.

William J. Laney, secretary of the city democratic sub-committee, stated that the precinct list has not been completed and probably will not be until Tuesday morning. He said there will be 29 or 30 ballot boxes.

There are four wards of the city in which councilmanic contests hold the spotlight—the second, third, fifth and tenth.

In the second, W. Chester McLendon and Jake Jacobs are fighting it out in a hectic preliminary which will be decided by the deluge of of ballots Wednesday. J. W. Rountree, incumbent, is opposed by Dr. Edwin Scott

DEMOCRATS URGE PUBLIC HEARINGS ON TARIFF BILL

Leaders Will Fight for Final Disposition of Important Measure at Special Session.

Washington, June 1.—(AP)—Democrats on the senate finance committee decided unanimously today in favor of public hearings during consideration of the house tariff bill and for final disposition of the measure at the special session.

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking democrat on the committee, said he thought the final vote should be taken late in October so as to allow time for agreement in conference before the regular session.

Republican members of the committee favor closed sessions by the committee which would take up the bill June 11. They will have their way unless the senate adopts the resolution of Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, calling for public hearings.

The decision of the democrats to support the administration program regarding disposition of the bill before the December session was regarded at the capitol as brightening the prospects for an all-summer congressional recess.

DEMOCRATS PROGRAM PROMISES VACATION.

BY FRANCES M. STEPHENSON,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Washington, June 1.—(AP)—Democratic support of the program to dispose of the tariff bill before the regular session begins in December eased up the congressional situation today and set republican leaders to planning anew on a recess over the hot summer months.

This threat of Washington's summer heat also appeared to be giving President Hoover a whip-hand on his entire extra session program, lending to force the drive to dispose of the farm relief controversy at an early date.

If farm relief and the census-reapportion bills are enacted and definite assurance given of a final vote on the tariff measure before December, Mr. Hoover will sanction a congressional recess until September.

Will Agree on Date.

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, the ranking democrat on the finance committee announced today after a conference of the minority members of the committee, that the democrats would agree that a date be fixed assuring final disposition of the tariff before the regular session in December.

Senator Smoot, the chairman of the finance committee, says it is going to take two months to get the house tariff bill in shape for senate consideration and on that basis Senator Watson says it is unnecessary for the senate to stay around waiting. He is contemplating a special order which would set a deadline for a vote on the tariff by a two-thirds majority. It is something new but he says it is in order.

ATTORNEY HUSHES MAID'S EXPOSURE

Says Story May Be Figment of Mind—Woman Pleads in Murder Charge.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 1.—(AP)—Frank J. Merrick, assistant prosecutor, refused tonight to reveal the basis of "embarrassing exposures" with which Mrs. Anna Szenen said she threatened her employer, Mrs. Dorothy Snyder, prominent Cleveland society woman. Mrs. Szenen said the exposures led to the slaying of Mrs. Snyder at her home here yesterday.

The kind of "exposure" which Mrs. Szenen said she threatened lacks proof, and might be merely a figment of a distorted mind, Merrick said.

The maid confessed the killing. She said she had an argument with her employer over wages and that Mrs. Snyder grabbed a knife and came at her.

The house maid said she wrested the knife away, and showed a cut on her left hand which she said she received in the struggle.

As the two women grappled Mrs. Snyder slipped and fell to the floor, and the maid stabbed her, she said.

Later the woman told police that during the quarrel over wages she had threatened to "expose" her employer.

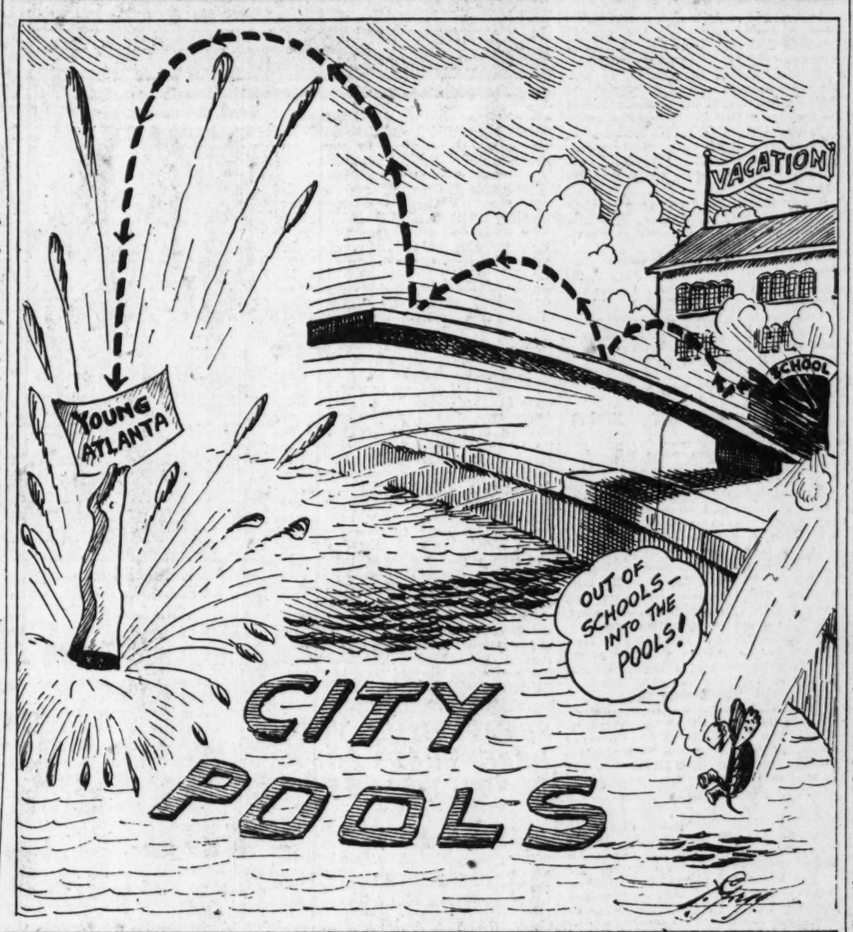

The domestic was confronted in court today by Attorney Alonzo M. Snyder, husband of the slain woman.

"You certainly ruined us, Dick and I," the lawyer said.

Dick is Charles R. D. Marsh, Jr., Mrs. Snyder's son by a former marriage.

"No, Mr. Snyder, I saved your life," the maid said. This reference was unexplained.

NEW EMORY POST IS GIVEN DR. JACK

Dean of Graduate School Elected to Position of University's Vice President.

Dr. Theodore Henley Jack, dean of the graduate school, will become Emory university's vice president under the revision of the university by-laws which abolished the office of chancellor, it was announced Saturday by President Harvey W. Cox. The election took place following the action of the board of trustees Friday in creating the new post. The new by-laws provide for the executive heads, a president and a vice president, instead of chancellor and a president, as formerly.

Dr. Jack has resigned as dean of the graduate school and will take up his new duties July 1, President Cox stated. Dr. Goodrich C. White, dean of the college of arts and sciences, also will take over the deanship of the graduate division.

Reared in Alabama and a graduate of the university of that state, Dr. Jack long has been recognized as one of the outstanding educators in the south. He was president of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States in 1926-27, after having served three years as secretary of that body. He is at present a member of the executive committee of the Southern association and is secretary of the association's commission on institutions of higher learning.

Dr. Jack is professor of history at Emory, having been head of the de-

Bobby Jones Hit by Brick In Bad Storm

King of Golfers Bruised When Lightning Fells Chimney.

Bobby Jones, of national golf fame, narrowly escaped serious injury about 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon at East Lake, when he was struck a glancing blow on his left shoulder by a falling brick from a chimney that flanks the clubhouse. The chimney had been struck by a bolt of lightning which later struck a tree near the twelfth green, where the golfer and several companions had stopped only a few minutes before.

Jones had been chased off the golf course by a tempestuous thunderstorm and was nearing the clubhouse with an umbrella stretched over him when the bricks began to fall. The umbrella was very little resistance to the bricks, but served to break the speed of the falling missiles and thereby helped save Jones from probable serious injury.

Inside the clubhouse, Jones' shoulder was examined and it was found to be only slightly bruised and a small portion of the skin broken. He was given a good massage by friends and attendants.

His golfing for the afternoon abruptly ended, Jones at his home late Saturday afternoon stated that he was feeling fine, except that his left shoulder was a bit sore. He said he expected more soreness today from the bruise, but that he was glad that there was no fracture and his golfing will not be hindered to any great extent.

Jones, together with his father and Dana Belser, local real estate broker, were playing when the thunder-storm broke over the course.

In addition to slight damage to the building by the falling bricks, one of

POTTLE TO HEAD BAR ASSOCIATION

Milledgeville Lawyer Is Chosen President. Second Highest Honor Goes to Atlantan.

With the election of Judge Joseph E. Pottle, of Milledgeville, as its president for the ensuing year, succeeding former Governor John M. Slaton, of Atlanta, the Georgia State Bar Association finished its final session of its 1929 convention at the Biltmore hotel at noon Saturday. The question of selecting a city in which to hold the convention next year was referred to the executive committee.

Another important feature of the Saturday session was the passage of a resolution providing that the association seek permission from the legislature to incorporate the body.

Judge Pottle is one of the most distinguished lawyers of Georgia. He has appeared in many of the famous cases tried in this state and has served in many official and unofficial posts of honor.

Meeting Largely Attended.

The Atlanta meeting was the first one held in this city by the association and was largely attended. Many of the delegates to the association returned to their homes Saturday, while others remained to spend Sunday here with friends.

In electing Judge Pottle as president, the association ratified the selection of its nominating committee, and also approved Rembert Marshall, of Atlanta, as vice president on advice of the committee. Executive committee, which will later select the next convention city, was also chosen as recommended by the nominating committee. Its members are: W. W. Mundy, Cedartown; John Harris, Macon; Ellis W. Smith, Jr., Atlanta, and David S. Atkinson, Savannah. Mr. Harris was chosen chairman at a meeting of the new executive committee.

Justice Gilbert Heard.

The legislative committee was instructed to submit a previously drawn bill to the state legislature late this month, if it so agreed, which would incorporate the bar under Georgia statutes.

Justice S. Price Gilbert, principal speaker of the final session, declared that simplification and other remedial steps in the legal code was the particular need of the state today.

He recommended that the best legal minds attack the problem, and seek remedies which would banish the shadow of the law as a means of escape for criminals, and set up the intent of the law as the final deciding factor of such "technical cases."

He pointed out that a man who steals a frier from a chicken pen may draw a 20-year sentence in Georgia, while the maximum for a man who embezzles millions, impoverishing hundreds of persons, may be given only seven years.

He deplored certain moving pictures, which he said portrayed courts in a nauseating manner, and urged that the lawyers seek a solution of the problem.

Keen Interest Displayed In Better Homes Contest

Reports already received clearly indicate that the 1929 national better homes architectural competition being conducted by Home Owners Institute and 13 co-operating newspapers will be a much greater success than was anticipated. A total of 2,713 entries has been received from achitects, draftsmen and students in 46 states, Canada, Cuba and Hawaii, 67 of these coming from the region covered by The Constitution.

Raymond Hood, chairman of the national jury award, announced Saturday that Benno Janssen, fellow of the American Institute of Architects, Pittsburgh; John W. Root, Chicago; Frank J. Forster and Ralph T. Walker, of New York, all members of the American Institute of Architects, and H. T. Lindeberg, of New York, have accepted invitation to serve on the national jury.

One more architect, a builder, a home economics expert, an interior decorator and a realtor, whose names will be announced shortly, will serve on this jury, which will award grand prizes. Arthur Wallace Rice, of Boston, chairman of the competition committee of the American Institute Architects, has reported favorably on the competition program to C. Herrick Hammond, of Chicago, president of the American Institute of Architects. "American homes should be better looking and even more desirable from an investment standpoint as the result of this competition," Mr. Hammond said. "This contest will have general approval of the architectural profession. I believe architects throughout the country should give it their encouragement and support."

Contest Closes June 30.

With the competition open until midnight June 30, officials state that there is no doubt but that the total number of contestants will far exceed the number entered in any contest of this kind in the past. The amount of prize money to be distributed, $29,000, is so much larger than ever offered before in a single competition, that it has evidently made a tremen-

TOTAL IS PLACED AT NINE BILLIONS IN 59 PAYMENTS

Interest Increases Final Sum to 28 Billions; Belgians Demand Pay for Stolen Money.

YOUNG IS CREDITED WITH NEW VICTORY

Settlement Represents Decrease of 116 Billions From Original Amount Assessed Germans.

Paris, June 1.—(United News.)—The troublesome reparations problem, over which the experts of seven nations have wrangled for nearly four months, has been finally and definitely settled, with the exception of Belgium's claim against Germany for compensation for Belgian gold francs confiscated during the war.

Announcement of the solution of the 10-year-old economic problems of war debts and reparations was made today by Thomas W. Lamont, member of the United States delegation to the conference.

The reparations staff worked all day to complete the final report of the conference with the hope that the agreement could be signed by Wednesday of next week. The only obstacle to the signing was Belgium's insistence that her claim be satisfied.

Belgium Rebels.

The Belgium claim, which is for a payment of 25,000,000 marks, ($5,955,000), annually for 37 years, was left out of the general reparations agreement, to be settled by negotiations between the two nations involved.

M. Gutt, spokesman of the Belgian delegation, told the United News today that Belgium would not sign the general agreement until the claim was satisfied. Germany, however, had signified her willingness to negotiate and the allied delegations worked strenuously to appease the Belgians and avoid holding up the signing of the formal agreement.

"Belgium will not sign until she obtains satisfaction on her demand for reimbursement for the forcible exchange of marks for francs," M. Gutt told the United News. "Germany has announced that she is sending an envoy to discuss the subject with us, but up to 4 p. m. we had not seen him.

"We told Mr. Young and we told the Germans we want satisfaction.

"We will certainly refuse to sign until then."

France Cuts 50 Per Cent.

The general settlement concluded this morning, in the opinion of the experts, should provide a complete and definite adjustment of the entire reparations problem. Concessions were made on both sides.

France made more than a 50 per cent cut in her original demands. Germany made concessions on many points, agreeing to pay the allied reparations commission or a bank of international settlement an average sum of 2,050,000,000 gold marks, ($488,310,000) annually within the next 59 years.

Germany thereby will pay, in installments, about $28,000,000,000. The present value of her payments, if they were turned into cash today, would be about $8,808,000,000. Interest on the annuities is figured at about 5 per cent.

Yearly Payments.

The plan under which Germany will pay was devised by Owen D. Young, United States financial expert and chairman of the conference. Under the Young plan, the first year actually starts on September 1, next, although it will be credited as starting on April 1, last, because of the five months' payments Germany will make up to September 1 under the fifth year of the old Dawes plan.

Under the Young plan, which runs for 37 years, Germany's payments will be as follows:

First year (September 1, 1929, to April 1, 1930), 1,942,000,000 marks ($453,584,400); second year (April 1, 1930, to April 1, 1931), 1,708,000,000 marks; third year, 1,685,000,000 marks; fourth year, 1,738,000,000 marks; fifth year, 1,804,000,000 marks; sixth year, 1,867,000,000 marks; seventh year, 1,893,000,000 marks; eighth year, 1,940,000,000 marks; ninth year, 1,977,000,000 marks; tenth year, 1,995,000,000 marks.

Last Years Small.

A gold mark is valued at 23.82 cents. The payments for the remaining 27 years of the Young plan will be more than 2,000,000,000 marks each, increasing finally to 2,400,000,000 marks, so that all 37 payments will average the required 2,050,000,000 marks.

The payments for the final 22 years will be much less, covering only allied payments of war debts, principally to the United States. The first 37 years will take care of both war debts and reparations.

Germany's many reservations were finally settled or compromised, most of them being withdrawn. The most important was the German railways, from which come the burden of Germany's payments to the allies. Virtually all of the unconditional portion of the annuities will come from German railway revenue.

Unconditional payments for the first year will be 660,000,000 marks ($157,212,000), the sum gradually increasing. Unconditional payments represent those sums which Germany is required to pay in foreign currencies

Judges Named To Select State Rhododendron Girl

SEMI-FINALISTS TO BE PICKED THIS WEEK

Judges in the contest sponsored by The Constitution to select a young woman to act as Georgia's sponsor at the Rhododendron Festival at Asheville, June 17 to 22, have been chosen and will meet Monday morning to choose the semi-finalists from the large list of entrants. Pictures of the semi-finalists will be featured in The Constitution's rotogravure section next Sunday.

The judges are Mrs. Virginia Warren, past president of the Junior League, and prominent in many social and civic activities; Herbert Porter, of The Constitution, governor for the Georgia district of Civitan International, and Harold C. Sheffield, prominent southern artist, and a graduate of the Chicago Art institute, whose paintings have attracted wide attention.

All colleges and universities in the state were asked to send in their candidates for the position of state sponsor and a large majority of them responded. Photographs have been sent to The Constitution, which was selected to choose the state's sponsor and the judges will begin their considerations of these Monday.

The result of their decision will not be made public at once, but the pictures of all who are selected as semi-finalists will be in print next Sunday. The winner of the contest will not be decided on until later.

Qualifications for the much-sought honor are beauty, personality and poise.

The Rhododendron Festival at Asheville is an annual event with representatives from 14 southern states in attendance. An entire week will be devoted to colorful pageantry and gay festivities, and all indications point to one of the most successful events of recent years.

The south's most beautiful girls will gather in Asheville for the occasion as the representatives of their respective states and a rhododelndron king and queen will reign over the activities of the festival week.

The program open Monday, June 17, with the royal procession and the coronation of the king and queen and comes to an end with the rhododendron ball Saturday night, June 22.

Publicity for Medicinal Progress Advocated as Aid To Public Health by Ford

Second Interview With Auto Manufacturer Reveals Views on Fetish of Medical Silence.

This is one of a series of weekly interviews Henry Ford is giving exclusively to The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance. He advocates legitimate publicity for medical progress, attacking "the fetish of professional silence." Mr. Ford has in mind the controversy in Chicago, which has resulted in prominent physicians leaving the Chicago Medical Society because of their connection with the Public Health Institute, which advertises. Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, distinguished physician and surgeon, was expelled from the society, and Coroner Bundesen and Dr. Rachel Yarrows instantly resigned in sympathy.

As Told by Henry Ford to A. M. Smith.

Written exclusively for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance.

Copyright, 1929, by The North American Newspaper Alliance.

Detroit, June 1.—Detriment to the health of the people is a direct result of the "ethics of the medical profession" as applied to publicity, in the opinion of Henry Ford.

"It is all right for scientifically qualified men to avoid quack advertising, but there is a vast difference between that kind of advertising and the legitimate publicity due the public," Mr. Ford said.

"People depend on good doctors and the progress of medical science for the correction of a thousand ills and accidents. The public has the right to know who can help in a given case, and what doctors, if any, have made real progress in the treatment of specific ailments. Who will tell the public?

Fetish of Silence.

"The doctors of the regular school have made a fetish of professional silence, the purpose, of course, being the prevention of personal exploitation. The reason for this originally was good, and remains so. The purpose was to prevent sensational quackery misleading the people, and to avoid deception of the people by premature or unproved claims of new discoveries.

"So far as 'professional ethics' protect the people they are good. But when they are used to prevent the people from getting proved and tested information, 'professional ethics' do not look so good.

"Nearly every day sees some new method of surgery or medical treatment which is an improvement on the old. But the general public hears nothing of it unless a controversy is stirred up about it.

"It is true that marked progress in medical science is promptly reported by regular doctors to their technical journals and the profesison is to be commended for this free offering to the medical world of any advance in methods. But the public does not read the medical journals, in fact, a lot of doctors don't read them either. A good many physicians are so busy using their old, accustomed methods of treatment that they haven't time to become informed about new and better methods.

How to Inform Public.

"How shall the public be informed promptly of improved methods of attack on disease, or of better methods of prevention of disease? Whose is the responsibility for getting the information across to the public?

"It seems to me that one of the first duties of the profession is to see that every step of progress in medical science is given to the public, promptly and fully, and in terms the average man can understand, for the average reader could not understand the technical language of the medical journals even if he had access to them.

"If the 'ethics of the profession' closes the mouth of any doctor who has proved a new method of treatment, then let some brother physician tell the good news. Let everybody know that when a certain ill befalls there is one man—at least one—who can do the very best for it, or can direct where it can be done. Often such knowledge, given through the newspapers, has been of great practical help in times of emergency.

"What would happen if the producers of the world's goods assumed the same attitude toward the public?—'let the public find out what we have to offer, if the public can.'

Is Throw-Back.

"Such an attitude would result in a serious throw-back in the progress of the world, and of course it would kill at once a large percentage of the world's commercial business. I don't see that the doctor and the business men have any different relations to the public. Both have things and services to offer which the public wants and needs, and which would improve the comfort, convenience, health and happiness of the people in the business of living.

"Why is it unethical for the doctor to tell the world what he can do? Why should not the medical societies have some regular system of informing the public of new and proved methods of treating human ailments?

"Suppose some doctor of good standing among his fellows was to discover a certain cure for leprosy, and was to report this to his medical society and have the treatment described in medical journals. In the case of this terrible disease, which for many centuries has been considered incurable, it is likely the newspapers would get hold of the item and make a spread of it.

"But even so, the name of the doctor unknown to the millions of readers of the papers would not guarantee the truth of the announcement. Some responsible medical society would have to stand back of it and see to it that the news got to the public promptly and in accurate statements that could be understood.

News Is Withheld.

"But in the case of many lesser though serious ills, news of medical progress never gets to the public except by the slow process of gossip—people telling about their own experience, or how they heard about a doctor said to have done some wonderful work, but they don't remember his name or just what the treatment was.

"It was by this gossip method of propaganda that I heard a few days ago of a remarkable science in the treatment of a certain disease generally considered incurable. I knew a person who had suffered from this disease. I took the name and address of the doctor at once.

"I contend that the fact that he had made this discovery should have been given to the public immediately. It would have saved much suffering and probably many lives, for I learned that this doctor was of the highest standing in his profession, and had described the new method of treatment months before in the medical journals.

"There are no secrets from the public or from competitors in the industrial and business world, except those secrets which are protected by patents and represent the life of a concern. The same company that holds the patents, however, makes no secret of the product—where to get it, how much it will cost, what it will do, etc. The public and the producer both rely on this publicity as the avenue by which they can come together.

"In what respect do doctors stand in a different relation to the public? I see none whatever."

NEW DEATHS FROM HEAT SEND TOTAL NEAR 50

New York, June 1.—(AP)—Deaths from the extreme heat which has blistered the north Atlantic states the last four days neared the half hundred mark today.

Nineteen persons died from the heat yesterday and three were drowned. More than a score of fatalities were reported previously.

With the temperature in the New York area reaching a maximum of 90 degrees, the highest thus far this season, nine persons succumbed and 18 were prostrated.

The heat in upstate New York cost one life. A New York Central railroad lineman died while working near Auburn, N. Y., a boy was drowned at Newark, N. Y., and third drowning in Wayne county within 24 hours.

One death was attributed to the heat at Paterson, N. J., and an 11-year-old girl was drowned at Chews Landing, N. J., while swimming.

Boston, one of the centers to suffer most from the torrid spell, was the first to feel relief. A temperature of 84 degrees at 8 a. m. yesterday made it the hottest place in the country at that hour, but by noon the temperature had fallen to 71. Five deaths occurred, however, before the heat wave broke.

Other deaths were reported at Malden, Mass., and Lawrence, Mass., a 12-year-old boy was drowned at Providence, R. I.

The break in the heat wave over New England brought a drop of 33 degrees at Manchester, N. H., and a 10-degree drop at Burlington, Vt.

One death occurred at Philadelphia, where a temperature of 92 degrees was recorded. At Gettysburg, Pa., a farm hand was killed by lightning.

CANNON ATTEMPTS TO WIDEN SPLIT

that the anti-Smith democrats join with the republicans in the gubernatorial election and elect a republican governor. The anti-Smith democrats will hold a convention in Roanoke June 18 to determine their course.

"I am hoping," said Bishop Cannon in his letter, "that the Roanoke convention will find and nominate just such a man (an anti-Smith democrat, ready to oppose the Smith-Raskob national leadership of the party). If it does, I shall certainly give to him my hearty support, and I hope that the people of Virginia will elect him."

All Candidates Dry.

Bishop Cannon has thrown down his challenge to the organization which has been headed by Governor Byrd, Senator Swanson and Senator Glass. Governor Byrd is not now and cannot be a candidate to succeed himself. Senator Glass will come up for reelection next year. The presumption is that his renomination and reelection will be opposed by Bishop Cannon, because Senator Glass followed the Smith banner last year.

The three candidates for the democratic nomination for governor, against whom Bishop Cannon is attempting to shut the door, are all dries. But they too, supported the Smith ticket. They are John G. Pollard, professor of law at William and Mary college; Walter Mapp, who had much to do with writing the state's prohibition law, and Rozwell Page, former second state auditor, who hails from Hanover county. Professor Pollard was formerly attorney-general of the state, elected with the backing of the drys.

The Virginia fight is attracting national attention because it is the first opportunity to ascertain whether the republican inroads which Mr. Hoover made in the south are to have any lasting effect.

Heflin Comments.

"I am reluctant to comment except to say it is the hope of democrats in my state that no such situation will arise there," said Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, commenting on the appeal of Bishop Cannon. Senator Simmons refused to support Smith last fall and his state went republican.

Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, said he was sorry to see the split in the democratic ranks in Virginia because he hoped southern democrats would get together again.

"But there is a lot of that feeling," he said, referring to Bishop Cannon's criticism of the present national democratic leadership. "Southern democrats will never stand for Raskob and Tammany leadership. Get Raskob out and they'll get together again."

It can be said with utmost assurance, however, that Raskob has no intention of getting out as national chairman. He has just provided for a sumptuously furnished suite of offices in the National Press building here in charge of Jouett Shouse, of Kansas, chairman of the executive committee of the democratic national committee. Shouse's job is to perfect the reassembling of the party machinery in the southern states which bolted last fall and to extend party organization into northern states where it has been weak before—states like the Dakotas and Minnesota where, if the present low wheat prices continue in spite of farm relief legislation, democrats hope to find much support in the 1930 congressional elections.

Dissatisfaction Dying.

Shouse has been in conferences with political leaders of several of the disaffected southern states. They are all confident that most of the disaffection of the last campaign was due to the religious issue and they anticipate that this disappeared when Governor Smith retired. Most concern is felt for Florida where high protection sentiment became so strong that all of the Florida members of congress, though democrats, voted for the republican tariff bill this week.

Democratic leaders watched with interest the balloting today in the third Kentucky congressional district where a vacancy is being filled. This close district went republican in the last election. Both parties have put on a hard campaign to capture the seat because it is the first congressional off-election since last November.

Bishop Cannon said in his letter to Mr. Moss:

"I have read with interest the statement recently issued by your committee. I have also received your request for a statement from me concerning the present political situation in Virginia.

"Nothing has occurred to change the views expressed in the statement which I addressed to the Lynchburg conference of anti-Smith democrats on February 5, 1929. In that statement three courses were indicated as open to anti-Smith democrats:

"First. To join the republican party.

"Second. To accept the present national and state democratic leadership, and to enter the August primary of the democratic party without any conditions or stipulations.

"Third. To remain as independent democrats, declaring that, while we are not republicans, yet it is impossible to accept the present state or national democratic leadership with all that would be implied by such acceptance under present conditions.

Same Conditions Exist.

"Speaking for myself alone, I reaffirm that the third position is the position which I still hold, for the same conditions exist today as existed from the day of the nomination of Alfred E. Smith, June 28, 1928, to the day of the defeat of Alfred E. Smith on the following November 6.

"As between any one of the three candidates and an able, well qualified anti-Smith democrat, who did vote against Alfred E. Smith and did refuse to accept or to follow the present national and state leadership and who will continue so to do, I shall certainly vote for the anti-Smith democrat. And I believe that the election of such candidate would be for the best interests, not only of the state of Virginia, but of the democratic party in state and nation, for such result would warn the democratic party in the nation at large that southern democrats will not agree to surrender their moral convictions for a purely political party triumph, and that a continuation of the Smith-Raskob leadership will mean the permanent loss of the south to the democratic party.

"It is hardly necessary to state, therefore, that I shall not participate in the August democratic primary and that I hope that other anti-Smith democrats will abstain from such participation."

SENATE WILL VOTE DEBENTURES DOWN, IS NOW BELIEVED

Washington, June 1.—(AP)—Administration leaders expressed the opinion today that the senate will uphold a prospective recommendation of the farm relief conference committee to eliminate the export debenture plan from the farm bill expected to be presented to both branches of congress next week for final approval.

A careful check of the senate membership was held to have shown that three or four senators who voted for the debenture plan last month have decided to support the conference report recommending its elimination on the theory that farm legislation would be greatly delayed if the controversy over this proposal is further prolonged.

With this situation in mind, the leaders are prepared to ask a vote in the senate on the conference report as soon as the conferees complete their work. Senator McNary, of Oregon, chairman of the conference, said he expected this to be early next week. The conferees had hoped to complete their work today but found it impossible to do so.

REFUNDS IN TAXES OF $10,428,025 ARE ANNOUNCED

Washington, June 1.—(AP)—Refunds of taxes totaling $10,428,025 have been announced by the internal revenue bureau in the first 40 days of the operation of the executive order of President Hoover making public all refunds of $20,000 or more.

In addition to the refunds taxpayers have been paid $114,120 in interest on the amounts which were due them, while others have been allowed credits of $2,598,922 and have received abatement of taxes aggregating $5,204,088. Taxpayers also have received $379 in costs.

Among the large refunds was one of $4,625,530 to the estate of William Waldorf Astor, of New York, which was made under a decision of the United States circuit court of appeals of the second circuit. The estate of John Emery, of Philadelphia, was given a refund of $492,504 and received an abatement of $1,180,666.

The John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston, received $692,947 refund, while the Union Oil Company of California received abatement aggregating $1,239,699 and the Prudential Insurance Company of America was refunded $996,756 and received an abatement of $474,387.

The making public of the refunds followed criticisms by members of congress of the treasury because of appropriations requested for use in paying refunds. Secretary Mellon drew the executive order requiring that the refunds be given publicity, and it was approved by the president.

CHINESE PROFESS IGNORANCE OF RAID ON RED CONSULATE

Nanking, China, June 2 (Sunday) (AP)—The foreign ministry today denied all knowledge of the raid on the soviet consulate in Harbin recently and said it had taken no action for the recall of representatives in Moscow, as reported in Berlin yesterday.

It was said that no action of any kind would be taken until the ministry was officially advised of happenings in Manchuria.

Reports were published in Japan that the Chinese nationalist government had ordered the raids on soviet consulates in Harbin and three other Manchurian cities. Russia on Friday handed a strong note of protest to the Chinese charge d'affaires in Moscow warning that its patience must not be further strained and protesting that the raids were unwarranted and in violation of international laws.

Piedmont Park Pool Is "Christened" in Preparation For Formal Opening of Atlanta Park System Saturday

Fair Atlantans Saturday christened the Piedmont bathing pool in preparation for the formal opening next Saturday for the summer months. More than 500,000 will visit the several pools operated by the city during the summer, according to estimates of L. L. Wallis, superintendent of parks, and Councilman John A. White, chairman of the parks committee of council.

Those in the group at the upper left are Misses Jessie Lee Barnes, Ann Siegel, Robena Astin, Beulah Levin, Mary Barnes, Elizabeth Poole and Rita McClung. Miss Mary Barnes and Miss McClung, shown at the upper right, took to boating after the dip. Inset shows Miss Jewel Lane, swimming instructor, who again this summer will teach youthful Atlantans the art of keeping themselves afloat. She has been re-appointed to the post by park officials, and will assume her duties as soon as the pools open.

Atlanta's 60,000 school youngsters have something to look forward to during the coming week. First, the official closing of the Atlanta school system and second, the opening of the many Atlanta parks, swimming pools and centers of recreation. Schools close on Friday and the swimming pools open on Saturday.

As a formal opening of the city parks and swimming pools for the summer, Councilman John A. White, chairman of the parks committee of city council, together with other city officials have declared "open house" on opening day and everything in the parks will be free Saturday.

Not only will the swimming pools be free to the public on opening day, but the tennis courts can be used without charge, the golf courses will be free and all other amusements will be thrown open for one day only.

The parks will be open every day during the summer, the swimming pools early in the morning, closing during the middle of the day and opening again at 2 o'clock each afternoon to remain open until 9 o'clock each night.

Complete plans for the summer playgrounds have not been announced, but park officials are working to make this summer one of the most pleasant on record for local children.

DES MOINES DIPLOMAS VANISH; SHIELDS, TOO

Des Moines, Iowa, June 1.—(AP)—Sixty diplomas for prospective graduates of Des Moines university were taken today by an unidentified man from the home of George Newcomb, business manager of the school, Newcomb revealed tonight.

While 60 Des Moines university seniors anxiously awaited trustees' approval of their diplomas, Dr. T. T. Shields, president of the board, and three associates tonight apparently had disappeared.

Dr. Shields, Miss Edith Rebman, secretary; E. A. Roberts and O. W. Van Osdel, trustees, checked out of their hotel here this afternoon. The Tribune-Capital said that earlier today Dr. Shields received a letter on stationery of the Polk County Ku Klux Klan. This letter, the newspaper said, declared that Dr. Shields, a Canadian, was being watched, and that the organization supported the "principles and teachings of Americanism and patriotism that are being set forth by President Wayman and the faculty," the letter bore only a typewritten signature, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan."

The board members could not be found early tonight at any of their usual gathering places in Des Moines. This morning they adopted a resolution that students' credits will depend on the outcome of their investigation of the rock and egg riot on the campus May 11, after the board had ousted the entire faculty.

Whether the trustees would appear in time to approve or cancel faculty recommendations that 60 students be graduated next Tuesday, was causing concern to the students. The board indicated that the commencement exercises, which are being arranged for by President H. C. Wayman, would not be interfered with except for possible refusal of diplomas to students involved in the riot.

The trustees urged students to appear before a committee to present proof of their innocence in connection with the rebellion.

Mercer To Present Degree Tuesday to Howard Coffin

Macon, Ga., June 1.—(AP)—Howard Coffin, chairman of the board of the Hudson Motor Car Company, owner of Sapelo island and principal figure in the development of the Georgia coast through his Sea Island Beach company, will receive the doctor of laws degree from Mercer university at the commencement exercises Tuesday morning, it became known today. At its meeting Monday afternoon the board of trustees will confirm action previously taken by telegraph to grant the degree to Mr. Coffin. The financier will reach Macon Tuesday morning on his private car, receive the degree at the exercises and that evening will be honor guest at a dinner given by the Macon Chamber of Commerce in behalf of the city of Macon.

Officials of Mercer would not discuss award of the degree in advance of the official action of the trustees, but it is known that they have desired to honor Mr. Coffin "both for his own outstanding qualities and for his service to the state of Georgia."

Mr. Coffin is a descendant of a Georgia family. He was born in Ohio in 1873, educated at the University of Michigan, where he received several degrees in engineering, and a quarter of a century ago entered the automobile business as engineer for the Olds Motor Works. For two years he was chief engineer of that company, then vice president and consulting engineer of the Hudson Motor Car Company, and then president and now chairman of its board. In addition he is president of the National Air Transport Corporation. During the World War Mr. Coffin served on the council of national defense, the aircraft board and the United States naval consulting board, of which he is still a member.

For many years Mr. Coffin has maintained a residence in Georgia, having in recent years built on Sapelo island one of the finest estates in the country. President Coolidge spent a part of last winter there. Mr. Coffin has carried on extensive developments along the Georgia coast through the Sea Island Beach Corporation, which he owns.

W. C. M'LENDON URGES FRIENDS TO VISIT POLLS

Declaring that he would seek always to perform the best services for the greatest number of people, W. Chester McLendon, opposing Jake Jacobs for the councilmanic post in the second ward, Saturday issued a statement urging his friends to visit the polls Wednesday.

"The only thing between me and the nomination is whether a sufficient number of my friends take advantage of the opportunity to cast ballots in the election," Mr. McLendon said.

"This is my first venture into politics, but I have made a host of friends, who I feel will loyally support my candidacy. I have been a success in the line of work which I have chosen and feel that my race is won.

"If elected I shall insist on a more businesslike administration of the city's affairs, seeking at all times to serve the best interests of the people as a whole.

"Many improvements are needed for the second ward, including parks, more schools, better streets, etc. It will be my pleasure to assist in obtaining these projects. If I am elected to council, I will go there with the friendship of every member of that body and can count on their support of measures which I will offer. I have waged a campaign of construction void of criticism of the present government because I believe it is more democratic and responsive to the wishes of the people.

"My appeal is that voters tak advantage of the opportunity to cast their ballots in the election. There can be no doubt as to the nominee if second ward voters do that."

PAPER BAG "BOMBS" USED BY STUDENTS, PROBED AT GEORGIA

Athens, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—University of Georgia officials today were investigating a clash between freshmen and upper classmen which sent several students to the university infirmary for surgical treatment.

The outbreak, which occurred last night, was said to have resulted from declarations of the upper classmen that they could "take" Candler hall in which only freshmen reside.

Paper bags, containing ammonia, was said to have been the chief means of offense, and students were treated for irritated throats and eyes.

Last night's disturbance was a sequel to an encounter between the students Wednesday night at which time it was said baseball bats and fire hose were used.

BARRED FROM U. S. JAPANESE CARRIES HIS CASE TO DAVIS

Los Angeles, June 1.—(AP)—Kumaki Koga, Japanese newspaper correspondent who was refused admission to the United States as a non-quota alien, announced yesterday he had appealed to Secretary of Labor James Davis, under the Uchida-Knox treaty of 1911 with Japan.

Koga's attorney, J. E. Keating, former assistant secretary of labor, said the treaty provided for temporary admission of "agents of commerce." Koga's appeal stated he fell into that classification.

Walter E. Carr, immigration director, refused to admit Koga and his wife. They were released under $500 bond awaiting appeal.

Franklin Chase Hoyt, New York Judge, Wins Hearst Temperance Plan Prize

Repeal of Volstead Act, Provision for Light Wines and Beer Is Suggested Plan.

New York, June 1.—(AP)—Franklin Chase Hoyt, presiding justice of the New York city children's court, today was announced the winner of the $25,000 prize contest for the best temperance plan, sponsored by the Hearst newspapers.

The plan, in brief, suggested a repeal of the Volstead act, by a new congressional definition of intoxicating liquors, which would make possible light wines and beers under state control.

Other prize winners were:

Second, $5,000—Brigadier-General Albert Clayton Dalton, U. S. army, retired, Washington.

Third, $2,000—Captain Thomas W. Therkildsen, executive secretary of the Moderation League, New York.

Justice Hoyt expressed his opinion that the eighteenth amendment cannot be replaced for many years to come. He drew a distinction between distilled and fermented liquors, saying that "distillation is the act of man and has been responsible for practically all the evils which 'liquor' has inflicted upon the human race, while fermentation is the act of nature, and that to many must mean, in the most reverential sense, the act of God."

State Control.

His plan would bar "all alcoholic products of distillation," but would permit the control, manufacture and sale of all malt, brewed and fermented beverages by the states within their own borders.

All four of the prize winning plans agreed upon the present impractibility of repealing or amending the eighteenth amendment, the award committee announced. The plans further agreed "specificially or by implication, in the desirability of returning to the states the fullest measure of control, especially in the matter of light wines and beer."

"Justice Hoyt," added the committee statement, "goes directly to the heart of the problem of making possible the return of light wines and beers under state control and retaining federal prohibition of distilled spirits, under a workable definition of the words 'intoxicating liquor' as contained in the eighteenth amendment."

Repeal Impractical.

Justice Hoyt based his plan on the premise that the repeal of the amendment of the eighteenth amendment is neither possible nor practicable at this time; that the proposal to permit the states at their option to dispense liquor will never prove acceptable and that a possible modification of the Volstead act as to the alcoholic content of beverages offers no real solution of the problem.

He contended, however, that the repeal of the Volstead act and "an intelligent definition" of the terms "intoxicating liquors" and "alcoholic beverages" would offer a solution which would promote temperance and unite all sections of the country in support of the law.

Reference Omitted.

Justice Hoyt pointed out that "the eighteenth amendment prohibits 'the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes.' "Despite popular belief," he continued, "it does not refer to 'alcoholic beverages.' What it bans is 'intoxicating liquors.' And if these two words could be defined intelligently it would solve the whole problem." He suggested that the words "intoxicating liquors" in the Volstead act be changed to "all alcoholic products of distillation."

The world "liquor" was in the past applied to distilled spirits such as whisky, gin and brandy, the justice asserted, and was distinguished from beer and wines.

The winning manuscripts were selected out of 71,248 plans submitted. The judges were: Former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri; Representative James M. Beck, Pennsylvania; Representative Florence P. Kahn, California; Monsignor John L. Belford, New York; Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, retired, Washington; Dr. Nathan Krass, New York, and Archdeacon Joseph H. Dodshon, president of the Church Temperance Society.

HOUSE FIGHT LOOMS ON ALIEN CENSUS COUNT

Washington, June 1.—(AP)—Predicting a vigorous contest in the house Monday over the proposal to exclude aliens from the count in reapportioning the members, Representative Rankin, democrat, Mississippi, said today that if the senate bill is passed unchanged 3,000,000 criminal aliens would be entitled to twelve representatives in congress.

Rankin, who is ranking minority member on the census committee, is to lead the opposition to the measure. In a statement today he declared the bill was "merely political camouflage" and had been "flagrantly misrepresented to the American people."

"It proposes," the Mississippian said, "to delegate the power to reapportion congress to the commerce department, which is charged with taking the census. This seems to me to be one of the most dangerous and inexcusable abdications of legislative prerogatives ever attempted."

The main fight would be over the exclusion of aliens from the count, Rankin said. He added 6,000,000 aliens who would never become citizens, would be given representation by advocates of the bill, while agricultural states such as Kentucky, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Mississippi would not be given adequate representation.

Three million aliens, Rankin continued, "among whom are the most criminal aliens who come to our shores" are here illegally and subject to deportation. "These criminal aliens, under this bill, would be entitled to about ten or twelve representatives in congress and would be represented by the same number of votes in the electoral college."

Rankin said house members were becoming aroused over the alien proposition and expressed the hope that an amendment excluding the aliens from the count would be adopted "to save America for Americans."

WOMAN MURDERED IN DETROIT HOTEL; NO CLUES FOUND

Detroit, June 1.—(AP)—The body of a woman, Mary Lee, 30, of Columbus, Ohio, was found in a hotel room here late today with her neck broken and finger marks on the throat.

When the body was first discovered it was believed Miss Lee died of heart disease, but closer examination revealed the broken neck and marks on the throat.

BAPTISTS WILL HEAR DR. BROUGHTON TODAY

Founder of Tabernacle To Preach at 11 O'Clock This Morning.

"What It's All About" will be the topic of a lecture by Dr. Len G. Broughton at 11 o'clock this morning in the Baptist tabernacle, of which Dr. Broughton was the founder and first pastor. The noted Baptist minister and southern evangelist will occupy the pulpit after an absence of many years.

Dr. Broughton, who re-established his residence in Atlanta last fall after resigning the pastorate of the First Baptist church at Jacksonville because of failure in health, is a familiar figure in local religious circles. Twenty years ago he founded the tabernacle and serving as its pastor over a long period of years he was responsible for the appearance in Atlanta of some of the most noted preachers of America and England.

Since leaving the pulpit at Jacksonville he has toured the south widely in evangelistic work. His lectures have always attracted considerable attention. In his lecture at the regular morning services today Dr. Broughton is expected to touch on topics of general interest.

In the night services at 7:30 o'clock the Rev. Ralph E. Stewart, acting pastor and evangelist, will speak on "When Sin First Entered."

WOMAN TO GO ON TRIAL IN DEATH OF HUSBAND

Americus, Ga., June 1.—(Special.) Mrs. Idelle Grantham will go on trial Monday in Sumter superior court for the murder of Oscar Grantham, her husband, whom the state charges she shot to death while he was asleep.

Pale and wan, Mrs. Grantham sits in her cell waiting the fateful call that means the beginning of an ordeal the end of which may mean the electric chair for her. She has been in jail here since March 15, when she was arrested and given a preliminary hearing before William M. Harper in the city court, who ordered her held without bail on a murder charge.

The defense claims that Oscar Grantham killed himself as the result of domestic difficulties, while the state alleges that Mrs. Grantham slew him as he slept as the result of an interrupted "petting party" in which Mrs. Grantham, an unnamed Americus youth, and Grantham were participants. Startling revelations are expected to feature the trial as the result of continued investigations made by B. E. Bass, Wayne county deputy sheriff and a lifelong friend of the dead man, who declares Mrs. Grantham will win the doubtful honor of being the first Georgia woman to be executed in the electric chair.

The case is scheduled to be called with the opening of Monday morning's session of superior court, and it is expected that the jury will be completed before the noon adjournment, and probably two days will be consumed in the trial of the case. The defense will be represented in the trial by Judge James A. Hixon and R. L. Lesueur and the prosecution will be conducted by Solicitor General Hollis Fort.

FLORIDA SLAYER OF PROHI OFFICERS HAS 2 SENTENCES

Tallahassee, Fla., June 1.—(AP)—J. W. Buchanan, of Taylor county, was under sentence of life imprisonment and death tonight for the killing of two prohibition officers, as the result of decisions of the Florida supreme court.

The slayings took place some time ago. Buchanan was indicted on first degree murder charges for each slaying, and was convicted of one with a recommendation to mercy, which automatically brought life imprisonment.

According to Roy Campbell, assistant attorney general, who handled the cases in the supreme court for the state, the prosecution offered to nolle prosse the other indictment against Buchanan, provided that an appeal from the conviction was not taken.

The life imprisonment conviction was appealed, however, and the supreme court affirmed the finding of the lower court. Then prosecution of the other indictment was begun, and Buchanan was convicted again of first degree murder, but this time without any recommendation. The supreme court has just affirmed that decision. The opinion was by Justice Armstead Brown.

COLLEGE ROMANCE CLAIMS DAUGHTER OF ARK. GOVERNOR

Little Rock, Ark., June 1.—(AP)—Governor Harvey Parnell today had a new title—that of father-in-law.

And although he has been a father-in-law since last Thursday he did not know it until last night.

Rumors that his daughter, Martha, 19, a freshman at the University of Arkansas, and Eugene Warren, 19, of Forrest City, a sophomore, had wed secretly flew around the campus of the university yesterday and last night the couple telephoned their respective parents and broke the news.

The news of the marriage, performed by the Rev. H. L. Paisley, pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Fayetteville, came as a surprise to the parents of both.

The governor had planned to leave tomorrow morning for Fayetteville to award diplomas to university graduates but postponed his departure until tomorrow night in order to see his daughter and son-in-law.

Atlanta and Decatur boys who will graduate at Davidson College next Wednesday are pictured above. At the top, left to right, are R. O. Flinn, Jr., and S. Y. Brown, both of Atlanta; in the center is shown W. K. Pritchett, while at the bottom, from left to right, are J. W. Melton, Jr., of Decatur, and R. R. Kane, of Atlanta.

Davidson, N. C., June 1.—Eleven Georgia boys, five of them from Atlanta and Decatur, are among the 119 seniors who will graduate from Davidson college next Wednesday at the conclusion of the 93rd commencement of the North Carolina institution. The names and degrees of the Atlanta and Decatur boys are:

William Kendrick Pritchett, Atlanta, bachelor of arts in Greek; Richard Orme Flinn, Jr., Atlanta, bachelor of arts in history; Richard Robbins Kane, Atlanta, bachelor of arts in German; John William Melton, Jr., Decatur, bachelor of science in psychology, and Samuel Young Brown, bachelor of arts in chemistry.

Honorary fraternities which have honored Mr. Pritchett include Phi Beta Kappa, scholastic; Omicron Delta Kappa, leadership; Eta Sigma Phi, classical; Alpha Phi Epsilon, forensic; Omega Phi Alpha, philosophical and psychological, and Delta Pi Kappa, journalistic. Clubs which have chosen him are the International Relations Club, which studies world problems; Reporters' Club, for excellent work on the weekly newspaper, and Beaver Club, composed of ten men selected in their sophomore year as most likely to be leaders of the campus. He has been elected to many other honorary groups and is a debator of note.

Flinn Leading Student.

Mr. Flinn has been recognized by the honorary fraternities of Omicron Delta Kappa, leadership; Scabbard and Blade, military, and Sigma Upsilon, literary. He took the advanced R. O. T. C. course offered by Davidson, has been a captain in the military unit, and will also be awarded a second lieutenant's commission in the reserve army the day he graduates. He was a leader in many other respects, and was one of the outstanding members of the football team the past season, being responsible for much of the ground gained by Davidson.

Mr. Kane made the honor roll at Davidson his first year, and has likewise received this honor during his entire career. He is among the first four honor men of the class. Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, chose him for membership, as well as Omega Phi Alpha, honorary psychology and scholastic fraternity. For two years he has been a member of the Glee Club, and has also been in the Beaver Club, Reporters' Club, secretary-treasurer of the sophomore class; on the court of control; feature editor of Quips and Cranks, college yearbook, and on the Pan-Hellenic Council. For three years he has been on the football squad, though he never made his letter.

The Decatur boy, Mr. Melton, received a high gift from the student body last spring when he was elected president of the Y. M. C. A. for the scholastic session now ending. He has also served on the "Y" cabinet, and was secretary-treasurer of the student council, being a member of this governing body. Southern recognition was given Mr. Melton when he was chosen as vice president of the Southern Federation of College Students. Omicron Delta Kappa, honorary leadership fraternity, recognized him. He was a member of the football team for three years.

Brown on Honor Roll.

Mr. Brown, the fifth member of the Atlanta group to graduate from Davidson next week, also has been an excellent student, making the honor roll at Davidson for the past two years. He was a member of Gamma Sigma Epsilon, honorary chemical fraternity, in the Biology Club and the International Relations Club. He has been on the business staff of Quips and Cranks, college annual; an assistant in German, and on the senior commencement committee. As a member of the R. O. T. C. for two years he served as color sergeant, and was on the rifle team. He has played class basketball and been a member of the track squad, though he never made his letter in either of these sports.

Other Georgia boys who will graduate from Davidson next Wednesday are E. P. Moye and G. T. Preer, both of Columbus; D. O. Leftwich, Conyers; G. H. Green, Mount Berry; S. L. McCarty, Jr., Augusta, and D. F. Martin, Jr., Flemington. Most prominent among these men is Mr. Leftwich, who will leave Davidson as holder of the college record in the shot-put, which he broke several times during the past three years.

Record Attendance Is Seen For Civitan Conclave Here

The largest attendance ever recorded at a convention of International Civitan Saturday was forecast for the 1929 gathering to be held here June 10 to 12 by Herbert Porter, general chairman of convention plans and a leader of the Atlanta Civitan Club.

Mr. Porter announced that plans have been made for running special Civitan trains from points in Tennessee, Alabama, the Carolinas and Florida into Atlanta, and letters are daily being received from all parts of the country officially reporting that unusually big delegations will attend from clubs in virtually every big city in the United States.

The committee in charge of housing the hosts of Civitans also reported Saturday that hotel reservations to date are unusually heavy and that requests for accommodations are still pouring into local hostelries.

"Every indication is that the convention will be a tremendous success both in point of attendance and program," Mr. Porter stated. "It now appears certain that the largest gathering ever to attend an international convention will be here for the 1929 event."

The visiting Civitans will begin pouring into Atlanta next Sunday and begin registering for the convention activities. The formal program will begin on Monday, June 10, and for three days the representatives of the civic organization will be busily engaged with business matters and social events.

A big dinner and dance, stunts, a barbecue and sight-seeing trips are on the program, with additional entertainment for the women of Civitan who attend with their husbands.

Probably the most important business matter to be considered by the convention will be the adoption of new by-laws and constitution, together with a proposal emanating from the Atlanta club that voting in all elections be made requisite to membership in the clubs.

The local Civitan Club has worked efficiently on plans for the convention. Herbert Z. Hopkins is president of the club and Dr. W. Earl Quillian president-elect.

DELEGATES NAMED BY ATLANTA POST FOR LEGION MEET

Forty-two delegates and 42 alternates have been named to represent Atlanta Post No. 1 of the American Legion at the eleventh annual convention of the order in Georgia which meets in Brunswick June 20-21, it was announced Saturday.

A special round-trip rate of $10 has been arranged over the Atlanta, Birmingham and Columbus railway, and it is said that the Atlanta attendance will be large. The post drum corps will accompany the delegates.

WEARING OF SOCKS BARRED TO SCHOOL GIRLS IN MEMPHIS

Memphis, Tenn., June 1.—(AP)—Girls who attend Central High school must dress the part of young ladies—and young ladies, it is announced, have passed the age of socks.

Professor Charles P. Jester, the principal, and Miss Anna Mahler, his assistant, have decided that followers of the latest flapper fad must either wear stockings or forego classes.

"Our students are not children any more," said Miss Mahler, in explaining why one girl had been asked to run home and put on her hose, which she did. "They are young ladies and young ladies must wear stockings. We decided that they must not come to school without them."

GIRL OF 26 WINS HIGH BUSINESS POST AT JACOBS

A girl—26 years of age—manager of one of the south's biggest drug stores—

That's Miss Wylene Roberts, who has just been appointed head of the main Jacobs Pharmacy at Five Points in Atlanta. Her appointment, announced by Sinclair Jacobs, general manager of the Jacobs chain of pharmacies, is the culmination of eight years' association with this company during which time she had won steady advancement.

Eight years ago Miss Roberts came to Atlanta from Rome, Ga., and began selling toilet articles under direction of Dave Jacobs at the Broad and Alabama streets store. Later she was made manager of the Haas-Howell building store and two months ago was recalled to the main store to become manager of the toilet goods department.

While she has specialized in toilet goods, Miss Roberts is known as an expert on all lines of durg store operation. In the words of her associates, "she can do anything but fill prescriptions." She has hundreds of friends made during her association with the Jacobs stores.

Decatur Chamber Meets To Elect New Secretary

Decatur, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—John Wesley Weekes, president of the Decatur Chamber of Commerce, has called a meeting of the newly-elected directors for Tuesday night, for the purpose of making plans and electing a secretary for the ensuing year.

Marvin A. Allison, who has been secretary of the organization for the past three years and who is now recovering from a serious illness, has informed the officials of the chamber that he would not stand for re-election as he desires to take a few months' rest and recuperation in the mountains of north Georgia.

The fiscal year of the Decatur body ended May 31, and the officers for the new year, which were recently elected, will be installed at an annual meeting to be held at Hotel Candler the early part of June.

High Schools of County To Graduate 127 Pupils; Over 700 To Leave Grades

List of Teachers for Next Year Is Announced by Office of Superintendent

A total of 127 pupils are to be graduated by the two Fulton county high schools this year, while more than 700 will finish their elementary preparations for high school work in the fall, County Superintendent Jere Wells announced Saturday.

"Our schools are growing by leaps and bounds, Superintendent Wells said. 'Each year our graduating classes grow larger and larger and in 1930 I think we will see more than 200 high school graduates from the county schools and nearly a thousand elementary school graduates."

Superintendent Wells also announced that the county's summer schools would be opened on June 17, the high school courses to continue eight weeks and the elementary school courses to continue six weeks. No advance work will be on the curriculum for this summer's sessions and the students will be required to pay only a small registration fee to help pay the costs of the special instructions, which are available only for pupils who have been deficient in their school work and hope to make up lost ground during the vacation period.

Superintendent Wells also made public the following assignments of teachers for the next term:

Woman Deported Must Serve Term In Federal Case

Plans of Mrs. C. M. Jackson for immediate and permanent departure from the state of Georgia were given a setback Saturday, when she was brought before Judge Sibley in federal court, pleaded guilty to a violation of the prohibition laws and was sentenced to serve one month in the Fulton county jail. She began serving her sentence immediately.

Only Thursday she had been tried before Judge Jesse M. Wood, of city criminal court, found guilty of possessing whisky and sentenced to 12 months on the state prison farm.

After this, however, the defandant promised that if sentence were suspended she would leave immediately for her mother's home in Virginia, would have no further dealings with liquor and would not enter this state again. This was agreed upon with the understanding that if she broke her word she would have to serve the sentence.

Learned of U. S. Charge.

George Allen Maddox, county probation officer, was entrusted with the task of seeing that she left Atlanta and went so far as to purchase her ticket to Virginia. At this point, however, Maddox learned that his prisoner was facing a federal charge and that her bondsman was anxious to produce her in federal court Saturday morning.

This was done and the permanent departure postponed for one month.

JUDGE WOOD'S ACTION PRAISED BY TINDALL.

Praise for Judge Jesse M. Wood, who presided over the trial last Thursday in which a young woman was convicted in Fulton superior courts of possessing liquor and then given the alternative of returning to her parental home outside of the state was recorded in a reply to The Constitution's editorial of Saturday based on news reports of the case.

The reply to the editorial, "An Exile From Georgia," was made by Judge W. W. Tindall. It cites the underlying conditions of the case upon which the trial judge was believed to have rendered the decision, which is termed "merciful" and "noble" by Judge Tindall.

Judge Tindall's remarks follow:

An Old Offender, He Says.

"The young woman is an old offender. I represented her myself in one of her previous cases.

"Moreover, she is associated here in Atlanta with criminal characters, some of whom are ex-convicts.

"In the case at bar Thursday, May 30, the judge could do nothing but give her a straight sentence without the alternate of a fine. Fines to her and her associates amount to license to do business.

"She was facing a term of penal servitude. The judge's decision in the case was determined, and was definite; she must serve 12 months. To allow her another and another fine would have been farcical.

"But the woman asked for mercy in an unexpected manner. She pleaded that she be allowed to return home to her mother, and gratuitously volunteered the assurance that she wanted to leave the old haunts of vice here in Georgia, and return to her own state and to her own people, and avowed her intention never to resume these Georgia associations, but to remain with her own people where she could have care, guidance, and protection, and love. She represents that she is tubercular, and she looks it—frail, slender, weak, nervous, distracted.

Begged To Go Home.

"She begged to go home to mother; she had no other way to turn, except to her evil associations, or to the penitentiary. If any other remedy had been offered, she would have seized it. But there was no other remedy. Mother is always waiting with the light burning in the window and with arms outstretched.

"Is it in violation of the constitution for a judge to show mercy in a case like this? What would we think of a judge who did not respond to an appeal such as this unfortunate made?

"Let me go home to mother, and I'll not come back to these people," she pleaded.

"The judge in his mercy turned the matter over to the probation officer, and the probation officer assisted her to make her preparations and begin her transit, as any gentleman would do for a woman. To whom were these duties to be left? Who was to perform these services? Surely not the associates whom she desired to break away from.

"The judge who functioned in this case did it admirably. He transplanted a weak flower to a more strengthening soil, it is hoped.

"Judge Knows Laws."

"No judge in this county has ever banished a prisoner—that is, no judge has suspended a sentence, provided the prisoner would leave the state.

"The judge in this case knows the constitution and the laws as few lawyers or judges do. He is known to enforce the constitution and the laws impartially and justly. There is nowhere a judge who is more above reproach than this judge.

SOUTH GEORGIA OPENS TOBACCO SALES JULY 23

Market To Open Two Weeks Earlier Than Last Year, Is Prediction.

Nashville, Ga., June 1.—(Special.) The Georgia tobacco market, bringing a crop annually worth around $12,000,000, will open about Tuesday, July 23, two weeks earlier than last season, according to reports received today from growers in South Georgia.

Leading tobacco warehousemen and others interested from south Georgia, who discussed the opening date in a preliminary way recently at Richmond, Va., are quoted as saying that the crop is already far advanced as compared with previous years.

In addition to this there is said to be a growing demand among the south Georgia growers for an earlier opening of the market, the consistent early maturity of the weed being in favor of the demand, it was said.

The date for the opening, however, will not be officially determined until the annual meeting of the national association, which will be held in June at Virginia Beach, Va. But it seems now almost certain, the reports state, that the early date in July will be fixed at that time.

Uniform Date.

The Carolina growers also are said to be demanding an opening date coincident with that in Georgia, but reports state that it is not generally favored as the crop is not sufficiently advanced to warrant an earlier opening.

Reports made public here by the agricultural department of the A. B. & C. railroad, which helped to establish the tobacco industry in south Georgia and has promoted it for many years, show the unusual uniformness of the present crop, there seldom being a field where one stalk is higher than another. This condition of the crop, it was stated, will add materially to the selling price of the entire crop.

Usually, it was pointed out, the average field of tobacco shows stalks of two or three different sizes, which affect the gathering to an extent and this also is felt when the tobacco gets on the warehouse floor.

FUNERAL RITES HELD AT GRIFFIN FOR H. D. EDWARDS

Griffin, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Funeral services for H. D. Edwards, who died here after an illness of several months, were held from the Sandy Creek Baptist church, in Butts county. The Rev. D. A. Brindle, the Rev. O. K. Cull and the Rev. L. M. Blackwelder, Griffin ministers, officiated, and interment was in the churchyard.

Mr. Edwards, who was 61, was born and reared in this section of the state. He lived here until a few years ago, when he moved to Macon. He recently became ill and underwent treatment at a hospital in Atlanta, later being brought to the home of his brother, A. G. Edwards, where he died.

He is survived by his widow, who is critically ill at a hospital in Macon; one daughter, Miss Velma Edwards, and five brothers, A. W. Edwards and A. G. Edwards, of Griffin; C. L. Edwards, of Juliette; W. C. Edwards, of Macon, and F. C. Edwards, of Hampton.

BILL ASKS CHANGE OF CARTERSVILLE CITY MANAGER PLAN

Cartersville, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—A legal advertisement, which would change the charter of the city of Cartersville, appeared in local newspapers this week.

The advertisement stated that "application will be made for the introduction and passage by the 1929 session of the general assembly of Georgia of an act," which calls for a redivision of the city into the old four wards and an alderman elected from each ward and a mayor-at-large, instead of the present city manager form of government.

The city of Cartersville has been under the city manager plan of government for several years.

WORK ON CITY SURVEY

Questionaire Sent Out by Mayor Ragsdale.

Questionaires concerning operation of every department of the city government Saturday were sent out by Mayor I. N. Ragsdale in behalf of a citizens' commission appointed by the mayor to survey the city government with a view of introducing more modern and up-to-date methods of administration.

The commission is headed by Robert F. Maddox, former mayor of Atlanta, and is now engaged in making the survey of the 40 various departments.

Boy Scout Circus Here Tuesday Night To Provide Diverting Series of Acts

Among the many activities of Atlanta Boy Scouts, who are preparing for an elaborate circus to be presented at the auditorium, is leather-working. A group of youngsters is learning something of the art in the photograph above.

The Boy Scout Circus, said by those who know to be of Barnum proportions, opens Tuesday night at the city auditorium, and from the first blare of the Salvation Army's Territorial Staff band, which inaugurates festivities, until the closing notes of "Taps" brings the circus to a conclusion, fun, frolic and entertainment in a quantity far from parsimonious are promised.

Atlanta scouts have worked for months in preparation for the event and a program instructive as well as entertaining has been worked out under the supervision of W. A. Dobson, executive of the Atlanta council, assisted by Scoutmaster Harry E. Lindley and J. J. Foote, director of general committees.

Drum, Bugle Corps.

A feature of the circus will be the presentation of the Scout Drum and Bugle Corps, which is said to have attained a perfection seldom found in such an organization. This body, in charge of F. E. Davenport and Scoutmaster F. G. Smith, will lead the scouts into the auditorium Tuesday night.

Scout exhibits furnished by 21 foreign countries as well as local troops will be another high light of the activities, and this event alone, officials say, will be worth the nominal price of admission.

Mayor L. N. Ragsdale will deliver the address of welcome, and he will be followed by Dr. Willis Sutton, who will speak in behalf of the schools.

Five-Part Program.

The program is as follows:

Part I—Candidate.

Event 1.....Heritage of Scouting
Event 2.....Scouts of Atlanta
Event 3.....Drums and Bugles
Event 4.....Learning by Doing
Event 5.....Flag Ceremony
Event 6.....Dreams Come True

Booker T. Washington Seniors Get Diplomas; Willis Sutton Presides

With Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta public schools, presiding, more than 1900 seniors of the Booker T. Washington High school, Saturday night, were presented with diplomas at the city auditorium in the third annual graduating exercises of the school.

George W. Powell, president of the city board of education, delivered the commencement address and awarded diplomas and certificates to the graduating class.

Several scholarships, aggregating more than $500 and given by local colleges and greek letter fraternities, were presented by J. O. Thomas, director of the National Urban league.

Awards and scholarship winners were as follows: Evelyn Owens, Journal cup for ever-ready writers essay contest; Louise Day, Journal cup for best all round senior; Thelma Roberts, Alpha Kappa Alpha scholarship; Louise Day, Alpha Phi Alpha scholarship; Carrie Marsh, Clark University Alumni scholarship; Inez Gay, Delta Sigma scholarship; Marion Cabaniss, Kappa Alpha Psi scholarship; Horace Richardson, Morehouse college scholarship; Ruthy May Haynes, Morris Brown university scholarship; Arthur Richardson, Omega Psi Phi scholarship, and Emma Thomas, Spelman college scholarship.

It was announced that scholarships for Maria Merck and Sarah Allen, honor roll students were pending and would be announced later.

MEETINGS TO BE HELD FOR PEACE PROMOTION

Year 'Round Program Announced by Committee on Cause, Cure of War.

Plans for sponsoring mass meetings in all sections of the state throughout the year for the promotion of universal peace have been formulated by the Georgia committee on Cause and Cure of War, according to announcement Saturday by Mrs. Sinclair Jacobs, chairman.

The permanent program was seen as the outgrowth of the second annual conference of the committee and cooperating organizations recently held in Atlanta at which time resolutions were adopted endorsing the inter-American arbitration treaty; reaffirming the committee's stand for the adherence of the United States to the world court; thanking the press for co-operation in calling attention to the conference and urging other educational work in the interest of international peace.

"It is the intention of this committee," Mrs. Jacobs stated Saturday, "to sponsor mass meetings throughout the year in all parts of Georgia so that the people may become thoroughly cognizant of the problems confronting the world and their own responsibilities in the great and important task of establishing a permanent peace. A vast amount of material for reference and distribution is kept at headquarters and requests for information or help on the part of organizations or individuals affiliating with the committee's peace movement will be gladly replied to," Mrs. Jacobs stated.

Officers of the committee serving with Mrs. Jacobs are Mrs. R. L. Miller, vice chairman; Mrs. John Mullin, treasurer; Mrs. Charles Hinton, of Macon, secretary, and an executive committee consisting of Miss Roberta Hodgson, professor of international relations, Georgia State Normal college; the Rev. Wilkie Collins, Wesley Memorial church, and William Allan Dunlap, United States bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

R. B. ELEAZER TO MAKE ADDRESS AT ATHENS SCHOOL

Athens, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—R. B. Eleazer, of Atlanta, educational director of the Commission on Interracial Co-operation, will deliver the commencement address of the Athens High and Industrial school at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The graduating class consists of 14 members, to whom certificates will be awarded. The first honors of the class go to Ernest C. Cobb, and the second to Mittie R. Howard. The principal of the institution is Professor S. F. Harris.

NAVY RESERVE LEAVES ATLANTA WEDNESDAY

Atlanta Battalion Goes to Charleston and Thence to Maine.

Atlanta's United States Naval Reserves are going to see the briny deep, it was announced Saturday by Lieutenant P. Boucheron, communications officer, who in civil life is district sales manager here for the Radio Corporation of America.

The First Battalion of the United States Naval Reserve, sixth district, will leave Atlanta Wednesday night for Charleston, where it will sail the following morning aboard two destroyers, the U. S. S. Sharkey and the U. S. S. Sturtevant, the lieutenant said.

The destroyers will join the naval reserve units from Jacksonville and Miami en route north and will proceed to the naval rendezvous near Newport, R. I., where joint maneuvers with the scouting fleet will be held. Later the destroyers will go to Rockland, Maine, for several days shore leave.

The second week of the cruise will be devoted to annual gunnery competition and other maneuvers. One of the Atlanta crews won second place in similar competition last year.

The First Battalion of the Naval Reserves in Atlanta is commanded by Lieutenant Harry F. Dobbs. Other officers who will be on the cruise are Lieutenant W. C. Wroez, in command of the First Division; Lieutenant M. R. Sanders, commanding the Second Division; Lieutenant W. B. Tucker, Jr., Lieutenant Fred Morris, Jr., Lieutenant W. R. Smith, surgeon; Ensign W. F. Tabor, supply officer, and Lieutenant P. Boucheron, communications officer.

FIVE EXECUTED FOR TRAIN ATTACK IN MEXICAN STATE

Mexico City, June 1.—(AP)—Reports from the state of Queretaro today said that five men had been court-martialed and executed by a firing squad as responsible for the recent dynamiting of a passenger train from Mexico City to Laredo near the station of Bernal.

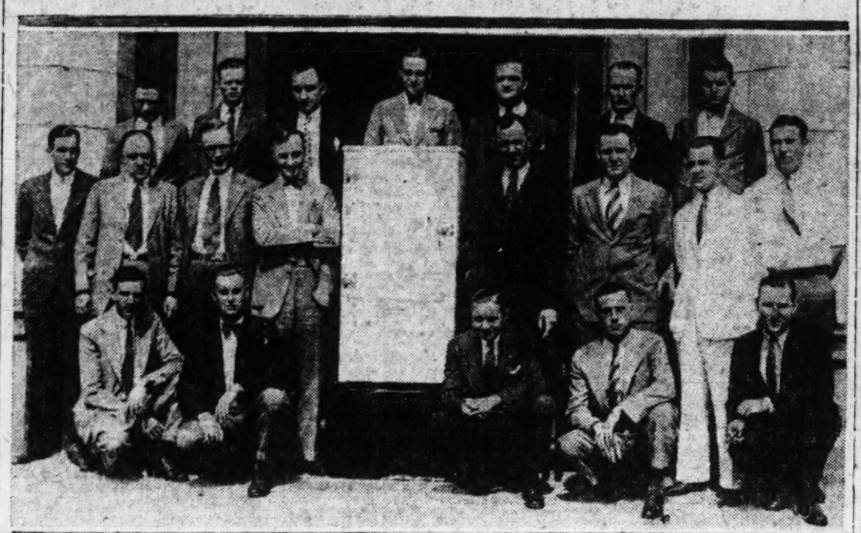

The names of the men were not given, but they were caught with dynamite bombs in their possession similar to those used in wrecking the train.

In the explosion, only an armored car carrying military escort, was damaged. There were no casualties.

SINCLAIR JAIL MATE, 20-YEARER, TRIES SUICIDE

Washington, June 1.—(United News.)—One of Harry F. Sinclair's 400 or more District of Columbia jail mates, facing a 20-year sentence for two robberies in which loot of $46 was obtained, tried to hang himself. A guard saved the would-be suicide, F. A. Schenck, a former policeman, who said he "must have been crazy" to make the attempt.

Morris is manager of the local Kelvinator branch.

NORMAN CALLS TAX STAND 'UNFORTUNATE'

Commissioner Answers Opposition to Proposed Sales Levy.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

R. C. Norman, state tax commissioner, described the attitude of businessmen who have voiced opposition to a proposed general sales tax as "unfortunate and disappointing" in a statement issued Saturday.

Mr. Norman was chairman of the special commission which investigated the present tax system a few weeks ago and recommended a sales tax as a means of raising additional state revenue and reducing the ad valorem tax rate for state purposes. Merchants at several points over the state have since passed resolutions opposing the enactment of a law that would provide for such a sales tax.

In his statement Saturday Mr. Norman declared:

"The state is faced with a crisis. Her credit is at stake. Her school teachers are unpaid and her higher institutions of learning must greatly curtail or close their doors.

Is Before Assembly.

He referred to the legislature's problems as to taxes by saying:

"The general assembly of this state has been wrestling with the complicated and difficult problem of taxation for more than a generation. Every measure proposed has met with destructive criticism and violent opposition instead of with co-operation and constructive suggestions."

The commissioner declared that "the Georgia revenue system—or lack of system—has been built up on the theory of 'getting the most feathers with the least squawk.'

"The farmer and the small home owner," he added along this line, "have no organization, no paid secretaries, no committees and no lobbyists to present their cause. The feeble squawk of the individual farmer or home owner has been like the voice of an infant crying in the night and with no language but a cry. As a consequence, the brunt of the tax burden throughout the years has been shifted to these two classes."

Would Assess Merchants.

Mr. Norman, in reply to the merchants' opposition to the sales tax recommendation of his commission, said:

"A small tax of 1-5 of one per cent upon the gross receipts of retail merchants was proposed simply as a temporary measure until the constitution could be amended and an adequate and permanent tax system adopted. The organized retailers of the state immediately sent out appeals urging that 'every red-blooded Georgia retailer should and must if humanly possible' come to a meeting at Macon. This meeting appointed its committees and mapped out its plan to defeat a merchant's tax.

"The members of the general assembly will doubtless be flooded with protests and the assembly halls crowded with 'committees' seeking to defeat and kill any measure that will impose a tax, however small, upon merchants, amusements or other interests that are now carrying less than their just proportion of the tax load."

He declared that wholesale and retail dealers of every class in Georgia now return their stocks for taxation at a total of $63,500,000, "not more than 12 1-2 cents on the dollar."

"As has always been true under the archaic ad valorem system," Mr. Norman added here, "the larger the business the lower the return in proportion to value. The little fellow among the merchants therefore carries the heavier end of the log."

Calls Position Patriotic.

Mr. Norman concluded his statement by saying:

"It must in justice be said that many of the progressive and fair-minded merchants of the state declined to attend the Macon meeting or to endorse the action there taken. It is also doubtless true that the majority of the merchants at such meeting were not aware of the low figure at which mercantile stocks as a whole are returned.

"The action of the Georgia and Country Bankers Association and the address of Mr. Groover, the newly elected president of the Georgia bankers, is most refreshing and encouraging.

"If the unselfish and patriotic position taken by our bankers could be infused into all the business interests of our state a new and better day would dawn in Georgia, and in a few short years we would be able to reclaim the title of the empire state of the south."

Shorter Seniors Hear Sermon At Rome Today

Rome, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Program of the fifty-sixth annual commencement at Shorter college began Friday night, with the presentation of "School for Scandal," by the Shorter Players. On Saturday evening the annual commencement concert, in which students in voice, piano, violin and organ participated, took place in the college auditorium.

The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered Sunday afternoon in the college chapel by Dr. Bunyan Stephens, pastor of the First Baptist church, Rome, and on Tuesday morning preceding the awarding of degrees to 41 graduates, Dr. John N. Hill, literary editor of the Sunday school board of the Southern Baptist convention, will give the baccalaureate address.

Monday will be given over to meetings of alumnae, a large number of whom are in attendance. The trustees' meeting will take place on the afternoon of the same day. Governor L. G. Hardman is chairman of the body.

Classes with numerals ending in nine will hold reunions this year. Noteworthy among the representatives are Mrs. Annie Estes Chewning, Roanoke, Va., and Mrs. Mollie Young Irvin, Cedartown, who are present to celebrate their fiftieth anniversary, being graduates of the class of '79.

GEORGE C. MUNGER, ATLANTA PRINTER, LAID T OLAST REST

Funeral services for George C. Munger, a member of the Atlanta Typographical Union, who died Thursday at his home, 33 Roanoke avenue, were held Friday from Spring Hill chapel. The Rev. J. Sprole Lyons officiated and interment was in Greenwood cemetery.

He is survived by his widow; two daughters, Mrs. Anne Munger Mueller, and Mrs. G. A. Purrington, of Miami, Fla., and two sons, William G. Munger, of Charlotte, N. C., and H. P. Munger, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

State Normal To End Term Monday Night

Statesboro, Ga., June 1.—(Special.) Georgia Normal will end its term Monday night when degrees, diplomas and certificates will be awarded a large class. Dr. William H. Kilpatrick, of Columbia university, New York city, will make the literary address.

All the churches of the city have cancelled their morning services Sunday that the congregation will have the opportunity to hear the baccalaureate serman by Dr. George D. Goddard, of Milner.

The closing of the Georgia Normal commenced Wednesday evening with a recital by Misses Ila Mae Strickland and Sara Hartman, pupils of the music department.

President Guy H. Wells is highly enthused over the progress of the Georgia Normal and predicts a great future for it.

On June 11 the Georgia Normal will begin its second summer school of six weeks. Last year the applications were so great it was necessary to continue the summer school six weeks. The gathering of young teachers overcrowded the dormitories and it was necessary for the citizens of Statesboro to afford rooms for the overflux, and, according to President Wells, many applications have been received. There will also be a training school on the campus, taught by Miss Mattie Lively, Miss Mildred Peek and Miss Effie Bagwell. This class will include pupils of the first four grades only.

FIRE DESTROYS 3 WAREHOUSES AT GARDEN CITY

Garden City, N. Y., June 1.—(AP)—Fire starting in a pile of rubbish alongside the Long Island railroad right-of-way late today destroyed three large warehouses, a garage and a freight car and threatened to ignite six huge tanks of high-test airplane gasoline. Damage was estimated at $200,000.

The scene of the fire was between Roosevelt and Mitchel fields.

Fifth District School Building Is Destroyed By Fire; $50,000 Loss

Blaze Thought To Have Been Started by Bolt of Lightning in Severe Thunderstorm.

Monroe, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Fire, thought to have originated from a bolt of lightning, completely destroyed the main academic building of the Fifth District Agricultural and Mechanical school this afternoon. Loss was estimated at $50,000 and was only partly covered by insurance, according to J. Henry Walker, president. Neither of the other two buildings was damaged.

A severe wind, electrical and rainstorm struck Monroe shortly after 3 o'clock and within a few minutes after the storm had passed, fire was discovered on the east corner and on the roof of the two-story structure.

There is no fire protection or fire-fighting equipment at the school and crowds immediately began to save office equipment and school records. A small stream of water from a garden hose and a bucket "brigade" formed the fire-fighting equipment, but with a strong wind fanning the blaze, the building was soon enveloped in flames.

Hundreds of motorists passing through the city on week-end trips were attracted to the fire and said the blaze could be seen for more than 30 miles. The structure was still burning at midnight and it was estimated that it would burn throughout Sunday.

The building was constructed in 1906 along with the boys' dormitory and the cornerstone was laid by Governor J. M. Terrell. It was a two-story brick structure and all classrooms, administrative offices and the auditorium were within the building.

Saturday night, all citizens were warned not to stand too close to the walls. It was feared that they might fall, according to officials of the school.

Graduation exercises of the school were held Wednesday night in the auditorium with Governor L. G. Hardman as the principal speaker, and school was officially closed for the summer Thursday morning. There were 60 graduates who received diplomas.

PRATT TAKES CONTROL OF CLEARING HOUSE

Winter Haven, Fla., June 1.—(AP) A. M. Pratt, former sales manager for Chase & Company, Orlando citrus firm, today assumed the duties of general manager of the Florida Citrus Growers' Clearing House Association, succeeding J. Curtis Robinson, who recently resigned to become vice president and manager of the Growers and Shippers League of Florida.

Pratt will take active charge of the clearing house next Monday and maintain headquarters here. He was elected to the managership at a recent meeting of the executive committee of the committee of 50 and the board of directors.

J. A. Griffin, Tampa banker and citrus grower, was elected president of the association to succeed Allen E. Walker, of Winter Haven, who did not seek re-election. Griffin and the new board of directors, of whom four are new members and seven are retained from the old board, will assume office July 1.

J. C. Chase, a large Florida fruit grower, asked that Dr. Marlott make public the fact that a great deal of Florida fruit was still to be moved out of the state and that it was completely free from any infestation. Dr. Marlatt said he was glad to publicly state that a large proportion of the fruit in Florida was perfectly good and that any fruit now moving out moved only after the strictest kind of inspection.

A number of the Florida delegation in congress attended the hearing.

Dr. Marlatt said that some misapprehension had been created by the call for the public hearing today and that he wanted to make it clear that no further restrictions were being placed or were contemplated on the movement of Florida fruits and vegetables.

THOUSANDS JOIN IN CELEBRATING LIGHT JUBILEE

Atlantic City, N. J., June 1.—(AP) A quarter of a million persons joined in the celebration of Atlantic City's diamond anniversary today following the dedication by Vice President Curtis of the new Atlantic City convention hall.

Three-fold celebration of inauguration of the golden jubilee of light, the opening of the convention hall and the anniversary of the founding in 1854 of this resort city, rose to a climax last night when the doors of the auditorium, said to be the largest in the world, were opened to the public.

The first convention to be held in the new hall, that of the National Electric Light Association, convened today under the presidency of Preston S. Arkwright, of Atlanta.

PRESIDENT'S WIFE GUEST OF LEADER OF GIRL SCOUTS

Providence, R. I., June 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of President Hoover, spent the night at the home of Mrs. William H. Hoffman, of Barrington, national president of the Girl Scouts of America, it became known here today.

Mrs. Hoffman's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Arnold Hoffman, said this morning that Mrs. Hoover and her Rhode Island hostess had left Barrington by motor for an unannounced destination.

Mrs. Hoover left Cambridge, Mass., with great secrecy yesterday afternoon after being a guest of honor at Radcliffe college.

ALLIED VAN LINES, INC., OPENS OFFICES HERE

Atlanta's transportation and distribution facilities, and its location as an ideal point for such operation has been recognized by the Allied Van Lines, Inc., probably the largest long distance moving company in the world, which have opened southern district offices at 424-28 Peachtree Arcade building, with Sidney Green, long prominent in moving circles, in charge.

The new organization is made up of over 200 leading warehouse and moving companies in the United States. These companies have combined their long distance moving interests into a gigantic organization, which will cover the entire United States, with agencies in every city of consequence.

Showers May Follow Clouds This Afternoon

Partly cloudy and possibly a few showers is the weather outlook for Atlanta today as seen by the official forecaster of the United States bureau here. Little change in temperature is expected.

The mercury began its daily climb Saturday from the 72-degree mark, one of the highest minimums of the year, and by 2 o'clock in the afternoon, had ascended to 88, one degree under the record for 1929.

school, which he has headed since its organization in 1919. Under his leadership the graduate school has grown from a student body of 33 to 160 in 1928-29. The first year eight master's degrees were awarded, while this year 76 master's degrees will be conferred.

In addition to B. A. and M. A. degrees from Harvard and the degree of doctor of philosophy from the University of Alabama, Dr. Jack holds an M. A. degree from Harvard and the degree of doctor of philosophy from the University of Chicago. He was given the honorary degree of doctor of laws by Birmingham-Southern college in 1927.

Honorary Societies.

Dr. Jack is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa and Omicron Delta Kappa honorary societies and of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. He is chairman of the institute of citizenship which has been held at Emory for the last two years, and is also chairman of the men's council of the Georgia League of Women Voters. In 1922-23 he was president of the Georgia Association of Colleges.

The Emory board, in selecting Dr. Jack for the vice presidency, praised him for his work as teacher and dean and in the other capacities in which he has served the universities.

ALLIES AND GERMANS REACH AGREEMENT and which will be commercialized into negotiable securities.

Deliveries in kind will start at $166,740,000 for the first year and gradually decrease for 10 years, when they will cease.

The question of whether an international bank shall be established to handle reparations payments has not finally been decided. The experts generally were convinced that Young's proposal of an international bank would serve the same purpose in the economic stabilization of Europe as the Federal Reserve bank in the United States.

Saves Germany 116 Billions.

The present value of the amount Germany agrees to day to the reparations creditors under the Young plan if finally accepted and ratified, is $9,000,000,000. It represents a decrease of $116,000,000,000 from the original claims filed by all the creditors with the Versailles peace conference of 1919, which was $125,000,000,000.

The peace conference at that time was unable to come to any agreement concerning these huge figures. The allies began to study the question more closely and in 1920 arrived at a total of $67,000,000,000 at the Boulogne conference, which was reduced later in the same year at the Spa conference to $65,000,000,000 after the Germans had announced that they were unable to pay such an amount and had offered $7,500,000,000.

The reparation commission in 1921 fixed the total at $33,000,000,000, at which the German reparation debt figures remained theoretically after adopting the Dawes plan.

BOBBY JONES HIT BY BRICK IN STORM

the largest oak trees on the course was blown down and benches and lawn tables near the clubhouse overturned.

Spectators who were near Jones at the time he was struck, confiscated the brick that fell on him and will place it alongside the treasured trophies of the club.

Saturday morning Jones was notified that his celebrated set of golf clubs, stolen from a parked automobile in New York several days ago, had arrived home, and he immediately planned a practice match for the afternoon to see if his magic strokes were still in the bag. After playing several holes, he clearly demonstrated that his skill had not been hampered, though he was a bit nervous until he learned that his clubs had been found and were en route to Atlanta.

dous impression upon the architectural profession as well as whole homebuilding industry, including realtors, contractors, building material dealers and manufacturers.

Architects, draftsmen and students who have not already received copies of the competition program and rules of the contest may obtain this necessary information by writing to or calling at The Constitution building. There is no entry fee required or other obligation on the part of the contestants.

Classification of Designs.

A competitor may submit one or as many designs as he desires. All designs must come under one of the two following classifications:

Class A—Six principal rooms, including at least three bedrooms, two bathrooms, and, at the option of the designer, an additional lavatory. The house design in this class shall not contain over 27,000 cubic feet, to be built on an inside lot, assuming a lot of not less than 40 feet frontage and not more than 50 feet, and not less than 100 feet in depth.

Class B—Seven principal rooms, including at least four bedrooms, two bathrooms and one lavatory. A breakfast nook is desirable. The house designed in this class shall not contain over 37,000 cubic feet, but the designer has the privilege of adding 1,200 cubic feet for the purpose of providing one additional servant's room, or 2,400 cubic feet for the servants' rooms. The frontage should not exceed 60 feet and the depth not less than 100 feet. An inside lot must be selected also.

Each dwelling design must include a two-car garage, which may be detached, semi-attached or planned as an integral part of the dwelling. An additional allowance of 3,600 cubic feet is provided if the garage is a part of the dwelling, or 4,200 cubic feet if built separately.

A model basement, with complete laundry and a livable room, such as recreation room, billiard, radio room, den, music room, children's playroom, or workshop must be planned for. The juries also will carefully scrutinize the efficiency of the kitchen planning. Careful consideration will be given in awarding the prizes to provision of the modern facilities for electrical service, extension telephone service, radio and other domestic utility systems for labor saving and efficiency in the home, as well as the practical arrangement of plumbing equipment in bathrooms, kitchen and laundry.

Nationally-Advertised Materials.

In the present competition the designer can use exteriors of any type—brick, frame, shingles, stucco, local stone or combination of materials—but competitors must design houses using nationally-advertised trademarked, high-grade materials which have national distribution.

The regional divisions represented in the contest by The Constitution is composed of Georgia, South Carolina and Florida.

The following manufacturers of building materials and equipment and associations of manufacturers have made contributions to the prize money:

American Brass Company, American Encaustic Tiling Company, American Telephone & Telegraph Company, Anaconda Copper Mining Company, Asbestos Shingle, Slate & Sheathing Company, Associated Metal Lath Manufacturers, Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, Common Brick Manufacturers' Association, Copper and Brass Research Association, Crane Company, Inc., Fain Manufacturing Company, General Electric Company, merchandise division, and General Electric Company, electric refrigeration division: Genfire Steel Company, the Heatilator Company, International Nickel Company, The Keller Island Lime & Transport Company, Kerner Incinerator Company, McDougall Company, National Council for Better Plastering, Pennsylvania Slate Institute, Cephas B. Rogers, Inc., and Truscon Steel Company.

BIG ATTENDANCE URGED FOR AIR BODY MEETING

Every effort is being made to secure a record attendance for the meeting of the Atlanta chapter of the National Aeronautical Association at 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce building, it was announced Saturday, one of the main objects of the meeting being to increase the membership of the Atlanta chapter to the largest number possible.

A large membership is essential, it was pointed out, in order that the local chapter may assist the work of the national organization in this section.

The purpose of the National Aeronautical Association is to foster and encourage the development of aviation. In addition, it is the American representative of the F. A. I. The Atlanta chapter will be required to judge contests, handle races and other aircraft competition held here. The membership must furnish qualified judges, starters, timekeepers and other officials.

The local chapter is highly interested at present in backing the following projects: Enactment of air laws for the state of Georgia, extension of air transportation, expansion of the aircraft industry, aeronautical training and education and aircraft exhibitions and competitions.

Annual dues are $5 a year and this includes subscription to the Aeronautic Review. All men and women interested in any branch of aviation activity are requested to be present at the meeting Monday, it having been expressly pointed out that it is not necessary to be a pilot in order to affiliate.

HARBORD NAMED SECOND DIVISION CHIEF BY VETS

Boston, June 1.—(AP)—Veterans of the second division elected General James G. Harbord president of their association at their eleventh annual reunion today. Although General Harbord sought to decline the office, the veterans refused to accept his stand.

General Wendell Neville, commandant of the United Staes marine corps, was elected vice president. George V. Gordon, of Chicago, was re-elected treasurer and Captain C. O. Mattfeldt, of Washington, was re-elected secretary.

The association chose Los Angeles as the place of its reunion in 1930.

Imported Shoes for Women Win Quick Favor In New Department at Davison-Paxon Company

Above is shown part of the crowd which all day Saturday thronged the new imported shoe department on the second floor of the Davison-Paxon Company. This department opened Saturday and will be regular feature of the store in future.

Meeting with instant public favor, the new imported shoe department of the Davison-Paxon Company, which was formally opened Saturday morning, was thronged throughout the day by women purchasers of the popular-priced shoes on sale there.

The department henceforth will be a regular feature of the Davison-Paxon service and will feature foreign-made shoes in the latest styles. All of the shoes sold in this department—located just at the elevator on the second floor and in charge of George P. Faunce—are made by Bata, Czecho-Slovakian manufacturer, whose factory is said to be the world's largest industry devoted to women's shoes. Davison-Paxon officials said Saturday that Bata turns out 130,000 pairs of shoes each working day.

Representatives of R. H. Macy & Company, of New York, and its affiliated Atlanta store, the Davison-Paxon Company, "discovered" the possibilities of importing Bata shoes. Through special arrangement with the manufacturer, they supplied designs by Macy stylists, and the Bata manufactory supplies duplicate shoes to the American stores.

Atlanta is the only city in the south where these shoes are available, it was said, and is one of three cities in the United States where they are sold. The other two are New York, where Macy features them, and Cleveland, Ohio, where a Macy-affiliated store has them for sale.

To Speak Today

JUDGE T. O. HATHCOCK.

"The Cause and Cure of Broken Homes" will be the subject of Judge T. O. Hathcock, of the Atlanta municipal court, who will fill the pulpit at St. Paul's Methodist church at 7:45 o'clock tonight, the Rev. B. F. Fraser, pastor, announced Saturday.

FLORIDA G. O. P. SETTLE DIFFERENCES AT MEET

Orlando, Fla., June 1.—(AP)—Major factions of the republican party in Florida presented a reunited front tonight as a result of compromise reached here today in a secret meeting of the state central committee.

A. F. Knotts, of Yankeetown, declared ousted as chairman of the state central committee by adherents of Glenn B. Skipper, national committeeman, at their recent South Jacksonville meeting, was accepted and reinstated as chairman of that faction.

In return, the Knotts wing recognized the authority of Skipper to select his own patronage advisory board and Knotts agreed to ask for the resignations of a patronage committee he had appointed in opposition to the Skipper "little cabinet."

A plan for reorganization of the state central committee membership was adopted, calling for election of committee members from unorganized counties, and to fill all vacancies from organized counties.

The next state committee meeting was set for August 4, at a place not yet designated.

The agreement, described by leaders for both sides as the "groundwork for a harmonized party in Florida," was the result of a virtually all-night conference Friday night, attended by Skipper, Knotts, W. J. Howey and other leaders.

and E. N. Hendricks for the third ward's councilmanic post, while in the fifth E. P. Dodd and Dr. W. M. Etheridge are engaged in the same contest.

Spratt-Ford Contest.

Probably the most heated contest in the entire campaign is being waged in the tenth, where Nelson Spratt, incumbent, and former Alderman Charles M. Ford are waging a fight to the finish for the nomination to city council. Then tenth also has a contest for the school commissioner's position, with Mrs. A. A. Williams and E. R. Sweat as entrants.

The only other contest is for the school board position from the twelfth, where Mrs. A. E. Wilson, incumbent, is opposed by R. U. Deming.

A number of last-minute rallies have been slated by various candidates in the contests.

On Monday night, beginning at 7:30 o'clock at the Pryor Street school, friends of Mr. McLendon will hold a meeting, and beginning at 8 o'clock at the Grant Park pavilion friends of Dr. Scott will rally. All candidates have been invited to both sessions.

Friends of Mr. Jacobs will meet at the Georgia Avenue school at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night, and Mr. Rountree will hold his final mass meeting at the Grant Park pavilion at the same time.

U. S. SCHOOL HEADS WILL GATHER HERE

Acting at the request of Dr. William J. Cooper, United States commissioner of education, Washington, D. C.; Dr. M. L. Duggan, state superintendent of schools, Saturday called a meeting of the superintendents of schools of all the states in the union to be held in Atlanta, June 30.

This conference will be held to determine policies on many important matters which will come before the educational departments of the various states of the union.

Dr. Duggan said the session would be held in the ballroom of the Henry Grady hotel at 8 o'clock Sunday night, June 30. The visiting officials and their wives will be entertained at a dinner to be given at the Henry Grady hotel at 7 o'clock, one hour preceding the business session.

At this conference the superintendents will consider many important matters which will be presented at the annual session of the American Education Association which will be held in Atlanta, June 30 to July 4. Dr. Duggan will preside at the session of the state superintendents.

SUNSHINE GREETS MYSTIC SHRINERS FOR CONVENTION

Los Angeles, June 1.—(AP)—Southern California's fairest weather welcomed the vanguard of Mystic Shriners beginning to pour into this gayly bedecked city today for the order's fifty-fifth annual convention here next week.

At two previous conventions held here, the much boasted Southern California "sunshine" was blotted out by clouds, cold winds and heavy rains. The forecast this year was for "sunshine and fair weather."

On all the main thoroughfares, bright banners of welcome swayed in a cooling breeze from the ocean and the brilliant red headgear of the visitors was beginning to dominate the sidewalks.

The principal leaders of the Imperial Council opened the first business session today, with a conference of Shrine committees on hospitals for crippled children in which the organization has an investment of more than $8,000,000. The convention starts Tuesday.

UNCHANGED PERSONNEL PROMISED BY TITSHAW

Candidate for Waterworks Post Pledges Efficient Management.

Declaring that the expressed fear of his opponent, W. Zode Smith, that if elected he would disrupt the present organization composing the corps of employes administering the Atlanta waterworks department, is without foundation and that any changes he might make would be for more efficient management and for the best interests of the citizens and taxpayers of Atlanta, Ernest P. Titshaw, candidate for general manager of waterworks in Wednesday's city democratic primary, Saturday issued his final campaign statement.

"If elected to the post to which I aspire, I assure the voters of Atlanta, that I will make few changes in the personnel," Mr. Titshaw said, "and these would be for the greater efficiency of the department. I am an engineer, having been graduated from Georgia Tech in the class of 1914. I have worked nine years in the local water department in almost every capacity and another three years with the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company.

"I am fully qualified for the position to which I am asking the people of Atlanta to elect me. The high grade of water which my opposition claims is here now and for which he expresses a fear in the event of my election, will not be changed, except possibly for the better. There is no part of the system with which I am not personally familiar.

"Our campaign has been waged on a high plane, clean and free of personalities. It will continue on this same plane. I promise the people of Atlanta the best service it is possible to render with full knowledge of the responsibility which I am assuming."

W. E. WILSON DIES

Prominent Webster County Man Passes at Preston.

Preston, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—W. E. Wilson, prominent citizen of Webster county, died at the home of his brother, J. B. Wilson, near Preston this morning. He had been in declining health for some time, but was up as usual until stricken yesterday afternoon.

He was 68 years old, unmarried and a member and strong supporter of the Presbyterian church. He is survived by three brothers, Gus, J. B., and C. A. Wilson; a sister, Mrs. A. W. Lowery, all of Preston. Interment will be in the local cemetery Sunday.

WORK OF ZODE SMITH IS PRAISED BY KONTZ

Atlantans Called On To Pile Up Big Vote for Waterworks Manager.

Pointing to the record of W. Zode Smith, general manager of the Atlanta waterworks since 1910, as one of "efficient sacrifice," Judge Ernest C. Kontz, author of a measure while a member of council to prevent sale or otherwise alienation of Atlanta waterworks properties, Saturday praised Mr. Smith and called on Atlantans to pile up a large vote in favor of the incumbent, "thus retaining a harmonious, efficient and effective organization."

"His knowledge of the system is complete, and much of this knowledge of greatest importance, likely to be called upon at any minute is not available from any other source," Judge Kontz said. "It would be impossible to have available a record of the infinite details of the more than six hundred miles of mains and location and character of valves, nearly all of which have been installed by the general manager and his able assistant throughout all these years. William M. Rapp, and in all the years of their service there has never been a suspicion of graft, incompetency or mismanagement.

"Mr. Smith, a country boy from Rockdale county, came to Atlanta with his parents and received his education in our public schools. He is a home product. Zode Smith is modest, is a leader and active in his church, affable. I don't know his opponent, and haven't one word of criticism concerning him, but no careful man in his private business, and no public service corporation, would think of closing so valuable an asset as Zode Smith is to the waterworks department of the City of Atlanta. Banks and other great corporations keep their efficient heads for life. Zode Smith is still a young man, now just in his prime. He has given some 30 years to preparation for the work in which he is engaged. We are to be congratulated that he is willing to continue in your service.

'From personal knowledge of the man's private and official character, I commend him, without hesitation, to the people of Atlanta for reelection, and trust that the large vote cast in his favor will be such as to show him that the city is not ungrateful, not unmindful of his worth. A vote for Zode Smtih is a vote for his able assistant, William M. Rapp, his engineer in the field; for Claude Ashley, chairman of waterworks committee; for Meredith Collier, Charlie Gramling, and the officials in the office and shops, and the engineers and helpers too numerous to mention by name, all now working together with perfect sympathy, harmony and cooperation, without which neither Zode Smith nor any other man could succeed in this important position. The efficiency of each has been increased by the support and encouragement and confidence of the other."

U. S. Davis Cup Net Team Closes Zone Meet With Victory

CRACKERS WIN SECOND OF TWIN BILL

CUBANS FALL BEFORE PLAY OF AMERICANS

Allison and Lott Close With Straight Set Victories.

By Paul R. Michelson.

Detroit, June 1.—(AP)—The United States Davis cup tennis team today ended its brilliant American zone campaign by adding two more victories to its long string and completing the series of matches with Cuba.

Willmer Allison, of Fort Worth, Texas, and George Lott, of Chicago, third ranking net star of this country, painted the finishing touches of the campaign with straight set victories over the outclassed Cubans. Allison defeated Gustavo Vollmer, 6-1, 6-2, 7-5, while Lott, competing on the team for the first time this year, bested Herman Upmann, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

Today's singles matches were mere formalities as the United States team had clinched the zone title Thursday and Friday with victories in the two singles and doubles events. But instead of slowing up, Lott and Allison played their best tennis and as a result the team record for the entire campaign against Canada, Japan and Cuba totaled 14 matches won and one lost. It was Japan's team which spoiled the record.

By its victory the United States team will represent the Americas abroad, meeting the winners of the inter-zone European finals for the right to challenge France for the Davis cup, which it has held for the past two years. The team expects to sail Wednesday with Allison, John Hennessey, of Indianapolis; John Van Ryn, of East Orange, N. J., and Fitz-Eugene Dixon, non-playing captain. It will not be known until Monday whether Lott can accompany the team as he is concerned with his studies at the University of Chicago.

Atlanta Boys Are Defeated

Stagg Field, Chicago, Ill., June 1. (Special.)—Though having entries in three final events on this afternoon's program, Boys' High school of Atlanta failed to break into the scoring column of the University of Chicago's national interscholastic track and field meet coming to a close here today.

The Atlanta school was represented by E. Elliott in the discus; C. Howard, in the 440-yard run, and a team in the 880-yard relay. Elliott had qualified yesterday, but found the going rather tough today. Just how stiff the competition was in this event can be seen from the fact that the winner, W. Moreau, of Fort Collins, Colo., bettered the interscholastic record by six inches. His winning throw was 136 feet 11 inches.

C. Howard did not have to qualify in the 440 as there were no preliminaries held in this event. His race was won by M. Marks, of Edmond, Okla. The winning time was 51 7-10. The 880-yard relay was won by Froebel High, of Gary, Ind., in 1:34 6-10.

Atlanta started the meet with a representation of seven entries from Boys' High and two from Technical High, but seven of the boys fell by the wayside in the preliminaries of their events yesterday.

The meet attracted over 800 boys from schools throughout the country.

Senators May Buy Lookouts

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 1.—(AP)—The Chattanooga News is printing a story here today in which it claims to have authentic information to the effect that Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, is expected here hourly to close a deal for the Chattanooga Southern Association baseball club and franchise.

It is claimed that the Senators have been negotiating for the club for several weeks, but not until a representative surveyed the local situation, were they able to come to terms.

Chattanooga club officials seen, claim that they have no knowledge of the deal, but the News is insistent that it has authentic information upon which the story is based.

Auto Golf Is Jail Offense

Augusta, Ga., June 1.—(AP)—Motorcycle Officer Willie Wilhelm and Gene Adams, an employe of a five and ten cent store, today played one hole of the Forest Hills-Ricker hotel golf course—in an automobile.

Roy Simpkins, manager of the course, was unable to see the point, and trailed the flashy car to a rental agency, where he called a cop, who took the men and two girl companions into custody.

Tonight Wilhelm and Adams were under bond on charges of reckless driving and defacing private property.

Simpkins said the party began at the tee of No. 3 green, drove down the fairway, and finished up with several laps around the pin.

The green was built at a cost of $5,000. Simpkins estimated the damage at $500.

A. A. C. Swimmers Take Off for Season

Swimmers of the Atlanta Athletic Club team took their first outdoor practice Saturday at East Lake. The team faces some severe competition this summer and is working diligently with the A. A. U. meet in mind. From left to right, as they took off Saturday, Buster Harris, Dick McKinstry, Charles Wagner, Gene Bayliss and Red Holleman. Swimming has gained in popularity each year in Atlanta and this season is expected to be the best one the city has seen. The A. A. C. team will hold weekly practices in their outdoor pool now that the warm weather has arrived. They are already near top form as may be seen. Photo by Kenneth Rogers.

Vols Grow Dumb And Yelle Daring To End Losses

Nashville Club Runs String of Victories Over Atlanta to Six Only to Give Away Second Contest In Seventh, 1 to 0.

By Ralph McGill.

Three members of the Nashville baseball club crept silently aboard the sleeper in the yards here Saturday night. They were blushing furiously and retired immediately, drawing the curtains tight.

They had just been made members of the Roy Riegels Club. Maybe you've heard of him? He ran the wrong way at Pasadena last New Year's Day in a certain football game.

The trio of Volunteers had just joined in a dumb exhibition that permitted the Atlanta Crackers, beaten in the first game at Spiller field Saturday, 5 to 3, to win the second game in the seventh inning by a 1-to-0 score. It broke a losing streak of six straight games, all of them lost to the Vols.

Jim Poole, George Milstead and Ernie Kreuger were the trio who had the mental lapse.

YELLE IS STAR.

Archie Yelle, who was the bright boy of the afternoon, opened the inning by beating out a bunt. Joe Klugman let it roll. As it got near the bag he flung himself on it like a duck on a June bug. He said it was foul. Bulldog Williams, the man in the iron mask, said it was on the line and, thereby fair.

You know who won that argument.

Archie Yelle was sacrificed down to second by Red Oldham.

Frannie Zoeller came up. He hit a pop foul wide of first base.

Jim Poole ran over and caught the ball.

Archie Yelle, taking a chance and doing some smart thinking, started running.

Jim Poole, if he hadn't stood there gaping, could have outrun him to the plate. Jim couldn't believe his eyes.

Ernie Kreuger and George Milstead left home plate absolutely unguarded. They both covered third. They joined Joe Klugman there. One couldn't see third.

As Yelle neared third the dumbfounded Poole finally threw the ball.

Kreuger caught it as Yelle turned the bag. There wasn't a soul at home. There was a mob guarding third.

It became a footrace to see who could run the fastest. Archie Yelle could. He dived at the plate and was safe a foot as the plodding Kreuger charged after him. Yelle had outguessed the boys.

VOLS ANGRY.

The spectators laughed heartily. In the Nashville dressing room I found the ball players saying very unkind things about the man in the iron mask. They were mentioning prominent characters in sacred history and I left. The Vols certainly wanted that ball game. It would have run their winning streak to 13 of the last 16 games had they won it.

That was the bright feature of a game that saw the Crackers strive desperately for six innings to break the bonds of defeat in which they have been entangled for a week.

The two games saw a shift in the Cracker line-up, a desperate move of a distracted owner and manager. Frankie Zoeller, his ankle healed, was back in the game. Dick Burrus, who was a great player in 1924, was at first base. Frank Haley, the utility man, was at third.

SPILLER MOROSE.

When the first game was lost kind friends removed the shotgun from the office of the Cracker president. He was feverish and casting glances toward the corner where it sat. It was the sixth straight game lost to the Volunteers in the space of a week. The Cracker president was suffering from an acute case of the mulligrubs.

The Crackers filled the bases twice in that final game and could not score. It took a mental lapse on the part of three players to turn the trick. The Crackers had reached the point where they didn't care. They'd as soon win ball games by mental lapses as baseball slaps.

The customers at the game laughed all the heartier at the mental lapse because Jim Poole had won the first game for the Vols after a stirring rally had tied it at three-all in the seventh. Jim Poole double in the eighth to score Jimmy Horn. That was enough to win, but Poole came clattering home a minute later on a single by George Milstead.

MILSTEAD BALKED.

George Milstead was trying to win three games from the Crackers in one week. He won the second game of a doubleheader at Spiller field last Tuesday. He won the second game of a doubleheader at Nashville on Thursday. And Saturday he was in there trying to beat the same club the third time. He almost did it only to join in the final clowning that lost the ball game.

Archie Yelle hasn't caught many games for the Crackers this year. Those he has caught have been good ones. His work Saturday stamped him as an intelligent player with a rare ability to size up a situation and make the most of it.

BLAME UMPIRE.

Clarence Rowland, the Nashville skipper, was greatly cast down. He was wishing he had time to find out where Bulldog Williams was going to eat dinner so he could poison his coffee. The Vols were blaming the man in the iron mask. If he hadn't decided against them on the ball Yelle hit he wouldn't have been on base and the three Vols wouldn't have made monkeys of themselves.

Wilbur Good, the Cracker manager, was greatly encouraged. He believes that, having got a break, his club may start winning again. "I knew it would have to happen sometime," he said. "Things couldn't break against us all the way."

The long series of nine games which

One of these rainy days someone will discover that Trader Spiller, prominent dealer in ivory, is no slouch as a sharp customer. Trader Spiller does no end of thinking in his off moments.

For instance:

The Trader bought Garland Buckeye, a giant pitcher from Toledo and points even more important in previous seasons. It was necessary to order—rush—an oversized uniform for him. None of the regular issue in the Cracker locker would fit him.

Spiller inquired of Wilbur Good, who knows Buckeye, just what sort of an hombre the new pitcher was, personally. Good replied: "Nothing ever disturbs him; he could sit calmly in a barber's chair while six women waited their turn, and order everything in the list without feeling uncomfortable."

Convinced that Buckeye had poise in carload lots, Trader Spiller then ordered the number 13 on the balloon uniform.

Buckeye will wear No. 13; he is one of those rare ball players who is not superstitious.

But every other ball player in the league will be jinxed by that number on his back. Buckeye will have one strike on every palooka that steps up to the plate. That is what Spiller thinks and Good concurs.

Vivisection.

"We journalists," meaning those of us who earn our living helping issue daily newspapers, suddenly have become a problem, like prohibition, child labor, the idle rich, the negro, the younger generation.

The fad of the moment is to dissect us in the movies and in print. We were exploited in all our profanity and callousness to human suffering in "Front Page" and paraded in our melodrama in "Gentlemen of the Press," both on stage and screen.

Articles are written in modernistic magazines dismembering us and our aims and ambitions and loves and final, inevitable fate. In brief, we have become, all of a sudden, a problem.

We have been curious about the public for generations and have peered into their business brazenly. Now the public or portions of it are poking a nose into our affairs. They are taking us apart to see what makes us tick.

The Last Straw.

Farther than this the matter has gone. A Professor So-and-So from a great university has sent out a questionnaire designed to furnish data for "The Study of Origins of Successful Journalists" and is labeled strictly confidential.

The professor wants us "successful journalists" to answer a lot of questions, impertinent questions, and, to be sure we do, he stuck in that word "successful."

The object of it all is stated as follows:

"This study aims to ascertain the social classes from which eminently successful journalists have risen and the succession of jobs they have held. There are those who contend that there is absolute equality of opportunity in the journalistic field and those who, with equal fervor, declare that only the man with a certain hereditary equipment and a specially favorable education can succeed here."

The Bunk.

By the answers to his questions, then, the professor expects to establish a rule by which he can weed out students in his journalism classes that have no chance of succeeding in journalism, as newspapering is called.

The big questions out of twelve are:

(4) How did you happen to select your present vocation? You are asked to check—Chance opportunity? Deliberate planning? Through some personal influence? On invitation as the result of some personal achievement? Gradual swinging over from some other field?

(5) Principal occupation of your father, paternal grandfather and mother?

In answering Question 4 not one in a thousand could check any one of these questions. The vast majority would be forced to check every

4 MARKS FALL IN I. C. 4-A. MEET

Stanford, as Usual, Carries Off Honors by Large Margin.

By Alan J. Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

Franklin Field, Philadelphia, June 1.—(AP)—Four record-smashing performances, including a sensational half-mile in 1:52 1-5 by Phil Edwards, of New York university, brought the fifty-third Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. track and field championships to a climax today as Stanford University won the team title for the third year in a row.

The Cardinals from Palo Alto, coached by "Drink" Templeton, not only gave the far west its eighth triumph over a span of nine years, but did it by the most overwhelming margin in thirty years. Not singe 1899, when Pennsylvania's great team won with a record total of 57 points, beating its nearest rival by 29 points, has any team captured the historic meet by so one-sided a margin as Stanford.

Stanford scored exactly 45 3-8 points, tallying in nine of fifteen events. This more than doubled the count of the nearest Cardinal rival, Southern California, which tallied 21 points and thereby added to the rout of the east. Pennsylvania finished third with 18 7-8 points. New York University fourth with 14 and Yale fifth with 13 5-8. California, the third coast tender from the Pacific coast, finished in a tie with Pittsburgh for sixth place with 11 points.

VICTORY EXPECTED.

Except that its proportions exceeded even the rosiest expectations, there was nothing startling or unexpected in the team victory for Stanford, but there were plenty of record-breaking thrills in one of the greatest competitive carnivals in the half-century history of the east's blue-ribbon meet.

To Phil Edwards, the dusky New York flyer and Canadian Olympic star, went the main honors as he spreadeagled his field in the half-mile run. In defending his title successfully Edwards not only shattered the 1 -year-old meet record of the famous Ted Meredith, set at 1:53 in 1915, but also equaled Meredith's American outdoor record of :52 1-5, made in 1916. He was only three-fifths of a second behind the world's record of 1:51 3-5, made by Dr. Otto Peltzer, of Germany, at London in 1926.

Running the first 440 yards in less than 55 seconds, Edwards was 30 yards in front of his teammate, Fred Veit, going into the last lap. It appeared the negro had set off at too fast a pace. He seemed to slow down rounding the last turn, but had enough left to finish fast, breaking the tape 25 yards in front of his nearest rival, Chapman, of Bates, with Veit third.

WEST BREAKS RECORDS.

The far west took its share of the record-busting honors when Jesse Hill, of Southern California, broad jumped to a new meet mark of 25 feet 7-8 inch, while Harlow Rothert, of Stanford, clinched the shotput title with the toss of 50 feet 3 inches which he made in the trials yesterday and which was good enough to beat his

Al Lassman Scores Over Old Grid Hurt

Operation On Brain Is Termed Complete Success—Athletic Career, However, Is Ended.

New York, June 1.—(AP) The battle of medical science against the ravages of football injury ended today in a temporary victory for Big Al Lassman, New York university gridiron hero.

In an effort to repair a brain injury suffered last fall in a game with Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh, the giant captain of the Violets was operated upon by Dr. Charles A. Elsberg, one of the leading American neurologists, after months of treatment and diagnosis by a group of specialists.

The operation, termed a "complete success," resulted in the removal of half an ounce of fluid from the right side of Lassman's brain.

The big tackle was kicked in the head near the close of the November 24 game and was unconscious for weeks, suffering from severe concussion and fractured skull. After lying in a coma most of the winter his condition improved to such an extent that the operation today was performed to relieve the final symptoms, a violent twitching of the left arm.

Lassman, who came to N. Y. U. from Cambridge, Mass., and attracted considerable attention as a heavyweight boxer in addition to his football ability, rallied splendidly after the operation, performed under a local anesthetic. A bulletin issued by the university said Lassman had suffered "disturbances in circulation of the brain and should recover satisfactorily from the operation, which consisted of exposing the brain in the region of the injury and evacuation of considerable fluid which had collected."

Dr. Frederick Tilney, in charge of the case, said that "splendid results" and "complete recovery" could be expected if the injury Lassman suffered was confined to the surface of the brain.

Regardless of the outcome of the operation, it is believed that Lassman's athletic career is over. He won the intercollegiate heavyweight championship in his sophomore year and was considered one of the finest prospects in the history of the game. He is 6 foot 4 inches tall and scales 225 pounds.

Bulldogs Enter Big Track Meet

Bog Young, Buck Anderson and Sandy Sanford, of the University of Georgia, will represent that institution at the national intercollegiate games at Chicago next Saturday. They will leave on Wednesday and will be accompanied by Coach H. J. Stegeman, of Georgia, and W. J. Alexander, of Georgia Tech.

Georgia Tech will not be represented in the meet.

Due to the lack of track facilities at Athens, the men had their test Saturday at Tech. Young ran a mile against time in 4 minutes and 24 seconds. Sanford high-jumped 5 feet 11 inches and Anderson threw the javelin 192 feet.

Pullman Team Wins, 20 to 2

Opening up in the third inning with a powerful attack, the Pullman Hurricane swept to a 20-to-2 victory over the White Caps Saturday afternoon. The White Caps scored two runs before the Hurricane began to blow. D. Moss, on the mound for the Pullman nine, held the White Caps well in hand after the third inning.

Pullman's heavy artillery was brought into play constantly throughout the game and kept up a steady bombardment on White Cap hurlers.

Jones Escapes Hurt By Umbrella's Aid

Bobby Jones nurses a slightly bruised shoulder today, convinced that an umbrella and the luck that brought his stolen golf clubs back to him from New York had also saved him from a serious injury Saturday when lightning struck a chimney on the East Lake clubhouse and sent a shower of bricks down about him.

The amateur champion and two friends were driven to shelter by a thundershower that came up while they were playing a practice round, and all three sprinted for the clubhouse. Just as they approached the building the chimney was struck and one of the falling bricks glanced off the umbrella he carried and bruised his left shoulder.

An immediate examination showed the bruise was of little consequence, and a zealous club member placed the brick among the club's trophies for permanent preservation.

Bobby expressed pleasure at Walter Hagen's surprise victory today over Archie Compton in their final 36-hole match at Blackwell Park, England, indicating it was Hagen's turn to win.

"You can't tell anything about these 36-hole matches," he said. "One man has just as much chance of winning as the other."

YOST'S ACTION IS INDORSED

Michigan Board Approves of Ousting of Tad Wieman.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 1.—(AP)—The University of Michigan board in control of athletics today endorsed the athletic director, Fielding H. Yost's action in ousting Tad Wieman from his position as football coach.

After a meeting of the board, which Yost did not attend, it was announced that Wieman would be retained as assistant professor of physical education and would be in charge of "practical work" in the four-year course in physical education, having been assigned to this task by Director Yost.

Wieman has declared repeatedly that he will not resign his position at the university.

Grant Enters Benning Meet

Fort Benning, Ga., June 1.—Beginning June 6 and extending through June 9 Fort Benning is to hold its tennis tournament, open to any amateur in the south.

The Fort Benning tennis committee has already communicated with many of the south's leading amateurs, and it is expected that there will be a fair number of representatives from every section. At the present writing it has already been learned that Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, last year's first ranking player of the south, will enter the tournament.

Among others expected to enter are: Jack Mooney, Jack Simpson and Malon Courts, of Atlanta; Gus Feuer, University of Florida; Donald Cram, Vanderbilt; Dan Murray, New Orleans; Ted Burwell, Sewanee university; Edward Pfeiffer, Louisville, Ky., and many others.

Work has already been in motion toward erecting the stands around the courts to be used in the tournament. The courts at Fort Benning are of hard clay surface, and are kept under constant care.

Neville Wins At Del Monte

Del Monte, Calif., June 1.—(AP)—Jack Neville, of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club, defeated 19-year-old Francis Stevens, Jr., to capture the amateur golf championship of California today, 3 and 1.

Silver Lining.

The silver lining of the Thevenow automobile accident was the .400 batting average of Barney Friberg.

Georgia Tech Sports Prospects for 1929-30 Season Surveyed

Grid Team Faces Hot Assignment

Improvement Foreseen in Baseball, Track and Basket Ball.

By Herb Clark.

Four months remain before the opening of the new season of collegiate athletics; four months of picking over the records of the year 1928-1929 and four months of speculation on the coming storm and stress when the football call is sounded.

The discussion, when it centers around the activities of the Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech, will bring some praise to the teams of the past year, a year which got off to a magnificent start with a national grid championship, but fell off as time passed.

As for the coming season of 1929-1930, predictions will send the Jackets to higher points in almost any branch of sport.

On the football field, the Jackets have a reputation which will be a heavy load to bear. Each team on the 1929 schedule will be pointing to the Tech game as the climax of a season.

The glory which would be accorded the team to defeat the Golden Tornado will loom large in the eyes of the opposing team.

HARD SCHEDULE.

The 1929 schedule presents an array of powerful machines, and it is hardly possible that the Jackets should repeat their performance of last year. Going further, it is well-night impossible. Few teams go through even one season without having their record marred by a defeat, and it would be the height of something or other for a two-season string of victories.

Coach Alexander will have a goodly crew of talented men on the squad which reports for practice on September 3. Few holes will have to be filled according to the present outlook, and material should be on hand to plug these niches.

One vacancy, that at the quarterback post, may present some difficulty. Bob Durant, Izzy Schulman and Shorty Smith, the lads who directed the Tornado of 1928, are all graduating. Sam Colvin and Jimmy Frink, who played guiding hand for the Grey Devils, will be eligible for the varsity berth, and will have to be counted in any reckoning which is to be done. Pippin, Lanier and McKee, each of whom tried the task of running the freshman eleven last fall, will be available, and it is by no means impossible that one of this number will get the call. Talk has flown freely over the prospects of the conversion of Earl Dunlap, sophomore halfback flash of last fall, into a field general.

Dunlap's addition to the backfield would give the Jackets a quartet which would rank close in power and versatility to the best. Dunlap, Mizell, Thomason and Lumpkin would present a real and vital problem to opposing teams and coaches. And Alex would still have Faisst, Flowers, Colvin, Luna and from both the reserves and the Rats of last year as replacements.

RUSK LOOKS GOOD.

As to the line, Harold Rusk may be counted on to fill the shoes of Peter Pund at the center of the line. Law, Muse and Murray, reserves of 1928, and Farmer, the freshman pivot man, will be on hand in case of accident.

Raleigh Drennon will be lost at the guard post, but McKee, the Massachusetts giant, who was ineligible last season, will be ready to go this fall and several other finds will be on hand to go into the game should Brooke or Westbrook, the two leading candidates for the post, be forced out.

Sam Fincher, Bill's young brother, Millians, Holt, Harris, Williams, and a few others will be out fighting for the honor of stepping into the hole left by Kenneth Thrash at tackle, while Maree and Watkins are slated to be the starting pair.

Glenn Holland, Tom Jones and Ed Herron will battle it out for the two first string end posts, though they will get plenty of opposition from a number of the reserve crew of last year as well as from the group which will be sent up to the varsity by Kid Clay from his yearling team.

BASKETBALL.

Coach Mundorff has a bright outlook for his basketball team. Losing one man, Julian Wilson, captain and forward on the squad, which went to the conference tourney a favorite only to lose in the first round this spring. Mundorff has good material on hand. Heeke, Hudson, Goldin and Raines will all be ready to take the floor at the center post, while Heeke and Raines, the latter a recruit from the freshman ranks, double at forward and Goldin, captain-elect, will be used at guard.

Wages, Brooke, Sullivan, Maree, and a few others will be ready for duty at the guarding jobs, while Williamson, Coker, Tippin, Perkins and English are a few of those waiting to do the shooting.

A brand new system of play will be shown by the Jackets next season. After the first week of conditioning during the post-season training period, Mundorff opened work on the new methods, which includes both an attack plan and a new method of working the five-man defense.

BASEBALL.

Baseball stock at the Flats seems to be in for the biggest boost of any in the sporting field. Bob Parham, "Shorty" Smith, Jimmy Stevens, John Jordan and Izzy Schulman will be lost to Kid Clay through graduation, but a powerful freshman team is counted on to fill these gaps in the lineup and even to give added strength to the 1930 crew.

Hutchinson, Jones and Dunlap will be back for outfield posts, but will be pushed for the honors by McKee, Harper and one or two other members of the freshman crew.

In the infield, Captain Red Terrell is the only man who seems to be sure of his place. Mizell will have to repulse a strong bid for first base duty as Preston and Gill graduate to the varsity lot. Pullen, English and Roberts will be in the fight for shortstop and third base jobs, while Frink and Hobbs will return from the varsity which just closed its season.

Herron seems to be the class of the crew who will be ready for duty behind the bat. Farmer, the yearling catcher, will be available for the post, but will probably need some seasoning before he is ready for varsity play.

The three freshman pitchers, Duke, Mitchum and Strickland, will be a big help to the mounted staff, while Powell Quinn, Little and Brosnan will be the contribution of the 1929 varsity to the list.

HAMM RETURNS.

On the cinder paths, Coach Hal Barron will be due for a large upward step after the poor year just passed in which a lack of material hurt the Tech Team. Ed Hamm whose loss last year was a big factor in the Jackets' lack of success, will be back to lead the Engineers in track, and an excellent freshman squad will send up enough good material to the varsity to more than replace that lost through graduation this year.

The freshman team also will play a large part in whatever success is enjoyed by the swimming team, though enough members of the past varsity will return to form a sufficient nucleus for the squad.

Dick McKinstry and Red Holleman, the two Jacket free-style flashes, will be lost but Fayne Kennickell, Payne and others of the rat squad will be eligible for varsity competition and should be able to score points with enough regularity to retain the southern crown held by the Jackets for the past few seasons.

Golfing laurels are an unknown quantity for next spring. Captain Shag Irvin, ace of the 1929 squad, will be ineligible, as will Johnny Leach. Charley Brumby, captain-elect of the Jacket quartet, and Scott Hudson, Jr., will return and the balance of the team seems to be a mystery. Ed Swift, who was out of the running this year after a wrist injury, should be available, while Ed Doakes, the freshman, who captured the Tech championship three weeks ago by downing Brumby, will probably be a member of the team.

George Lewis and Burr Cabaniss, the two first-ranking players of the tennis team, will have to be replaced before the Jackets will be able to take the courts with any hope of success, though Red Williamson, captain of the 1930 squad; Sid Goldin and Walter Merkle ,letter men this year, will be back, while Malcolm Reybold will make a strong bid for the fourth place.

With nine letter men from his varsity squad returning next year and a 16-man freshman team coming up in a body, "Doc" Crenshaw should put a strong lacrosse team in the field to represent the North Avenue school. He expects to receive coaching aid from Mike Miles, the new backfield coach, who played the game at Princeton, and whose influence, bringing in northern ideas, should be beneficial to the Jackets.

Exposition Mills pulled a fast one on the Bob Jones Club to win Saturday, 4 to 2. A pair of runs made in the eighth won the game for Exposition. Garner hit twice for the winners and Vinson made the longest hit of the day, a double, and he took third on the throw-in.

Walker hurled a good game for the winners striking out 10 of the Jonses. Crowell, of the Jones team, hit three out of four times and Vaughn connected twice in three trips.

FULTON BAG WINS.

Fulton Bag & Cotton Mills won from General Outdoor Advertising Company, 10 to 0, Saturday in a very one-sided affair in which the Fulton batsmen knocked the ball all over the lot. Elledge hit three times out of five trials and several others hit twice. Starnes was wild most of the time and he could not fool the Baggers.

In addition to being the star batsman, Elledge pitched a good game and had good control at all times.

SPRINGERS BEATEN.

Knights of Columbus won from Southern Spring Bed Company in a hot game, 5 to 4. The "Caseys" went into second place by winning this game. Both pitchers hurled well, and were given good support by their teammates. The hitting features were a home run by Mize with two men on bases, and a long double by Bradley that drove in three runs and won his ball game.

Largo and Dolittle led in numbers of hits, with two out of four.

Guards To Play Platoon Polo

A platoon polo game is on the books for this afternoon when the first and second platoons of the Governor's Horse Guards meet at Piedmont park in a six chukker affair, beginning at 3 o'clock.

Fort McPherson is shipping its ponies this afternoon to Fort Oglethorpe and, accordingly, there will be no game at the fort this afternoon. McPherson is going up for three games with the Sixth cavalry this week, on Wednesday, Friday and Sunday.

The game at Piedmont this afternoon will be filled with action and worth seeing. Members of the platoon teams are recruited from the Horse Guard polo squad and the boys always put up a good game. There will be no admission charged. The game will be played on the polo field.

Fort McPherson's team will leave Tuesday for Oglethorpe. Captain A. G. Wing, back and boss of the team, will be unable to make the trip. McPherson will send Tolson, Franke, Proctor and Comfort against the cavalrymen with Shubert in reserve.

Seattle Swimmer Wins Match Race

Brule Take, Toronto, Ont., June 1. (AP)—Olive Gatterdam, Seattle, entrant in the Canadian national exhibition women's special swimming race, to be held in September, defeated Ruth Tower, Toronto, in the match mile swimming race held here today. She swam the mile down the turbulent Humber river course in 22.30. Ruth Tower's time was 23.45. Miss Gatterdam finished second in the women's race at the C. N. E. last year.

Yomecla-Joy Class Battle To 3-3 Tie

Y. C. A. Teams Play 13 Innings and Are Halted By Darkness. Hobgood Hurls Well.

Although each team made numerous hits, neither could bunch them well enough to put over an extra run that would have gotten a victory Saturday and the Yomecla-Peps and the Joy Class battled 13 innings to a 3-3 tie. The Joy Class collected 17 hits and the Yomecla pounded out an even dozen.

Robertson scored two of the Joy's runs in the fifth, when he socked a homer with one man on. Hobgood, for the Joy Class, twirled a very good game, striking out 11 men, and giving up only 12 hits to the 54 batters that faced him. He was hurt in the ninth, but came back to finish the game in fine style. In the 13th the game, longest of the season thus far in the amateurs, was called on account of darkness.

SLUGFEST.

In a game featured by many extra base hits, Bethany Methodist won from Northwest Baptist, 8 to 6. The losers outhit the winners almost two to one. McCall, with three out of three for a perfect day, led the stickwork. Bryant, a teammate, secured three out of four, with one of his blows being good for the circuit. For the victors Daniels and Coursey hit best, the former getting two doubles and a single in four tries. Five errors by the losers cost them the game.

COOPER HURLS WELL.

"Doug" Cooper hurled his second three-hit game of the season and the Boethean Class downed Nellie Dodd Methodist, 8 to 2, to keep within striking distance of the lead. His mound mate, Krieder, who shares one of the outer gardens on the day he is not on mound duty, led both teams at bat, getting a single, double and triple in five tries. Cooper's double was the only other extra base knock of the game. As North Atlanta Baptist remained idle the boys from Capitol View gained ground.

LEAMON HITS HOMER.

Although the Inman Park Baptists outhit the Buckhead Baptists, inability to bunch hits cost a victory in the game that decided the leadership of the Piedmont league. Leamon's home run gave the suburban church's club the necessary margin of victory, 4-1.

Howard, on the mound for the Inman Park boys, pitched his usual good game, fanning 10 of the losers and contributing one hit to figure in his club's only score. Tucker, for the victors, fanned eight, while a teammate, Hall, collected two hits to lead his club in this department. Garrison, of the losers, hit safely three times.

PARK STREET BEATEN.

Pattillo Memorial scored five runs in the first frame to take an early lead over the boys from Park Street Methodist and were able to add to this until the final count brought an 8-to-1 victory. Allen, McGee, Johnston and Chambers led the stick work of the victors, the former securing a circuit knock. Talley kept the six hits garnered by the losers well scattered and fanned a man for each hit yielded.

EASY VICTORY.

Clonts had a perfect day with the bat in his five trips to plate and Center Street still holds its perfect record, defeating Gordon Street, 10 to 4. Parris, after a slow start, twirled a steady game and gave up only six hits, while he secured three out of four at bat. Fauss and Florence with doubles made the only extra base knocks. Fauss pitched a fair game and his double drove in two runs in the early stages, but the big berthas of Center Street could not be silenced and the winners fatted their batting averages. Center Street scored many runs on smart baseball and ran the bases well. The lossers had a hard time stopping grounders and shifted their line-up several times. Florence with a single and a double led the losers in hitting.

WEBB HITS HOMER.

Webb's home run with the bases full was the deciding feature in Central Presbyterian's 17-to-14 win over Clifton Presbyterian. Mize also starred with his teammate in getting a single, double and a triple out of four times up. Shaw, with two singles and a double, was the best for the losers. The winners soon got into the lead and held it by outhitting Clifton.

Smallwood, Vaughn, Towery, Bradley, Rudder, Noggles and Anderson hit for doubles. Downs with a single, triple and a home run was the leader, but Head came next with a single and two triples. Anderson and Shaw, with three bits, also hit well for the winners.

BEAVERS WIN, 9-3.

College Park Beavers defeated the East Point Baptists, 9-3, in a seven-inning affair, delayed by rain, thus strengthening their hold upon second place in the Georgia league. The East Pointers led throughout the first part of the game, having scored three runs in the first frame. However, in the last three innings the winners hit their stride and amassed nine runs.

Simpson was the star of the game, getting four hits in as many times at bat, including two long doubles. His fielding was also extraordinarily good. Reese was also a batting star for the victors, getting three safe clouts in three trips. Melton was best for the losers, getting two for two. Bell tapped out a double and two singles to aid the cause of the Beavers.

HAPEVILLE EASY WINNER.

Hapeville's airtight team only allowed one run and five hits and came out an easy winner over Capitol View Saturday, 11 to 1. Every player on the winner's side made at least one hit, but Waller, Vickery and D. Osborn took the hitting honors with three each. Moon, with a single and a triple, hit the best for the losers. Vickery struck out nine batters. Wallace made a double play unassisted. C. and D. Ausborn each hit triples.

Mrs. Pharr Wins Arkansas Title

Hot Springs, Ark., June 1.—(AP)—The Arkansas and Texas woman's golf titles tonight rested upon the same shoulders—those of Mrs. F. E. Pharr, of Texarkana.

Mrs. Pharr easily defeated Mrs. L. A. Vilas, of Hot Springs, in the finals of the Arknsas Women's Golf Association tournament over the Hot Springs Country Club course. Victory came on the twenty-seventh hole of the 36-hole match with Mrs. Pharr 10-up.

Thus another Vilas—mother of Ariel Vilas, 14-year-old runner-up in last year's tournament—has fought her way into the finals only to meet defeat there for the championship.

Where yesterday Mrs. Vilas played sensational golf to topple Miss Clara Wooldridge, of Little Rock, the defending champion, off the women's golf throne in the semi-finals. Today she sliced and hooked her drives and frequently got into trouble from which she recovered only at the cost of several strokes.

At the end of the first 18 holes, Mrs. Pharr was nine up, so that Mrs. Vilas started the afternoon round facing almost certain defeat.

In the morning round, Mrs. Pharr won 11 holes, Mrs. Vilas won two and they halved the other five.

For the nine holes of the afternoon round Mrs. Pharr's score was 45, four over par, and Mrs. Vilas' was 50. Mrs. Vilas was playing more consistent golf during the afternoon than in the morning but she could not overcome the nine-hole handicap which Mrs. Pharr had piled up during the first 18 holes. Mrs. Vilas' drives were longer and straighter during the afternoon and she was putting with greater accuracy.

Mrs. Pharr shot a consistent game throughout the 27 holes.

Salo Slashes Gavuzzi's Lead

Safford, Ariz., June 1.—(AP)—Johnny Salo, Passaic, N. J., policeman, slashed the lead of Pete Gavuzzi, of England, to 47 seconds at the conclusion of the 63d lap of the bunion derby. Salo was tied for second in the run of 43.4 miles from Duncan, Ariz., to Safford, with Paul Simpson, of Burlington, N. C., in 5:37:07.

Gavuzzi was fourth today in 5:57:28, 20 minutes and 23 seconds behind the leaders. His lead before the start of the lap was 21 minutes 10 seconds. The small difference in the time is all the more remarkable in consideration of the fact that the runners today had completed 2,883.4 miles of their journey to the Pacific coast.

Today's lap was won by Sam Richman, of New York, in 5:18:10, but he is in fifth place in elapsed time. The run today was made over the high Ash Peak mountains in a broiling sun.

HORNSBY SAYS CUBS WILL WIN NATIONAL FLAG

Rajah Thinks Giants Will Rise From Depths of Cellar.

By George Moriarty,
Big League Umpire.

(Copyright, 1929, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

New York, June 1.—I saw Rogers Hornsby at St. Louis the other day. A chat with Hornsby is always interesting, because he has the courage to brush aside the intangible "ifs" and "buts."

When I asked him about National league pennant prospects he frankly placed Chicago at the head of the list. He also holds proper regard for St. Louis and believes Pittsburgh packs plenty of trouble, although that club lacks the potential strength of the Cubs and Cardinals, he thinks.

It is interesting to have Hornsby's estimate of the New York Giants. He is inclined to think the Giants are not out of the pennant scramble, despite their present lowly position. Hornsby believes that idleness as a result of bad weather is one of the chief causes of the Giants' ineffectiveness.

"The Giants showed too much strength last fall to have the bottom drop out so soon this year," he said. "Right now they appear crimped, but I expect them to straighten out later on."

The biggest danger to a lowly team at this formative stage of the pennant race is the tendency to become despondent as it views the first division clubs continually getting the breaks. The Chicago White Sox lost a three-game series to the St. Louis

Druid Hills Beaten By West End, 8-4

Bereans Tie Score in Ninth With Two Runs and Win Game in Twelfth.

Staging probably one of the best battles of the season in the association, West End Berean and Druid Hills Presbyterian went 12 innings when the latter club broke loose with four runs to win, 8 to 4. The victory put West End in a tie for the American league lead with Grace, breaking a triple tie that had existed between Grace, West End and Druid Hills previous to the contest.

West End trailed coming into the ninth, but two runs earned them a tie, prolonged the battle and brought victory in the 12th. Martin, Druid Hills second sacker, had a perfect day at the bat with four for four, while Bray clipped a homer and Hornsby had three for five for the winners.

Cracker Lineup "Set" After Radical Shake-up of Saturday

ZOELLER AND BURRUS ARE NOW REGULARS

Waivers Asked on Roberson, Wade, Bonelly; Olsen Released.

By Ralph McGill.

Manager Wilbur Good and R. J. Spiller, shaking hands feelingly after the Saturday doubleheader, in which the Crakers won the last game, breaking a long losing streak, solemnly swore to sink or swim, survive or perish, with the lineup they now have.

"The lineup is set for a while," said Manager Good. "I am going to keep this one in there. It is the best we have from the squad of men now on the lists. We will go along with it until we can determine exactly what it will do even if it does not win immediately. I believe it will win eventually. We have some good men on it."

This statement followed a radical shakeup on Saturday in which Frankie Zoeller was restored to the squad and placed in left field; Frank Haley replaced Bill Marriott at third, and Dick Burrus went in at first in place of Mike Martineck.

ONE ABSENTEE.

The squad has one absentee, Garland Buckeye, a 235-pound pitcher obtained from Toledo last week. He is expected to report here on Monday in time for the first game of the Chattanooga series. Buckeye is a southpaw.

Nap Rucker, Brooklyn scout, declared that Buckeye is one of the largest men in baseball. "He is a great big fellow, who looks fatter than he is," said Rucker. "I haven't seen him in some time, but he was a good pitcher and may help Good out."

Quite a few familiar faces passed out with the Saturday shakeup.

Dick Wade is off the squad, waivers having been asked.

John Henry (Rube) Roberson has been removed from the voluntary retired list and waivers asked on him.

Dick Bonelly was another on whom waivers were asked.

Art Olsen was given his outright release. He plans to practice law unless he lands a baseball job somewhere. He is a free agent and may make a deal in the league.

C. C. (Cascara) Nemitz, southpaw pitcher, was placed on the eligible list. Mike Martineck is off the list.

The past month has seen many changes on the Cracker squad. Not once has the line-up been a definite one. Good feels that his present one is the strongest he has had this season.

NEW PITCHERS.

Chief Wilkins and Don Brennan, late pitching acquisitions, have looked good in past games. If Buckeye comes through the pitching staff will be considerably strengthened.

Rube Roberson, the veteran lefthander, made a brilliant start this spring, winning three straight. His arm failed, however, and he was placed on the voluntary retired list. Waivers have been asked. If he is unclaimed he will be given an outright release.

The Rus in Urbe is undecided as to his future. He will await the action of the league on the waivers asked. He deserves a release. He has been in baseball about 20 years, 13 of which were spent in the Southern association.

The Crackers end their long and disastrous series with the Nashville club today at Sulphur Dell, home of the freak home runs and two-base hits.

LOOKOUTS MONDAY.

On Monday the Chattanooga Lookouts are here for the first of three games. The Lookouts are followed in by the Barons who play two games in the Cracker park. On Saturday the Vols come back for one of their three remaining appearances in Atlanta.

The Crackers will be at home 15 days after today. Little Rock and Memphis will appear in the Dell after the conclusion of this week.

The squad that will play out the new week or so with no change will find Dick Burrus at first, Jack Sheehan at second, Johnny Jones at short, Pat Haley at third, Frankie Zoeller, Nick Cullop and Bob Parham in the outfield, Al Lopez and Archie Yelle, catchers; Garland Buckeye, Don Brennan, C. C. Nemitz, Chief Wilkins, Joe Kiefer, Climax Blethen and Red Oldham as pitchers. Charlie Wilson remains as the trainer.

The Crackers were not hustling and running out their hits as they should have in the Saturday games. Good will work with the new line-up. It will hustle or there will be more changes.

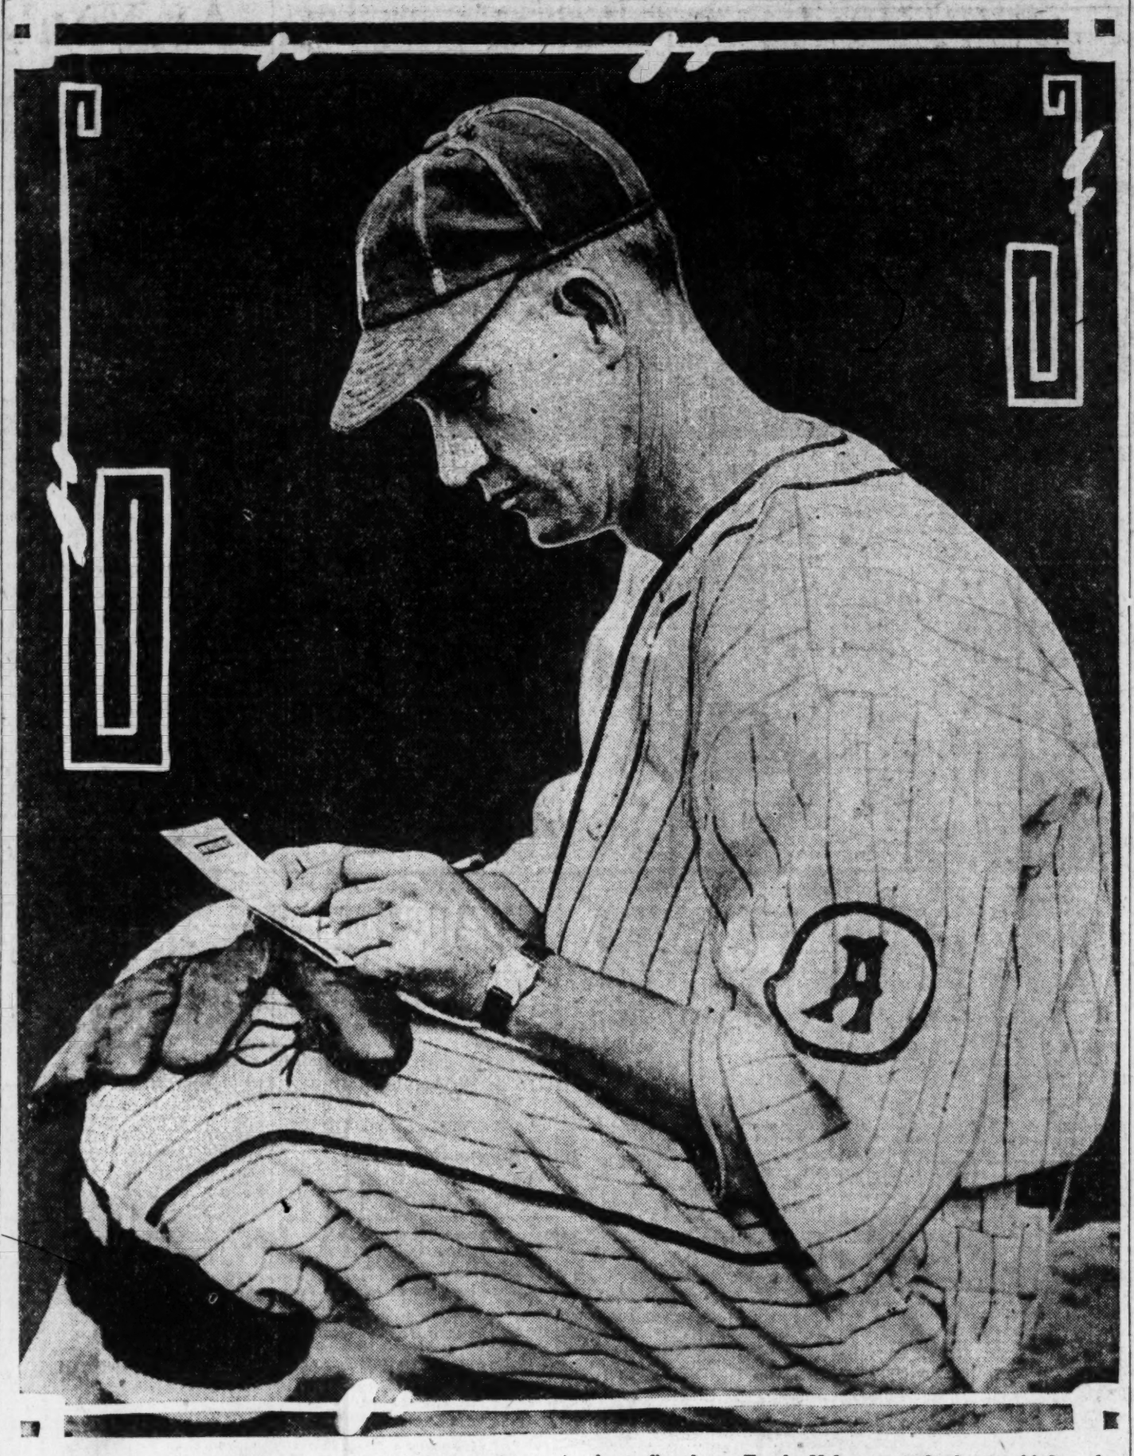

Thomasville Golf Tourney

Albany, Ga., June 1.—(AP)—Arrangements have been concluded by Glen Arven Club at Thomasville, Ga., whereby that organization's annual Piney Woods golf tournament will be held almost immediately following the Georgia state amateur, to be staged at Radium Springs Country Club here June 26-29. The Piney Woods, which for years has attracted scores of golfers from Georgia and Florida, will get under way on Monday, July 1.

The plan was arranged in order that participants in the state amateur may have Sunday in which to secure needed rest and then go directly to the Piney Woods. The Thomasville classic will be in progress three days.

Radium Springs course, over which the state amateur will be played, is in the best condition in its history, experts who have inspected the course recently have declared. The course has a par of 72 and is a 6,575-yard layout. The yardage going out is 3,365 and coming in 3,210.

Wilbur's Cross-Word Puzzle---The Line-Up

Wilbur Good, Cracker manager, wields a southpaw pencil, and Saturday he gave it a hard workout in revising his lineup to check the losing streak. Dick Burrus went in at first base, Frank Haley went back to third and Frankie Zoeller took his old place as leadoff man. Wilbur is confident that the revised lineup will begin winning games and plant the Crackers in the first division again.

Civilians Compete For Rifle Team

A shoot to determine the membership of the Georgia state civilian rifle team which will compete in the national matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, in September, will be held at the rifle range in the rear of Fort McPherson this morning.

Teams from North Georgia Agricultural college, Georgia Tech and the Atlanta civilian rifle team will compete. Invitations are extended to all other organized civilian or R. O. T. C. rifle teams to compete with them, as places on the state team are open to all.

Major Graddick, of Barnesville, captain of the National Guard rifle team, and Major T. L. Alexander, coach of the National Guard team, will be in charge of the shoot.

Shooting will begin about 8:30 this morning.

one of them—a combination of circumstances plus some unusual influence.

The answers to question No. 5 should produce no end of valuable information. If it were shown that 67 successful journalists had paternal grandfathers who were shoemakers and 59 had fathers who were Baptist missionaries, that would prove that the descendants of shoemakers were better fitted, I guess.

And far down in the list he asks, "Were you elected to Phi Beta Kappa?" If it were shown that the non-members were in ratio of 977 to 3, which probably will be the case, would that prove that a Phi Beta Kappa man should be discharged from the school of journalism as utterly unsuited for the business?

I would give a leg to see the answers to Question 11.

It asks, "Is there any other kind of work than that you do now which you would strongly prefer to be doing?"

Ignoring the split infinitive, I would unhesitatingly answer, "Yes; majority stockholder in General Motors Corporation."

Professors Must Live.

The questionnaire is impertinent and utterly worthless. He who tries to reduce life to a formula is a futile theorist.

And if the professor would advise his future Pulitzers to take a simple college course of some sort, then go to work for a newspaper, he would be helping them some.

Who Next?

And reverting to the screen phase of the vivisection crusade on us "journalists," I wonder who is next in line.

The curve of subjects for movie treatment began with cowboys, and touched, in order named, vampires, mountain folk, South Sea islanders, the Chinatown horde, the steel industry, the stock market, Biblical history, the collegiates, Broadway, taxicab drivers, aviators, bootleggers, gang warfare and finally the press.

Who, then, will be next:

Insurance agents?

Rotarians?

Elevator operators?

Nurserymen?

Three Years Too Soon.

Your correspondent is embarrassed over naming Frank Anderson, Jr., as the Anderson boy that Spiller was anxious to sign as a Cracker instead of Marion, the elder. The youngster is still in college; that makes it all the more disconcerting.

Marion is the boy. And Spiller hopes to sign him. And when I talked with Father Frank I learned that Dad would like for his boy to get a fling right out in the diamond in an Atlanta uniform.

Frank, Jr., of course, may come later; the tale may be nothing more than three years too previous after all.

Michigan Wins Big Ten Title

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 1.—(AP)—The University of Michigan baseball team annexed the Big Ten championship for the second successive year by defeating Ohio State here today, 15 to 11, in a game marked by heavy hitting and loose fielding.

Weston Gone; Dan O'Leary Carries On

Dan O'Leary, nearing 90, is still hiking from town to town. The death of Edward Payson Weston, his old rival, hasn't stopped Dan. Weston had been sick several years. O'Leary never has been seriously sick.

The pair first met in competition 55 years ago and often thereafter.

College Coach Also Manager

Earl Myers, for 10 years boxing coach at Culver Military academy, is managing two light heavyweights and a middleweight now. He has Jack McGrath, a former Notre Dame boxing and football star; Jack McClure, a Culver graduate, weighing 175; and U. S. Flagg, a Navy middleweight.

FOUR MARKS ARE BROKEN

teammate, Eric Krenz, the 1928 champion. Krenz made a gallant effort to overcome his rival but his toss of 50 feet 5-8 inch was good only for second place.

Another long-standing record was toppled when Jimmy Reid, Harvard captain, came from behind in the two-mile run to beat Bill Cox, of Pennsylvania, for the second straight year in 9 minutes 22 seconds. This barely displaced the record of 9:22 2-5, made by Ivan Dresser, of Cornell in 1919.

A fifth record was bettered when Sid Kieselhorst, of Yale, retaining his title, won the 220-yard low hurdles in 23 3-10 seconds, 3-10 second better than the mark set in 1898 by A. C. Kraenzlein, of Pennsylvania. Because of the stiff wind at his back, however, Kieselhorst's mark was ruled out.

THREATENED MARKS.

Several other records were threatened. Eric Krenz, retaining one of the two crowns he wore last year, came close to his own mark in the discus when he hurled the winning throw of 153 feet 4 inches.

Three pole vaulters finished in a first place tie at 13 feet 9 inches. The trio consisted of Ward Edmonds, of Stanford; Jack Williams, of Southern California, and Fred Sturdy, of Yale. Leo Kibby, of Stanford, was just short of the javelin record when he won with 204 feet 7 inches.

Stanford captured three first places and tied for a fourth through the individual efforts of Rothert, Krenz, Edmonds and Kibby. This quartet alone collected 25 points, enough to win the meet. Although nine of Stanford's starting squad of 14 athletes figured in the scoring.

Southern California, the hard-luck team of the meet, saw mishaps wreck its chances of ringing up a bigger point total, the elimination yesterday of two injured Trojans, Charley Borah, in the 220, and Vic Williams in the 440, was followed by the break-down of Jimmy Payne, this afternoon in the low hurdle semi-finals.

CHAMPION EXTENDED.

In the final of the 220 hurdles, however, Ernest Payne, no relation to Jimmy—came through to extend the champion, Kieselhorst, and finish a close second.

Pennsylvania, aided by the fine work of Barney Berlinger in the shotput and high jump, led the eastern teams but New York university furnished two of the most sensational winners in Edwards and Joe Hickey, red-headed mile champion, who uncorked a terrific spurt to cut down the favorite, George Offenhauser, of Penn State, in the stretch. New York university's total of 14 points was twice as many as the Violets ever previously scored in the I. C. A. A. A. outdoor championships although the New Yorkers won the indoor title meet last winter.

BOB LAWSON HERE FRIDAY

Meets Al Walker in Return Bout for World Title.

Since losing the title of colored heavyweight champion of the world to Bob Lawson here several months ago, One Punch Al Walker, New York pugilist, has been busily engaged in as many scraps as he could. Al has been doing that to get in good trim for his return bout with Lawson here Friday night.

One Punch's most recent battle was staged in Galveston, Texas, where he fought Bearcat Wright to a thrilling draw. Reports say it was a very unpopular draw, however. Walker won six rounds, fought to a draw in two and scored two knockdowns, according to the dispatches.

If nothing else, those two knockdowns show that the big New York glove chunker is in fine condition for a shot at the title he took from George Godfrey last January.

Besides that 10-rounder, Matchmaker Roby has lined 22 rounds of preliminaries, involving nothing but heavyweight fighters. The six-round bouts will be as follows:

Milton Wright vs. Charlie King.

Charles Booker vs. Clyde Glover.

Bob Hunter vs. Kid Coleman.

Sam Jones and Bearcat Obie are scheduled to mix in a four-rounder, while the matchmaker has procured a dozen young colored battlers for the battle royal which will open the show promptly at 8:30 o'clock.

Roby also has announced that ladies with male escorts will be admitted free to ringside seats. Tickets are now available at strategic points throughout the business section of the city.

Los Angeles Sends Strong Team to Meet

The Los Angeles Athletic Club, national champion last year, will send an even stronger team to the A. A. U. championships in Denver July 3-5. Members of that club feel that this year's team is the strongest ever to compete under any colors.

Among the well-known athletes of the Mercury club are Charley Borah, Frank Wykoff and Hector Dyer in the sprints; Bud Houser in the discus, and Jim Stewart in the decathlon.

Gus Aroused Over Penny Suspension

Pennsylvania suspended the wrestling champion, Gus Sonnenberg, because he paid no attention to certain challengers. Gus was a little hot about it and said:

Junior Net Meet Will Open Monday

East Lake Courts Will Be Scene of First Tourney of Atlanta Season.

Atlanta's first tennis tournament of the season opens Monday morning at 10 o'clock when boys and juniors of this section begin play in singles on the courts at East Lake. Winners in the two divisions will go to Chicago later in the summer to compete in the national tournament.

The tournament beginning Monday has attracted several out-of-town entries, chief among them J. L. Beaver, from Riverside, who was seeded No. 1 in the junior singles. Beaver last summer won the Georgia state boys' singles event and also participated in the doubles title. He is regarded as one of the outstanding junior players of the south and is developing steadily.

The boys' tournament has drawn two youngsters from Rome, Graham Wright and Gordon Sullivan, while Eugene Ray, of Acworth, also is entered. John Lafferty, also of Rome, was seeded No. 8 in the junior singles.

There are 32 entrants in the juniors and 12 in the boys. The junior division is open to boys who had not reached their 18th birthday on January 1, 1929 and the boys to those who had not reached their 15th birthday on that date.

EIGHT SEEDED.

Eight players were seeded in the juniors, in the following order: J. L. Beaver, James Halverstadt, William Reese, George Boynton, Allison Adams, Hall Powell, James Bracewell, John Lafferty. Four were seeded in the boys, George Boynton, Billy Glenn, Ross Cheshire, James Rainwater.

All players are requested to be on hand at 10 o'clock when the time of their matches will be announced. Any who entered the tournament and were not paired will be taken care of Monday morning, Jack Mooney, in charge of the tournament, announced Saturday. The doubles will also be drawn Monday.

U. S. Net Team Is Youngest

New York, June 1.—(United News.)—The United States Davis Cup team, which sails for Europe on Wednesday, will be the youngest in nine years of international competition for the trophy.

Back in 1920, when "Big Bill" Tilden was 25 and "Little Bill" Johnson was 24, the doughty pair wrested the cup from the Australians.

This year's team is composed of that aged veteran, John Hennessy, of Indianapolis, who is 28; Wilmer Allison, Fort Worth, 24; George Lott, Chicago, 23, and John Van Ryn, Orange, N. J., 23. Lott may not sail with the others, but will catch a later boat in time to participate in the inter-zone finals if needed.

ROSE OF SHARON CAPTURES OAKS

Louisville, Ky., June 1.—(AP)—Rose of Sharon, trim daughter of Light Brigade-Rosa Mundi, won the 55th running of the historic Kentucky Oaks here today. She covered the mile and one-eighth in 1:51 flat.

Lady Broadcast, owned by Rogers Caldwell, of Nashville, Tenn., was second and Current, star filly of the R. S. Clark stable, came third.

The winner is owned by former State Senator J. N. Camden, of Kentucky, and was ridden by W. Crump. Current, the favorite, got away to a fast start and held a comfortable lead all the way down the back stretch.

Giants Open Western Invasion With 7-4 Victory Over Cubs

Last-Minute Rally Checked by Scott

Pirates Bow to Phillies, 9-4—Cards Are Halted By Rain—Reds Win.

Opening their first western campaign of the 1929 season, the New York Giants defeated the Cubs, 7-4, at Chicago Saturday afternoon.

The losers fielded raggedly, making four errors, while Jack Scott, who relieved Carl Mays in the fifth, shut off the threat of a rally by Chicago's 1929 version of "murderers' row" in the last half of the ninth.

The Cubs had the bases filled with two out, but Scott forced Hack Wilson to foul to O'Farrell for the final out.

The Phillies made five home runs at Pittsburgh to defeat the discomfited Pirates, 9 to 4. Hurst hit two homers, while Klein, who is leading the league's sluggers, hit his 13th of the season.

The Cincinnati Reds nosed out the unhappy Boston Braves, 3 to 2, while rain prevented the St. Louis Cardinals from taking advantage of the Brooklyn Robins.

Babe Advances, Other Big Six Hitters Slump

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

With Babe Ruth showing the way, the big six pace setters made it a tough day yesterday for the members who fell down on their hitting job. The Babe got two hits in as many official times at bat, including his tenth homer of the year and moved up from fifth place in the standing to third. He passed Jim Bottomley, kept idle by rain, and Lou Gehrig, who hit but once in four attempts and slipped into a tie with with the Cardinal at the .318 mark. The leader, Rogers Hornsby, hit twice in four trips to the plate and lifted his mark to .351.

Ga.-Ala. League

A CLEAN SWEEP.

Lindale, Ga., June 1.—The Lindale Pepperells made a clean sweep of the two-game series over Gadsden when they beat them Saturday, 2-1, in a fast game of one hour and 25 minutes. Both team got six hits.

The visitors went into the lead in the first inning on a walk, sacrifice and two singles. Sanford's homer tied the score for the locals in the fourth and they came back in the eighth to win on a walk, single and sacrifice.

McDonald, who was knocked out of the box Friday, came back and beat Gadsden today.

CEDARTOWN WINS, 9-2.

Anniston, Ala., June 1.—Cedartown combined timely hitting with Anniston errors in two innings to win the second of the three game series here Saturday afternoon, 9 to 2.

Chitwood went the route for the winners. He gave up 10 hits but his work in the pinches was effective.

The score was close until the seventh inning when the winners jumped on Ramsay and Washington, who relieved him in that frame, for five hits and six runs.

Fuqua, star Noble shortstop, was out of the line-up Saturday with a severely wrenched back.

Water Boy Stars Against Old Team

Until this year Johns Hopkins university was the last word in lacrosse. A former Hopkins student who couldn't make the team was dubbed "water boy" when St. John's was beaten a year ago. This year the water boy, Ernie Cornbrooks, helped beat Hopkins.

JARVIS TRAINS 62 FIGHTERS

Amateurs of City Turn Out for Coming Meet A. A. C.

All troubles of Jay Jarvis, seeking material for the amateur boxing bouts at the Atlanta Athletic Club each month, seem to be solved. Jarvis, who is the boxing instructor, has 62 boys reporting to him daily for workouts, each of them desiring to box on the next card, which will be presented June 19.

Jarvis has boys in all the weights from flyweight to heavyweight and is greatly elated over prospects for the next show, which he says will be the best yet. It will be the third amateur boxing card that the club has promoted.

Following is a list of the boys working out:

Charles Port, S. Ezor, Joe Wofford, E. E. Parker, Thornton Wallis, F. Wall, V. Cunningham, H. P. Kelly, P. L. Dixon, C. C. Johnson, J. D. Askew, D. J. Greene, A. S. Johnson, Jr., J. M. Reed, H. T. LIONS ARE VICTORIOUS.

Montgomery, Ala., June 1.—Montgomery turned back the Jacksonville Tars, 3-2, in eleven innings this afternoon. It was the third straight victory for the Lions, and the fifth marred 27 innings of pitching for Goat Walker, who hurled a 13-inning scoreless tie early in the week and worked two innings in a relief role Wednesday.

A double by Tinton and Scrumbs's single ended the game this afternoon. Two runs in the sixth tied the score as a result of Klora's triple. The Tars got five hits in the last eight innings of the game.

Old Time Fight Promoters Needed

It's time Jim Coffroth, or some other old-time promoter, got into the game. It's going to seed.

They've virtually talked Max Schmeling into the championship, Joe Dundee has had a dozen non-title fights and promoters are bidding for more.

Fight columns sound like the latest news from Wall street.

We have about ten champions now and some bird suggests we have a junior class to each of the present classes. He may be right at that—with 18 or 20 champions, instead of nine or ten, we might get a title fight of some kind once a year.

If that is a good idea, why not triple the number? We could have a junior lightweight, a lightweight and a big lightweight.

No wonder fellows like Leo Flynn have turned to golf.

Lord Astor's Derby Horses Work Well

Manton, Eng., June 1.—(AP)—Lord Astor's two entrants in the derby, Cavendo and Gragadour, were given a workout here today on practice gallop in which Gragadour was ridden by H. A. Jellis. Cavendo finished first. Major Gerald Beane, manager of Lord Astor's horses, said the spin was merely for exercise and not a trial in any sense. Gragadour shares with Lord Derby's Hunters Moon the distinction of being quoted at the shortest odds in betting.

BATEAU WINS AT BELMONT

Jefford Filly First To Win Surburban Since 1905.

By Orlo L. Robertson.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Belmont Park Race Track, New York, June 1.—(AP)—Bateau, a four-year-old daughter of the renowned Man o' War, upheld the reputation of her great sire today as she became the third filly to win the historic Suburban handicap at Belmont Park.

In winning the mile and one quarter picturesque race, Bateau quoted at 20 to 1, not only whipped one of the greatest fields of handicap horses ever assembled on an eastern track in the race, but became the first filly to win the Belmont fixture in recent years. The late August Belmont's great mare, Beldame, accomplished the feat in 1905 when the Suburban was renewed at America's "New Market" and The Imp won the event in 1899 at Sheepshead Bay.

Although her victory was sensational in that she trounghreds it was not easy. Only a head back of the fast-stepping daughter of Man o' War was J. R. Macomber's Petee Wrack, winner of the Metropolitan last Saturday, while a length back of Macomber's color bearer and coming up fast was E. B. McLean's Toro, making his debut on eastern tracks after a successful season in Kentucky.

WINS IN STRETCH.

Under a masterful ride by Eddie Ambrose Bateau was held in restraint until the field of 13 hit the stretch. She then moved up rapidly on the inside, wearing down the leaders and passing Petee Wrack, leader all the way, in the final strides. Steve O'Donnell, who had the mount on Petee Wrack, claimed a foul, but it was not allowed by the judges. Chance Shot, J. E. Widener's five-year-old favorite and runner-up in the Suburban last year, was never in the race, finishing ninth, while Dolan, a freak winner of the 1928 race, barely saved himself from finishing last.

Although run over a lightning fast track, Bateau's time was only 2:03 3-5 while the victory of the filly was worth $14,100 to W. M. Jeffords.

At Churchill Downs, D. E. Stewart's three-year-old filly, Rose of Sharon, captured the Kentucky Oaks by a nose in a driving finish with Lady Broadcast, from the R. Caldwell stable, second, and the well-played favorite, R. S. Clark's Current, third. The winner ran the mile and one-eighth in 1:51 flat and won $10,080 for her owner.

J. P. Coughlin's Karl Eitel ran away with the Fairmount Derby at Fairmount Park, winning by three lengths from J. Collins' Thistle Fyrn with J. R. Thompson, Jr.'s, Minotaur third, a head back. Naishapur, the odds-on favorite, was 10 lengths back of third place. Karl Eitel ran the mile and a quarter in 2:11 and paid $15.98 for $2 in the mutuels.

Karl Eitel Pays 4 to 1.

Collinsville, Ill., June 1.—(AP)—Karl Eitel, a 4 to 1 shot, won the $25,000 added Fairmont Derby today at a mile and one-quarter over a muddy course. Thistle Fyrn was second and Minotaur third. Naishapur, the heavily backed favorite, came in fourth. The time was 2:11.

Karl Eitel, owned by Alderman John J. Coughlin, paid $15.08 for $2. Thistle Fyrn, the only filly of the five starters in the race, paid $8.70 to place and $3.46 to show. Minotaur paid $3.76 to show. Bather also ran. The defeat of Naishapur, who had been quoted at odds of 1 to 2, was a decided upset. About 150,000 persons saw the race.

Naishapur was dropped completely, finishing ten lengths behind Minotaur. Naishapur's second in the Kentucky Derby two weeks ago and winning of the Tiajuana Derby as well as second in the Coffroth, had forced the odds down.

Karl Eitel, with Bobby Jones up, had an easy time throughout the mile and quarter. He jumped into a four-length lead at the rise of the barrier, and held that commanding position. Thistle Fryn, carrying the lightest impost of the race, 113 pounds, went into second place at the first quarter and stayed there throughout, although the filly tired badly in the final furlong, finishing only a neck ahead of Minotaur. The latter, second choice in the betting, came on with a rush in the stretch, only the hard riding of J. Parmalee keeping him from overcoming Thistle Fyrn.

Ruth Hits Homer As Yanks Win, 8-1

Waite Hoyt in Good Form As Champions Win—Athletics Swamp Tigers, 11-2.

After a severe shakeup by Miller Huggins, the New York Yankees, who have been in somewhat of a slump lately, snapped out of it Saturday afternoon in the first game of a long home stand and defeated the Chicago White Sox, 8-1.

With Waite Hoyt in form, the visitors were held to six hits, while home runs by Babe Ruth and Tony Lazzeri helped swell the world's champions' run total.

Ed Morris, pitching ace of the Boston Red Sox, held the Cleveland Indians to six hits, but his mates made four errors behind him and the visitors won the opener at the Hub, 3 to 2.

The Philadelphia Athletics continued their terrific hitting against the Detroit Tigers, completely routing the invaders at Shibe park, 11 to 2. Al Simmons hit two homers, Earnshaw and Haas one each, Earnshaw likewise let the Tigers down with six hits.

The St. Louis Browns nosed out the Washington Senators, 5 to 4, coming from behind to score twice in the ninth.

Walter Hagen Makes Great Comeback To Defeat Compston

AMERICAN WINS MATCH, ONE-UP AT 36TH HOLE

Sir Walter Gives Gallery Big Thrill in Sensational Victory.

London, June 1.—(AP)—The American Ryder cup team's final fling of its 1929 invasion of England today found native-born British golfers more than holding their own.

Walter Hagen, captain of the American team and holder of the British open title, avenged two previous defeats by Archie Compston when he downed the famous British pro one up in a 36-hole match at Blackwell park, Birmingham.

Against this American triumph, however, Britons could point to Henry Cotton's 6 and 5 victory over Horton Smith at Coulsdon Court and Abe Mitchell's triumph in a 36-hole medal competition at the opening of the new Selsdon Park golf course at London. In this latter event, two Americans, Ed Dudley and Johnny Farrell, were second and third, respectively.

AMERICANS HEAD HOME.

After his triumph over Compston, Hagen caught a train for London where he picked up the main body of his Ryder cup argosy and, traveled to Southampton where they were to sail for home aboard the Leviathan at dawn.

Back to the United States, the Americans take gold and glory, fruits of the most ambitious invasion of Europe ever undertaken. The gold consists of British, French and German coinage equivalent to more than $11,000 in what the boys call "real money" and was garnered in championships, invitation tournaments, match play events and exhibition matches. Hagen, with the team manager, Robert Harlow, will divide the spoils of the expedition in equal shares among the team members, the tour wasn't a complete success for the Ryder cup, emblem of supremacy in professional team play, is in the possession of George Duncan and his British team but aside from that the Americans have successfully raided most of the trophy rooms or cash registers of the clubs where they have played.

UNEXPECTED DEFEAT.

As unexpected as loss of the Ryder cup was the American defeat today in the battle of the babes of the British and American teams, Smith and Cotton, at Coulsdon Court. The Joplin, Mo., pro arrived two minutes before the match was scheduled to start, took a couple of practice swings and started over a course he had never seen. That sort of thing wasn't good enough against the studious young Englishman, Cotton, who studies his golf like a scientist and prepares for his matches with the thoroughness of an explorer outfitting for a polar expedition.

Cotton knew every blade of grass on the Surrey hills, where the match was played, and he profited by this knowledge. He also was very friendly and courteous to his American opponent and on a number of tees there were little scenes that would have warmed the hearts of champions of Anglo-American amity, although it is unlikely that such courtesies will become general in golfing circles such as matches between Hagen and Compston. Whenever the youngsters reached a difficult dogleg hole or when Smith seemed uncertain of the topography, Cotton would show him the correct line to hole and warned him of hidden dangers.

PROUD PARENTS.

There were no prouder parents in England than Cotton's white-haired father and mother, who were there to congratulate their son. As far as the elder Cotton is concerned, anybody can be prime minister, but there are few that can beat Smith, 6 and 5.

While Smith was losing to Cotton on one range of Surrey's hills, Dudley and Farrell were adding a few dollars to the American team fund on an adjoining range. Although first place went to the British veteran, Abe Mitchell, with 145, Dudley, who finished second with 146, provided the chief thrills with a sensational 66 on his second 18. This mark set a new record for the course. Farrell's 147 was good enough for third place.

Henry Cotton Downs Smith.

Coulsdon Court, England, June 1.—(AP)—Henry Cotton, British professional golfer, defeated Horton Smith, young American pro, six up and five to play in a 36-hole exhibition match today.

Cotton started with two threes, getting the second one by jumping a dead stymie with his niblick. Going to the ninth all square, Smith bagged a birdie and was one up. That, however, was his last winning hole of the morning round. Seven of the nine holes on the morning's homeward journey were halved and the English youngster won the fifteenth and eighteenth. Horton missed a putt at the fifteenth and sent his approach into a bunker at the home hole.

Cotton lost the nineteenth but won the twentieth, halved the twenty-first and won the twenty-second and twenty-third to go three up. Henry started home for the last time five up and the tall visitor was just about out of the picture. The rest of the holes were halved until there were not enough left to do the Missourian any good.

Cotton went out in the afternoon in 38—four under par, while Smith took 38.

New Golf Ball To Make Trouble

The new golf ball is one-twenty fifth of an inch bigger and seven-one hundredths ounces lighter.

For the player who has an accurate, straight game, the ball will make little difference. Lighter weight, better lies.

For the player who is inclined to be erratic there will be all kinds of trouble—hooks, slices, fading, etc., in greater profusion than he ever has dreamed of.

Officially it won't appear until 1931.

Unofficially it may never appear.

So why worry about that? Stock your cellar with a supply of the good balls, and when they run out there will be plenty of bootleggers to supply you with the "XXX" brand.

Down in Florida they lynched a grocer for sassing the police. Up here they let the U. S. G. A. get away with this.

PARADISE REGAINED!

WHILE WE'RE REFORMING THE OLD GAME AND BRINGING IT UP TO DATE WHY NOT "BIGGER AND WIDER CUPS, TOO?

Larger Golf Ball Gives Duffer Break

U. S. G. A. Busy Telling Dubs How Much Good New Ball Will Do Them.

By Robert Edgren.

New York, June 1.—The U. S. G. A. having adopted a "bigger and lighter" golf ball is now busy telling golfers how much better it will be when in use. It won't be in use for about a year because all the golf ball factories will have to put in new machinery to make it. Tough on the ball makers. They were doing pretty well with the heavier and smaller ball and golfers seemed to like it pretty well. But making new laws and rules is the chief aim in life, these days, in all governing bodies, if they didn't make a new outfit of regulations, and regulate everything every now and then people would think they were asleep on the job.

The new bigger and lighter golf ball, they say, won't be quite so handy to drive into the wind with sand bunkers on each side, and may be blown off the fairway into the woods now and then, but this is a mere incident. Anyway golfers should learn how to shoot straight under all circumstances, and stern measures to promote that object are excusable.

As a sop to us duffers the rule makers explain that the low handicap men won't be able to drive quite so far with the new ball, which will help the duffers when they meet the high powered golfers in competition, because duffers don't drive very far anyway, and they say the new ball will putt just about as well.

MARVELOUS PUTTING.

All duffers are supposed to putt marvelously, that being the part of the game that doesn't require a limber back and strong wrists. Combining just as good putting with less difference in distance, the duffers are expected to make life miserable for the low handicap men as soon as the new ball comes in. Also the new ball will sit higher on the grass, if any, and so be easier for a duffer to hit.

It is a well-known fact that a low handicap golfer doesn't care what kind of a lie he has for a brassie shot, because he can crack them up in the air from anywhere. It is all different with the duffer. He seldom hits a good brassie, with the heavier and smaller ball, even when the ball is perched up on a bale of hay. The heavier ball now in use seems to have a mean habit of sinking in as far as possible to make shots hard for duffers. But the new ball, being so much larger and lighter, will cock itself up like a toy balloon, so that anybody can hit it.

They say the new ball will float in salt water, if there's enough salt in it. This will mean a great saving in balls and money for all the golfers playing at golf courses bordering Great Salt Lake in Utah, and was one of the main arguments in favor of the new ball.

ENGLISH REFUSE.

Funny thing, the English authorities have flatly turned down all efforts to induce them to adopt the new American ball. They are a suspicious lot in England and Scotland, and look with distaste upon all "Yankee inventions. Also there is a feeling abroad that it wouldn't be quite dignified to adopt any idea that wasn't first thought of at St. Andrews.

You know how it is. Shortly before the recent British open it was announced that no golfer would be allowed to use any steel shafted club. Steel shafted clubs are a Yankee invention, and there must be something insidiously underhanded and tricky about them. Besides, all English professionals objected to allowing steel shafted clubs to be used in England, because they interfere with one of the chief industries of the British Isles, which consists of putting new shafts into clubs after players have been trying to drive low shots into the wind that makes all English and Scotch seaside courses so interesting.

Barring the steel shafted clubs proved effective in the case of young Horton Smith, of Missouri, whose feats with his steel shafted "woods" had been heralded even across the sea. But apparently it didn't bother Walter Hagen, who can play with Yankee inventions or leave them alone.

For years the British have shown a disinclination to let American innovations creep into their game, especially just after something very shocking has happened. Jock Hutchison won the British open unexpectedly some years ago, using ribbed backspin irons popular in America. He even had the nerve, in championship play, to pitch a tee shot into a cup for a hole in one, and with such a backspin on it that it just rattled around a little and stayed there. Before the next British open had time to pop around again the British golf authorities had ruled against the use of any ribbed clubs at all, as inventions of the devil or something like that.

The idea was that the Yankee way of playing approach shots ought to be discouraged any way because it put dents in the greens, which according to the English custom are supposed to be kept as smooth as a billiard table and twice as hard. The English way is to roll approaches up—pitch and run them—and Jock's trick of pitching high over the cup and three or four feet beyond, so that the ball would bite in and then spin around until it got traction, and roll gently back toward the cup and perhaps fall in, seemed to have something irreverent and even insulting about it. Nobody ever played shots that way in England and it simply isn't done at St. Andrews. They say Jock's old father, who had lived all his life within sight of St. Andrews course, was so upset after seeing his son using the American methods, that he didn't even congratulate him for winning the big event.

Guest Makes Hole-in-One

Frank Boozer might qualify as the host supreme. He invited Jack Nance to play golf with him Saturday afternoon at Forrest Hills, then allowed his guest to make a hole in one for his amusement.

Playing with his host and Julian Bodenheimer, Nance canned his tee shot on the 149-yard fifth hole with a perfect mashie shot to the sloping green. Witnesses claim that the shot was "in all the way."

BRENNAN HAS GOOD SERVICE

bought by the Yankees and went south with them to training camp.

While at the Yankee camp he contracted a severe cold and a back injury which made him unfit for work. The Yankees sent him home and later assigned him to Lewiston in the New England league. He finished the season with them and was bought by Newark. He remained with that club throughout the 1927 and 1928 seasons, being purchased by the Crackers a few days ago.

"I feel that I am going to like the Southern league," said Brennan. "The heat may be bad but it didn't seem to worry me at Nashville and it was pretty hot there."

Vols Will Drop. Crackers Think

Despite the fact that the Volunteers treated the Crackers rather roughly during the week just ended, the Atlanta players were of the opinion that Clarence Rowland's club was playing over its head all week.

"That park of theirs is a great aid," said one of the Crackers. "I know I get to worrying about it for days before I go over there. When I know I've got to pitch in Sulphur dell I feel almost defeated. It is a terrible place to play ball. Every team that goes in there faces a mental hazard in the park. When anything goes wrong in the dell there is a tendency to give up, no matter how hard one resists it. To see pop flies go over the fence and to see singles bounce around those banks and become doubles is enough to make anyone sick. I always dread going to Nashville and I know the others feel the same way about it. The Vols are always tough to beat in that park."

Don Brennan, when he got his first look at the sunken garden there in Nashville, was all but overcome. "It is a disgrace to organized baseball to permit a park like that," he said, "especially in baseball of this class."

The Crackers, while they did not wish to detract any from any credit that may be due the Vols for their success of the week, did not hesitate to express their opinion that the Vols were playing over their collective heads.

Wilbur Good In Tough Spot.

Wilbur Food is in the spot that makes hair grow gray. He has some good ball players and a weak spot or so that must be filled. He has labored hard to find the proper combination. Good started with a rush, getting on top for a time, only to see his winning combination develop into a losing one. Since that time no combination has restored it. Consequently the distraction and the acute suffering of Good and the other Cracker officials.

The new players obtained may get going here. A change of scenery, new playing conditions and good treatment often changes a ball player and makes a winner of him. The players like Spiller and they like to play for Good.

Frank Haley, the utility man, is an example. He could never get going at Nashville. He tried for two seasons. At Chattanooga he played good ball and with the Crackers this year he is playing the best baseball of his career.

"I like it here at Atlanta," said Haley. "It is different playing where you like it and where it is pleasant. I like to hustle for Atlanta."

Rowland Likes League.

Clarence Rowland is out with a word of praise for the Southern league. The Nashville pilot, who won a major league pennant and a world's championship in 1917 with the White Sox, declares that the Southern league baseball is easily on a par with that played in the double A leagues.

"So far as the baseball played is concerned, this league is just as fast as that of the double A leagues," said Rowland. "It is just as good for the players. They make as much money. It is a great league and it will stand for nothing but heads-up baseball. I am proud to be in a league like this."

Rowland does not agree with the critics who think his club is playing over its head. "We've had good pitching all year," said Rowland. "We lost six games by one run and we've just now got our first-team lineup in there. I know the club will hustle, I think it is well-balanced and I know we'll be in the race unless we get some more injuries. I've got the two best outfielders in the league in Jimmy Horn and Blackie Carter and we are ready to go.

WOMEN PLAN MADDOX MEET

Tournament Named for Atlanta Star Will Be Played Tuesday.

A "Margaret Maddox Tournament," followed by a luncheon at the East Lake Country Club Tuesday, June 4, will be given by the Atlanta Women's Golf Association, complimenting Miss Maddox on her victory in the recent women's southern championship at New Orleans, and all members of the association are invited to compete in the tourney and make reservations for the luncheon.

The tournament will be a "tombstone" event—that is, each competitor will be supplied a tombstone showing her handicap, and the allowance of strokes, and when the last stroke is played the tombstone is planted at the spot where the ball rests. The winner will be the competitor whose tombstone is carried farthest around the course in the strokes allotted.

Prizes of golf balls will be awarded in each of the three classes. There will be no entry fee.

Members of the association who may not have received notices of this event may make reservations by calling Mrs. L. H. Beck, Ponce De Leon apartments, until Monday evening, or calling the East Lake Club direct. The luncheon will be at 1:30 o'clock. The tournament begins at 8 o'clock, with a starter at the first tee to look after the pairings and other arrangements.

Waycross Wins From Douglas

Waycross, Ga., June 1.—Waycross mashie swingers, with several rounds of sensational golf to their credit, defeated the league-leading Douglas team here this week by a bare margin of one point. The score was a six and a half to a five and a half, the victory being established only after the last four foursomes had turned in their cards.

The score on the first four foursomes was a deadlock, and the fourth foursome added two points to Waycross and one point to Douglas.

The most spectacular golf of the day was a nest 81 turned in by Dessau Bunn, who played in the first foursome for Waycross. Mr. Bunn parred the nine hole course with a 37 for one of his circuits.

The first foursome gave Waycross two points and Douglas one. Charlie Garwood and Francis Stubbs turning in 83 and 84, respectively, for Douglas, and Dr. W. F. Reavis and H. D. Bunn turning in cards of 84 and 81, respectively, for Waycross.

In the second foursome Jerome Crawley and Larry Pedrick won two points for Waycross over Charlie Sims and Fred Rickerson, of Douglas.

The third foursome was a win for Douglas, Clyde Tanner and Jack Griffin winning two and one-half points for the visitors, while Dr. B. H. Minchew and Tom Linton were adding a half point for Waycross.

H. J. Quincy and M. R. McClain added one point to the Douglas score, while Marion Moore and Harvey Griffin were adding two points for Waycross in the last foursome. George Crawley played the first half of the match, instead of Marion Moore, for Waycross.

First Time.

In beating Hopkins in an overtime lacrosse game, St. John's College for the first time had a victory over its old rival. Last fall the Johnnies won the annual football game, 46 to 0.

Charlie Black Leads Capital City Tourney

Leader Shoots 70 To Top Field—Upsets Mark Druid Hills Tournament.

By Dick Hawkins.

Charlie Black, holder of many golf titles, who has been staging a prolonged battle with ill health for several months, came back near his golfing form Saturday when he shot a brilliant 70 to lead the qualifiers in the governing board tournament at Capital City Club.

Two 35's decorate his card, though the figures show that Charlie was shooting two different kinds of golf on the two nines. On the front he had but one hole over par and one under to duplicate the card total. On the back he scored two buzzards and three birdies to better the par by one stroke. Playing under summer rules, Charlie's 70 is a sparkling performance.

REPLACES GARLINGTON.

Up to the time Charlie finished Saturday, Dick Garlington was far below the rest of the field with a fine 74, three strokes over par. The next position in the qualifying was shared by Dave Black and Fred Minnich with a pair of 79's.

The pairings for the first matches promise considerable excitement. In fact, the first flight matches offer almost no "setups."

Forrest Fowler and Cy Strickler should furnish a battle in their match, while Dick Garlington and Henry Grady, Jr., may have to settle their differences in the prize ring if both play their best games.

The pairings are as follows:

FIRST FLIGHT.

SECOND FLIGHT.

Dr. Harry Boon plays Fitzhugh Knox, Jr., Bill Minnich plays M. B. Crosby, W. W. Meeks plays C. A. Sharpless, Morgan Wynne plays Everett Thomas, Lieutenant L. D. Medlera plays D. C. Black, R. C. Jones plays C. B. Wilson, Joe McCord, Jr., plays George Raine, Russell Bridges plays M. O. Nix.

THIRD FLIGHT.

W. M. Montgomery plays T. G. Douglas, R. H. Martin plays T. H. McCrea, I. L. Respess plays Colonel Thomas, John I. Bell plays John Holmes, J. G. Riley plays C. B. Connally, Sam Mangham plays J. Wood, Dot Hammond plays W. D. Owens, P. S. Stevens plays T. B. Shropshire.

FOURTH FLIGHT.

F. D. Burge drew a bye, I. C. Humphries plays W. G. Slaughter, E. S. Mather plays G. D. Ayer, George Gantt plays George W. Brown, Van Wilkenson plays J. A. McLaren, F. Graham Williams plays P. T. Arnold, J. M. Harrison drew a bye, R. L. Cluitt drew a bye.

DRUID HILLS.

With very little regularity but considerable certainty matches in the governing board trophy tournament at Druid Hills are being completed. Saturday saw all second round matches in the first and third flights finished but three contests in the second flight could not be played and probably will be finished today.

First flight matches in both first and second matches were featured by upsets of great dimensions. The victory of F. G. Hill over George Argo, present title-holder, and Julius Hughes' defeat by J. R. Pattillo were two examples. The only second round match played Saturday in the second flight saw another upset when W. A. Gilreath beat Dr. Claud Hughes, 2-1.

Harry Allen and Dr. W. E. Barber staged the most exciting of the third flight matches in the second round when the former barely managed to nose out his opponent on the home green.

The results of all second round matches to date are as follows:

FIRST FLIGHT.

Grover Middlebrooks defeated F. G. Hill, 2 up.

Fred Teague defeated H. H. Ellison, 4-3.

J. R. Pattillo defeated J. J. Clark, 2 up.

John Willis defeated W. E. Beresford, 1 up in 20 holes.

SECOND FLIGHT.

W. A. Gilreath beat Dr. Claud Hughes, 2-1.

THIRD FLIGHT.

A. J. Orme, Jr., beat J. Glenn, 6-5.

Dr. Hubert Merritt beat Wilmer Davis, 5-4.

C. W. Whatnough beat W. G. Burckel, 2-1.

Harry Allen beat Dr. W. E. Barber, 1 up.

TEAMWORK.

Teamwork featured the day's work at Ansley park Saturday when the members engaged in a best ball sweepstakes with 40 players entered.

Contestants were divided into two classes, according to handicaps, and players chose their own partners under the handicap rules governing play.

In the upper bracket E. C. Nowell and J. W. Welch took low gross prize with a best ball of 33-36—69. Low net honors went to L. A. Mock and Don Linville, who carded a gross best ball of 38-35—73, and had a working handicap of 13 strokes. Their net was 60.

In the lower class H. A. Moses and C. C. Clower topped the gross scorers with a best ball of 40-38—78 to win the prize for that feat. G. E. Russell and Dr. B. T. Beasley had the lowest score of the day in their class when they carded a best ball of 39-40—79 with an 18 handicap. Net was 61.

KINDON IS LOW.

W. V. Kingdon, who recently gained considerable fame as a semi-finalist in the Junior Chamber of Commerce tournament, added more laurels to his bouquet Saturday when he turned in a great 82 to win low qualifying medal in the spring tournament at Ingleside.

Kingdon's handicap of 14 strokes gave him an edge on M. A. Ferst, who carded a gross 81, but had only nine strokes handicap. The medalist, with a handicap of 14 strokes, is a prime favorite in the match play that begins this week.

Pairings for the first matches are as follows:

W. V. Kingdon plays George Cohen. M. L. Rosenberg plays M. E. Elsas. A. E. Mayer plays G. Schoen. Dr. H. J. Rosenberg plays Clarence Wenar. M. Haas plays Frank Ferst. Dr. S. L. Silverman plays H. J. Rosenberg. Jr., M. E. Ferst plays H. E. Montag. H. J. Haas plays Sol Epstein.

RAIN HALTS PLAY.

Nature played a typical springtime prank to upset tournament plans at both West End and East Lake Saturday afternoon. Members of the latter club were to qualify for the Latham and Atkinson trophy tournament Saturday, but rains caused the committee to postpone the qualifying indefinitely. While it was raining at East Lake there was not a drop of moisture in the city.

West End, ready for a blind bogey tournament, had the same experience Saturday afternoon when the members started in the tournament play only to be driven to shelter by a young cloudburst. The event was cancelled.

Women's Golf Schedule Set

The following tournament schedule for the remainder of the 1929 season in Atlanta is announced by the Atlanta Women's Golf Association:

June 17—Maier & Berkele municipal championship. Piedmont park public course.

July 9—One-day medal competition. West End Golf Club.

July 22—Match play competition. Druid Hills Golf Club.

August 6—One-day medal. Ingleside Country Club.

August 19—Match play tournament. Capital City Country Club.

September 10—One-day medal. Candler park.

September 23—Open date.

October 1—One-day medal. Ansley Park Golf Club.

October 14—City championship. East Lake Country Club.

Suspends Operations.

Al Haft, wrestling promoter in Cincinnati, where the game has flourished the last year, likely will suspend operations for the summer because dog racing attracts his customers.

Peachtree To Hold Anniversary Shoot

Invitations Sent to Southern Shooters for Big Big Event Here Next Week.

By Dick Hawkins.

Shooters from all over the south will congregate at Peachtree Gun Club one week from Monday for the third anniversary shoot of that organization. Invitations have just been forwarded. The event will be of three days' duration.

The Peachtree club has but one registered shoot each year and this is the one. Other registered competitions at the youthful institution have been well attended and there is every reason to believe that this shoot will draw at last three-score contestants.

Harold McKenzie, president of the club, and his committee have left nothing undone to make the stay of the shooters pleasant. Headquarters will be established at the Henry Grady hotel and a transportation committee has been named to see that the visiting shooters reach the club every day. Mrs. W. P. Andrews is chairman of this committee and her aides are John J. Woodside, Sam DuBose and Dr. J. D. Jacobs.

A BUSY TIME AHEAD.

A glance at the program is sufficient to guarantee a busy three days. In addition to the regular straight targets there will be unregistered events on the Whiz field traps, invented and installed by the Peachtree Gun Club.

The first day will see the first half of the class championship singles event in the forenoon and the Martin Nash Motor Company challenge cup race. This event will not be registered, but it promises something in the way of variety. It will consist of 150 targets in the following order: First 25 at 16 yards, 25 from 18 yards, 25 from 20 yards, 25 from 22 yards and 25 pairs of doubles. The club will add to the purse $3 for each entry. This competition will be open only to shooters from Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee and South Carolina.

SECOND DAY FEATURE.

Two hundred targets of the open singles championship will feature the second day and the afternoon will see the first 25 pairs of championship doubles. Both of these events carry trophies and the club will add to each event 50 cents for each entry.

The last half of the doubles championship will be shot on the morning of the third day and the last half of the class singles championship will be shot immediately after the doubles event.

In the afternoon of the final day the climax will come with the shooting of the Peachtree Gun Club anniversary handicap. The club also will add 50 cents for each entry in this event.

In addition to the permanent trophies the following leg cups will be in competition:

A leg on the Atlanta Georgian Cup will be awarded to the high Georgia amateur, whose average is 90 per cent or above, on the entire 750 target program. A leg on the Goldsmith-Becker Cup will be awarded to the high Georgia amateur, whose average is under 90 per cent, on the 750 target program.

A leg on the Coca-Cola Cup will be awarded the high amateur, non-resident of Georgia, on the entire 750 target program.

A leg on the Chrysler Cup (Harry Sommers, Inc.) will be awarded the high amateur on the 400 16-yard targets and the 50 pairs of doubles.

The Martin-Nash Cup is the property of the Peachtree Gun Club and can be competed for at other clubs only upon written consent of the Peachtree Gun Club. The four leg cups are also the property of the Peachtree Gun Club and are to be competed for at the Peachtree Gun Club only, once each year. Permanent possession to any of the leg cups will be gained by the shooter first winning any one cup three times.

These cups are now held by the following gentlemen:

Martin-Nash Challenge Cup is held by H. A. McPherson, Tampa, Fla.

Coca-Cola Cup is held by Harry Johnson, Haines City, Fla.

Chrysler Cup is held by R. O. Collins, Tallahassee, Fla.

Atlanta Georgian Cup is held by H. C. McKenzie, Atlanta.

Goldsmith-Becker Cup is held by Inman Gray, Atlanta.

In addition to the above trophies, the Peachtree Gun Club will award a trophy to the first and second high Peachtree Gun Club members on all targets, who did not win a trophy on the leg program.

Mrs. Rogers Wins Peachtree Shoot.

Mrs. Frank Rodgers, who won a handicap trophy at the Peachtree Gun Club last week, changed her program a bit Saturday to win the singles prize by breaking 46x50 of the windy targets. J. K. Orr was high gun on the handicap targets with a laudible score of 24x25.

Sam DuRose was high gun on both singles and doubles but his added birds in the singles competition were not sufficient to beat Mrs. Rodgers.

Next Saturday the club will hold an important shoot in preparation for the big anniversary registered shoot, which opens on Monday, June 10.

The scores Saturday follow:

50 SINGLES.

Sam DuRose	47
W. H. Letton	46
Mrs. Frank Rodgers	46
L. E. Grant	44
Mrs. J. D. Jacobs	44
Inman Gray	41
Frank Rodgers	40
J. K. Orr	39
Dr. J. D. Jacobs	35
John E. Smith	34
Ivan Allen	33
Dr. J. F. Stainback	23x25

25 HANDICAP.

Orr, 24; Gray, 23; Grant, 22; Mrs. Rodgers, 21; Mrs. Jacobs, 21; DuBose, 19; Letton, 21; Dr. Jacobs, 14; Allen, 13.

DOUBLES.

Dubose, 23; Orr, 21; Dr. Jacobs, 20; Mrs. Jacobs, 20; Gray, 19; Rodgers, 18.

Girl Star Injured.

Toronto, Ont., June 1.—(AP)—Miss Ethel Catherwood, Olympic champion high jumper, will be out of athletics this season it is feared. Miss Catherwood severely gashed her leg while training yesterday and was removed to a hospital.

PREP TRACKMEN SET NEW MARK

World's Record Falls in 220 Low Hurdles—Gary Wins.

Chicago, June 1.—(AP)—A world's record went tumbling, three world performances were equalled, and four marks for the meet here cracked as 900 athletes from 30 states finished competition in the University of Chicago's twenty-fifth national interscholastic track and field championship meet today.

Jack Keller, of East High, Columbus, Ohio, after tying the world's record of :15.2-10 in the 120-yard high hurdles, came back to smash the world mark in the 220 low hurdles by scissoring his way over the barriers in :24. This performance clipped two tenths a second off the old record hung up by Eugene Beatty, Northeastern High, of Detroit, in 1927.

Athletes from Froebel High, of Gary, Ind., captured the meet by scoring 42 1-2 points, with Arsenal High, of Indianapolis, Ind., second with 28. Fort Collins, Colo., winner of the 1928 meet, was third with 26 1-2. Fulton, Mo., St. Joseph, Mo., and Tilden Tech, Chicago, tied for fourth place with 22 points each. East High, of Columbus, was fifth with 20. East High, of Wichita, Kan., was sixth with 18, and Northwestern High, of Detroit, seventh, with 16 1-2. Central High, of Muncie, Ind., Lewis and Clark, of Spokane, Wash., and Pontiac, Ills., were tied for eighth place with 14 points each.

In the academy section, Mooseheart, Ill., won the title for the second successive year, with 42 points. Lake Forest, Ill., 1928 runner-up, again was second with 38. Culver Military academy scored 32 1-2 for third place; Terrill, Texas, was fourth with 22 1-2, and St. Johns, Delafield, Wis., fifth with 14 points.

Ralph Metcalfe, sensational 18-year-old negro sprinter from Tilden Tech, Chicago, tied the world's records in winning both the 100 and 220-yard dashes. He stepped the century in :09 8-10 and captured the 220 in :21 2-10.

Metcalfe, with Keller, were high in individual point scoring, each registering 20 by their double victories.

New records for the meet were established in the discus, 440-yard run, shot put and half-mile relay. William Moreau, of Fort Collins, Colo., heaved the discus 136 feet 11 inches to break the record by six inches which Arlie Mucks, of Oshkosh, Wis., made in 1911. Irving Fuqua, of Brazil, Ind., won the first section of the 440 in :49 4-10, clipping 8-10 of a second off the record.

Keds Field Day Set for June 18

Atlanta youths will have another chance to win bicycles and tennis shoes this year when the annual Keds' field day will be held at Grant field, June 18, and every boy and girl within the weight limits will have a chance to show how fast he or she can run, and at the same time win a handsome new bicycle.

Last year there were some 500 competitors in this event, and this time there should be many more. There are no hooks or crooks in the contest, no qualifying conditions except that of weight and ability to run.

There will be three races in which boys will be allowed to compete. There is a 50-yard dash for boys under 80 pounds, a 75-yard dash for those under 95 pounds and a 100-yard dash for those under 115. The girls have one 50-yard race for those under 70 pounds and a 75-yard race for those under 100 pounds. Details of the races and instructions for contestants will be published later.

School Teacher Wins Golf Title

Sedgefield Country Club, Greensboro, N. C., June 1.—(AP)—Miss Elizabeth Rogers, Greensboro school teacher, won the Carolina woman's golf title today by defeating Mrs. W. D. Irwin, also of Greensboro, former New York public links champion, one up in the finals.

The match was not decided until the 18th hole. All square here after a see-saw journey around the course, Miss Rogers ran into trouble when her second shot went into a creek. She recovered nicely, but her four was over the green while Mrs. Irwin was on the green edge in four.

Mrs. Irwin's fifth was two feet past the cup while Miss Rogers put a long putt within two feet of the pin. Here the break came. Mrs. Irwin's sixth shot stopped on the edge of the cup and she took a 7, while Miss Rogers was sinking her sixth for the match. Miss Rogers had not led her opponent at any time until the last hole.

Fast Workers.

Either the members of the St. Bonaventure college baseball team are fast on the bases, or the catcher of the Cortland Normal team has no arm, for the Bonnies stole 17 bases in one game.

Copy Boy Picks Races; Promoted

The Baltimore News sports department had a copy boy named Teddy, who only saw one race in his life. He picked Dr. Freeland to win the Preakness and Clyde Van Dusen to win the Derby and now he doesn't have to run copy any more. He was promoted.

O'Doul Holds National Batting Lead; Foxx Tops American

O'FARRELL IS RUNNER-UP IN HITTING RACE

Burleigh Grimes' Reign as Leading Pitcher Is Challenged by Five.

Although Burleigh Grimes, of Pittsburgh, is the only hurler who has won eight games and lost none in the National league, there are several other pitchers who bid fair to give the Pirate ace plenty of competition soon. Bush, of Chicago, and Johnson, of St. Louis, have won five and lost none, while Dudley, of Brooklyn, Haid, of St. Louis, and Brame, of Pittsburgh, have won three without any defeats.

Outfield O'Doul has a 15-point lead on the batting honors, having amassed a percentage of .415. Catcher O'Farrell, of New York, is resting squarely on the .400 mark to place second to O'Doul. Chick Hafey, of St. Louis, has batted in a total of 40 runs. Kiki Cuyler has stolen 11 bases, while Frankie Frisch, of St. Louis, has swiped a total of 10.

Four players, Klein, of Philadelphia; Ott, of New York; Hafey, of St. Louis, and Jackson, of New York—are bunched for the home run leadership with the former two tied for first place with 11 each. The latter pair has a total of 10 each.

The lowly Phillies continue to set the pace in team batting, their mark being .318, while Chicago is second with .295. The Cubs are fielding at a clip of .977. Cincinnati has completed the most double plays, 47.

Navy Wins Crown.

Annapolis, Md., June 1.—(AP)—The Naval academy won the Intercollegiate league lacrosse championship today by a 4-to-3 victory over the University of Maryland. The winning score was made in the final moments of the game by Cashman on a pass from Conn before the goal.

BILL TILDEN, HUNTER LOSE

ernoon Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter stormed the ramparts of French supremacy and failed.

Big Bill was beaten by his old foe, Rene Lacoste, 6-1, 6-0, 5-7, 6-3, in the semi-finals of the French championship in a match which would have been a rout but for a great stand by the veteran American in the third set.

Shortly before Jean Borotra, the bounding Basque, came from behind to trim Hunter in the quarter-finals, 6-8, 10-8, 4-6, 8-6, 6-1.

With the downfall of America's first and second ranking stars the last chance of capturing the only important men's singles title, which has never been won by a player from the United States, vanished for this year at least. The renowned Three Musketeers of France are in sole possession of the field, with Lacoste already in the final, and Henri Cochet scheduled to dispute the remaining semi-final with Borotra tomorrow.

HELEN REMAINS.

Only the capable figure of Miss Helen Wills, who reached the final in defense of her women's singles crown by defeating England's Miss Eileen Bennett, 6-2, 7-5, remained to represent the United States. Everywhere else France had a monopoly, having placed its leading woman player, Madame Renee Mathieu, in the final against Miss Wills by a victory over Fraulein Cecilie Aussem, of Germany, 8-6, 2-6, 6-2.

Against Lacoste and Borotra, Tilden and Hunter underwent their first real test of 1929 and by comparison were found wanting, although their tennis probably would have been good enough to conquer anyone except the super-stars of France.

The imperturbable Rene played today with the same mechanical steadiness which earned him recognition as the world's greatest player in 1927. Except for a few moments in the third set when Big Bill provided the high spot of the match by winning four straight games and the set after trailing at three games to five.

Lacoste on Top.

Lacoste was in the driver's seat throughout. Committing a minimum of errors, Rene forced Tilden to gain nearly all of his points by placements.

Hunter's defeat at the hands of the oldest member of the French triumvirate came as something of a surprise as he was leading Jean by two sets to one when play was called on account of darkness the previous days. When the match was resumed Hunter spent himself in an unsuccessful effort to win the long deuced set, which would have given him the match, and could offer no resistance in the closing set.

The winner was to have taken on Cochet later in the day in the semi-finals so that the final might be played tomorrow but Borotra balked at the double assignment and both matches were postponed a day. Cochet and Lacoste are favored about equally to win the title now held by the former and Borotra is conceded an outside chance. The result probably will go far toward deciding which of the French will earn the world's No. 1 rank for this season.

Although Miss Wills is a prohibitive favorite to win the women's coronet for the second straight year, French fans are hopeful that Madame Mathieu will be able to perform the rare feat of winning a set from the American.

Perhaps partly because of a howl from the gallery at what the fans thought was an unfair decision in her favor, Miss Wills faltered momentarily in the second set of her match with Miss Bennett. After Helen had deliberately thrown away a point to make up for the injustice, if any, the English girl managed to carry the set to deuce.

Auto Races Slated At Lakewood July 4

Many of Country's Best Drivers To Compete on All-Star Card Here.

Addition of professional auto races at Lakewood Park July 4 has been announced by Oscar Mills, manager, to the 1929 sport calendar.

Since the Charlotte speedway went the way of decaying boards, Atlanta's Fourth of July auto races have stood out as the first and largest of dirt track events in Dixie.

This year the races will be on a larger scale than ever before, Mr. Mills states.

He cites several reasons for the success of the July Fourth auto races among which are:

"More dirt track race drivers wintered in Florida this year than ever before and will be heading north for competition at fairs starting in late July there.

"Atlanta's auto races will be the first big league dirt track events in the south this year.

"Sectional championships will be at stake in a nation-wide entry list which will include southern and northern dirt track drivers.

LARGE ENTRY LIST.

"A larger entry list than heretofore is practically assured through interest already manifested by famous drivers who have inquired about the annual event.

"The mile track, aided by early season rains, which proved a detriment to other forms of sport, will be in better summer shape than in recent years.

"The most efficient group of officials to ever appear at a dirt track race meet in the south will be on hand to assure prompt running of races and elimination of any favorable discrimination to drivers."

Mr. Mills points out in addition that Lakewood is becoming more popular each year, that each Fourth of July event, barring inclement weather, has shown more people on the grounds than the preceding year.

The auto races will be the "feature" on an all-star card which will include something for everybody to do or see from the time the gates swing open the morning of the Fourth until midnight or the early hours of July 5. The auto races, occupying stellar position, will take place in the afternoon, while midway pleasures, boating, picnic facilities, a night show with a great fireworks display and other added features will be included.

There are at the present a score of dirt track luminaries with their racing autos in Florida. Bob Green, Fred Horey and Johnnie De Palma stuck around Tampa this winter. Sam Purvis and Lamar Robertson are at Jacksonville. Sig Haughdahl and Barney McKenna were at Daytona Beach for the Segrave and Bible trials and have not started north. Curley Young and Swan Peterson favored the Lakeland section, and Arch Powell "ritzed" the rest of the boys by putting up at Palm Beach.

It's time for the bank roll to be not so fat and the lure of the roaring motors to be in the minds of the Yankee speed stars who like to winter in the south and pick up traveling change at the annual auto races, where they give the southern driving demons a big run for their money.

Fight of Nations Held in Gotham

The St. Nicholas arena in New York looked like the House of Nations at a recent fight. Of 12 performers there were 11 nationalities. There are more foreign mitt slingers in America now than ever before, say fight club promoters and matchmakers.

Fayetteville Wins Opening Game

Fayetteville, Ga., June 1.—The Fayetteville Firecrackers won the opening game of the Flint River league here Saturday afternoon before a large crowd by the score of 9-7. Entering the eighth inning trailing, the Coweta county lads by a two-run margin, the home boys staged a four-run rally and won.

Mutt Harrell led the Firecrackers with the stick and smashed out three hits, his third blow in the eighth inning, driving over the tieing and winning runs. Pinkey Burch starred both afield and at bat for the Firecrackers and scored two runs.

President Tobe Edwards was present and witnessed the opening game and assisted in the ceremonies that drew the largest crowd of several years of baseball history here.

Schoolboy Sets World Dash Mark

Dayton, Ohio, June 1.—(AP)—Jack Mahoney, St. Xavier college youth, sprinted to a new world's record for the 175-yard dash at the University of Dayton stadium here this afternoon in the annual municipal track and field meet.

Running an exhibition race against time, Mahoney traveled the distance in 16.9 seconds, breaking Charley Paddock's old mark of 17 seconds.

Probably the best man Wisconsin gets from the freshman squad for next fall's team is Russ Rebholz, brother of the regular fullback. The freshman material is unusually good at Wisconsin.

WEIS SLUMPS BUT RETAINS BATTING LEAD

Barons Continue To Maul—Ludolph Tops Hurlers in Southern.

Although his batting mark fell off 28 points during the past week, Outfielder Weis, of Birmingham, still is the leader of the Southern league batters. The Baron slugger now is hitting at a clip of .417. Blakesly continues to be the runner-up to Weis, with a percentage of .385.

Blakesley also has batted in the most runs, 35. Dashiell has stepped to the front in stolen bases, his total being 14. Miner, of Nashville, is leading the league in home runs with 7.

Birmingham again set the pace in team batting, clouting the ball at a pace of .313. Memphis is batting .291 to run second to the Barons in that division. Nashville tops the league in team fielding with .967, while Atlanta and Memphis are tied for the runner-up position with .966 each. Little Rock has completed the most double plays, 46.

Pitcher Ludolph, of Birmingham, has won seven games and lost none to lead the Southern hurlers.

George Simpson Equals Record

Annapolis, Md., June 1.—(AP)—George Simpson's mark equalling the world's record of 9 and 6-10 seconds for the 100-yard dash, featured a dual meet of Ohio State and Navy here today in which the Ohio track team was victorious. The point score was Ohio State 75 1-3, Navy 50-2-3.

CRAX SPLIT WITH VOLS

the Crackers and Vols found on the schedule, will send this afternoon at Sulphur Dell. Wilbur Good plans to use Chief Wilkins, a right-hander. Clarence Rowland will use Lefty Willis, a southpaw. As you may have guessed from the name.

RAUCH WILD.

Del Lundgren, who lost a game here last Tuesday, won one Saturday. It was his second victory of the week over the Vols. He and Bull Rauch were opposing pitchers in the first game. Rauch was wild. For the first four innings he walked the first Vol up in each inning. In the fifth John Anderson doubled. Bull Rauch promptly walked Joe Klugman, first up in the sixth. Del Lundgren tripled to open the seventh. Bull Rauch walked Horn to open the eighth. That is some sort of record. Or if it isn't, should be.

John Anderson, who was discarded by the Travelers as being too old and decrepit for the Southern league, got two hits in the first game and one in the second.

The old man has now hit in 24 consecutive ball games. The Nashville papers should run the old boy's picture. Hitting in 24 ball games is quite a lot of hitting. Clarence Rowland, his manager, is authority for the figures.

THE SCORES.

The Vols scored one each in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings. That was in the first game. The Crackers rallied in the seventh and scored three. Jim Poole started the rally that gave the Vols two runs in the eighth. They were the ball game.

The second game went scoreless for six innings. It was a pretty pitching duel between George Milstead and Red Oldham. Red Oldham won it. It was his second victory of the week over the Vols. He defeated the Vols in the first game of the Tuesday double bill.

Some 4,000 people watched the Vols and Crackers battle Saturday. It was a fine tribute to baseball in Atlanta when that number turn out for a club that has been taking it on the goatee all week.

Thanks, Yelle

The SPORTLIGHT by Grantland Rice

HOW MUCH PROSELYTING OR PAYING?

College athletics today are far from being perfect, but there are few perfect things. All that one can say is that conditions are much better than they were a few years ago. The Iowa case in the western conference has stirred up an endless amount of argument as to how many universities and colleges are either proselyting athletic talent or paying certain stars in one fashion or another.

This is something beyond proof. Quite a little of it is going on around the country. But conditions in the leading universities are so much better than they were some years ago that no reason exists for any pessimistic outcry.

From time to time one gets fairly direct evidence that certain collegiate spots are going out after their talent and paying for it, either directly or indirectly. But there is always some kink in any form of direct proof. Conditions will always be something like this as long as so many take their college sport with such feverish intensity—especially where football is concerned.

Few get steamed up over a track meet or a baseball game, lacrosse and other intercollegiate efforts, but football is another matter.

If you happen to mention the names of three or four good halfbacks in the paper a dozen or so letters arrive at once from indignant grads who want to kow why you left out Whozis of Whatsis, who always has those mentioned outclassed.

Most of the proselyting is done by individual alumni, who in various places keep an observing eye on all the young talent popping up.

Only a few days ago I heard one old grad saying bitterly that a certain young star was headed for his university, but another university had lured him away with a position that paid all expenses and left a few dollars on the side. Whether this was true or not is something else. But he believed it. With the growth of crowds and gate receipts and publicity there is bound to be a certain amount of collegiate scandal, and a lot of it will be true.

THE HARDER JOB.

"Which is the more difficult human job," asks L. F. K., "to run 100 yards in 9 flat or the mile in 4 minutes flat? In the case of the 100 it would mean a reduction in time of 5 1-5 per cent. In the case of the mile it would mean a reduction of 4 1-7 per cent from the present record." The 100 yards in 9 seconds flat would be much the harder job. The time may not be so far ahead when some one will be strong enough and fast enough to run the mile around 4 flat. That means an average of one minute for each quarter, and the quarter has been run around 47 seconds. It will call for a combination of speed and endurance hooked together, the development of a sprinter into a middle distance runner.

THE TOUGHEST ASSIGNMENT.

As Johnny Farrell, United States open golf champion, reads the scores of more than 960 qualifying starters next week he will realize that he will have to beat all the survivors to hold his title. Also 30 or 40 others who don't have to qualify. Johnny Farrell is the one champion who finds a thousand competitors barring his way to a second year on the throne, and many of these have just as good a chance as he carries.

What other champion in sport has to face a list as formidable as that which carries Bobby Jones, Horton Smith, Walter Hagen, Mac Smith, Tommy Armour, Leo Diegel, Gene Sarazen and others? In tennis it would be about the same as if Cochet had to meet 10 or 15 men as good as Lacoste or Tilden at their best.

Bobby Jones was good enough to finish one-two in six out of seven years, but even the star Georgian was not good enough to win two in a row. Both Jones and Hagen won two British opens in succession, but the United States open is a much harder job, with a far stronger all-round entry list.

In the last few years it has carried a stronger entry list than any golf championship ever played, at any time before or anywhere before, even going back to the old reigns of Vardon, Braid and Taylor.

There were five or six stars then, where today there are 30 or 40 good enough to make any one sprint the entire route. And there are more and more coming along from the thousands of youngsters picking up the right way to swing.

A harmony team, Fain and Dunn, separated for nearly a year, will be reunited again for their radio appearance with Major Edward Bowes' Capitol Family in the weekly broadcast over WSB and the N. B. C. System tonight at 5:35 o'clock.

During the interim of separation, Sammy Fain sang with Frank Bessinger when the team was known as The Radio Franks. They sang many times on Major Bowes' programs.

Artie Dunn is a brother of Henry Dunn of the famous singing duo of Rome and Dunn, and both he and Sammy Fain are noted composers of successful songs. Mr. Fain is responsible for such popular melodies as "Let a Smile Be Your Umbrella," "There's Something About a Rose," "Then You Came Along," "What a Wonderful Wedding That Would Be." Their latest song-hit, "Wedding Bells," written jointly by Sammy Fain and Artie Dunn, will be among the numbers they will sing on the Capitol Family program June 2.

The first of a new series of summer religious programs replacing Dr. Cadman's weekly service, will be broadcast from coast to coast over WSB and the N. B. C. System this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The new summer religious series will be known as "The National Sunday Forum." Dr. Ralph W. Sockman will officiate. Musical features will be provided by Hart Giddings, organist. Oratorial excerpts will be under the direction of George Dilworth.

In addition to weekly sermons by Dr. Sockman, a special feature of the service will be: "Dr. Sockman's Question Box." Members of the radio audience are invited to send their questions to Dr. Sockman and are invited to attend the actual broadcasting in the Cathedral Studio of the National Broadcasting Company building, 711 Fifth avenue, while visiting New York.

"The Right to Be Happy" will be the subject of Dr. Sockman's address to the nationwide radio congregation. Musical features of the National Sunday Forum will consist of excerpts from the oratorios and sacred cantatas.

Program details follow:
Hymn: O, Love Divine
Chorus: Come, Gentle Spring, from "The Seasons"
Chorus: God of Light, from "The Seasons"
Address: "The Right to Be Happy," Dr. Ralph W. Sockman
Anthem: The Heavens Are Telling, from "The Creation"
Trio: On Thee Each Living Soul Awaits, from "The Creation"
Chorus: Achieved is the Glorious Work, from "The Creation"
Questions and Answers: Dr. Ralph W. Sockman
Chorus: Hear My Prayer
Hymn: Saviour, Again to Thy Dear Name We Raise

The Rev. J. Stanley Durkee, D. D., nationally known preacher, educator, author, lecturer and traveler, will conduct "The Friendly Hour," a new religious feature which will be inaugurated over WSB and the N. B. C. system this afternoon at 1 o'clock.

The series will present a friendly talk each week by Dr. Durkee, and semi-religious and folk songs on sacred and philosophical subjects. In his first appearance, the minister will urge his listeners to a realization of the spiritual possessions which constitute noble riches. Those people are blessed, he says, who know themselves to be rich when others may count them poor.

A male quartet under the direction of George Shackley, consisting of John Keating and George O'Brien, tenors; George Miller, baritone, and John Oakley, bass, will assist in the program, complete details for which follow:

Sing Alleluia Forth.....Buck

A request program built around Wendell Hall, the Red-Headed Music Maker, will be the offering of the Majestic Theater of the Air tonight at 7 o'clock over the Columbia system.

For the past two months Mr. Hall has been director of Majestic broadcasting, master of ceremonies of the Majestic Theater of the Air, and has acted in the capacity of general all around "Good man Friday" on the program itself. In the meanwhile, letters have come to him from all over the country begging him not to forget his carefree, happy-go-lucky style of pioneer radio days when he wandered around from station to station all over the world as radio's first troubadour. It is because of this that the Red-Headed Music Maker has decided upon a special program which will enable him to grant all requests possible within the short space of 60 minutes. He will sing—with ukelele, orchestra, wise-crack, tell stories, be master of ceremonies for the Arnold Johnson orchestra; Redferne Hollinshead, Majestic tenor, and Rainger and Carroll, the "Little Show" duo-pianists. With this material Mr. Hall will plan and produce a radio presentation sparkling with showmanship.

On this program, announcement will be made that 4,000 books, song cycles of Wendell Hall's own compositions, will be given away free to listeners who write in. These books, "Six Sentimental Songs," "Red Pepper Rhythms" and "Vagabond Modernistics," are beautifully printed and bound, contain a photo reproduction of Mr. Hall, and each of the latest songs therein has a piano and ukelele arrangement. They will offer an added attraction to all those listening in on the Wendell Hall request program.

The complete program is as follows:

Popular Medley
Arnold Johnson's Orchestra
Down Kentucky Way
Wendell Hall and Orchestra
Fuzzy Wuzzy Bird
Wendell Hall and His Uke
Underneath the Mellow Moon
Wendell Hall and Majestic Quartet
Dese Bones Gwine Rise Again (two voices speciality)

Dimitri Tiomkin, the famous Russian composer and pianist, will be featured in a program of his own compositions positions in the De Forest hour over the Columbia system tonight at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Tiomkin has selected a varied group of his own compositions. He will first play his Mexican Suite in which is included a Mexican Love Song that has provided the basis for a popular number about to be published with lyrics by Newman Levy. Tiomkin's "Suite Romantique" will also be heard, the waltz movement of which has been developed in popular style and is known as "Star of the Evening."

In addition, Tiomkin will play several numbers that he has written as theme songs for motion pictures, and he will include his famous piece, "Scarlet Jazz," an ultra-modern composition in which he has used our modern popular rhythm in developing his conception of the progress of our popular music, that has made an unusually deep impression on this composer since his arrival in America.

The complete program is as follows:
Mexican Suite
a. Tampico Overture
b. Creole Blues
c. Mexican Love Song
Scarlet Jazz
Suite Romantique
a. Waltz Movement
b. Gavotte
c. Scherzo
d. Repetition of "Waltz Movement"
Rhythmic Toes
Only a Moonbeam Dream
Bolero

A famous Russian military march will be the feature of the program that Around the Samovar will present over the Columbia system tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

This march, written for the Breobrajansky regiment, is the second in the series of military marches of the time of Peter the Great. Until about 100 years ago this march was used as a hymn. It has been specially arranged and will be played by Peter Biljo and his Balalaika orchestra, who will also contribute two numbers entitled "Hallandia" and "Sibumka."

In addition, Mlle. Kazanova will play two Russian pieces entitled "Russia, Are You Snow Swept?" and "Chanson Russe." Mme. Nicolina will sing "Flowers" and "So Wonderful Here" and Eli Spivak will sing a Russian song entitled "No, No, I Don't Want" and will be also heard in the rendition of a Russian lullaby.

Industry Will Dine As Nation Listens

Chicago, June 1.—(AP)—When the radio industry gathers at the annual banquet of the Radio Manufacturers' Association here Wednesday evening, June 5, the entertainment features are to go over a nationwide N. B. C. network. The banquet is the concluding event of the annual convention and trade show.

Bremer-Tully Announces New Radio Receiver

Bremer-Tully's new Model 82 radio receiver, in cabinet and a view of the chassis. This improved receiver will sell at a new low price.

New model Bremer-Tully radio receiving sets will be shown in Atlanta around June 10, following the big Radio Manufacturers Association trade show in Chicago this week, C. E. Wilson, factory representative of the Bremer-Tully Manufacturing Company, of Chicago, announced before leaving Atlanta for the trade show, where the first display of the new sets will be made.

Mr. Wilson, who spent last week with Ed and Al Mathews, Bremer-Tully distributors, asserted that the new B-T sets would make a new mark for receiver manufacturers to aim at. "Without question," he said, "the new receivers will make radio history. They are tuned neutrodyne, employing three radio frequency stages—four tuned circuits—using heater type tubes, in push-pull amplification. The characteristics of the new 245 tubes are those of the 250 and amplification of the 210 type."

J. L. Mauldin, Jr., of the Ed and Al Matthews radio department also has left for the trade show in Chicago. He is enthusiastic over the new B-T line.

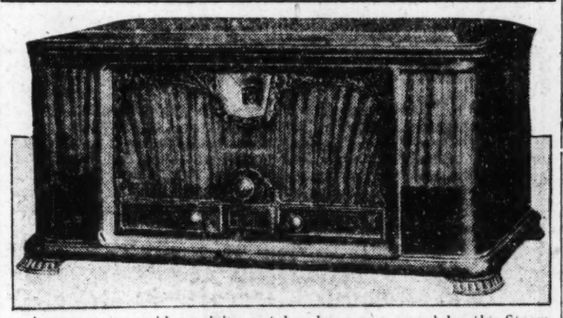

"Dealers should be exceptionally discreet in choosing the lines they will merchandise in the future," Mr. Wilson said.

"They should offer to their buying public apparatus that is manufactured only by old line companies whose reputations as builders of radio receivers are well established. The importance of selecting such lines cannot be stressed too much. It was my pleasure to see advance showings of radio apparatus in Chicago two weeks ago and, to all appearances, there will be a great number of various sets manufactured, but only seven or eight desirable lines.

"By the recent purchase of the controlling stock of the Bremer-Tully Manufacturing Company by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, and the combined merger of these two outstanding engineering laboratories, along with the tremendous manufacturing facilities, places this organization as one of the largest manufacturer of radio receiving equipment in the world.

"The new Bremer-Tully receiver which will be announced to the trade within the next 30 days is acknowledged to be one of the most outstanding sets in the way of performance to be introduced to the trade this year. The price will be exceptionally reasonable and, with the large expansion program which this organization has announced for the coming season, makes it one of the most profitable lines that a dealer could tie in with."

Stromberg-Carlson Offers New Set

A new screen-grid receiving set has been announced by the Stromberg-Carlson Company. This photograph shows the No. 641.

Refinements especially directed to proper reception from the modern high modulation broadcast stations feature the new Stromberg-Carlson walnut table-model receiver No. 641. Three stages of screen grid amplification, "linear" power detection, and the new UX-245 power output tube are the means employed for this end.

Because of the high amplification of the three powerful A.C. screen grid tubes in the radio amplifying stages, it is possible to feed the signal directly into the audio output stage in which is used a new UX-245 power tube, and thus improve the quality of reproduction. This linear power detector prevents much of the distortion that is common on radio signals transmitted by stations employing high modulation. These features of design work together to produce extraordinary sensitivity, improved selectivity, an abundance of volume, and reserve output power for peak demands without distortion.

Provisions is made for using the excellent audio system of this new reciver for reproducing phonograph records with a pickup. A jack is placed in the rear of the chassis where the pickup may be left permanently plugged in. The volume control, which regulates the signal both as it enters the amplifying stages and also controls the amplification of the first two radio tubes, is so arranged that by turning it to the "off" position, the pickup is connected into the circuit and vice-versa. This new No. 641 receiver has but three controls—a single tuning knob, a volume control, and an "On—Off" switch.

Radio Tax Rate Varies.

Paris, June 1.—(AP)—While French radio listeners continue to guess what tax the government ultimately will ask them to pay, they are being reminded by the newspapers of what other continentals pay. The German radio amateur is assessed $8, Italy $4, Czechoslovakia $4, Denmark 4, England $3.50, Switzerland $3 and Sweden $2.50.

Atwater Kent Dedicates New Factory Unit

The new unit of the Atwater Kent radio plant, dedicated in Philadelphia a week ago, is on the right. This building increases the size of the factory by 16 1-2 acres, making a total of 32 acres—the largest radio factory in the world and one of the largest industrial institutions.

EXPECT 31,000 FOR CHICAGO RADIO MEET

Chicago, June 1.—(AP)—Advance registrations for the Radio Manufacturers' Association convention here the week of June 3 indicate that 31,000 dealers, manufacturers and others in the industry will examine the new models, surpassing last year's attendance by nearly 7,000.

At the same time the Federated Radio Trades Association and directors of the National Association of Broadcasters will be in session. The broadcasters are expected to discuss radio legislation.

Manufacturers are guarding details of their exhibits, but it is generally known that the screen grid circuit will be a part of all the leading models.

Major H. H. Frost, of New York, who heads the manufacturers' association, predicts that radio business during the coming season will total $800,000,000. His estimate is based partly upon interest shown in the convention, but mainly upon the sales field yet untouched.

The gathering will close with the broadcast of the annual banquet Wednesday night.

ALASKAN NETWORK IS COSTLY VENTURE

Washington, June 1.—(AP)—There may be big profits in the program broadcasting business, but radio communication is still a precarious financial venture, in the opinion of government engineers.

Owing to the high cost of operation, private commercial enterprises have shied at acquiring the Alaskan communication system maintained by the army, says Major General George Gibbs, chief of the signal corps.

The Alaska system, which comprises a network of army stations linked with the Seward-Seattle cable, operates at an annual loss of about $150,000, taking into account all expenses a private company would incur, he said.

Last year's business, chiefly messages of the salmon canners, aggregated $291,419 commercial revenue and $175,242 government revenue. The latter, however, is furnished free of charge to various departments by the army. He estimates it would cost a commercial company $500,000 more a year to operate the system, an indication of the rates that would be necessary.

WORLD PACT TO CURB RADIO INTERFERENCE

Meeting at The Hague in September To Be Attended by U. S.

The Hague, June 1.—(AP)—Governmental experts and the leading commercial engineers of the United States have begun preparations for the meeting at The Hague in September of the international radio technical committee.

First on the list of questions to be determined is the adoption of a uniform scale of separation to be maintained between wavelengths for transmissions of all kinds. Owing to the interference of radio waves which recognize no national boundaries, this is considered the paramount problem of the conference.

Because technical devices and the assignment of channels are farther advanced in this country, the American delegation is expected to take the lead in formulating a program.

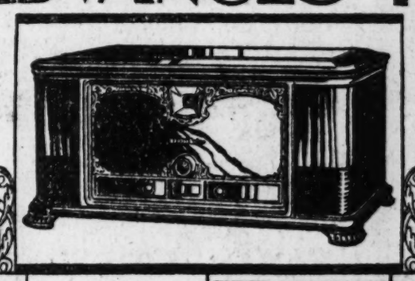

The channel plan, used by the federal radio commission and based on a two-tenths per cent separation which has been adopted by several countries, will be submitted to the conference.

Other questions to be considered are the stability of control for all transmissions, the allocation of short waves for aviation and for police agencies, the allocation of short waves for national services, power limitation for broadcast stations, frequency separation between stations in adjacent bands, and the organization of a permanent international service for frequency measurements.

Rigid regulations to keep stations on their assigned wavelengths will result in a greatly increased use of crystals, the only virtually accurate method of transmitter control, the engineers say. While crystal control is employed extensively by large stations in this country, it is used very little in Europe except for checking purposes.

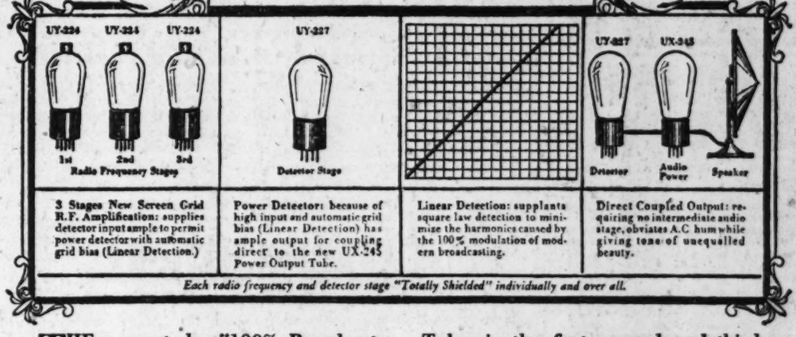

The power of program broadcast stations in the United States is limited to 50,000 watts. Most European countries have no restriction on power but it has been proposed that a limitation of 50,000 watts be adopted.

New Stromberg-Carlson ADVANCES RADIO

Specifications
No. 641 Stromberg-Carlson. Uses 3 UY-224, 1 UY-227, 1 UX-245, and 1 UX-280 Radiotrons. Price, without tubes . . $155

New Features
1. Screen grid radio amplifiers.
2. Linear power detector with automatic grid bias.
3. Detector directly coupled to output stage.
4. New power output tube.

3 Stages New Screen Grid R.F. Amplification: supplies detector input ample to permit power detector with automatic grid bias (Linear Detection.)

Power Detector: because of high input and automatic grid bias (Linear Detection) has ample output for coupling direct to the new UX-245 Power Output Tube.

Linear Detection: supplants square law detection to minimize the harmonics caused by the 100% modulation of modern broadcasting.

Direct Coupled Output: requiring no intermediate audio stage, obviates A.C. hum while giving tone of unequalled beauty.

Each radio frequency and detector stage "Totally Shielded" individually and over all.

THE present day "100% Broadcast Modulation" demands improved detection! Just as the new electrically made phonograph records have greater power due to more vigorous cutting in the groove—so leading broadcast stations are impressing the vibrations of voice and music deeper into their carrier waves.

The new No. 641 Stromberg-Carlson furnishes the improved detection necessitated by "100% Broadcast Modulation." It, therefore, places radio reception on a par with radio transmission. This improved detection is known as Linear Power Detection and is made possible through the enormous amplification gained by using three of the new A. C. Screen Grid Tubes in the first, second and third radio frequency stages. Thus, all the advantages of "100% modulation" are yours.

And to the famous Stromberg-Carlson tone is added greater distance, purer, stronger low notes, and a new degree of positive balance over the whole musical scale.

In addition to making possible linear power detection, with automatic grid bias, which adjusts the detector tube capacity to the strength of the carrier waves—the tremendous amplification of the 3 A. C. Screen Grid Tubes makes an intermediate stage of audio unnecessary. A new output tube—the UX-245—takes the signal direct from the detector.

Ask your nearest Stromberg-Carlson dealer for a demonstration. His address may be learned from his advertisements in your newspapers or in your telephone directory.

SLATON TO ADDRESS MARIST SENIOR CLASS

Former Governor Will Be Heard at Commencement Exercises Wednesday.

Former Governor John M. Slaton will deliver the commencement address at graduation exercises of Marist college, to be held in the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's Club at 8 o'clock Wednesday night.

Introductory remarks and presentation of honors by the Rev. Father P. H. Dagneau, following an overture by the Marist orchestra, will mark the opening of the exercises. Other features on the program will include a declamation on "The Constitution" by Cadet Vincent Cefalu, state oratory contest winner; award of prizes in athletics by Director Joseph W. Bean; presentation of diplomas by the Rev. Father M. A. Cotter, and the valedictorian address by Cadet Major V. Duncan Shepard.

Military exercises of the annual graduation program were held last week, with winners of military honors announced Saturday. Captain John L. Winn was awarded the Metcham trophy in the competition for captain's medal; Company B squad, headed by Corporal Sam McGarry, won the squad drill contest; Sergeant-Major Felix E. de Golian was selected as the school's best-drilled cadet, with Sergeant William Fuller coming second.

REPORTERS GIVEN PUZZLE SOLVING DAVIS OPERATION

Chicago, June 1.—(AP)—The first thing that James J. Davis, secretary of labor, did upon his arrival at the Union station from Washington yesterday was to make a dash for the railroad's emergency hospital. Two hours later he emerged, his face bandaged.

At the hospital reporters were gravely informed that the secretary had been operated upon for "hordeolum zeissianum." The reporters wrote it down in their little books, trying to routine the letters properly but knowing naught of what was meant.

They reached Secretary Davis just as his train was pulling out. He tried to tell them what it was but by that time he was well on his way to Mooseheart to deliver a commencement address, and his words were lost.

The reporters thereupon repaired to a dictionary of medical terms where they found:

"Hordeolum zeissianum—a sty."

Model Laundry Observes 10th Business Anniversary

GEORGE GRIFFIN, JR. C. WHEELER MANGUM.

George Griffin, Jr., and C. Wheeler Mangum, widely-known Atlantans and nationally-known laundry experts and executives, are receiving congratulations of their many business friends on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of the Model Laundry, which they operate at Houston and North Jackson streets.

Mr. Griffin and Mr. Mangum founded this well-known laundry ten years ago and have been continuously in charge of its management ever since. Under their direction, the Model Laundry has made a remarkable record of progress, today ranking as one of the country's most modern and efficient plants of its kind.

The laundry boasts every up-to-date service known to laundry operators, its plant being an attractive and airy building and the machinery being of the latest type in every department.

The two pointed out Saturday that when they founded the Model Laundry their desire was to offer to patrons a service that could not be excelled anywhere. The record of ten years of successful and progressive business proves that their ideals were at all times carried into effect, they further declared.

"On this, our tenth anniversary," they added, "we offer a renewal of the pledge of service as efficient as science and personal interest can make it. This pledge has made us a host of friends, and we have never failed to keep faith with those we serve."

SHEARITH ISRAEL BEGINS ERECTION OF NEW BUILDING

Construction on the main building of the new synagogue for the Shearith Israel congregation will be started immediately, it was announced Saturday by the building committee.

Charles H. Hopson has been chosen as architect for the religious edifice to be erected on the Washington street site. It is estimated the entire structure will cost in the neighborhood of $50,000, when completed. The main building, or large auditorium, on which work is to be started, constitutes the second step in the building program, the first unit containing class rooms having been finished recently. It is expected that the auditorium will be ready for occupancy during the first portion of October in time for the high holidays.

Program Planned For 121st Birthday Of Jefferson Davis

Ceremonies in observance of the 121st birthday anniversary of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, will be held at the state capitol Monday under the joint auspices of the Atlanta chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, and the United Confederate veterans. The program will be presented in the house of representatives hall at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

One of the interesting features of the meeting will be the appearance of Mrs. Martha F. Myatt, of Atlanta, a cousin of Jefferson Davis.

Mrs. D. F. Stevenson, president of the Atlanta chapter, will introduce Mrs. W. E. Beckham, who will preside. Crosses of honor will be awarded to several descendants of Confederate veterans.

COMMENCEMENT BIG SALEM COLLEGE EVENT

Alumni Association Holds Annual Session—Other Affairs Follow.

Winston-Salem, N. C., June 1.—(Special.)—Commencement at Salem college is the big community event in Winston-Salem this week-end. The Alumni Association of the college held its annual session and luncheon at the college this afternoon and this was followed by the president's reception tonight.

Dr. and Mrs. Howard Rondthaler entertained at the president's reception this evening in main hall, following the grand concert in Memorial hall at 8:15 o'clock. The entire senior class of Salem college assisted in the reception.

During the alumnae meeting this afternoon the pleasing announcement, which came as a surprise to everyone, was made to the effect that Mrs. W. N. Reynolds, a member of the association, would have erected on the college campus at once a dormitory building that would provide room for 45 girls. It will be given the title of Louise Bitting Memorial building, in honor of the donor's mother. Sunday morning the baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Dr. Murphy Williams, of Greensboro. On Sunday evening at 7 o'clock the senior class will hold their senior vespers for the last time on the campus. Dr. J. K. Pfohl will be the speaker and there will be special music by the seniors.

Just before the vespers at 5:30 o'clock the seniors and their parents will have supper on the lawn with Dr. and Mrs. Rondthaler.

JUDAEA COUNCIL TO HOLD ORATORY TRYOUTS TODAY

Preliminary try-outs to determine the Atlanta representative who will participate in finals of the National Young Judaea's southern regional contest in oratory will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Jewish Educational Alliance. It will be sponsored by the local Young Judaea council, with Louis Gerson, chairman, in charge of the Atlanta try-outs.

The winner of the southern regional contest will receive a trip to Long Branch, N. J., with expenses paid, to participate in the national oratorical contest.

Who Said the Ocean Was "Troubled"?
The ancient poets started it and modern poets keep it up... but what they mistake for trouble is mere playfulness!... the Atlantic is not troubled, but at peace!... its ruffled surface is simply the restlessness of excessive serenity!... it suffers from a lack of something to do ... its life is all pep and no opportunity!... and its appeal is to those whose lives are all opportunity and no pep!... but it is not "troubled" ... in fact, it is so free from trouble that it is willing and waiting to absorb yours!

Restful—Informal—Economical
WHAT a joyous, carefree vacation you can have this summer at Sea Island Beach—with no demands upon your time except those which you, yourself, impose. There are no tiresome dress formalities with which to comply. No dressing for dinner, unless you prefer. The golfer in knickers and the woman in an inexpensive frock are just as much at home as those in formal attire. Here you will find the friendly, informal hospitality and cordiality you've always wanted, but seldom found at overcrowded Northern resorts. Just the sort of folk with whom you like to mingle. A place where your welcome and your enjoyment are not dependent on the amount of your expenditure, or the limits of your wardrobe. Just the vacation paradise you'd choose—and just overnight by Pullman or a pleasant day's drive by motor from any Georgia city.
There are many delightful things to do—music, dancing, bathing, boating, fishing, golfing, tennis—the whole round of sports if you come to play. And so many ways to do nothing at all if you come to rest—lazing away the dreamy hours on the silvery beach under the cool shade of a big umbrella.
You may rest in the informal atmosphere of the Cloister—charmingly modern hotel—or at one of the comfortable cottages of the colony.
Special, economical, summer rates are now in effect and you may live at the Cloister for as little as $8 a day, single, or $15 a day, double, including meals. The cost will be only a fraction of what you would spend in a Northern resort with fewer attractions and advantages.
Reservations should be made immediately with the Sea Island Company, or you may call our Atlanta Representative for illustrated brochure and full details.

LIVE STOCK

Chicks

BABY CHICKS—Strong, healthy stock. Woodlawn Hatching, 310 Piedmont Ave. WA. 4095.

BLUE RIBBON chicks live and grow. One party reports "lost only two chicks out of 300 at two weeks." Another, "three chicks weighed a pound at less than three weeks." Folks, it takes time to get flocks established that will produce chicks like that. We've been at it for seven years—been introducing new blood wherever needed—blood from the world's greatest breeders. Blue Ribbon flocks are in charge of a man who is qualified. University of Georgia graduate. Practically every flock has been blood tested, not just once, but four or five times. These are your assurance of success. You, too, can succeed with Blue Ribbon chicks. But don't wait. Write at once for low summer prices. It means fried chicks on later when the price is high.

FOUR IN STAMP PLOT GIVE UP TO OFFICERS

"Washed Stamp" Conspiracy Ring Broken Up by Federal Agents.

New York, June 1.—(AP)—Four of seven New York men indicted recently in Charleston, S. C., as members of the so-called "washed stamp conspiracy ring" have surrendered to federal authorities here. Two surrendered yesterday and two today. All were held in $1,000 bail pending hearings on removal proceedings.

H. Chitraro, one of the two who surrendered today, is a stamp collector. He is alleged to have sent used stamps to William B. Hale, of Hubbardstown, Mass., the latter washing out the cancellation marks and returning the stamps to Chioraro for disposal through mail order houses. C. J. Gregory, the other man arrested today, is alleged to have purchased the stamp business previously conducted by Frederick H. Schmidt, who is under indictment in Pawtucket, R. I., for the disposal of stamps stolen from the Pawtucket postoffice. L. A. Beebe and Frank Marquis surrendered yesterday. Three more New Yorkers indicted in Charleston still are being sought here.

Frank E. Shea, Washington, and Walter Johnson, Chicago, postoffice inspectors, who have been checking up on the alleged activities of washed stamp rings, said the ring worked chiefly with precancelled stamps.

The pre-cancelled stamps are issued to holders of permits in line with certain "efficiency" developments in the postoffice service and they have been "used over, sometimes many times," in New York, Cleveland, Los Angeles, Dallas, St. Paul, Boston, San Francisco and Seattle, the inspectors declared. Several Connecticut cities also are on their suspect list.

The used stamps, they said, were purchased by representatives of the "used stamp clearing house," chiefly in Canada, which receives large quantities of parcel post mail from the United States. Their purchases centered in Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal and Quebec, the inspectors disclosed.

BAGGAGE WILL GET INSPECTION BY FRUIT FLY RULE

Orlando, Fla., June 1.—(AP)—As a precaution against the spread of the Mediterranean fruit fly, inspection of all baggage on trains leaving the quarantined area will be instituted Monday, headquarters for the state plant board here announced today.

Under the new order, railroad offices will not be permitted to sell tickets upon which baggage is checked unless the luggage has been properly inspected.

The inspection will be similar to that now enforced on baggage traveling by automobile and bus. If baggage is found free of all host fruits, vegetables and plants, it will be passed and sealed to permit its passage through guard lines, the orders stated.

All inspections will be made by members of the Florida national guard in uniform and acting under the authority of the state plant board.

FATHER OF SIX DIES AS WIFE VANISHES WITH HIS SAVINGS

Omaha, Neb., June 1.—(AP)—George Debs, of Omaha, died last night of what physicians described as shock and "a broken heart."

Last Monday night Debs returned home from a hospital, where he had undergone a major operation, to be informed that his wife had run away with another man, taking his life's savings of $1,600 and leaving six small children at home. He collapsed and was returned to the hospital, where he died.

Madame Walska, McCormick's Wife, Opens Own Theater

Paris, June 1.—(AP)—Madame Ganna Walska, wife of Harold F. McCormick, and some time opera singer, in a blaze of jewelry tonight made her first appearance as an actress in her own theater, Comedie Des Champs Elysees. She played the title role of the Countess Castiglidne and her acting created a diversity of opinion, moments of enthusiastic and spontaneous applause alternated with periods of oppressive silence.

Paris society packed the little theater but began drifting out at the seventh of the nine short acts. Each act brought a dazzling change of costume and the eighth act provided opportunity for display of the famous emeralds.

Some of the audience were said to have paid $1,000 a seat, for the proceeds went to a charity patronized by the Duchess of Vendome. The duchess was represented by Princess Blanche of Orleans and others in the audience were Conductor Stakovsky of the Philadelphia orchestra and his wife; Anita Loos and her husband, John Emerson; the Maharagee of Indore and the Maharanee, the former Nancy Miller, of Seattle.

real estate activities, has rejoined the sales staff of John J. Thompson Company, one of the city's leading concerns.

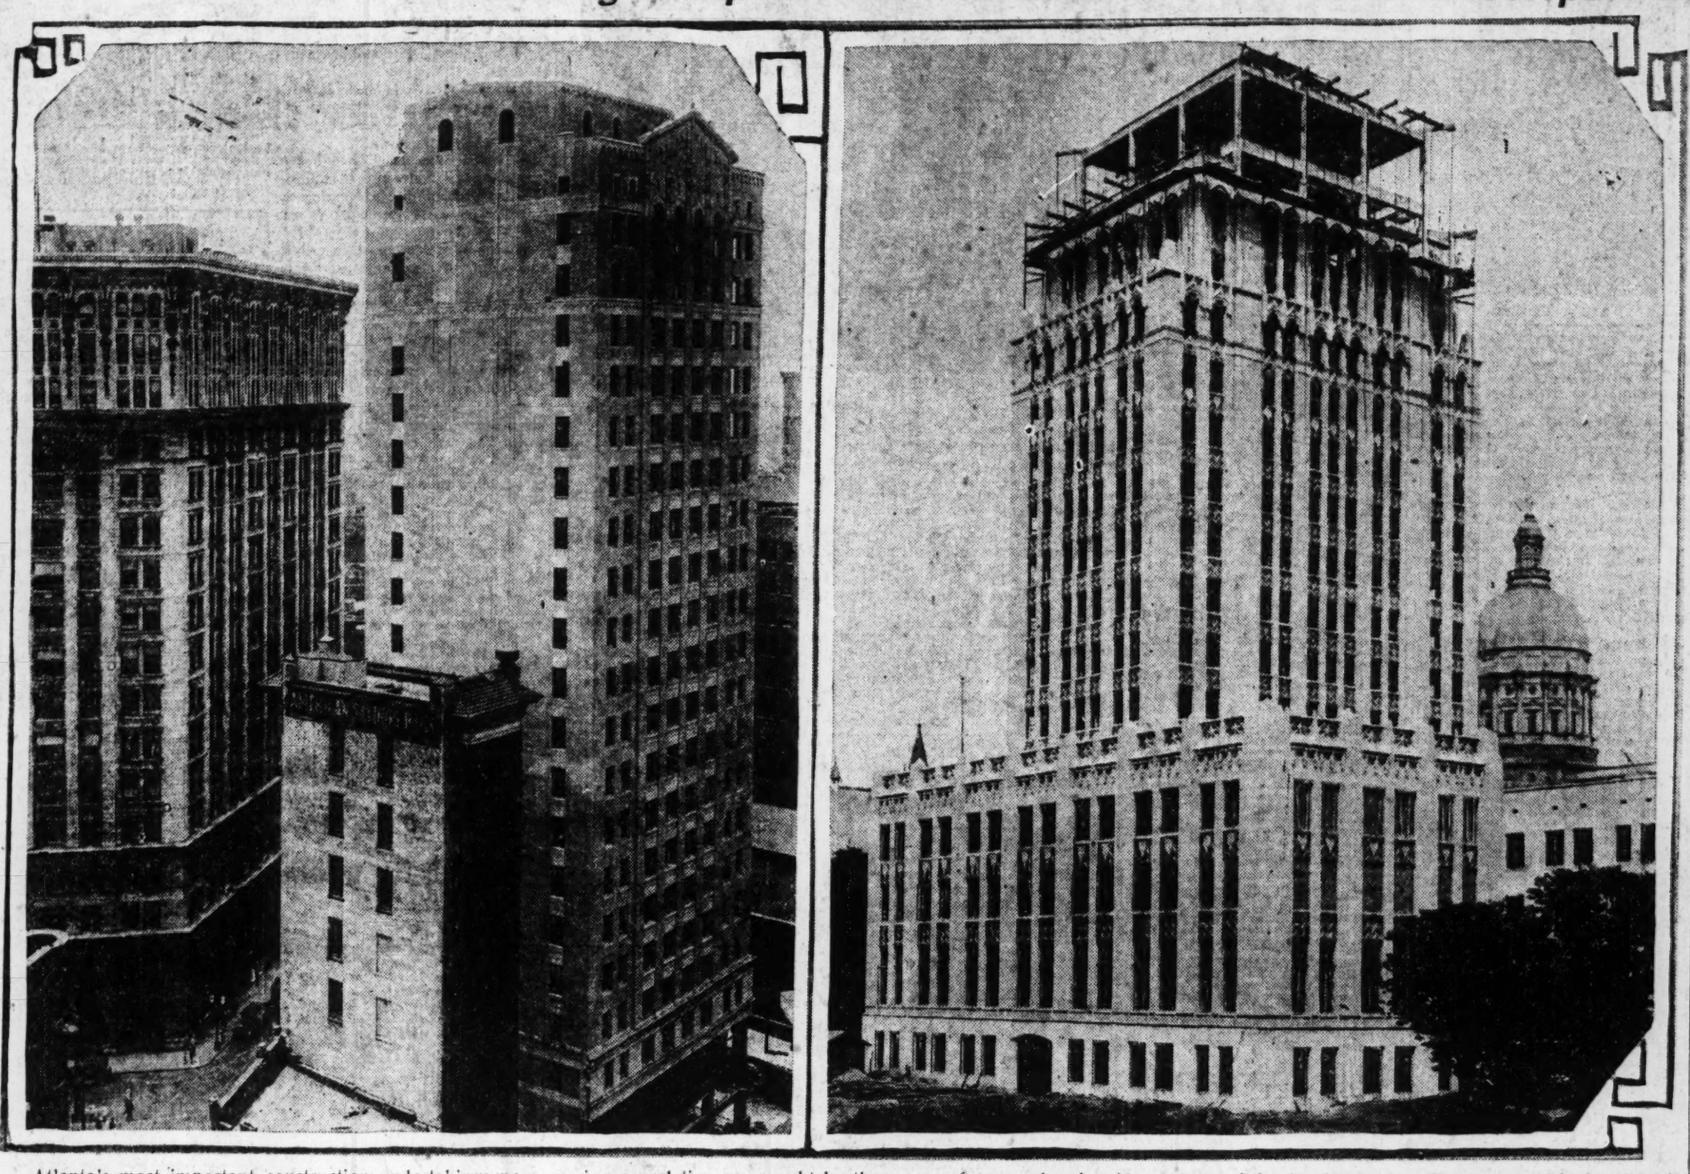

Mr. Thompson is an expert in the handling of home sales. He has experienced four years of real estate negotiations in the Atlanta market and is thoroughly acquainted with the property situation here.

He will devote his time to home sales in his new connection, having specialized in this field during his entire real estate career. He is reported to have started his present activities with the Thompson company at record speed, consummating sale of a number of houses the first few days.

NEW YORK CITY HEAD OF BOARD OF TAXES DIES

New York, June 1.—(AP)—Henry M. Goldfogle, 73, president of the board of taxes and assessments of New York city since 1921, died suddenly at the Hotel Imperial today. He was a member of congress from 1901 to 1915 and again from 1919 to 1921 and was three times a delegate and twice an alternate to the democratic national conventions.

Remarkable Photographs of Largest Construction Undertakings Nearing Completion in Atlanta Show Vastness of Developments

MORRIS STAFF ADDS TWO MORE SALESMEN

Enlargement of the F. P. & Geo. J. Morris organization, with the addition of two salesmen, announced Saturday by George Morris, was seen to indicate the demand for increased facilities resulting from the well-known brokerage concern's steadily-growing business.

The latest additions to the staff are M. W. Cassady and Thomas M. Smith.

According to the announcement by Mr. Morris, Mr. Cassady returns to the organization after wide and varied experience in the real estate field, having engaged in the real estate business in Texas, Arizona and Florida, in addition to his activities in Atlanta, where he was previously connected with the Morris company. Mr. Cassady is now attached to the residential sales department of the main office.

Mr. Smith has been placed in the Buckhead office of the fast-growing brokerage and home building concern. He is a native of Dublin, Ga. Having made a success in the selling of real estate, live stock and in farming in Lawrence county, Mr. Smith became connected with the National Stock Yards upon moving to Atlatna last year, prior to his present affiliation.

For some time past Mr. Smith has been considering entering the real estate field, Mr. Morris stated. After careful consideration he decided to enter it through the Morris organization, where he believes that success is assured. Mr. Smith is a natural trader and looks for a good future in his present undertaking.

Realtors Hold Annual Outing Friday June 7

Real estate negotiations will give way to frolic on Friday, June 7, when members of the Atlanta Real Estate Board declare a holiday for the annual board outing, John J. Thompson, president, announced Saturday.

The day of fun, beginning at 11 o'clock in the morning and lasting until 6 o'clock at night, will be held at Black Rock Country Club. Featuring the event will be a golf tournament, tennis, quoits, fishing, old-fashioned barbecue and chicken dinner and other forms of entertainment.

According to Julien Binford, Jr., chairman of the outing day committee, who will be assisted by G. W. Withers, John O. Chiles, Harry Dews, H. E. Pannell, P. C. Maddox and E. M. Chapman, one of the largest gatherings known in the history of the Atlanta Real Estate Board is predicted to participate in the occasion.

The affair will be stag. Friends and clients of members of the board will be permitted to accompany the members. No business discussions will be allowed to interfere with the spirit of play, Chairman Binford stated.

Candler To Erect Automotive Structure

Architect's drawing of $200,000 automobile industries structure of three stories to be erected by Walter T. Candler at the corner of West Peachtree street and Grant place. Lease of the proposed building aggregating $200,000 in rentals over a term of years has been consummated. Ivey & Cook are the architects.

Plans for erection of a large automotive structure by Walter T. Candler on the corner of West Peachtree and Grant place were disclosed Saturday in announcement of lease on a portion of the proposed building to United Motor Service, Inc. The building will cost $200,000 to construct, while lease of the structure, aggregating $200,000 in rentals over a term of years, has been consummated.

A. M. Kennedy, of B. M. Grant & Company's lease department, negotiated the lease. The building, which was designed by Ivey & Crook, architects, will be constructed by H. J. Carr Company.

Mr. Candler's conviction of Atlanta is believed to be shown by the fact that this is the second recent large building project he has started. The other was the addition to the Walton building, already announced. He expressed strong faith in the future of West Peachtree street.

The West Peachtree building is being erected specially for the automobile industry. It will occupy almost half a block, fronting 158 feet on West Peachtree and 190 on Grant place. It will have an L facing 60 feet on East Pine street and will contain 100,000 square feet.

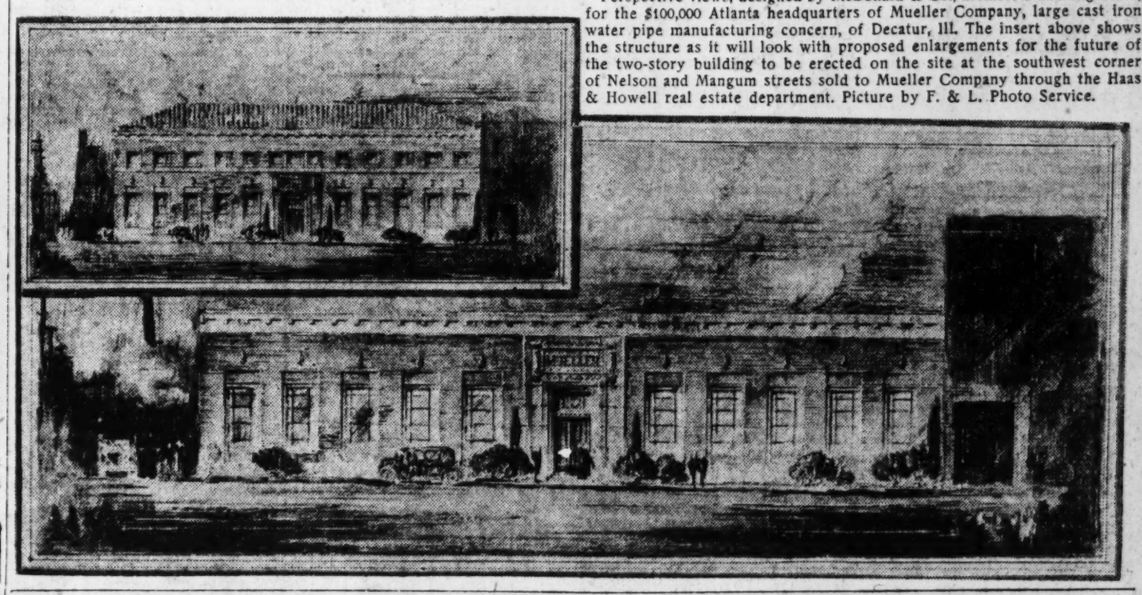

United Motor Service, Inc., will take about half this space, and the rest will be divided between two other tenants. The building will be in the Italian renaissance style with exterior of limestone, terra cotta and face brick. It will be fireproof and sprinkler equipped.

Drive-in entrances on three streets and ramps on each floor will be provided. It will face the Lullwater building and adjoin the Lambeth-Eskridge building which are also properties of Mr. Candler.

United Motors Service is field sales and service representative for the following automobile equipment manufactures: Delco-Remy starting, lighting, ignition; Klaxon horns, Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers, Harrison Radiator Corporation, Jaxon steel products, A. C. Spark Plug Company, New Departure Manufacturing Company.

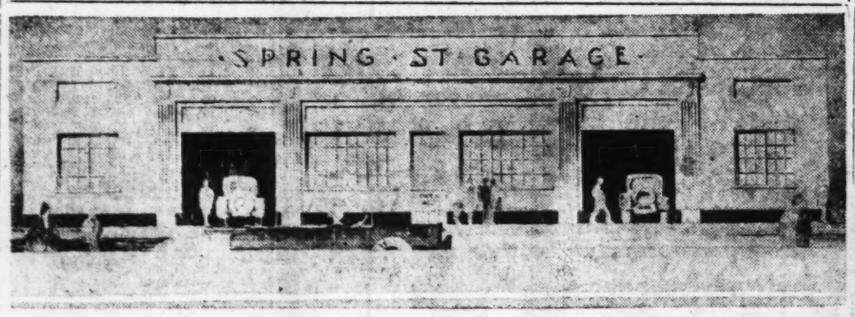

The Atlanta company handles operations for the southeast, with O. J. Coe as manager.

Mueller Co. Buys Site for Plant Through Haas & Howell

Perspective views, designed by McDonald & Co., architects and engineers, for the $100,000 Atlanta headquarters of Mueller Company, large cast iron water pipe manufacturing concern, of Decatur, Ill. The insert above shows the structure as it will look with proposed enlargements for the future of the two-story building to be erected on the site at the southwest corner of Nelson and Mangum streets sold to Mueller Company through the Haas & Howell real estate department. Extensive Remodeling Seen for Garage

Keeping in step with the ever-growing demand for automobile storage garages in the new theater and shopping district, Hugh Richardson, Jr., announces the complete alteration and remodeling of the Spring Street Garage, between Harris and Cain streets. Cooper & Cooper, architects, have rendered effective treatment of the exterior through the application of the latest modern details. A new lease on the building has been made to F. M. Rogers, who has been operating the garage for several years.

LOSS IN BUILDING CONTRACTS SHOWN IN DODGE REPORT

During the past month there was $4,530,300 worth of new building and engineering work contracted for in the state of Georgia, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. Included in the above figure was $1,557,300 for contracts let in Atlanta.

The state's record was 36 per cent less than the preceding month's total and it was 22 per cent under the total for the corresponding month of 1928. The city's total was 20 per cent less than the March, 1929, total and it was 55 per cent below the total for April of last year.

Analysis of Georgia's construction record showed the following important items: $3,068,500, or 68 per cent of the total, for residential buildings; $537,200, or 12 per cent, for commercial buildings, and $343,000, or 8 per cent, for industrial projects.

Included in Atlanta's total for last month were: $1,146,100, or 73 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $256,200, or 16 per cent, for commercial buildings, and $70,500, or 4 per cent, for industrial projects.

New construction started in Georgia since the first of this year has reached a total of $17,460,400, which was a loss of 14 per cent from the amount started during the corresponding period of last year. Atlanta's total for the four months of this year amounted to $6,816,900, being a loss of 37 per cent from the total for the first four months of last year.

ATLANTA BOARD NAMES MEMBERS NEWLY ELECTED

Real estate brokerages and property owners elecetde to membership in the Atlanta Real Estate Board at a meeting of the officers and directors last week, were announced Saturday by President John J. Thompson.

The newly-formed firm of Walthall & Chapman was elected to active membership, while the following affiliated members were approved: A. L. Belle Isle, Clyde L. King, Dr. Thomas P. Hinman, J. K. Orr, Sr., Henry A. Inman, John A. Hynds, John P. Stewart, Dr. Dunbar Roy, H. M. Atkinson and H. R. Wagar.

Sees Windowless Buildings Cooled, Lighted Artificially Having Airplane Facilities

C. F. PALMER.

Skyscraper of Future Would Have Double-Deck Elevators and High-Speed Escalators—Eliminate Window Space.

By Charles F. Palmer,
Palmer Properties, Atlanta.

(Mr. Palmer, vice president of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers, expressed these advanced views on skyscraper development recently at Cincinnati, Ohio, before executives representing $30,000,000 in office buildings.)

In our American life we have come to regard the building, or the skyscraper, as a great influence in our economic development, and this feeling is shared by the older civilizations of Europe as well.

A member of the American Institute of Athletics, while inspecting the magnificent edifices of London, turned to his companion, a fellow of the royal academy, and said: "What do you consider has been the greatest influence in the development of architecture?" He confidently expected the name of Sir Christopher Wren to be mentioned immediately. Instead, the reply came, "The architects of America. They developed the skyscraper." Elbert C. Bossom, another fellow at the Royal Institute of Architects, recently said: "If the United States ended tomorrow, the skyscraper would probably be looked upon as that country's greatest contribution to the world's development."

Obsolescence Rapid.

No longer do we find that structure which was conceived in the mind of a real estate broker to sell the land for a commission, by the architect to design the building for a commission, by the contractor to build the building for a commission, by the loan agent to finance the building for a commission, byt the renting agent to rent the building for a commission, because such structures have universally come to grief.

The owner should know in his own mind how long his building will last. He realizes that structurally it will have an indefinite life. However, not many owners realize how rapidly obsolescence sets in.

It is not imaginary to picture the business structure of the future as one without windows, because artificial light is becoming more and more efficient each day; as one which is artificially cooled, as well as one which is artificially heated, just as the temperatures of our large theaters are controlled today.

Not a Dream.

Double-deck elevators, stopping at two floors simultaneously, thus doubling the capacity for a single shaft, are being given careful thought, while high-speed escalators, to furnish expeditious floor-to-floor transportation, are coming into vogue. A dirigible recently discharged passengers on the top of a Washington office building. How soon we will have to furnish landing fields in addition to garage facilities is only a matter of conjecture.

Possibly the office building of tomorrow will be entirely soundproof. My own office is equipped with acoustical felt which absorbs about 80 per cent of the irritating and distracting noises originating from the heavy traffic of the street below. You may say to yourself that the office building without windows, artificially lighted and cooled, noiseproof and with a landing field for airplanes is a dream, but I sincerely believe that most of us will live to see many of these improvements.

PERUVIAN FLIERS EXPECT TO LEAVE AT DAWN SUNDAY

New Orleans, June 1.—(AP)—Captain Carlos Pinilos and Lieutenant Carlos Zegarra, Peruvian good will fliers, en route from Washington to Lima, expect to take off at dawn tomorrow on a non-stop flight to Mexico City.

The aviators today removed their plane from Menefee airport to Callender field in order that they may take off with a heavier load of fuel. The runway is longer at Callender field.

Book Reviews in Tabloid

Poor Women! By Nora Hoult. The following from the publishers explains the high esteem in which the book is held:

"The publishers feel some hesitancy in commenting on a book that has already had the enthusiastic support of Galsworthy, Bennett, Tomlinson, Brett Young, Priestley and others."

But it is a book that will attract wide attention, also discussion and there is already much interest over its theme. The publishers are offering a prize for the best commentary on the question of women's position in this very modern world.

While the book is beautifully written, it is simply a series of stories based on the problem of women's lives.

The author's subject is something like an old harp whose strings have been played upon for years and yet they go on playing. It is the story of a woman's place and her security—emotional, mental or even material. There is no personal prejudice or appeal for sympathy in the work of the author, she simply states the case in such a realistic way that you wonder as to her motive in writing it.

Nora Holt is a new writer, but a good story teller. The men and women of her creation draw us to them and immediately we become interested in their adventures. She may be English, or she may be American, but this is true of her life—she loves humanity. (Harper and Brothers. New York. $2.50.)

NORA HOULT.

NEW FICTION RECEIVED.

The Devil and the Deep Blue Sea. By Elizabeth Jordan. The author wrote "Black Butterflies" and "Miss Nobody from Nowhere." This is an interesting story from the time you meet the heirs of a certain estate who have gathered to hear the reading of the will. Imagine their surprise upon learning the dear aunt has put them on probation for six months during which time they are to live together in her home under the careful and watchful eye of her lawyer.

Before the end of the six months the author has made a first-class mystery out of the plot as well as an interesting story.

Henry James met the author of this story when he was in America the last time. He called her a delightful woman. He was very much impressed by her sense of humor. The question is often asked about the career of this popular writer—it is as follows:

For three years assistant to Arthur Brisbane, then editor of the New York World; editor of the comic supplement and of the editorial forum at one and the same time!—editor of Harper's Bazar; author of nine or ten highly popular novels and many short stories; patron saint and "discoverer" of many literary celebrities such as Sinclair Lewis, Dorothy Canfield, etc.—no one except Elizabeth Jordan herself would dare to call this career a "joke." Hale and hearty, she spends her winters in her New York apartment on Gramercy Park and her summers in the Hampshire hills of Massachusetts. (The Century Co. New York.)

Short Stories for College Classes. Edited by Blanche Colton Williams. The collection contains stories by Samuel Hopkins Adams, Zona Gale, Joseph Conrad, O. Henry, Henry James, Booth Tarkington, H. G. Wells and others. The introduction is by Dr. Williams. Appleton's Book.

The Spite Fence. By Emma Speed Sampson, author of "Miss Minerva" books. Reilly & Lee, publishers. This interesting story by a well-known and popular writer has ol' Virginia for its setting. It is woven around dear little Peggy, twice orphaned at 17, but this pretty little heroine was blessed with the greatest of all blessings—Youth—also plenty of pluck and perserverance. There are all kinds and classes of folks in which Peggy finds herself the central figure—even though it includes the inevitable Mrs. Jenkins and the autocratic Dabney Howard, the latter having built the spite fence. It is a story filled with laughter and tears—tears and laughter—and the blessings are that the story ends in laughter:

"The world is a comedy to those who think;
A tragedy to those who feel."

A STORY OF THE TEXAS RANGERS.

Santons. By W. D. Hoffman, whose books continue to bring a breath from the great west—the Texas country where once upon a time he was one of the rangers. "Since the days when Davy Crockett's name was a household word, when every Texas Ranger was taught to always "get his man" there have been many thrilling and dramatic episodes. In this new novel by an old and popular author there are many exciting thrills, plenty of action—and there is Romance—even in the Old West. (A. C. McClurg & Co.)

The Golden Altar. The Conflict of a Great Love and The Dream of a Nation's Power. By Joan Sutherland, author of "Onslaught," "Challenge," etc.

The author introduces at the top of Chapter 1 the following lines from Mussolini: "The affairs of the state must be governed, not by those who will seek to flatter the selfish hopes of the individual, but by those who have the highest faith in the state and will lead it to its highest expression of strength."

The story is laid in Paris. It is a stirring story. It is a conflict between the girl he loved and the country he also loved. The story is filled with struggles, dangers and thrilling adventures as well as sacrifices in this time of post-war and anti-bolshevik adjustments.

The author is an Englishwoman, having married the year of the great war she went to France with her husband, she went through the first Sinn Fein trouble in Dublin. During her student days she lived in Paris, in the Latin Quarter atmosphere, and since which time she has traveled all over the world. (Harper and Brothers. New York.)

This Poor Player. By Shirley Watkins. The central figure is Alexander Birney, the author having made him a magnificent creature—a study of character—It is the story of a man around whom many people gather, among them being Robert Geyer who through all his ups and downs remains his friend, Charlotte who loves him. Eliza married to him, but not loving him, and Seixas the one man who understood the best that was in him. There is plenty of reality in this story to hold the interest of the reader. (Macrae-Smith Co. New York.)

Fine Fellows: By Laurie York Erskine. A story of brave men. Heroes. Every man a winner of the glorious ribbons of the Victoria Cross. (D. Appleton and Co., New York).

American Harvest. By Nora Stevenson. Mrs. Lewis of Trader Horn fame, says "it is a most perfect study of a Boer household. The whole book is tenderly faithful to our beloved South Africa and to our Dutch countrymen. It is a fine blending of nature with human nature." (Ives Washburn, Inc., New York.)

Philosophy of The Dusk. By Kain O'Dare, with illustrations by the author and introduction by Guy Pearce Jones. This book will appeal to different people in different moods. "It is called something new in the world of literature. It opens the gates of the real criminal world." (The Century Co., New York.)

The Orange Court. By Lily Anne Coppard, who is the wife of A. E. Coppard, authoress. It is a delightful story full of the charm of the Italian coast. Benvenite! This is the cry that greets Pauline Branch when she arrives at a small seaport on the Riviera. This is a study of the modern girl. It is an original and pleasing story. (Ives Washburn, Inc., New York.)

JULIA PETERKIN HAS WON PULITZER PRIZE.

Julia Peterkin's "Scarlet Sister Mary" has won the Pulitzer prize for the best novel of 1928. It is also the first time a southern fiction writer has won this wished-for prize in the field of fiction. A few years ago Mr. and Mrs. Julian Harris, associate editors of the Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer-Sun were the fortunate winners in the field of journalism.

Mrs. Peterkin is a southern woman born in South Carolina. Since her marriage some 25 years ago she and her husband, William G. Peterkin live on Lang Syne Plantation, near Fort Motte, S. C. This story, as well as "Black April," are woven around the tenants on her plantation all being different in speech from that of other negroes living in other parts of the U. S. A. Mrs. Peterkin is mistress of the "Big House." She does not have to leave the plantation for material for a story, for here can be found superstitutions, loves, hates and tragedies, and it is here she also finds herself, teacher, preacher, doctor, judge and jury. It is in such work as this that the author decided to write real stories around "Black April" and "Sister Mary" who really exist on Blue Brook Plantation" this being the name the author gives in her books.

The south feels a real pride in the awarding of the Pulitzer prize to a southern fiction author, the location of whose true story was found in characters of the South Carolina swamps, living on her southern plantation. The book is published by Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.

Prize Award to "Abbe Pierre's People."

Announcement of an award to Jay William Hudson for his novel, "Abbe Pierre's People," as the best novel written in 1928, has just been made by the Catholic Press Association.

$2,500 History Prize Winner.

"Life and Labor in the Old South." by Ulrich B. Phillips, was published on May 11 by Little, Brown & Co. This is the book for which Dr. Phillips was awarded the $2,500 prize offered by the Boston firm for the best unpublished work on American history. The author, a native of Georgia, is now professor of American history at the University of Michigan.

From Dusk Till Dawn.

William Garrett, whose new mystery story, "From Dusk Till Dawn" (Appleton), has just appeared, is a Scottish barrister who takes his recreation in writing popular mystery stories. Mr. Garrett lives in Edinburgh on the same street just a few doors from where lived another writer who was also a lawyer—Robert Louis Stevenson.

"This is a Stevensonian adventure novel well worth your time. A well-written and very enjoyable novel," the Columbus (Ohio) Dispatch has said of Robert McBlair's "Black Gold."

Dr. James J. Walsh, noted Catholic layman and author of "Cures," "Laughter and Health" and other books, was tendered a dinner in New York recently by the Catholic Writers Guild, at which over 1,000 people were present. Dr. Walsh was praised by Cardinal Hayes as an American, a scholar, a teacher and a Catholic knight.

London Tea-Dance.

Muriel Hine, the English novelist, author of the recently published "The Ladder of Folly," was hostess the other day in London at a large tea-dance, at which some 600 guests were present, including leaders in both the social and artistic worlds.

Gen. Summerall, Chief of Staff, Guest at Dinner

General Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the United States army, and former commander of the famous First Division of the American Expeditionary Forces in the World War, was the guest Saturday night at a dinner given in his honor at the Atlanta Athletic Club by former members of the First Division in Atlanta and surrounding territory.

General Richmond P. Davis, commander of the Fourth Corps Area, Fort McPherson, also was a guest at the dinner, during which plans for the organization of an Atlanta chapter of the First Division Society were discussed. General Summerall is president of the national society.

The chief of the staff this morning will confer with officers attached to the Fourth Corps Area. He will not be tendered a reception at the Fort as was previously announced, as he is scheduled to leave tonight for Tampa, Fla., where he will inspect Forts Dade and DeSoto, and renew military contact with other activities in that locality.

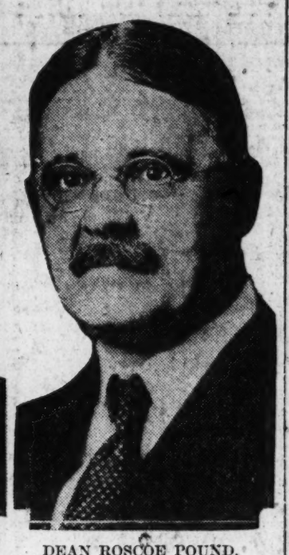

While in Atlanta General Summerall is visiting his sister, Mrs. J. B. Gardner, and a brother, Dr. W. B. Summerall.

He arrived in Atlanta late Saturday afternoon from a two-day inspection of Fort Benning, where he reviewed the Infantry school and annual officers' maneuvers.

On Tuesday at 10:00 a. m., the one hundred and ninety-five graduates will receive degrees and 32 certificates in nursing will be awarded graduates of the Nurses Training school. Dean Roscoe Pound, of the Harvard university law school, prominent legal authority and writer, will deliver the baccalaureate address.

Miss Louise Bower Wins Four-Year Brenau Scholarship

Bainbridge, Ga., June 1.—(Special) Miss Louise Bower, daughter of Rowland Bower, Decatur county school superintendent, Bainbridge, was one of the 12 high school girl graduates awarded a $1,000 scholarship, covering the regular four-year academic course to Brenau college at Gainesville. Announcement of the award was made following a competitive elimination in which over 100 high school seniors competed.

MISS LOUISE BOWER.

Miss Bower is a granddaughter of the late Judge B. B. Bower, of the Albany circuit superior court, and Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis, of Eufala, Ala., and a niece of Miss Evergeline Bower and Mrs. M. M. Cutter, of Bainbridge.

PRESBYTERIANS CUT FEDERAL COUNCIL SUM

Pittsburgh, June 1.—(AP)—The general assembly of the United Presbyterian church today rejected a proposal that it sever its relations with the federal council of churches. The assembly was urged to withdraw from the council in a memorial presented by the Argyle presbytery.

While voting down the proposal to withdraw from the council, the assembly decided to cut in half its yearly financial contributions to it, making the amount $750.

The Argyle memorial charged the council had exceeded its chartered authority in matters of doctrine and had accepted contributions from "improper" sources. It also averred that council members had preached over the radio a brand of "pacificism to which United Presbyterians do not subscribe."

Dr. E. S. McKittrick, Pasadena, Cal., in supporting the memorial said: "United Presbyterians are not pacificists. War is very often justified."

An attack upon Dr. S. Parkes Cadman and Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, prominent members of the council, was made by Dr. W. M. Nichols, of Brooklyn. He said the admitted modernism of Dr. Cadman and Dr. Fosdick "seems to represent the spirit of the federal council of churches. We had better have no Protestantism at all than that brand."

3,000 IRON WORKERS STRIKE FOR WAGE RAISE OF DOLLAR

Chicago, June 1.—(AP)—More than 3,000 iron workers went on strike today for a dollar a day wage increase.

As a result, all building projects in which the iron framework has not been completed were delayed.

The strike of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers union, with a membership of 2,200, was called last night, and today the ornamental and architectural iron workers walked out in a sympathetic strike. The latter organization has a membership of 900 and a wage scale of $12 a day, the same as the structural workers. The unions demanded $13, a concession on their part from a $14 day first asked the employers countered with an offer of $12.50.

Work on various buildings, to cost well over $100,000,000, was not seriously hampered today, E. N. Craig, executive secretary of the Building Construction Employers' Association, said. He estimated, however, that 30,000 other craftsmen would be thrown out of employment and all work on most of the projects halted if the iron workers remained out a week.

QUARANTINE TO STOP FLY MAY BE EXTENDED

Washington, June 1.—(AP)—The department of agriculture today placed itself in a position to extend the quarantine against the Mediterranean fruit fly now enforced in Florida to cover any state where infestation may be found, by holding a public hearing on the subject as required by the quarantine law.

Dr. C. L. Marlatt, director of the plant quarantine and control administration, said that the hearing was also intended to provide for the better enforcement of restriction now on movement of fruits and vegetables originating in Florida, the particular object at this time being to prevent any reshipment of such fruits from areas of destination specified in the quarantine.

Dr. Marlatt explained that under the quarantine fruits from Florida are allowed to move in interstate shipment in states north of the Potomac river but are not allowed in the so-called cotton belt. He said that the fruit had been finding its way back into the cotton belt with consequent danger of infestation.

GRIFFIN RETAIL FOOD DEALERS WIN SILVER CUP

Griffin, Ga., June 1.—(Special)—The Griffin retail food dealers' delegation to the eighth annual convention in Macon this week returned home with the handsome silver cup awarded to the association for winning the percentage contest.

The Griffin president, Paul H. Walker, made an address at the convention in which he reviewed the activities of the local association during the past year, telling of many splendid achievements.

TEXAS STREAMS BEGIN RETURN TO COURSES

Floods Recede But Leave Wide Path of Loss and Destruction.

Houston, Texas, June 1.—(AP)—While the waters of Houston's most disastrous flood in the last quarter of a century continued to recede tonight, crests of about a half dozen streams in south Texas moved gulfward inundating additional thousands of acres.

Buffalo bayou was fast draining off the watershed above Houston and was expected to be back within its banks here before dawn.

As water rolled back from homes, business houses, streets and bridges, Houston residents began counting the losses which were estimated to run into the millions.

Danger in case of fire here persisted tonight. Water pressure was increasing but it was still far below normal and it was expected to be several days before the inundated central pumping plant could be started again.

Most of the transportation facilities, paralyzed by the raging waters, were back in use, and traffic was moving over many of the bridges which had been covered with water.

Traffic in the ship channel was at a standstill as the swirling waters reached that point. No ship had gone up the waterway since yesterday. Great sections of the east bank of the channel were sloughing off.

With Beaumont isolated, the swollen Neches river threatened to break all previous high marks near that city. Precautions against the caving in of the eastern ramp at the Neches river bridge there were being taken with 30,000 sandbags ready as reinforcements.

The Brazos, Neches, Sabine and Trinity rivers were not expected to reach their crests in the counties along the coast until Monday or Tuesday.

Three state prison farm properties near Huntsville were flooded.

Mrs. W. C. Clark, Of Covington, Passes at Home

Covington, Ga., June 1.—(Special.)—Mrs. W. C. Clark, prominent woman of Covington, died at her home on Floyd street this morning, after an illness of several months.

She is survived by her husband, one son, Major Walton Clark, and one brother, Charles Echols, of Covington.

Mrs. Clark was one of Covington's most public spirited women. She was president of the W. C. T. U., a charter member of the Woman's Club, D. A. R. and U. D. C., having held offices in these organizations at different times. She was teacher of the Claude Thompson Wesley class of the First Methodist church and was a devoted church worker. She also was a trustee of the A. and M. college, of Monroe.

Funeral services will be held at the First Methodist church, Covington, at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, conducted by Bishop Warren A. Candler and Rev. W. T. Irvine, pastor. Interment in West View cemetery, Covington.

Card of Thanks

Mr. J. H. Griffith and children thank their many friends for their beautiful expressions of sympathy in the death of our wife and mother.

Miss Freeman To Wed Dr. Curtis At College Park Church June 28

Miss Mary Emmie Freeman, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Freeman, of College Park, whose engagement is announced today to Dr. Walker Lewis Curtis, the marriage to be an event of social brilliance taking place Friday, June 28, at the First Baptist church in College Park.

The most cordial interest of a host of friends throughout the state centers in the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Freeman of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Emmie Freeman, to Dr. Walker Lewis Curtis, the marriage to be solemnized June 28, at the First Baptist church, College Park.

Possessed of dainty beauty and unusual sweetness and charm of manner, the bride-elect, in both her college and social life, has been the center of a large circle of admiring friends. She is a graduate of Agnes Scott college, where she was an outstanding member of the Blackfriars Dramatic Club. She took leading roles in many of the dramatic productions of the college, and was a winning representative in the national Little theater tournament held at Northwestern university, Chicago. After finishing from Agnes Scott Miss Freeman was graduated from the Curry School of Expression, Boston. While in Boston she played at the Barn theater in the Plugge-Gunnison revival of Sheridan's "The Rivals."

Through her mother, formerly Miss Emmie Castellow, Miss Freeman is descended from Spanish nobility, the Castellows, of Madrid. She receives a literary heritage from her father, a graduate of Emory university and the University of Chicago, and one of the best known educators of the state. She is an only daughter, and is the sister of L. O. Freeman, Jr., of Richmond, head of the engineering department of the insurance rating bureau of Virginia.

Dr. Curtis is the youngest son of Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Curtis. He is a graduate of Emory university where he was a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity and of the Phi Chi medical fraternity. Through his mother, the former Miss Willie Fullerton, he is descended from families long prominent in both the civic and political development of this section of the state. His father has for many years been an outstanding figure in medical circles, being an honor graduate in 1887 of the Atlanta Medical school, and prior to the establishment of Grady hospital he was head of the city hospital of Atlanta.

Miss Janelle Harrell and Mr. Carrier Wed in Jacksonville Saturday, June 8

Of interest to a wide circle of friends is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Charles Harrell, of the engagement of their daughter, Janelle, to William Bruce Carrier, Jr. The wedding, which will be an important event at high noon Saturday, June 8, will take place at the Church of the Good Shepherd. The Rev. C. A. Ashley, rector of the church, will perform the ceremony. The bride will be given in marriage by her father, and will have as her only attendant Miss Ella Mae White, maid of honor. William F. Rice, of Atlanta, will attend Mr. Carrier as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride's parents will entertain at an informal wedding breakfast at their home, honoring the bride and bridegroom. Mr. Carrier and his bride will leave for an extended wedding trip, and on their return will make their home in Greensboro, N. C.

Miss Harrell, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Charles Harrell, has always lived in Jacksonville. She was graduated from Duval High school and completed her education at the Florida State Women's college, Tallahassee, where she was a member of the Alpha Delta Pi sorority. She is attractive, and will be honored at a series of parties prior to her marriage.

Mr. Carrier is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bruce Carrier, of Athens, Ga. After attending the University of Georgia at Athens he moved to Jacksonville, where he has been manager of Sears-Roebuck Company.

West End Club Women Plan Party

West End Woman's Club will honor the ladies who are attending the convention of the chiefs of police at an informal reception at the clubhouse Wednesday afternoon, June 5, from 4 till 5 o'clock. All members of the club are requested to be present to meet the visitors and extend to them our southern hospitality. Mrs. L. M. Ahern, president, with her reception committee will form the receiving line. Prominent visitors from various points of the United States and foreign countries will be among the guests.

Mrs. L. M. Ahern, Mrs. J. Legion, Mrs. Chester W. Johnson and Mrs. C. M. Settle attended the luncheon of the City Federation of Women's Clubs at the Atlanta Athletic Club on Friday, May 31. The lovely club grounds are being further beautified by the efforts of the ground committee. Mrs. L. M. Ahern, Mrs. W. N. Ponder, Mrs. E. F. DeFrees and Mrs. W. B. Crawford have planted many summer flowers. The child welfare committee with Mrs. Lloyd Haynes, chairman, met at the Atlanta Child Home Thursday, May 30.

Lovely Belle Will Wed in July

Miss Olive Hall, attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maxcy Reddick Hall, whose engagement, announced today to Laurence Moss Shadgett, is of wide social interest to a host of friends throughout the state. Their marriage will be an event of social importance taking place early in July.

Miss Mildred Parker Will Direct Camp Fire Girl Water Sports

Miss Mildred Parker, of Morehead City, N. C., will direct the water sports at the Camp Fire Girls' camp in Toccoa, Ga., opening June 17. She has been examiner in life-saving for four years, having held the position of swimming counselor in Sea Pines Camp for Girls, Brewster, Mass., and Lake Lure camp, North Carolina. Being very proficient in both canoeing and rowing, she has passed naval examinations and holds many emblems won in races. Besides conducting water pageants and sports Miss Parker also has assisted in direction of physical education and has many championship trophies won in tournament. At present she is holding the position of instructor of mathematics and physical education in the city high school in Moorehead, N. C. Miss Wynelle Groover, Red Cross life-saving examiner, will act in the capacity of life guard, assisting Miss Parker. During the first two days of camp, June 17 and 18, a contest will be held at which time girls will be selected to assist Miss Parker. Many girls have registered for this contest, present indications pointing to a most interesting time.

Mrs. Tom Brooke, president of the board of directors of the Camp Fire Girls, Atlanta district, has recently returned from a trip to New York, where she attended a meeting of the national executive board, of which she is a member. Mrs. Brooke, a member of the national field committee, reported splendid plans under way to extend field work in the southeast. It needs only the support of outstanding people in the southeast to consummate the plans of the committee.

Miss McKoy Weds James H. Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. T. P. McKoy announce the marriage of their daughter, Nancy Frances, to James Henry Butler, of Thomasville, the ceremony having taken place April 5. Mr. and Mrs. Butler are making their home with the parents of the bride at 37 South Prado.

Atlanta Girl Scouts Plan Entertainment For Civitan International Convention

Civitania, the Atlanta Girl Scout camp, will witness the closing session of the Civitan international convention which meets in Atlanta June 10, 11 and 12. Civitans, five hundred strong, will motor to camp on Wednesday afternoon following the sightseeing trip about the city. There 100 Girl Scouts in camp uniforms of blue and yellow will be in groups along the camp trails to guide the visiting delegates with their Atlanta hosts to the interesting spots of the camp, of which Civitania has many to boast. Fox's Den, a small cavern near a bubbling spring, is a favorite spot for cooking supper on flat rocks and spreading blankets for star study. Every scout is eager to tell camp visitors of the haunted house, a log cabin chucked and daubed with mud that dates back to 1789. Here an old spinning wheel, loom and crude furnishings bear marks of its habitation. A large rock hearth has been torn up and replaced many times in search of a bag of money thought to be hidden there. A small swift stream winds through the woodlands and here and there in its quick descent over the rocks forms natural shower baths for campers.

Overlooking one of the falls is Robin Hood lodge in the midst of Sherwood forest; here the oldest group of scouts camp each year as a band of merry men in green yeoman costume with bows and arrows and quivers across their backs. Each of the seven huts built on either side of the stream has its interesting lore. The nature museum on a well-beaten trail to the swimming pool is a rustic shelter, a workshop with benches and tables for study of specimens brought in from the woods.

The craft house is built on the hill overlooking the pool. The new swimming pool, now near completion, built jointly by the Girl Scouts and Atlanta Civitan Club, will be dedicated at this closing session of the convention. It is the natural excavation found when the site was purchased, but reshaped, bordered by a cement storm canal and protected by two cement dams. Clark Harrison, Civitan, and 12 Girl Scout Red Cross life savers will dedicate the pool Wednesday afternoon, June 12, at 4:30 o'clock.

The program will be as follows: Evening colors, Mrs. Frank D. Holland, commissioner; Mrs. William Talley, director; dedication of swimming pool, Girl Scouts and Civitans; inspection of camp grounds, barbecue, Atlanta Civitans, hosts and adjournment of convention.

Mu Phi Epsilon Holds Last Meeting.

Mu Omega chapter of the Mu Phi Epsilon honorary sorority, located at the Atlanta Conservatory of Music, held the final meeting of the year in the chapter hall Saturday afternoon. The retiring president, Miss Eugenie Dozier, who has served for two consecutive years, presiding. Tea was served at the conclusion of the installation of officers.

The scroll displays the following listing of officers for 1929-1930: Miss Mary Brown, president; Miss Martha Hamilton, vice president; Mrs. Louisa Wicker Allensworth, treasurer; Miss Virginia Moore, corresponding secretary; Miss Sarah Croft Smith, recording secretary; Miss Blanche Lawton, alumnae secretary; Miss Ruby Head Lewis, chaplain; Miss Emily Parmalee, pianist; Miss Lucile Scarbrough, chorister.

Summerour-Cochran Engagement Is Of Wide Interest

Announcement is made today by Mr. and Mrs. B. N. Summerour, of Marietta, of the engagement of their daughter, Jamie Lee, to James Seldon Cochran, Jr., of West Point, formerly of Norcross, the wedding to take place in June.

Miss Summerour, the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Summerour, is a graduate of the Marietta High school and Georgia State College at Milledgeville. Since her graduation she has taught in Georgia and Florida. For the past two years she has been an efficient teacher in the Marietta public schools. She has one brother, John M. Summerour, and one sister, Miss Patty Summerour.

Mr. Cochran is the oldest son of Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Cochran, of Norcross. He has two brothers, William Cochran and Edwin Cochran. He attended Tech High school, later graduted from the University of Georgia in civil engineering. He now holds a responsible position with the Batson-Cook Construction Company, at West Point.

Miss Bridges Gives Recital.

Mrs. R. E. Yarbrough will present Eugenia Bridges, talented young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bridges, in piano recital Tuesday evening, June 4 at 8 o'clock at the studio, 54 Kirkwood road.

Miss Janie Hunter and George Plunkett will assist on the program with violin and vocal numbers.

Miss Whaley To Be Honored At Party Series

Miss Maude Whaley, a popular bride-elect, who will wed Emmett Clayton Cooper in July, will be honored with a number of prenuptial parties. Miss Ella Mae Carnes will entertain at a seated luncheon at the Henry Grady hotel Saturday, June 8. Others who will entertain for Miss Whaley are Miss Dora Thompson, Miss Mary Ellen Ortagus, Mrs. J. S. Whaley, Mrs. Edgar Yarn and Mrs. M. C. Thompson.

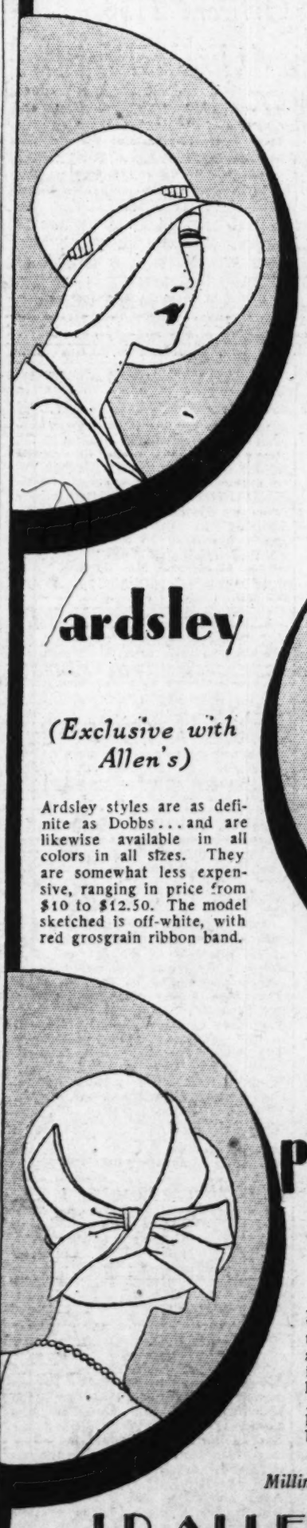

Miss Whigham To Wed William D. Ray, Jr.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Ethel Whigham, of Bartow, to William D. Ray, Jr., of Montgomery, Ala., is of most cordial interest to their friends in the east and south. Miss Whigham is a graduate of the Georgia State College for Women and a talented young member of the social set. For the past four years she has been teaching at Bartow High school at Bartow.

Mr. Ray has been connected with Ingleheart Brothers, Inc., Evansville, Ind., for some time and holds a responsible position with this concern. He graduated from the University of Alabama, where he is a member of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity, and is well known in fraternal and business circles. The wedding will take place in June and after an extended wedding trip Mr. Ray and his bride will be at home at 704 St. Charles avenue, Montgomery, Ala.

the smart hat makes itself felt

If you are seeking obscurity . . . don't wear a Dobbs, an Ardsley or a Pinehurst Felt! If you do you'll be talked about . . . you'll be the subject of frank, undisguised envy. For these felt hats cannot escape recognition. Their lines betray them. They make themselves felt wherever they go!

dobbs

If you like this particular Dobbs, which is a gooseberry green, you may have it in any color you like. Dobbs hats come in all head sizes and in every color. Dobbs Felts priced from $15 to $25.

ardsley

(Exclusive with Allen's)

Ardsley styles are as definite as Dobbs . . . and are likewise available in all colors in all sizes. They are somewhat less expensive, ranging in price from $10 to $12.50. The model sketched is off-white, with red grosgrain ribbon band.

pinehurst

(Exclusive with Allen's)

And Pinehurst, priced always at $8.75, is a make that is both inexpensive and smart. All head sizes in every style—that's a Pinehurst feature, too. Model sketched here is light sun-tan with a darker brown ribbon.

Woman's Club Swimming Pool Opens With Musical Program

A brilliant program of music by the Georgia Power Company band will feature the opening of the swimming pool at the Atlanta Woman's Club Tuesday afternoon, June 4, at 4 o'clock. Mayor Ragsdale will make the address of welcome and the president, Mrs. John R. Hornady, will explain the privileges of the pool.

The swimming pool committee, Mrs. M. D. Farnham, chairman, assisted by Mesdames Walter Scott Askew, Norman Sharp, Clyde Drummond, John D. Evans, Guy Sink, W. C. Robinson and the officers of the club, Mesdames John R. Hornady, Irving Thomas, M. L. Thrower, Odis Poundstone, J. P. Billups, W. P. Dunn, Arthur Hazzard and Harry G. Poole and Miss Mary Cayce will form a receiving line under the magnificent oak tree which shades the entire area around the swimming pool. Punch will be served by Misses Mary and Gertrude Askew, Ernestine Hornady, McDougald Evans and Carol Jane Farnham. Those desiring to enjoy a game of bridge prior to the opening program may do so.

The educational department of the Atlanta Woman's Club, Mrs. W. E. Beckham, chairman, will sponsor a large benefit bridge party at the Atlanta Woman's Club Tuesday afternoon, June 11, in the banquet hall of the club. The usual array of beautiful prizes will be on display and everything possible will be done for the entertainment and convenience of the guests. Those desiring to contribute prizes should communicate with Mrs. Beckham at once, Hemlock 1258-J. The banquet hall is cool and inviting in summer, but those who so desire may place their tables out on the shaded terrace or they may engage a private room for their parties, if entertaining large groups. The funds derived from the party will go for educational purposes.

Mrs. Beckham will be assisted by the president, Mrs. John R. Hornady and the committee on education, which includes Mrs. C. K. Ayer, Mrs. C. W. McClure, Mrs. J. B. F. Herrischoff, Mrs. Clifford Collins, Miss Rose Moran, Mrs. Alfred Truitt, Miss Virginia Hardin and Mrs. E. G. Griffin. Reservations may be made through any member of the committee or through the club hostess, Mrs. Simmons, Hemlock 4636. Price $2 per table.

Officers' Hop At Ft. McPherson Interests Many

Fort McPherson, June 1.—The hop at the Officers' Club was a brilliant affair of Friday evening at Fort McPherson, preceded by several supper parties of interest. Captain and Mrs. Oscar Stanley Smith entertained at dinner at their quarters in the post in honor of General and Mrs. Abraham G. Lott. Covers were placed for a number of the military set. Major and Mrs. Augustus B. Jones were hosts the same evening at an informal supper in honor of Captain and Mrs. Robert Joerg, Jr., at their quarters in the post. The entertainment was charmingly informal, the guests including a group of especial friends of the honorees. Another entertainment the same evening in garrison circles was the buffet supper given by Major and Mrs. Ralph C. Holliday at their quarters. The guests numbered 16 members of the military contingent. Following the supper Major and Mrs. Holliday and their guests attended the hop at the Officers' Club.

Captain and Mrs. Robert Joerg, Jr., and their two sons, Robert Joerg III, and Wood Joerg, left Saturday for Alabama to visit relatives before going to New York July 12 to sail for their new station in Porto Rico. Captain and Mrs. Joerg have added much to the social life of the garrison and have been popular members of the army social set since their arrival nearly two years ago. Captain Joerg, as regimenetal adjutant and plans and training officer of the 22d infantry, has been known as one of the most efficient officers of the entire command, while Mrs. Joerg, with her charm of personality and deep interest in the cultural activities of the garrison, will be especially missed. A host of good wishes of their many friends follow them to their new station.

John Holliday celebrated his seventh birthday at an afternoon party at his quarters in the garrison Saturday. A frosted birthday cake graced the center of the tea table where the guests were seated, and gay little favors marked each place. A number of attractive gifts attested to the popularity of the small host. The guests included Leslie Duvall, Peter Jones, Tom Procter, Eugene Winn, Gilbert Procter, Billy Jeffers, Eula Jeffers, Bennie Jones, Albert G. Wing, Jr., Ralph Holliday, Jr., and Billy Holliday.

O. E. S. Entertains For Alto Cottage.

For the benefit of the Masonic cottage for tubercular children under construction at Alto, Grant Park Chapter, No. 178, O. E. S., will sponsor an entertainment, varied and entertaining, in Grant Park Masonic temple, at 464 Cherokee avenue, S. E., at 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening, June 4. Music of every variety will feature this program, as the city's best musicians and readers have given their services to this cause. An orchestra of 14 pieces, under the direction of Whitney Hubner, Kimo Kalohi and Waikiki Mermaids, the Electrical Workers Quartet and the East Atlanta Troubadours, a ladies' saxophone band, will furnish the instrumental music. Such soloists as Miss Ida Kline, H. W. Timms, Mrs. Paul McDowell and Irving Cohen will render numbers. The readers on the program are Miss Sarah Adele Eastlack, Mrs. J. M. Spinks, Miss Frances Frye and little Margaret Pierce. The concluding number on the program will be a womanless wedding put on by the men of Grant Park Chapter, No. 178, O. E. S. The public is invited. Admission is 10 cents.

League of Women Voters Names Meeting Dates for This Week

A number of interesting and important meetings feature the calendar of the Atlanta League of Women Voters for this week. The board of executive directors meets Tuesday, June 4, at the Candler Annex at 10:30 o'clock, with Mrs. Alfred Bailey presiding. All members of the board are urged to attend this meeting so that business for the summer months may be decided upon by a full number of qualified directors. Mrs. R. L. Turman, national league director for the Third region, and chairman of legislation for the Georgia League of Women Voters, will give a 20-minute discussion of Georgia legislation and the league. Mrs. Turman will discuss the method of working out a national league program, and will stress the responsibility of the state and local league towards the national program.

Mrs. Guy Sink, chairman of finance for the Atlanta league, will hold a meeting of her finance drive workers Monday, June 3, at 11 o'clock at league headquarters. Thirty league workers have been engaged during the month of May in raising a large portion of the league budget, and Monday's meeting will be featured by final reports from all workers and awarding of prizes according to finance drive rules.

Ward Meetings.

Thursday, June 6, the Second Ward League of Women Voters meets with Mrs. R. E. Rollins, chairman, in charge. The plans for the meeting will be published in detail at a later date.

Friday, June 7, the Ninth Ward Study Group meets at the Candler Annex at 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. Harry Greene, chairman of the ward and leader of the study group, will conduct the business meeting and will announce her educational program within a few days. This study group has for its purpose the training of league leaders, and conducts its classes along plans of modern training in this line.

The members of the Atlanta league will receive Monday the June issue of Facts, official bulletin of the organization, which should prove of particular interest at this time, owing to the fact that it is the "City Primary Number," carrying information concerning each candidate in the city primary to be held Wednesday, June 5. The editor of Facts endeavors to present absolutely non-partisan information, where it can be secured, to league members through the medium of this publication.

Miss Hardy Weds Mr. Pearson, June 15.

Cordial interest centers in the announcement of the wedding plans of Miss Sarah Hardy, daughter of Mrs. Cora Herring Hardy, to Floyd Pearson. The marriage will be quietly solemnized at the home of the bride on Barnett street, Saturday, June 15, at 6 o'clock. Dr. T. R. Kendall, former pastor of the bride, will perform the ceremony. The wedding will be followed by an informal reception.

Miss Tullie Fishback will act as maid-of-honor and the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. E. Lollis Hardy, will be the matron of honor. Little Nell Hardy, niece of the bride, will be the flower girl. The birde will be given in marriage by her brother, E. Lollis Hardy. Mr. Pearson will be attended by his brother, Harry Pearson, as best man.

The music will be in charge of two talented musicians, Mrs. George Ropp, of Columbia, S. C., who will render several violin selections, and Mrs. Irvin Ragsdale, who will accompany her at the piano. Mrs. Ropp is a member of the Columbia college orchestra and a childhood friend of the bride.

Miss Hardy was honored at a bridge-tea Saturday by Mrs. E. L. Hardy at her home on Iverson street. Effective decorations of pink and green were used, and 30 of the bride's friends were invited.

Saturday, June 8, Miss Fishback will honor Miss Hardy with a luncheon at the Henry Grady hotel, followed by a theater party for the members of the wedding party.

Alpha Gamma Delta To Sponsor Banquet.

The Atlanta club of Alpha Gamma Delta fraternity will held its founders' day banquet at the Biltmore Monday, June 3, at 8 o'clock. The following chapters will be present: Mu chapter from Brenau college, Gainesville; Gamma Alpha from University of Georgia, Athens, also Psi from University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Ala.

The officers of the club are Miss Sophie Howe, president; Miss Billy Linthicum, vice president; Miss Mara Sanford, secretary; Miss Clara Bright, treasurer; Mrs. James Alsobrook, editor.

American Colonists' Board Meets.

Georgia Society, Daughters of the American Colonists, met yesterday with the state regent, Mrs. Francis Brown Chase, at her home, New Canaan, on the Brown Mill road. After the board meeting the guests enjoyed an al fresco luncheon. Among those present were the retiring officers, state chairman and the retiring board members. The most distinguished guest was the honorary state vice president general, Mrs. J. M. High.

Miss Linler Given Theater Party.

Mrs. Thomas B. Jowers was hostess at a theater party Saturday afternoon at the Georgia theater in compliment to Miss Lula Linler, a bride-elect of June. The guests included Misses Lula Linler, Thelma Wilson, Alice Hunter, Ruby McCollum, Catherine McConnell, Mattie Smith; Mesdames H. A. Sentell, G. W. Branch, R. B. Clark, J. P. Asbell, Homer Wilson, J. R. Clarke, Thomas B. Jowers.

Helen would have known enough!

Helen of Troy was not blind to the things that gentlemen are not blind to! In this day, certainly, she would have worn Propper "Blue Edge" Stockings. She would have liked the Contour that Propper achieves by shadowed ankles and transparency at the calf. She, of all women, would have known enough to adopt these richer, more eye-entrancing stockings!

Make the famous Propper experiment—

Put an ordinary stocking on one leg and a creation by Propper on the other. Notice the Contour that the Propper stocking gives because of its ankle-shadows and its calf-transparency.

As Our Women Hear It

Wedding of Grandparents of Atlanta Bridegroom Was Chronicled in First Issue Of The Constitution Printed June 16, 1868

An interesting commentary upon the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Adolphus Setze, which was quietly solemnized last Wednesday evening, comes from the fact that the marriage of the groom's maternal grandparents was chronicled in the first issue of The Constitution, appearing on the morning of June 16, 1868. On that date Miss Adelaide Reynolds, beautiful daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Aristides Reynolds, of Powder Springs, and a popular belle of the sixties, became the bride of D. F. McClatchey, of Marietta, at a fashionable ceremony solemnized at high noon at the palatial colonial home of the bride's parents, its tall white columns and picturesque balconies gleaming white midst broad acres planted to flowers, vegetables, cotton and grain. It is a far cry from the unostentatious ceremony which united Mrs. Elizabeth Middlebrooks Baskin and Julius Adolphus Setze, to that elaborate event of the sixties. The bride of today wore for the occasion a modish ensemble costume, combining the popular shade of modern blue blue georgette with a dainty blouse of egg-shell chiffon and exquisite ivory-toned lace. Her hat was a becoming off-the-face model of transparent blue horsehair braid and a handsome biege fox fur completed her costume. Her flowers were a spray of exotic orchids and valley lilies worn on her left shoulder.

In charming contrast to the simple lines of modern fashion was the costume worn by the bride of yesterday. Developed in sky blue silk it was fashioned quite full and long with the skirt featuring huge panniers, outlined with tiny pleated ruffles of the silk and further adorned with deep silk fringe. A tiny hat in the same shade of blue sat atop her pompadour, revealing a mass of tiny curls in the back, and her flowers were a bouquet of fragrant cape jessamine, which grew in profusion in the flower gardens, the forerunner of the fashionable gardenia of today. Following the ceremony and the great wedding feast that ensued, Mr. McClatchey and his bride journeyed by means of a horse-drawn carriage to their home in Marietta, taking many hours for the trip of twenty miles. Their very modern grandson hopped into his high-powered motor car and with his lovely bride sped away to Florida shores, where they will take a boat for the Cuban capital, the ever-alluring Havana.

Mrs. McClatchey's wedding costume was assembled with a great outlay of time and money, the gown being purchased in Augusta, at that time the main shopping center of the section. Among the most costly items of the trousseau were the bride's shoes, which in those after-the-war days never cost less than fifty dollars a pair. Mr. and Mrs. McClatchey, noted among the early factors of the state's educational and political development, left to posterity a rich heritage. The surviving members of their immediate family circle include Mrs. J. W. Setze, who was the former Miss Leila McClatchey; Mr. R. McClatchey and D. F. McClatchey, all of Atlanta; Mrs. S. B. Sanford, of Athens and Homer McClatchey, of Columbus.

The daughters of the family were sent to school in Atlanta during their residence in Marietta, Mrs. Setze and Mrs. Sanford attending the Atlanta Female Institute, which stood on Peachtree street, just opposite the Davison-Paxon Company's new store.

A BROWN-EYED, golden haired Cuban lassie is studying pharmacy at the Southern College of Pharmacy, Pine and West Peachtree streets. There is a bit of fun in her brown lash-veiled eyes. A mischievous toss of her head suggests the playful rather than the studious. In fact, to meet her is to wonder how she landed on West Peachtree street to study to be a doctor.

The reason is clear once Miss [illegible] Alonzo has explained. Cuba and Atlanta are different. She tells you so with a smile and readily justifies her efforts to be a pharmacist.

"In Havana there is a large school of medicine and there are a great many doctors everywhere, dentists, physicians, pharmacists. It is one of the best professions for women." Miss Alonzo employs a native gesture and suggests a whole army of doctors—all women. "So many of the pharmacists have their own shops and put their names 'Dr. Nina Alonzo,' for instance, in large black letters over the door.

"So that is what you are going to do when you finish here?" one of Four Women wanted to know.

"Well, I would like to. My brother, Joe Alonzo, is studying here too, you know. At first maybe we will be together. The thought brightened two cherry lips into a smile. "I can not tell, though; I may go back to Cuba. I have many friends there who are several kinds of a doctor."

Miss Alonzo, who has been in Atlanta two years, studied English last year at Woodberry Hall, and now uses it gracefully with an unmistakable trace of Cuban influence.

"Do you like Atlanta?"

"Oh, yes, we have good times here, and good times in Cuba. They are different."

"You do not do the same things there as here?"

"You see a girl in Cuba has many boy friends, but they are never seen alone with them. Boys come to my house, but some one is always coming in and out. If girls in Cuba went in the street alone with boys as they do here they would not be looked on with good eyes." She laughed, ran off to study chemistry, medicine, drugs, Latin, medical names, and incidentally the wiles of American ways.

TENNESSEE and Alabama are vieing for Gretna Green honors where popular Atlanta belles and beau are concerned. Sister cities in these states bordering along the Georgia line are proving convenient meccas to engaged Atlanta couples where wedding rites can be solemnized without the five days publication of marriage license. According to hearsay secret plans are in the making by two members of the city's younger generation to bring their stormy romance of several years to a happy ending in one of these cities at an early date. Gossip says that parental objections have caused the much-ly-in-love couple to plan the runaway marriage sans wedding attendants and orange blossoms.

There is no more attractive girl in the Gate City's younger social contingent than the bride-to-be in this romance that has weathered several storms during its existence. She was voted the cutest girl of her class while attending a prominent southern college and her appropriate nickname justifies this honor. Her bright sunshiny disposition and brunette charm is in direct contrast to the dictatorial, domineering personality of her handsome blonde fiance. However, three attempts to walk life's pathway separately have only strengthened their determination to defy parents' displeasure and opposite natures. So happy are the future bride and groom over their final decision that surely the last storm has been weathered and a calm sea awaits their matrimonial venture.

THE china chosen to decorate the Perennial Garden Club table at the recent flower show staged by the Peachtree Garden Club has an 85-year-old history, having been brought from France many years ago, and is owned by Mrs. John L. Harper, of 1996 Ponce de Leon avenue. One hundred and twenty-five pieces make up the total of the very exquisite set of Limoges china, a spray of wheat, blue forget-me-nots and old-fashioned pinks used as decoration, no pattern being alike the ingenuity of the artistic French artist being brought out in the graceful floral arrangement glowing in delicate colors from each plate and dish. The china came into Mrs. Harper's possession through her mother, the late Mrs. William L. Bartlett, who as Miss Julia Nancy Butler, was named for Julia Jackson, daughter of Andrew Jackson, who served his country as its chief executive, and for whom Mrs. Harper's mother was named.

The life and taste of a bygone generation was also expressed in other appointments on the table, for the lattice work Majolica bowl centering the table was brought from England years and years ago, and riveted together so that it can be taken apart, and filled with star jasmine, vari-colored stocks, pink sweet peas and yellow snapdragons. It belongs to Dr. John Bonar White, of 769 Penn avenue, as do the 87-year-old rock crystal goblets, and the silver candlesticks, buried during the war between the states, and bearing the original seal of the state of Massachusetts, while the exquisite 40-year-old damask cloth and napkins are owned by Mrs. J. R. Beckham. Although not a prize winner in flower show at the Piedmont Driving Club, this particular table was deserving of special mention because of the old-fashioned atmosphere enveloping the Perennial Garden Club exhibit, entered by its president, Mrs. J. R. Bachman.

ONE of the most colorful classes of the horse show held in Piedmont Park a week ago was the "open pair" class in which parent rode proudly with his or her child, or was the case of Herbert Oliver who cantered into the ring with diminutive Jean Oliver, her flaxen curls peeking from beneath a black velvet cap. She rode her favorite mount, Prince, and was outfitted in the height of fashion, white linen troussers, striped in black, meeting black patent leather boots, and held her chin in graceful contour over a blue necktie exactly like the one her father wore. They cantered to victory together, winning a ribbon trophy, and justly so, for this youthful equestrienne has had four years' excellent training in horsemanship.

Native grace was evidenced in Miss Martha De Golians' riding, annexing a ribbon through her masterful handling of Duke in the three-gaited class, putting her splendid mount through many paces with the greatest of ease. Scarcely big enough to bestride a horse, little Anne Ramspeck rode in the same brilliant fashion as did her lovely mother, Mrs. Carl Ramspeck, who won blue ribbons on Robert Woodruff's gelding, Rebel. The natural love for horseflesh seems to have been inherited by George McCarty, Jr., from his maternal grandfather, John K. Ottley, for the displayed the dash and ability of a veteran in handling Ocean Breeze in the same show. The enlisting of interest among the juniors will assure the Atlanta Horse Show Association the staging of future shows, thereby placing Atlanta in the class she once gloried in when a Vanderbilt of New York and a Lula Long, of Kansas City, thought nothing of shipping a string of the costliest horseflesh ever bred in America to be exhibited on the auditorium tan bark.

SNAPSHOTS of Atlantans collected at random: Little Beverly and Barbara Morrison teaching their western born and bred father, Byron Morrison, a Southern accent acquired by these two bright little girls from their colored mammy nurse while visiting their grandmother, Mrs. F. B. Eckford on Peachtree circle. Miss Evelyn Sheffield pleading with an officer of the law to overlook her failure to stop her automobile at a designated cross street, while hastily driving to Terminal station to bid her close friends, Misses Anna Harriet and Elizabeth Shewmake, a fond farewell before their departure for an extended visit in the west. Mrs. Gilbert Proctor mounted on her horse acting as referee at the polo game at the garrison Thursday afternoon. Petite little Yancy Ann Gaugler and her small sister, Lenora, arriving at Mary Dinsmore's birthday party carrying tissue paper wrapped gifts and wearing cunning frocks of white, their tresses tied with huge bows of pink satin ribbon. Catherine Foster looking perfectly lovely in a green organdy creation fashioned with a tight bodice and full skirt serving tea to members of the University of Georgia polo team at the dansant at the garrison. Harry M. Atkinson playing tennis yesterday afternoon on Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Dick's court in the rear of their Ponce de Leon avenue home. James H. Nunnally being given a cordial welcome at the opening of the Piedmont Driving Club's summer season, this popular Atlantan being a past president of this club. He spent the past winter in Miami, Fla., at his handsome home on Biscayne bay. Mrs. Robert H. Jones, Jr., looking like a "Georgia Peach," wearing peach-colored chiffon at the dinner-dance given at the Biltmore to the lawyers attending the Georgia state lawyers' convention. Mrs. Cecil B. Strobar gowned in liberty blue crepe topped by a blue cloth coat collared in krimmer fur, worn with hat and shoes to match as she went aboard the steamer Augustus, anchored at the foot of 57th street in New York city.

Lovely Principals in Today's Chatter

The photograph at the left presents a beautiful likeness of Mrs. Julius Adolphus Setze, who, until her marriage last Wednesday evening was Mrs. Elizabeth Middlebrooks Baskin, daughter of Thomas Jefferson Middlebrooks. At the right is Miss Nena Alonzo, of Havana, Cuba, who is in Atlanta studying to be a pharmacist. The photographs are the work of Rogers & Farmer studio.

Week-End Dance at Brookhaven

A large number of prominent Atlantans assembled last evening at Brookhaven, the Capital City Country Club, for the week-end dinner-dance. Dinner was served on the spacious terrace overlooking the lake.

Among the largest parties given was that of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Albritton, who were hosts at a party in honor of their guests, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Foster, of New York. Covers were placed for Mr. and Mrs. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strickland, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Faim Fairman, Mrs. R. B. D. Godley, Calvin Chapman and Mr. and Mrs. Albritton.

Mrs. Steven D. Beers, of Taunton, Mass., and Mrs. Williams B. Crossley, of Littleboro, Mass., the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Beers, were honor guests in a congenial party.

Mrs. Woodward Gives Tea For Bride-Elect

Among the interesting affairs featuring the social calendar for today will be the informal tea at which Mrs. Warren R. Woodward will be hostess at her home on Montgomery Ferry drive in Ansley Park, the lovely affair honoring Miss Maude Paulk and her fiance, Warren Maddox, their wedding to be among the beautiful ceremonies solemnized in the bridal month of June.

The calling hours will be from 4:30 to 6 o'clock, and Mrs. Woodward will be assisted in receiving her guests by her young niece, Miss Rosalyn Cotter, and by Miss Allison Blodgett.

Invited to meet Miss Paulk and Mr. Maddox are a group of members of the Tri Delta fraternity, of which both the hostess and bride-elect are popular members.

Miss Callie Orme And Mr. Healey To Be Honored

Miss Callie Orme and William Healey, whose marriage will be a brilliant social event of Wednesday, June 26, will be honored at a number of social gayeties prior to the wedding.

Saturday evening, June 8, Mr. and Mrs. John Oliver will entertain for Miss Orme and Mr. Healey at the Piedmont Driving Club dinner-dance.

Wednesday, June 12, Mrs. Spencer Atkinson will be hostess at a luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club, honoring Miss Orme.

Mrs. Thomas Hinman will entertain at a luncheon Saturday, June 22, in honor of the bride-elect.

Mrs. Carroll Payne will entertain at a luncheon Monday, June 24.

On this same date Mrs. William Healey will entertain at a dance at Brookhaven Country Club.

Tuesday morning, June 25, Miss Ellen Newell will be hostess at a breakfast at her home on Clifton road.

Other parties to be given in honor of Miss Orme and Mr. Healey will be announced later.

Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Are Bridge Hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott Coleman entertained at bridge a group of friends at their home at 826 Peachtree street Friday evening, complimentary to Walter Sturdivant, who recently returned from an interesting cruise of the Mediterranean countries.

Jefferson Davis' 121st Birthday Will Be Celebrated on June 3

Exercises commemorating the 121st anniversary of the birth of Jefferson Davis, only president of the Confederacy, will be held by the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., in conjunction with Camp 159, U. C. V., at the state capital, June 3, at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. D. F. Stevenson, president of the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., will preside, and will introduce the chairman of patriotic days, Mrs. W. E. Beckham, who has arranged a program. Several selections of southern music will be given by Norah Allen Volpi, well-known Atlanta vocalist. Dr. Sam Small, a distinguished writer and lecturer, will deliver the address of the afternoon, on Jefferson Davis. Mrs. Martha Fowle Myatt, who was a first cousin of President Davis and is a member of the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., will read a copy of remarks made by her father, the late Governor Doniel G. Fowle, of North Carolina, at the memorial services held in New Orleans after the death there of President Davis in 1889. Governor Fowle was a close personal friend of President Davis and was one of the pallbearers at his funeral. Short extracts from remarks made by representatives of several southern states on this same occasion will be read by different officers of the chapter.

Before the presentation of the crosses of honor, Mrs. R. M. Moran, recorder of cross s, will read a short account of the origin of the "cross of honor." But few people know that the cross of honor originated entirely in Georgia, the idea being suggested by Mrs. Mary Ann Cobb Erwin, of Athens, and the design being made by Mrs. Sarah Gabbett, of Atlanta. Crosses of honor will be presented by Miss Moran to the following descendants of Confederate veterans, and also to W. B. Beacham, who is a veteran and lives at the Soldiers' home: Mrs. Pink Cherry, daughter of Gabriel Lee Jones; Dr. Lucian Lamar Knight, son of George Walton Knight; James E. Warren, son of Thomas A. Warren; Mrs. Harriet Webster Morgan, granddaughter of Meriwether Posey Kiser; Henry B. Graham, son of Henry S. Graham; Sister M. Melonie, daughter of Robert K. Holliday; Mrs. Lundie Watson Adkins, daughter of Samuel D. Watson; Dr. A. L. Van Dyke, son of Benjamin William Van Dyke; Pink Cherry, son of Macon Glascon Cherry; Mrs. Rosa Talbot Knight, daughter of Matthew H. Talbot; Mrs. Moreland Speer, granddaughter of Alexander W. Mitchell; Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, daughter of Dr. Daniel C. O'Keefe, founder of Atlanta public schools; W. A. Fuller, son of William Allen Fuller, conductor on the famous "General," which was captured in Andrews' raid. Mr. Fuller was later voted a medal by the Georgia legislature in recognition of heroic work for the Confederate cause.

Crosses of service will be presented to the three sons of the late Captain Lawrence E. O'Keefe, Gerald P. O'Keefe, John E. O'Keefe and Owen R. O'Keefe, all of whom served with distinction during the World War, and the public is invited to attend.

American Colonists Meet Friday.

The Georgia Society Daughters of the American Colonists meets at the Decatur Woman's Club in Decatur Friday afternoon, June 7, at 3 o'clock.

Habersham D. A. R. To Keep Open House Each Wednesday

The house committee of the Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. R., announces that Habersham hall, 270 Fifteenth street, N. E., will be open to visitors on Wednesday of each week during the summer months. Members of the chapter and their friends are invited and visitors to the city will receive a cordial welcome at any time from 10 o'clock a. m. to 5:30 p. m. on that day.

Appetizing refreshments will be served to order at a small charge and card tables will be arranged in one of the rooms so that those who wish to play may do so without extra cost.

The committee is prepared to serve luncheon and dinner parties at all times and request the patronage of their friends. Attention is also called to the auditorium at Habersham hall which may be engaged at a very reasonable rental and is well adapted to the convenience of lectures, concerts, conventions and civic meetings.

Members of the house committee include Mrs. J. C. Gentry, Mrs. J. N. Harper, Mrs. C. J. Shechan, Mrs. J. J. Simpson, Mrs. T. J. Ripley, Mrs. Fannie Mae Dabney, Mrs. Charles S. Robison, Mrs. Frank Golden, Mrs. E. E. Steed, Mrs. H. B. Nash and Mrs. B. C. Kistner.

Miss Clarice Beck and Edgar H. Orr Wed at Lovely Afternoon Ceremony

A wedding of much interest to a large circle of friends was that of Miss Clarice Robert Beck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Beck, and Edgar Harold Orr, which was solemnized at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride. Dr. R. L. Russell, pastor of the Druid Hills Methodist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a small group of relatives and friends.

The house was decorated with palms and tall floor baskets of roses and sweet peas.

The bride wore for the occasion an ensemble of rose beige georgette and lace with accessories to match, and carried an arm bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies.

The groom is the son of the late Judge Edgar H. Orr and Mrs. Martha Reynolds Orr, and is one of Atlanta's leading commercial photographers. He is a popular member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, a charter member of the Atlanta Astronomical Society and a member of the American Legion. He volunteered his services in the World War, although exempt from military duty, and served eight months in France as a sergeant of Q. M. C.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Orr left for a motor trip through Florida and will visit Cuba before their return.

Commercial High Alumni Plan Dinner - Dance

The twelfth annual dinner-dance of the Commercial High Alumni Association to be given at the Atlanta Woman's Club Wednesday will be one of the most important events in the history of the association. Roy LeCraw, well-known local attorney, will be the toastmaster.

Included in the entertainment program will be Cecil White and his "Bells of Hawaii," instrumental numbers, vocal selections by the Commercial High quartet, a novelty tap dance by Ruth Palmer, crayon impersonations by Moore Pearson and a "surprise" number. Following the entertainment and dinner, a two-hour dance will be enjoyed. At the business meeting, the annual reports and the election of officers will be a feature.

Miss Roberts Weds Rev. C. T. Lawhorne.

Of interest to their friends is the announcement of the wedding of Miss Alice Viola Roberts, of Mauk, and Rev. Carl T. Lawhorne, of Swainsboro, which was recently solemnized. The bride is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Roberts, of Mauk. Rev. Lawhorne is a graduate of Young Harris and also of the University of Florida. He is now pastor of the Swainsboro circuit, where he and his bride will make their home.

Miss Dorothy Spratt Weds Mr. Chesnut on June 27

Miss Dorothy Spratt, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tillman Thomas Spratt, whose engagement is announced today to Robert Clifford Chesnut, the marriage to be a brilliant church ceremony taking place Thursday evening, June 27, in the Associate Reformed church. Photograph by Elliott's Peachtree studio.

Cordial interest to a host of friends centers in the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. Tillman Thomas Spratt, Jr., of the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy, to Robert Clifford Chesnut. Miss Spratt is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spratt, and her charming personality has endeared her to many friends and made her a popular member of the younger set. She received her education at Girls' High school and Agnes Scott college.

Her mother was before her marriage Miss Mai Giles, daughter of the late Dr. C. R. Giles and Mrs. Giles. Her father is widely known in business and military circles, and is a member of the Spratt Chair Company. Her sister is Miss Marjorie Spratt.

Mr. Chesnut is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Chesnut, of Atlanta. He attended Oglethorpe university and now holds a responsible position with the firm of Chesnut & Johnson, contractors. He is a member of the Yaarab Temple and the Oriental band. His mother was Miss Dora Johnson before her marriage, her parents being the late William Stanton Johnson and Mrs. Johnson. The wedding of this popular young couple will be a beautiful event, taking place Thursday evening, June 28, at the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church. The wedding plans and dates of the parties honoring this couple will be announced later.

Mrs. Richard Makes Request.

Mrs. Hardy Richard, of Madison, chairman of veterans' reminiscences, asks for stories of the south during the time of the War Between the States and the reconstruction days. She says: "During the summer months is an ideal time to write these stories and to collect your material for same. There is not a community in the south without its true stories of service, sacrifice, valor, romance, adventure and humor. There are many people in each town capable of writing these facts in the most interesting manner, they do not have to be the experience of a veteran nor told by him, but the incident must be authentic, interesting and have occurred sometime during the War Between the States, the period before the war or during the days of reconstruction, and can be told by anyone and written in prose or poetry, but prose is preferred. No limit to number of words, but you are requested to be brief. Papers must be typewritten. Look over your scrapbook. You will find plenty of material which I will accept. Stories can have appeared in local papers, or won a prize in a contest, but must not have previously appeared in book form. Send papers to me by October 1. Merely reporting that you have these manuscripts will not gain you credit on star chapter record. They must be sent direct to me."

Miss Katherine Catchings Weds H. H. Wall, Jr., at Church Ceremony

Impressive dignity featured the marriage of Miss Katherine Fitzgerald Catchings and Henry Hall Ware, Jr., which was solemnized yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock at the Druid Hills Methodist church before an assemblage of prominent Atlantans and out-of-town guests. Rev. Dr. Robert L. Russell, pastor of the church, performed the marriage service, which was preceded by an appropriate musical program rendered by Miss Ethel Beyer, organist, and Mrs. A. M. Roan, soloist.

The artistically decorated pulpit of the church formed a lovely floral background for the bridal party who descended the long aisle to the soft organ strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin." Palms, ferns and foliage plants banked the back of the pulpit and choir loft. Three 7-branched candelabras were arranged at graceful intervals amongst the foliage, alternating with tall single floor candlesticks holding white tapers. Mounds of summer flowers graced the base of each candelabra and were arranged at artistic intervals on the chancel rail. A large urn filled with Easter lilies and pink snapdragons adorned the altar.

Frederick A. Watt and John Swift Brogdon, the bride's uncles, acted as ushers. The maid-of-honor, Miss Mary Moritz, and the groomsman, I. G. Wilkes, entered together, the former wearing an attractive gown fashioned of orchid shaded georgette crepe and a small felt hat to match. She carried a sheath bouquet of rose and yellow tinted roses and copper colored snapdragons, tied with wide copper colored ribbon. Mrs. Homer Reynolds Sanford, matron of honor, descended the long aisle alone and was attired in a striking costume of almond green crepe worn with a small felt hat in a matching shade. She carried a sheath bouquet of copper colored snapdragon and rose and yellow tinted roses tied with bronze colored ribbon.

The youthful bride was accompanied to the altar by her uncle, Charles Edwin Martin, of Fort Valley, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Lovick G. Fortson. The exquisite blonde beauty of the bride was accentuated by her modish costume of eggshell crepe Elizabeth fashioned in three-piece effect. The blouse was trimmed with exquisite ecru lace in an ecru shade, the lovely lace also being introduced in jabot effect on the becoming short jacket. She wore a small hat of baku straw in a natural shade and carried a small bouquet of valley lilies and sweetheart rosebuds.

Mrs. Frederick Paine Catchings, the bride's mother, was costumed in rose beige chiffon worn with a hat of horsehair braid to match.

Immediately after the marriage service the bride and groom left for a motor trip to New Orleans and points of interest on the gulf coast.

They will return June 15 and will spend the summer months with the bride's mother, Mrs. F. P. Catchings, before beginning housekeeping in the fall.

Among the out-oftown guests attending the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Martin, of Fort Valley; Mrs. William Edward Davies, of Savannah; Mrs. J. Frank Coney, of Hawkinsville; Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Pinkston, of Parrott; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ware and Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Ware, of Hogansville.

Miss Lewis Weds Capt. Franklin.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Lewis announce the marriage of their daughter, Margaret Katherine, to Captain Luther G. Franklin. The marriage took place at the chapel at Fort McPherson, May 28, in the presence of a few friends, the ceremony being performed by Chaplain Hall.

The bride is a well known Atlanta girl and Captain Franklin holds a responsible position with Sears' Roebuck and company. They are now at home at 976 Katherwood drive, Sylvan Hills.

Miss Ortagus Is Honored.

Mrs. W. P. Edens entertained at a matinee party at the Atlanta theater yesterday honoring Miss Mary Ellen Ortagus, whose marriage to Allen Chandler will take place June 8. After the matinee the guests were entertained at Nunnally's with a delightful ice course, the long table having a centerpiece of varied colored spring flowers—the place cards and favors were appropriate bridal designs. The honor guest was presented with a beige-colored georgette handkerchief. Those present were Misses Mary Ellen Ortagus, Maude Whaley, George Hosman, Bebie Ortagus, Mrs. "Lefty" Willis and Mrs. W. P. Edens.

Athletic Club To Open Roof This Evening

Announcement is made by the management of the Atlanta Athletic Club that dinner will be served this evening on the club roof. A concert will be given during the dinner hour by a well-known orchestra.

The date of the formal opening of the roof will be announced later. Throughout the summer, the roof garden of this popular club will be a popular rendezvous for members of the club and prominent summer visitors.

Miss Renfrew Is Honored.

Dr. and Mrs. Louis Estes, Sr., entertained at dinner last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Renfrew, of Waterbury, Conn., and Dr. Cyril Smith, of Birmingham, England, who arrived with Mr. Renfrew Wednesday, to be the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Estes. Pink snapdragons and delphiniums formed the lovely center piece. Covers were laid for: Mr. and Mrs. Allen Renfrew, Miss Mary Brown, Miss Frances Hurt, Miss Margaret Foster, Dr. Cyril Smith, Henry Dugan, Dr. and Mrs. Louis Estes, Sr.

W. C. T. U. Sponsors Roll Call For Youth Throughout Nation

By M. Frances Meadors Burghard.

A young people's pledge-signing campaign, known as Youths' Roll Call, is being carried on in Georgia and in every state in the nation, as a part of the preventive and educational efforts of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

All of the temperance organizations which preceded the W. C. T. U. failed to a large extent because of a lack of preventive measures, centering their efforts on curing or reforming the drinking classes. The W. C. T. U. has always placed emphasis on prevention rather than cure, working through education, organization and pledge-signing to prevent youth from forming the drink habit.

The W. C. T. U. learned through observation and scientific research that the poison alcohol was habit-forming, and that the habitual use generally induced an uncontrollable desire for more, in ever-increasing amounts, that safety was in total abstinence.

Youths' Roll Call.

The following pledge is printed on a white sheet in blue letters and the whole bordered by red, white and blue:

"Our nation stands upon the threshold of a new epoch of national life. With President Hoover, I want prohibition to succeed. I want to give prohibition its chance. That the constitution may be protected and orderly government preserved, I declare my purpose to abstain from the use of all alcoholic liquors as a beverage, to support and defend the eighteenth amendment and thus to contribute to the success of prohibition."

Then follows lines for the signature and address of ten young men or women, and at the bottom of the page is the text of the eighteenth amendment. Many signatures have already been secured. The June issue of the W. C. T. U. Bulletin, just off the press, features securing signers Sunday, June 9, which is Temperance Sunday, as follows:

"A million signatures to Youths' Roll Call—that is the challenge! A million young people between 14 and 30 years of age who proclaim themselves total abstainers. A million young people who declare their purpose to support and defend the eighteenth amendment. A million young people who, through the contagion of law observance, will contribute to the success of prohibition. A million young people lined up for the protection of the constitution and the preservation of orderly government in the United States by World's Temperance Sunday, November 3, 1929. Georgia's quota is 36,140. Georgia's slogan for every W. C. T. U. member, 'Get ten signers for Youths' Roll Call.' At least 100 signers of Youths' Roll Call from every union in the state on Temperance Sunday, June 9. This project stirs the imagination and calls for concerted action, not only because of the opportunity for safety-first work in organized Sunday school classes, Epworth Leagues Christian Endeavor, Baptist Young People's Unions and other groups, but because the women of the Moderation League are organizing to match W. C. T. U. activity. They are opposed to prohibition and are working to do away with the eighteenth amendment. Order Youths' Roll Call sheets from state headquarters, 605 Thrower building, Atlanta, Ga., at 15 cents per 100, and return them to state headquarters when filled with signatures."

Red Letter Day.

Besides being Temperance Sunday, June 9 is a W. C. T. U. red letter day, and will be observed as Flower Mission Day, the birthday of Jennie Cassady, the originator of the Flower Mission and Relief department, which has brought comfort and cheer to multiplied thousands of lonely, sick, shutins and needy the world around. It is also the birthday of the long-time state director of the department in this state, Mrs. W. H. Preston, of Atlanta, one of the most faithful and efficient of the department directors.

Some unions will hold their Flower Mission program at their regular meeting day in June; others will visit hospitals, prison and other public institutions, as well as individual homes, dispensing flowers, fruits, literature, varied dainties, with text cards attached by white ribbon bows, on next Sunday.

Mrs. Armor Returns.

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, one of the most popular prohibition orators in the United States, is spending a few days in her home state, visiting her daughters, Mrs. D. D. Smith, of Eastman, and Mrs. Alton Lee Hale, at Greenville. Mrs. Armor reached Georgia Wednesday from New York, where she has been delivering prohibition addresses to large audiences and W. C. T. U. rallies for several weeks. She also had successful hearings in New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Kentucky and South Carolina. She leaves soon to fill other engagements, going as far as Canada. No W. C. T. U. worker wields such an influence or is more admired by a larger number of citizens, or better loved by the W. C. T. U. membership than Mrs. Armor, who has twice served several years as state president. Her logic, eloquence and ability receives respect from prohibition opponents.

Motion Picture, "Deliverance."

The six-reel feature motion picture, "Deliverance," based on the findings in Professor Irving Fisher's books on Prohibition At Its Worst and Prohibition Still At Its Worst, will be brought to Macon by the Better Film Committee June 18.

"Deliverance" has the whole-hearted indorsement of the W. C. T. U., which organization recommends it to those enjoying a well-acted picture, also to those who oppose prohibition.

One who saw it in another state wrote: "It is clever in its conception and development, and the acting is superb. The story grips and thrills; the facts are stubborn and strong; the whole treatment is commendable, and applause was spontaneous. This powerful picture is vastly more than entertaining; it is a distinct contribution to clean living and good citizenship. It should be shown everywhere in the interest of truth and seen by all who have any interest in the development of reverance for and obedience to the laws of our land."

The W. C. T. U. in other cities wishing to secure the picture while it is in this state should write to The President of Better Films, 128 Second Street, Macon, Ga. The picture was made for educational purposes and the producers forego all personal profits.

District Rallies.

The Jackson W. C. T. U. was hostess to the sixth district meeting Friday, and the fifth district meeting is to be an event of Wednesday in Atlanta, with Mrs. Marvin Williams, Barnesville, state president, and Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, Macon, state director of Christian Citizenship, the chief speakers.

Spiritual Apathy.

Are we living in a "motion picture age where the emotions are aroused, but the will unmoved?" Dr. E. Stanley Jones thinks we are. He adds: "The religious life of America is being affected with a sentimentality that feels, but will not act. Soul hardening is setting in." There is increasing evidence that our age is sorely in need of the Biblical warning: "They hear My words, but they do them not." When will we awake to the needs of the world, lay aside our selfishness and strive to obey the parting command of our Lord, to make disciples of all nations?

"The Bible stands out among the millions of books that have been printed as unique and distinct from all other books. It will not be sufficient to read the Bible just as you read other books. Dr. William Evans, one of the greatest Bible teachers of our age, asks: "What other book has done for the individual, the nation, the race, the world what the Bible has done? Can a man read his Bible and not take cognizance of this fact? That no other book makes the claims the Bible makes, to be the voice of God and to declare authoritatively and unerringly the mind and will of God?"

Missionary Education Movement Holds Conference at Blue Ridge

Mrs. M. E. Tilly, superintendent of the young people's work of the M. E. church, submits the following article.

The missionary education movement of the United States and Canada holds an interdenominational missionary conference at Blue Ridge, June 25-July 5. The Blue Ridge grounds are located in the "Land of the Sky," 15 miles east of Asheville. They comprise 1,351 acres of virgin forest. Thirty buildings provide comfortable and adequate living quarters, class rooms and assembly halls. The mountains on the property rise to an altitude of 4,500 feet, giving wonderful opportunity for hikes and climbs.

This conference is under the direction of the different denominational boards in the United States and its leaders and teachers are selected from these different boards. It trains for missionary leadership in the local church; trains for leadership in all grades and departments, trains for service in larger religious groups. The subjects taught are: mission study, using this year the Jerusalem conference books which will be taught by teachers who attended the Jerusaleu conference; graded methods for primary, junior and intermediate pupils; Bible study, story telling, stewardship, dramatics, leadership courses for young people, recreation courses. The courses are planned for directors of religious education, mission study teachers, officers of Woman's Missionary societies, young people stewardship leaders, Sunday school teachers, Bible study teachers.

Special playgrounds under the supervision of trained playground directors and a kindergarten make it possible for mothers to attend the conference and bring heir children with them. Track and field sport, playground games, tennis, volley ball, baseball, swimming, auto trips, hiking and mountain climbing furnish the recreation.

Expenses are $5 registration fee and the board is according to accommodations furnished. Board and room for two in a room is $25, with bath is $36. Those attending should send registration fee to J. Swannanoa Group Plans Swimming Party Tuesday

The Swannanoa group of Decatur, of which Mrs. J. Howell Green is guardian, will hold a swimming party Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Avondale. The Kiunkata group, Mrs. D. C. Denmark guardian, is planting a flower garden at Bass Junior High school. The P.-T. A. is co-operating with this group in the flower project. At the last meeting of this group the Indian Chief Deerfoot and Eleanor Jane Taylor, the sponsor of the group, were honor guests. Atlanta Camp Fire Girls have concentrated efforts on the "do-nut" drive, and this week all groups are celebrating the leisure time in nature walks, week-end camps and overnight hikes until the camp opens. A splendid citywide program will take care of the summer activities for those girls not attending camp.

The girls' council of the Atlanta Camp Fire Girls meets at the home of the executive, Mrs. Laura V. Lombard, 1215 Virginia avenue, N. E., Monday afternoon, June 3, at 3 o'clock. A lovely social hour has been planned and every girl is urged to attend, bringing the scribes. At this meeting an Indian name will be selected for the council, and the paddle which the council will present to the chairman of the camp committee will bear the symbol of the council.

Mrs. Wilson's Class To Give Recital.

For Your Baby's Teething Troubles

Mother—when your child is fretful, colicky and crying from teeth coming through give your darling a few doses of "Pitts Carminative." It costs only a few cents at drug stores, but is as harmless as water. Pitts Carminative comes in a handy-sized bottle with complete directions and dose from 3 months old to 10 years. Pitts Carminative soothes fretful children, stops vomiting and strengthens their little stomachs.—(adv.)

Ruby Anniversary Chairman Speaks At B. W. M. U. Meeting in Forsyth

Mrs. Carter Wright, of Roanoke, Ala., ruby anniversary chairman for the recent Woman's Missionary Union of the Southern Baptist convention in Memphis, Tenn., who reported the result of the year's work. She will be one of the principal speakers at the Georgia B. W. M. U. convention, which will be held in Forsyth, June 11-13.

A feature of the publicity department of the Baptist Woman's Missionary Union of the state, which meets in annual session June 11-13, is the state-wide scrap book contest. The various associations of the state compile the newspaper articles, relating to Baptist woman's work of the association, division and state, for the current year and formulate them into an attractive book. In this way these books become valuable as records of the accomplishments and activities of Baptist women, in local societies and in the state, for the year.

Books to be entered in this year's contest, are to be mailed or carried to Miss Mary Lou Brown, Bessie Tift college, Forsyth. These books will be judged, by a committee appointed for this purpose, some time during the convention which meets at Bessie Tift college, June 11-13. Rules governing this contest were published in The Christian Index of June 6. A banner will be awarded the association entering the best book. The scrap book contest is under the direction of Mrs. L. O. Freeman, superintendent of publicity for the Georgia union.

Every Baptist woman in Georgia who can arrange to do so, should attend the annual convention at Forsyth. The rates for rooms and board at Bessie Tift college have been announced at $6.00 for the three days. Delegates from Atlanta can get a rate of $2.75 for round trip on the busses, which leave 148 Peachtree street, at 7 o'clock in the morning and nearly every two hours during the day both going and returning.

T. E. L. Class.

The T. E. L. class of the Druid Hills Baptist church, met Friday afternoon, May 24, with the president, Mrs. Alex Reeves in her home on East Lake Drive. The attendance was one of the greatest in the history of this large class. Mrs. M. L. Blankinship led the devotional, the subject being, "The Winesome Personality of Jesus."

Mrs. S. L. Astin sang "The Star," and "One Pleading Hour," accompanied by Mrs. Ruby Dela Perriere at the piano. "When Malindy Sings," and "I Don't Wanter" were read by Mrs. Frank Rogers, Mrs. R. A. Clark sang "Do You Know My Garden," and "A Birthday," accompanied by Mrs. R. L. Graves.

Last Sunday morning was home coming day in the T. E. L. class and there was a great attendance. Mrs. Iverson Case, social worker for Fulton county schools, made a very interesting report of her work, speaking especially of the work being done by the Georgia Baptist hospital in caring for the many helpless children she sends there. Mrs. M. K. Layton, teacher of the class, spoke on "The home coming of "Israel" of which Jeremiah prophesied.

Mrs. W. H. Peck, formerly of Atlanta, and now of New York City, teacher of two great Bible classes in her city, and one in Brooklyn, was present and spoke not only of the home coming of the Jews, which is now taking place, but of the greatest of all home-comings, the one of which Jesus spoke when he said: "I go to prepare a place for you . . ."

Miss Arrendall Describes Life At Good-Will Center

BY MRS. T. L. LEWIS.

Circle No. 8, of the Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist Women's Missionary Society, was entertained in the elegant home of Mrs. D. W. Key May 20. Mrs. J. W. Poyner, the chairman, presided. Splendid reports and offerings were given while we had the pleasure of listening to a piano solo by the daughter of the hostess, Mrs. W. S. Taylor, who is a gifted musician.

The speaker of the afternoon was Miss Allie Lee Arrendall, supervisor of the Andrew and Frances Stewart Good-Will center, who told in an interesting manner the many activities of this splendid institution.

The Baptist women were wise in their choice of Miss Arrendall, who has a strong appeal for little children, and sympathy for the working woman, who now feels sure of the safety of her child when she goes to her daily task. No part of the A. P. Stewart fortune has done and is doing more good than that which was given to these homeless children; we believe the donors have found their reward in this act of mercy.

Below is Miss Arrendall's report given in her own words:

"Let me live in the house by the side of the road and be a friend to man."

This is the motto of the Andrew and Frances Stewart Good-Will center, 816 Pelham street. At 6 o'clock in the morning as the mothers go to their work they bring the children, numbering between 40 and 60. One can hear their happy voices as they come again to their daily home. The other children have their work assigned to them which they perform very cheerfully before going to school. The undernourished children have cod liver oil and milk given to them. Some Sunday school classes as well as individuals make it possible for these to get their milk. The school children assemble for their devotional service at 7:40 o'clock. It is sweet indeed to hear them sing songs of praise, say Bible verses and pray for the sick and for those who give us all our good things.

We have club work similar to the W. M. U. organizations, Home-Makers' Club, Glad Girls' Club, Blue Birds, Sunshine, Daniels Club, Story Hour. In all of these the Bible has pre-eminence. We are indeed proud of one of our boys. When he first came to us he was so undernourished. After having tonsil and adenoid operation along with his tongue clipped he has grown into a normal child. It is a joy to hear him repeat the Bible verses. Now he says he is going to be a preacher.

Our prayer meeting is growing in interest. Much praise is given to George Southard who conducts our services for us. He is indeed a real spiritual man with a shepherd's heart who loves this community and has led many souls to Jesus. Through our nursery, clubs, clinics, prayer meetings we render services to the entire community.

Atlanta Law School To Give Dinner.

Outstanding among the several events attendant upon the concluding of the year for the Atlanta Law school will be the senior dinner to be given in the civic room of the Ansley hotel Wednesday evening, June 5, at 8 o'clock and will assemble approximately 60 members of the senior class, with their guests, for a final gathering prior to graduation exercises which will be held at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium the following evening.

President Otis Hathcock will preside at a speechless dinner. Several entertainment features will be presented by members of the senior class, and performers from vaudeville stages of the local theaters have been secured to add to the merriment of the occasion. Melvin E. Olsen is serving as chairman of the committee in charge, being assisted by O. F. Taylor, Charles V. Parham and C. E. Malloy.

Atlanta Hadassah Holds Meetings.

A board meeting of the Atlanta Chapter of Hadassah will be held on Monday morning, June 3, at 10 o'clock, at the Ampico hall.

The monthly meeting of the chapter will be held Tuesday, June 4, at the Jewish Women's Club, Washington and Clarke streets, at 3 o'clock. All members of the board will make reports. Election of officers will take place. Nominations can be made from the floor, besides those slated by the nominating committee.

A program and refreshments will follow the business meeting.

Methodist Women Will Conduct Cooking School

Mrs. A. P. Boardman, domestic science expert, will conduct a cooking school at Toccoa, Ga., June 3-7. This school will be under the auspices of the women of the First Methodist church of that city, and will be held at the Woman's Club. A number of unique prizes are to be given and delicious menus are planned each day.

Davies-Hall Class.

The Davies-Hall Bible class of Park Street Methodist church met Thursday. Mrs. Irene Sherard and Mrs. Helen Yarbrough were hostesses at the home of Mrs. Sherard on Stewart avenue. Mrs. L. V. Brigman gave a financial report for the past month and Mrs. Beulah Schubert gave a report on the social service work

A committee was elected to assist the ways and means committee to get funds for the social service work of the class. They were Mesdames Mildred Le Baron, L. W. Bradley, Irene Sherard, W. F. Converse, Nell Whatley, Ruth Carroll and Frank Jones.

Mrs. G. W. Corley and Mrs. Norma Naab were elected as new members on the welcoming committee. After the business was attended to the meeting was turned into a kid party. A Peter Rabbit contest was held and the prize was won by Mrs. Frank Micau. Many kid games were played with the hostesses as leaders.

Miss Gwendolyn Ramsey won the prize for the cutest kid. Judges were Mrs. Ruth Carroll, Mrs. Beulah Daws, R. G. Owensby and L. D. Sherard. Thirty-five guests were present.

Druid Hills.

June Day will be observed by the Missionary Society of the Druid Hills Methodist church on Monday, June 3, beginning promptly at 10:30 o'clock.

Mrs. R. K. Babbington, president, will preside and the outstanding numbers on the program are: A talk on "Broken Homes and Their Rebuilding," by Mrs. Curry, of the family welfare department; discussion of African homes by Mrs. Homer Sanford; devotional by Dr. Young, of Emory university, and a council symposium led by Mrs. W. A. Albright, first vice president of the North Georgia Missionary Society. Much interest centers in this part of the program as those taking part are prominent members who attended the meeting of the council in Washington, D. C., in March. Lunch will be served in the dining room of the church and the afternoon will be given over to the regular business session.

Park Street.

Circle No. 5 of Park Street Methodist church, Mrs. J. H. Merritt, chairman, and Circle No. 12, Mrs. Arthur Hale, chairman, met in a spend-the-day at the home of Mrs. Charles Tillman Thursday, May 30. The object of the meeting was to review the mission study book, "A New Africa." Mrs. Harry Hill, as superintendent of study for the Missionary Society, was in charge of the program. The following ladies took part: Mrs. H. G. McMillan, Mrs. C. D. Beeland, Mrs. D. M. Carey, Mrs. R. L. Ramsey, Mrs. DuPont Murphy, and Mrs. Susie Barrett. Lunch was served by Mrs. Tillman and Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. Frank Jones, Mrs. R. M. Brandon and Miss Jim Tillman. Both of these circles have their pledge money in hand for three-quarters of the year; have completed 37 shirts for Wesley Memorial hospital, and are going forward in a most gratifying way with the program for the year.

Briefly Told

Miss Mary Christian, newly-elected young people's leader of the Baptist W. M. U. of Georgia, arrived in Atlanta Thursday, May 30, and will be located in the Palmer building beginning her duties June 1.

Mrs. Julia V. Stewart, who has been acting young people's leader for some months, resumes her duties as field worker for Georgia B. W. M. U., and speaks Monday, June 3, at the Adairsville Baptist church.

Mrs. Una Roberts Lawrence, of St. Louis, Mo., mission study editor of the home board of the Southern Baptist convention, was in Atlanta last week, May 27-June 1 and made addresses at an associational woman's meeting at Ponce de Leon Avenue church, and also at the prayer service at First Baptist church.

Mrs. Paul Etheridge, vice president for the North Central division of B. W. M. U. of Georgia and Mrs. J. H. Zachry, young people's superintendent of the B. W. M. Atlanta P.-T. A. Council Re-elects Mrs. H. G. Parks President

Mrs. H. G. Parks was re-elected president of the Atlanta P.-T. A. council Wednesday morning at a meeting held at Ampico hall. Other officers elected were Mrs. J. Q. Hooper, first vice president; Mrs. P. E. Davenport, second vice president; Mrs. Fred Bridges, recording secretary; Mrs. D. N. Myers, treasurer, and Mrs. J. P. Wall, who was re-elected corresponding secretary. The nominating committee submitting the name for re-election was composed of Mrs. R. E. Jones, chairman; Mrs. D. C. Shephard, Mrs. W. B. Duvall, Mrs. J. E. Jackson, Jr., and Mrs. Willingham Smith.

Under the efficient leadership of Mrs. H. G. Parks for the past year the Atlanta parent-teacher work has been given nation-wide recognition.

The organization of the Morningside P.-T. A. with Mrs. T. C. Bozeman as president was announced by Mrs. Parks, this bringing the total associations in the city up to 50.

A motion passed was that a letter be written Dr. J. P. Kennedy asking that all dogs be muzzled.

A letter was read from Mrs. Joe Dan Miller, state president, thanking council for the flowers sent her while attending the national convention at Washington, D. C. Mrs. Miller's letter also stated she would move to Atlanta June 1.

Mrs. Parks urged every N. E. A. chairman to send report to her by Monday morning.

A motion passed was that a congratulatory letter be sent Boys' High for the recent military honors received for the third time, these honors coming from Washington, D. C.

The yearly reports were read by the chairmen as follows: Mrs. R. P. Smith, pre-school; Mrs. J. A. Beall, motion pictures; Mrs. Alvin Ferst, reading; Mrs. N. E. Russell, standard of excellence; Mrs. Charlie Brooks, Child Welfare Magazine; Mrs. Fred Boeing, thrift; Mrs. Homer L. Turner, citizenship; Mrs. Willingham Smith, milk; Mrs. J. E. Jackson, Jr., welfare; Mrs. Gaston Haskins, juvenile protection; Mrs. Percy L. Jones, timekeeper and parental education; Mrs. J. P. Wall, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. T. Loehr, endowment, and Mrs. H. A. Provano, publicity.

At the conclusion of these reports Mrs. Parks paid a beautiful tribute to her co-workers, stating that her regime would have been without progress had it not been for the loyal co-operation received by the chairmen and it is gratifying to know that most of these chairmen will continue their efforts during the summer months.

H. Reid Hunter, supervisor of high schools, spoke in behalf of the N. E. A. and following the adjournment of council Mrs. Paul Wolkin, chairman for the big P.-T. A. party to be held at Grant park for the N. E. A., conducted an hour of general discussion for this affair.

S. M. Inman P.-T. A. Installs New Officers at Meet

The Samuel Inman P.-T. A. met Tuesday afternoon. The yearly reports of the officers and chairmen were given, showing progress in all departments.

Very important was the reading of the new constitution and by-laws by Mrs. L. H. Williams.

City championship dodge ball pennants won by both the girls and boys of the fifth grade were displayed by Mrs. Albright, the principal.

The following new officers of the coming year were installed: Mrs. Alfredo Barili, Jr., president; Mrs. F. E. Maffet, first vice president; Mrs. J. J. Prendergrass, second vice president; Mrs. Alvin First, third vice president; Mrs. R. B. Davis, fourth vice president; Mrs. A. W. Crab, fifth vice president; Mrs. C. B. Williams, sixth vice president; Mrs. G. W. Ribble, seventh vice president; Mrs. R. E. Wise, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. H. Wenar, recording secretary; Mrs. Albert Kuhn, parliamentarian; Mrs. W. T. Daughtrey, treasurer; Horace Russell, auditor.

Tech High Reports Show Extreme Progress

Much progress was noted by the reports of the various committee chairmen of the Tech High P.-T. A. at its last meeting of the year Tuesday evening.

The election of officers for the coming year was held, all of whom will take office at the September meeting. The newly elected officers include Mrs. J. B. Morgan as president, who was re-elected after having served in that capacity for the past five months; Mrs. M. B. Hanna, first vice president; Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, second vice president; Dr. Witherspoon Dodge, third vice president; Mrs. J. B. Davies, fourth vice president; Mrs. H. H. Rochelle, fifth vice president; Mrs. John W. Fairey, recording secretary; Mrs. Alvin C. Kiser, corresponding secretary; Mrs. G. R. Macnamara, treasurer.

An interesting musical program arranged by Mrs. J. R. Bracewell, chairman of programs, was enjoyed. The members of the association had a part in rendering several songs appropriate for the final meeting. Mrs. M. B. Hanna offered several vocal selections. Principal W. O. Cheney said the year just drawing to a close might well be called the greatest year in Tech Hi's twenty years of auspicious history. In practically every field Tech Hi has excelled. The G. I. A. A. and the southern prep championship in football was won as also G. I. A. A. basketball trophy; winners of city prep pennant in baseball, for which they were presented with a silver loving cup, winning every match in city competition in tennis, city prep and Fifth district titles in debating, and Fifth district literary contest, runner-up in city prep swimming and golf meets.

Mrs. J. W. Fairey expressed thanks on behalf of the association to the principal and faculty for their co-operation, and presented to Mr. Cheney a handsome fountain pen and pencil set from the P.-T. A. executive board.

Mrs. J. B. Morgan thanked the executive board and entire association for the splendid co-operation given her for the past few months as president. Board meetings will be held during the summer months.

H. C. Savage urged 100 per cent co-operation from all patrons of the school in transporting the delegates of the N. E. A. Mrs. A. F. N. Everett, Mrs. J. R. Bracewell, Mrs. J. W. Fairey, Mrs. G. R. Macnamara and Mrs. M. B. Hanna were appointed as hospitality committee to assist in receiving and entertaining delegates.

Commercial High Honors Pupils.

C-1 pupils were the guests of the Commercial High P.-T. A. at a party given Monday afternoon. This class won the party for having the greatest percentage of parents members of the P. T. A. The salad course served was prepared by the girls of the cooking classes. Miss Marie Parks, faculty adviser; Mrs. T. A. Rivers, general chairman of P.-T. A., and Mrs. C. F. Printup, grade chairman, were honor guests at this occasion.

Pre-School Circle Holds Meeting.

The Pre-School Circle of Tenth Street P.-T. A. held its last meeting of the 1928-29 term in the school auditorium Tuesday. Dr. Charles Boynton, child specialist, gave an instructive talk, stressing the value of normal physical and mental growth and the ability of each child to make its own social adjustments.

Kirkwood Sponsors Welfare Work During Year

Kirkwood P.-T. A. met Tuesday afternoon in the school auditorium. The president, Mrs. F. T. Bridges, read a splendid report showing much walfare work accomplished. Kirkwood has sponsored innumerable outstanding activities during the past two years in home service, among them being a scholarship given at the State College of Agriculture, a young girl supported in a Nashville school for two years; free lunches given a number of children daily; response made to Red Cross calls and numerous other calls. A report from the convention in Savannah was read by Mrs. B. H. Sofge, who reported Kirkwood to be one of the superior organizations of the state. Announcements concerning plans for the entertainment of the N. E. A. were made. An enjoyable playlet, "Hansel and Gretel," was enacted by the High 2-1, Mrs. E. Long, teacher. A solo dance was given by Virginia Hendry. A definite program for the summer reading clubs as outlined for pupils by Carnegie library was announced by Mrs. E. L. Barlow.

The president thanked the grade mothers, lunchroom chairmen, chairmen of committees and all the association for their loyal support and co-operation. Mrs. Bridges, the retiring president, was presented a gift of monogrammed china from the association. The officers for the coming year are Mrs. B. H. Sofge, president; Mrs. H. C. Grant, first vice president; Mrs. W. H. Berry, second vice president; Mrs. T. M. Smith, recording secretary; Mrs. L. G. Dewberry, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Joseph Smith, treasurer.

The grade prizes for most mothers present at the May meeting were won by Miss Pearl Moore, Hgh 4-1, and Mrs. E. Long, Hifh 2-1.

North Ave. P.-T. A. Closes Successful Year of Activities

The North Avenue Presbyterian School P.-T. A. met Tuesday afternoon in Inman Hall, bringing to a close a most successful year of activities under the leadership of Mrs. C. E. Harrison, the retiring president.

A summary of the year's work includes: Improvement in the school grounds, new equipment added and donations to the Community Chest, Atlanta Red Cross, Community Home for Girls, and $5 for sewing baskets for girls at the Georgia Children's Home.

The finance chairman, Mrs. John H. Mullin, reported an income of $130.14 from paper sales and $175 from membership dues. The treasurer reported a balance of $123.14 in the bank.

A feature of the meeting was the announcement of the presentation of a large flag-pole to the school as the special offering of this year's administration.

Mrs. Paul Fleming, chairman of the school scrap book, exhibited a most interesting and artistic book full of clippings and photographs of the school's activities during the year.

A display of garments made by girls of the domestic science class, attracted favorable comment.

Mrs. Sinclair Jacobs gave an instructive and enthusiastic address on the cause and cure of war.

Mrs. C. E. Harrison, after expressing her appreciation of the co-operation of the mothers and teachers, introduced the incoming president, Mrs. Harry Alexander. Other officers will remain the same including Mrs. L. K. Starr, secretary; Mrs. Ralph Walker, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. S. Van Fleet, treasurer.

The superintendent, Miss Thyrza Askew, expressed the sentiments of the entire association in thanking Mrs. Harrison for her loyalty and devotion to the school during the past years of service, both as P.-T. A. president and as a mother of two graduates of the school.

Annie E. West P.-T. A. Reports Meet.

The Annie E. West P.-T. A. met Tuesday. Seventy-five mothers were present. After the reports of the chairmen, the financial secretary made a gratifying report showing a larger amount of money in the treasury than ever before in the history of the organization.

A short musical program was given. Mary E. Kilpatrick sang Wyoming. Robert Faires gave a cornet solo and Wilbur Wallace rendered a piano solo. Mrs. R. M. Barton read a beautiful Memorial Day tribute. Miss Bellamy, of the Girls Scouts, made an interesting talk about the activities for the summer. The feature of the afternoon was an address by Mrs. Parks, president of the P.-T. A. council. She spoke on "Motherhood and the Home." The count of mothers gave low one the prize.

Election of officers followed, all the former officers being elected, as follows: Mrs. T. B. Shaft, president; Mrs. E. M. Childrey, first vice president; Mrs. E. M. Barton, second vice president; Mrs. James Stone, secretary; Mrs. Cates, assistant secretary; Mrs. W. A. Davis, treasurer.

Grove Park Closes With Annual Daddies' Meeting

The annual daddies' meeting of Grove Park school was held Wednesday at the Fortified Hills Baptist church. An all-men's program was given by the daddies. Music was furnished by Mrs. Freeman Groover and her splendid orchestra. R. H. Ramsey, elementary supervisor for Fulton county schools, spoke interestingly on the co-operation of the homes and schools in the moral, spiritual, and educational trainng of the youth of today, and very forcefully pointed out how the public schools are the hope of America.

Informal talks were given by numbers of the daddies who pledged their co-operation and support to the cause of education in Fulton county, and the state of Georgia. Light refreshments were served by the daddies, who made excellent hosts to the large crowd assembled. The count of daddies present gave the attendance prize to Mrs. Brown's room, 7 A.

Peeples Street Meeting Featured By Yearly Reports

The Peeples Street P.-T. A. met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. J. Q. Hooper, president, presiding. An interesting feature was the community singing, directed by Miss Murray, teacher of the low sixth grade. Interesting yearly reports were read, of especial interest were the reports of the finance, pre-school and membership chairmen. The finance chairman, Mrs. S. R. Wilson, reported having made between four and five hundred dollars during the year. The membership chairman, Mrs. Richardson, reported 670 members, the largest enrollment in the history of the P.-T. A. Mrs. Egleston, pre-school chairman, reported several interesting meetings and the examination of pre-school children. Mrs. Luetje, publication chairman, gave a splendid report of the reading clubs and urged the children to join them again this summer. Mrs. Herzberg, citizenship and safety chairman, gave an interesting account of her many activities for the year. Mrs. Houston, motion picture chairman, also told of much work being done by the motion picture chairmen.

The corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. W. Mills, reported 400 cards and letters written during the year. Miss Ruby Jones, principal, spoke of the children's bank accounts and asked the parents if possible not to allow them to withdraw their savings to spend foolishly during vacation. She told of Peeples Street fifth and sixth grade children being invited to sing at the N. E. A. convention.

Officers for the year were elected as follows: Mrs. J. Q. Hooper, president; Mrs. M. Herzberg, first vice president; Mrs. T. E. Suttles, second vice president; R. L. Ramsey, third vice president; Mrs. C. W. Mills, treasurer; Mrs. Tom Foster, recording secretary; Mrs. H. C. Simmons, corresponding secretary; Mrs. M. A. Cooper, parliamentarian.

The following chairmen were appointed: Mrs. J. O. Hall, membership; Mrs. T. E. Suttles, program; Mrs. D. M. Goodlin, press; Mrs. H. H. Sullivan, hospitality; Mrs. S. R. Wilson, finance; Mrs. R. C. Luetje, publication; Mrs. A. W. Lynch, welfare; Mrs. Ira Campbell, motion picture and recreation; Mrs. E. A. Egleston, pre-school; Mrs. J. E. Alexander, chairman at large; and Dr. E. L. Flannigan, chaplain. The number for the cookbook was held by Mrs. G. C. Martin. The attendance prizes were awarded to Miss Price's room and Miss Callaway's room.

Morningside P.-T. A. Is Organized.

The Morningside P.-T. A. was organized by Mrs. H. G. Parks, president of the Atlanta P.-T. A. council, at the Morningside school, Monday, May 27, 1929. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. T. C. Bazemore; first vice president, Mrs. L. H. Sears; second vice president, Mrs. D. R. Longino; recording secretary, Mrs. J. B. Keiffer; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. J. Ellis; treasurer, Mrs. H. S. Estes. This is the 50th association in the Atlanta council.

Commercial P.-T. A. Honors Teachers.

The Commercial High School P.-T. A. gave a theater party Tuesday afternoon at the Georgia in honor of the 1928-29 graduating class and their teachers.

Kirkwood Home Makers Club Meets.

The Home Makers Club of Kirkwood met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. G. H. Aenchbacher, 138 Warren street, N. E. Mrs. E. R. Shivers, chairman of the garden committee, had charge of the program. Mrs. Horace Grant gave a very interesting article on dahlias. Mrs. W. P. Husey gave an instructive article on the cultivation of roses.

An enjoyable feature of the program was a reading by Mrs. Donnelly, "The Young Home Maker." The hostesses were Mrs. J. S. Mitchell, Mrs. C. A. King and Mrs. Fred Griffith.

Atlanta Conservatory Presents Pupils.

The Atlanta Conservatory of Music will present a series of recitals during this week from the departments of piano, voice and violin. The first taking place Monday evening, June 3, at 8:30 o'clock at Cable Hall. The entire series is open to the public.

Miss Hazel Wood will present her class of small children on Monday evening, June 3. Tuesday evening a certificate recital will be given by Esther Brown, violinist, pupil of Georg F. Lindner; Agnes Conley, soprano, pupil of Miss Mary Jane Lansing; Grace Nance, pianist, pupil of Miss Hazel Wood.

Miss Elizabeth Hopson will present a group from her piano class, including Irvin Greenbaum, Mariam Jones, Agnes Conley, Ward Duvall, Pauline Creech and Florence Shearer Wednesday evening, June 5. Thursday evening, June 6, Mrs. Mayme Shipley Ware will present her piano class.

P.-T. A. Council President's Annual Report Published

Mrs. H. G. Parks, president of the Atlanta Parent-Teacher Council, presented the innumerable accomplishments of that organization for the current year in the following report made Thursday at the council meeting held in Ampico hall:

"The pre-school forum has conducted a study class each month with Miss Martha MacAlphine, child specialist, as instructor. Under this department 1,040 children were examined in the summer roundup, showing an increase of 143 children examined over the 1928 record, with five per cent less defective. The 23 physicians participating in the examinations were paid an appreciation fee by the council. The 22 active pre-school associations have accomplished outstanding work and will carry on through the summer months.

"The chairman of children's reading has handled this department with great efficiency, co-operating with the Carnegie library national Good Book Week with exhibits of the schools on display at the library. This committee also participated in the book exposition. Mrs. Ferst reported all associations interested in the summer reading clubs, which is one of the outstanding activities in P.-T. A. work. Five associations have qualified as superior and seven as standards, these receiving recognition from both state and national. Child Welfare magazine subscriptions have increased to 590.

Thrift Committee.

"Active the entire year with rummage sales, banking, paper sales and the home budget, 'The Thrift Education' book having been supplied every association. Forty acres of trees have been saved by this department through paper sales, 19 associations being members of the Tree Savers Club. The value of the work of the milk fund committee is evidenced in the remarkable gain in weight of many of the children—a gain of from seven to eight pounds being reported by a large number. This committee has disbursed $515. Five schools have been supplied. One hundred children have been fed daily; this not covering the associations who have carried on this work independently.

"The citizenship committee under Mrs. Homer Turner has held instructive meetings each month, the broader definition of citizenship being expressed, and due stress being laid on citizens' duty to the government under the franchise.

"Parental education has made splendid progress in the short space of time it has functioned, being a new chairmanship appointed in January. The council has placed 90 volumes, 80 of which cover this subject, in the P.-T. A. department in Carnegie library. A leaders' class of 16 meet weekly to study this phase of the work. Five study groups are functioning in as many associations.

"Excellent work has been done by the recreation and safety department. Meetings have been held monthly, scrap books of every accident occurring to children in Atlanta have been compiled and a policeman secured to patrol a section of lonely wood through which children had to pass on the way to and from school. Policemen have been secured for dangerous crossings, co-operation with the Atlanta Safety council enabling this committee to be of valuable assistance in the recent home safety campaign.

Motion Picture Work.

"The motion picture department under Mrs. J. A. Beall has been reorganized in order to conform to state and national policies and has accomplished outstanding work, receiving special national recognition.

"The welfare department has been the means of keeping many children in school who otherwise could not attend. A shoe fund has also been created in this department.

"The publicity department report given was an eye-opener to those who thought publicity work easy.

"Juvenile protection chairman has functioned quietly and effectively, keeping through proper authorities children of compulsory age in school and co-operating with the juvenile protection probation in many ways.

"A substantial sum has been sent the Alice Hilbun endowment fund. A P.-T. A. department with nucleus of 90 volumes has been installed in Carnegie library, the first one of its kind in the south—full course on parental education in reference department with duplicates in circulating department.

"President has written 32 articles for the press on various P.-T. A. subjects—spoken at 32 meetings, the outstanding being the school of instructions in the fall, 400 in attendance. Co-operated with High's Museum of Art, Junior Red Cross, Atlanta Safety council, board of education, civic bodies, Y. W. C. A."

Moreland Elects Officers At May Meeting

Tuesday afternoon at the final Moreland P.-T. A. meeting for this year, members of the executive board read annual reports. The following officers, recommended by the nominating committee, were unanimously elected: Mrs. Marvin R. Woodall, president; Mrs. G. Lester Forbes, first vice president; Mrs. Charles Kern, second vice president; Mrs. Thomas W. Noel, recording secretary; Mrs. Harold LeVert, Jr., corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. C. Savage, treasurer. Members-at-large elected were: Mrs. O. B. Riddle, Mrs. M. L. Bush and Mrs. Jesse McMurry.

A recommendation of the executive board to appoint a committee to revise the constitution and by-laws of the Moreland association along national P.-T. A. lines was voted on and carried. Mrs. G. Cleve Webb was appointed chairman of that committee.

Miss Lillie Wurm, Moreland's principal, told of all the honors Moreland pupils have won this year. She displayed two silver loving cups—one won by Catherine Walker, best speller in the elementary grades of the Atlanta schools, and the other by the best girl's team in athletics on field day. She told of Moreland pupils having won second prize in the garden club's poster contest fourth prize in the Children's Book Week poster contest, and the boys of high sixth, 2, having won a plaque for class athletics throughout the year. Several buttons and small prizes were won by individual pupils of Moreland on field day. Miss Wurm also showed a certificate of membership in the Tree Savers' Club which was recently presented to Moreland school for having saved the equivalent of two acres of trees in old papers and magazines sold.

To assist in entertaining the National Education Association delegates, Mrs. Marvin R. Woodall, president, has appointed the following committee chairmen: Mrs. W. J. Hays, newspapers; Mrs. Fred Burruss, exhibits; Mrs. W. B. Cummings, fruit; Mrs. Harris Thurman, flowers; Mrs. D. W. Durden, transportation.

H. A. Mullines sang "Duna" and "The Love in Your Eyes," his accompanist being Bernard Owen.

Mrs. Woodall read a letter from Superintendent Willis A. Sutton mentioning some of the safety precautions taught the children in the schools and urging the parents to emphasize these during vacation, especially with regard to safety on the street.

Mrs. Woodall requested all parents of Moreland pupils to have physical defects in their children remedied during vacation and to send dental and health certificates with all children at the beginning of school in September. She also asked the mothers to remember that the Moreland P.-T. A. would meet the fourth Tuesday in the month next year.

The prizes for the largest attendance of mothers at the meeting were won by Miss Belle Cockrell's room, highest grades, and Mrs. Gertrude Cloud's, lower grades.

Mrs. Ganscow won the door prize—the "P.-T. A. Food Book."

Mrs. M. H. Berry Elected Head Of Faith P.-T. A.

The Faith P.-T. A. meeting Tuesday was marked by splendid reports from the chairmen and officers and an excellent program given by the faculty. Each teacher gave a short talk on the achievements of the year and Miss Wesley, the principal, read the "Composite Faculty Poem," each teacher having written a verse of this poem to one of her companion teachers. An inspiring report of the state convention was given by Mrs. M. H. Berry, secretary, bringing out the ideals of real P.-T. A. work.

Committees were appointed for the entertaining of the N. E. A. and plans were made to entertain the Colorado delegates at a tea at the Wren's Nest July 1. Mrs. M. H. Berry was appointed chairman of this occasion.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. M. H. Berry; vice president, Mrs. J. P. Wall; secretary, Mrs. R. D. Sherrill; treasurer, Mrs. R. A. McDonald; corresponding secretary, Miss Elizabeth Ramey.

Mrs. J. P. Wall, the retiring president, who has served as president for the past eight years, thanked the members and teachers for the splendid co-operation extended her during her years of service. It was with deep regret that the association accepted Mrs. Wall's declination to act as president again. Miss Wesley read a poem dedicated to Mrs. Wall, which expressed the sentiments of the P.-T. A. and as a token of appreciation Mrs. Berry presented Mrs. Wall with a beautiful cut steel mesh bag. Miss Ramey again won the prize for the most mothers.

Emory Kindergarten Presents Program.

Before a large audience of mothers fathers and friends the tiny tots of Emory kindergarten, under the direction of Mrs. W. L. Curry and Miss Annelou Curry, presented a delightful program recently. Little Miss Dorothy Dyrenforth announced the program: Little Miss Susan Garrett was cast as the Sleeping Princess, with Charles Waits in the role of the Prince and Nancy Quale as the witch. The children in the orchestra showed a remarkable sense of rhythm when they played several selections. The Shadow was presented by Bobbie Johnstone and Dick Snow. Little Misses Betty and Natalie Jennings, pupils of Miss Rogers' School of Dancing, gave a dance number. Miss Marguerite Sewell, teacher of music at the Druid Hills school, acted as accompanist.

Mother Goose pictures were shown in a large frame for the finale with Mrs. Curry acting as the Old Woman in the Shoe, with the entire group about her in costume in the shoe.

Mrs. Anne Bates Walsh presented the children with their certificates.

Atlanta School Children Plan Treasure Hunt for Summer

Hundreds of children in the Atlanta schools are already planning to follow the "treasure hunt" this summer. It is the entrancing idea of Miss Cox, the children's librarian at Carnegie library. The golden nuggets offered in the children's reading corner at Carnegie are as mysterious as those sought by John Silver and on Treasure Island, and the reward for finding them is a certificate that one has come to the end of a "quest," such as one of King Arthur's knights might have sought—successful!

Mothers are urged to enroll their children in the reading clubs being organized through the efforts of each P.-T. A. reading chairman. Books may be had for the asking, both from the state and the city libraries, if a child is enrolled. Reading chairmen are making up their rolls in scores of schools. If the P.-T. A. has no reading club in a school, the P.-T. A. president is requested to organize.

Mrs. George H. Slappey is chairman of the work in the fifth district, Mrs. Alvin Ferst, in the Atlanta council; Mrs. R. H. Lummus, in the Fulton county council; Mrs. J. B. Richards in DeKalb. Any of these women will assist in organization, as well as Miss Cox at the Carnegie, or Miss Wheatcroft in the state library at the capitol.

Mrs. Brown Shares Honors At Luncheon

Mrs. Foskett Brown, of Nashville, Tenn., national president of the Junior League of America, arrives Tuesday to visit Miss Margaret Nelson, president of the Atlanta Junior league, and shares honors with Mrs. William Jay McKenna, of Boston, Mass., first president, and organizer of the local league, at the luncheon given Tuesday, June 4, at the Piedmont Driving Club. Around these prominent young women centers unusual interest, as Mrs. Brown is the first southerner to hold the chief executive's office in the national organization. She was Miss Frances Dudley, of Nashville, and was a great belle and beauty.

Mrs. Charles H. Black, Jr., is luncheon chairman, and Miss Nelson will preside over the business session, turning the gavel over to Mrs. John Knox, the new president, at the close of the session. The corps of incoming officers includes Mrs. Charles Orme, first vice president; Mrs. Edward Van Winkle, Jr., second vice president; Mrs. Humphrey Wager, treasurer; Mrs. Bolling Jones, recording secretary, and Mrs. Robert L. Foreman, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. McKenna as Miss Isolene Campbell, was the organizer and the first president of the Atlanta Junior league. After a visit to New York, where she had the opportunity to come in contact with the work of the New York Junior league, she was inspired to create a similar organization in Atlanta. In 1915 she interested a group of about 30 Atlanta girls in taking up some organized philanthropic work. Mrs. McKenna served as president of this group for two years and was a moving spirit in the development of the Junior league of this city. It is as "honorary president for life" that the members of the Atlanta Junior league will welcome her.

Miss Eugenia Snow Honors Miss Walker.

Miss Eugenia Snow gave a tea Saturday afternoon at her home on Seventeenth street in honor of her cousin, Miss Margaret Walker, of New York. Receiving with the hostess and honor guest were Mrs. G. D. Snow, Mrs. T. B. Conner, Miss Helen Parker, Miss Marion Clark and Miss Margaret McCarty.

Assisting in the entertainment of the guests were Misses Flossie Hill, Ann Alston, Margaret Holcomb, Peggy Alston, Betty Blalock Black, Eleanor Gray, Elizabeth L'Engle and Katharine Wilcox.

Miss Sarah Smith and Brian Merry Wed at North Avenue Presbyterian

A prominent social event, and of interest to society in Atlanta and Augusta, was the marriage of Miss Sarah Falconer Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Frank Smith, and Brian Merry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Merry, of Augusta, taking place June 1, at North Avenue Presbyterian church, at 8 o'clock. Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a fashionable assemblage of relatives and friends. Madonna lilies arranged in vases starred the altar which had for its artistic background stately palms and ferns, while seven-branched candelabra held white tapers. A musical program was rendered before the entrance of the bridal party, the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" being played as a processional, while Mendelssohn's wedding warch was rendered for the recessional. A program of appropriate music was rendered before the entrance of the bridal party. Mrs. E. Deloney Sledge, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore a gown of orchid chiffon, and carried a bouquet of Claudia Pernet roses, showered with valley lilies. Miss Frances Barnett, wearing yellow chiffon, Miss Alice Flenniker, of Knoxville, Tenn., gowned in ciel blue chiffon; Miss Nancy Simpson, wearing green chiffon, and Miss Frances Cooper, gowned in violet chiffon, formed the bevy of charming bridesmaids. Their costumes were fashioned in the fashionable model, longer in the back than in front, and they carried bouquets of pastel shaded flowers.

Lovely Bride.

The lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her father, W. Frank Smith, wore an exquisite costume of flesh pink chiffon, the bouffant skirt being longer in the back than in front, and the semi-tight fitting waist being trimmed across the back with two rows of rose point lace, meeting in a V in the front of the bodice, the lace having been worn by Mrs. Smith when as Miss Alice Coffin, a belle and beauty of Knoxville, Tenn., she married the bride's father in 1900. The flesh tulle veil was caught to the bride's hair by cap-shaped tulle, and tiny orange blosoms banded the folds. She carried a bouquet of valley lilies, showered with lilies, and tied with flesh tulle. Her slippers were of the same shade of flesh pink satin. Mr. Merry had for his best man his brother, Pierce Merry, of Augusta, and the ushers and groomsmen included W. Frank Smith, Jr., brother of Miss Smith; E. Deloney Sledge, Jr., Kenneth Merry and Guy Merry, of Augusta, brothers of the groom, and his cousin, Ernest Merry, Jr., of Augusta.

Informal Reception.

An informal reception followed the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Smith on Anjaco road, pink roses, snapdragons, Madonna lilies and palms being used in the artistic decorations. The members of the bridal party and out-of-town guests were the only ones entertained at this informal affair. Mrs. Smith was gowned in black chiffon combined with white chiffon, and beaded in crystal. She wore a shoulder bouquet of orchids and valley lilies. Mrs. Arthur H. Merry, of Augusta, mother of the groom, was gowned in blue chiffon, and her flowers were orchids and valley lilies. Mrs. Troup Miller, of Washington, D. C., maternal aunt of the bride, wore a gown of jade green chiffon and a corsage of orchids.

Wedding Journey.

Mr. and Mrs. Merry are on their wedding journey, a motor trip through North Carolina and the Shenandoah valley of Virginia. The bride traveled in a smart two-piece model of blue and gray crepe de chine, topped by a blue woolen coat, and her hat was a French model of blue felt. They will make their home in Augusta after July 1.

Among the out-of-town guests attending the Smith-Merry wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Merry, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Merry, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Merry, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Merry, Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Merry, of Augusta; Miss Annie Hamilton, of Hartford, Conn.; Mrs. Troup Miller, of Washington, D. C., and Miss Alice Flenniker, of Knoxville, Tenn.

Mrs. Merry is a graduate of Agnes Scott college, and is a young woman of most engaging and charming personality. Mr. Merry is a graduate of Tech, where he received a B. S. degree in architecture and is a member of the S. A. E. fraternity. He is associated with Scroggs and Ewing, Augusta, architects.

Mrs. Sciple Arrives Today For Visit.

Mrs. Charles M. Sciple and children, Charles M. Sciple, Jr., and Mary Louise Sciple, arrive today from Havana, Cuba, to spend several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Sciple, at their home on Peachtree street.

Mr. and Mrs. Sciple have been residing in Cuba for the past two years and have been exceedipgly popular in society in the capital of the Pearl of the Antilles. This is their first visit to their former home since taking up their residence in Havana and will be cordially welcomed here.

Charles Sciple, Jr., will enter a Canadian camp the latter part of June, and Mr. Sciple, who is in New York at present, will join his family in Atlanta next week.

European Travelers Are Honored.

Miss Frances Grant was hostess at a bridge-tea Saturday at the Biltmore hotel as a farewell compliment to Mrs. Will Williamson and Mrs. Rolf Donald, who leave June 10 for Europe. Bridge was enjoyed on the terrace of the hotel. Following the game tea was served at the individual tables. Miss Ruby Whitley assisted Miss Grant in entertaining.

Invited to wish the honorees bon voyage were the members of the Beta Sigma Club, including Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. Donald, Miss Ruby Whitley, Miss Myrtle Bolsuis, Miss Rosalie Cheatham, Miss Roselyn Morgan, Miss Frances Grant, Miss Frances Willard, Miss Peggy Osborne, Miss Louise Fife, Miss Billie Clarke, Miss Hazel Rutherford, Miss Kathleen Mitcham, Mrs. B. Miss Stanton Honors Mrs. W. J. Toland.

Miss Elizabeth Stanton was hostess at a luncheon Saturday at the Atlanta Biltmore in compliment to Mrs. Walter Jackson Toland, a recent bride, who was, before her marriage, Miss Virginia Moss.

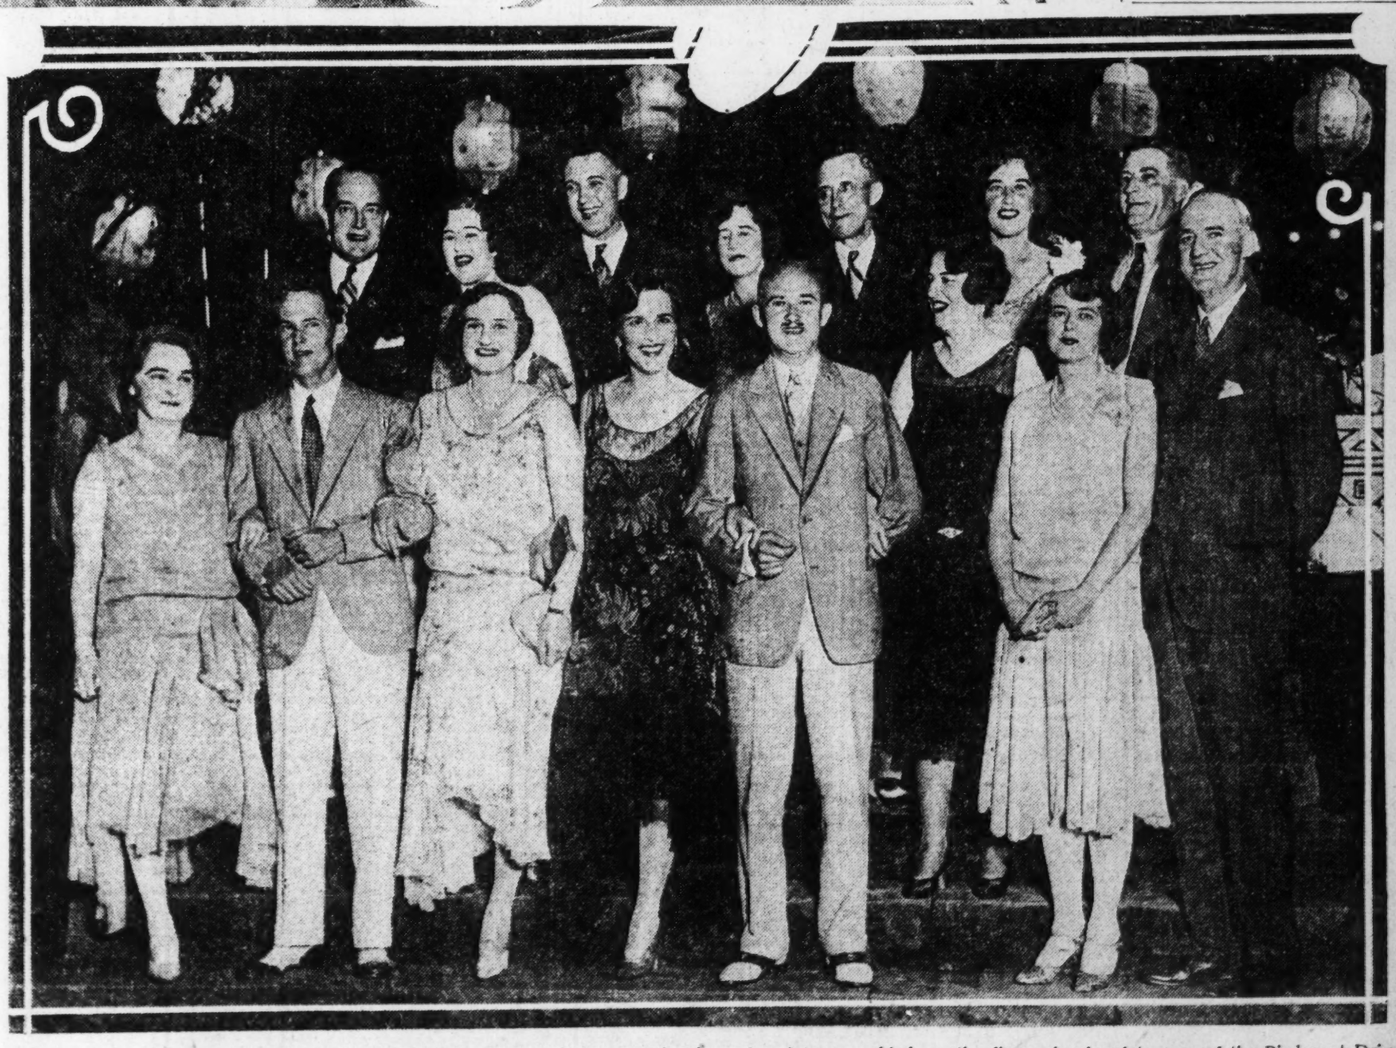

Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock on the terrace of the hotel overlooking the sunken gardens. Gracing the center of the table was a basket filled with pink roses and lavender sweet peas. Dainty hand-painted place cards marked each guests's place.

Covers were placed for Mrs. Toland, Mrs. K. D. Waddell, Mrs. Albert Happholdt, Miss Alice Sullivan, Miss Margaret Moss and Miss Stanton.

Mrs. Atkinson Entertains at Club.

Mrs. Spencer Atkinson will entertain a group of friends at an informal tea Saturday at the Piedmont Driving Club, complimenting Mrs. David S. Atkinson, of Savannah, Ga., who is in the city with Mr. Atkinson.

Covers were placed for Mesdames Atkinson, A. J. Orme, William Huger, M. Gray Zalinski, Colquitt Carter, Shepard Bryan, Henry Johnson, Louis Jones, Jere Osborne, Clyde Walker, Blanche Devine Evans and the hostess.

The upper photograph on the feature page today presents a panoramic view of society assembled on the flower-bordered terrace of the Piedmont Driving Club at the formal summer opening held last Tuesday evening. A group of prominent club members and their wives attending the brilliant dinner-dance are included in the lower photograph. On the front row, from left to right, are Mrs. Ewell Gay, Winship Nunnally, Mrs. Brooks Morgan, Mrs. Winship Nunnally, Dr. Jere D. Osborne, Mrs. Rucker McCarty, Mrs. J. D. Osborne and Westerfelt Terhune. The back row, left to right, includes Dr. Glenville Giddings, Mrs. Glenville Giddings, Rucker McCarty, Mrs. Robert Troutman, Brooks Morgan, Mrs. Westerfelt Terhune and Ewell Gay. The photographs are the work of William Mason, staff photographer.

Foreword of Club Institute Gives Miss Plumley as Director

The seventh annual session will be held at the University of Georgia Summer school, July 17, 18 and 19, and the director will be Miss Emily Louise Plumley, president of the Connecticut Federation of Women's Clubs, also president of the Council of Presidents in the General Federation of Women's Clubs and director for Club Institute of Georgia in 1928.

The program committee includes Mrs. A. H. Brenner, president; Mrs S. V. Sanford, Mrs. R. K. Rambo, Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, Dr. Stewart and Club Institute chairman, who select the speakers to assist in the discussions. Miss Plumley's program carries on in the constructive work already begun last year. The institute of Public Affairs and International Relations will be in session at the summer school for two weeks, including the three days of club institute.

Since women's clubs are said to be the largest organized body of women in the world, and organized in many parts of the world, the opportunity to hear speakers of national and international reputation and learn of problems confronting other lands, the institute will give a world-wide vision of service. The meetings will be held in Memorial Hall, morning and afternoon. A registration fee of $1 is required and carries with it the privilege of attending all summer school entertainments for the three days. Hotels will give special rates to clubwomen where more than one occupies a room—also club breakfast and dinner.

The usual courtesy of a luncheon both days will be extended—17th, guests of the University of Georgia Summer school; 18th, guests of Georgia College of Agriculture, and on the 19th, guests of Georgia State Teachers' college. The railroads will give special rates of a fare and a half with a certificate, which Dr. Stewart will send on application.

Mrs. Edith O'Keefe Susong, of Greenville, Tenn., president of the Tennessee Federation of Women's Clubs, was asked the question "Why is a clubwoman? Replying, she said, in part: "The girl child is born with the inherent impulse to clean. She will carry this passion for cleanliness into her home, to her children and to her community. It is a part of a woman's endowment. Nothing can keep her from wanting to make the world a fit place to keep house in."

The desire to learn and be instructed in effective club work is the answer to club institute. The marked increase in attendance each year has been most gratifying. The fame of Georgia's Institute for Clubwomen has grown beyond the borders of the state. A large attendance in July seems assured. To the women of the state, we extend a cordial invitation to attend this short period of study where you will find a large number of women earnestly seeking ways and means to make life better at home and abroad.

MRS. CHARLES M. SNELLING,
Of Athens; Chairman Club Institute.

Cedartown Woman's Club Closes Successful and Satisfactory Year

Cedartown Woman's Club, with Mrs. M. J. Hale as president, has just closed a successful and most satisfactory year. The first meeting of the year in September, began the program of giving and doing. In October the club gave a four-course dinner at the Right house, to which all members were guests. In place of the usual Christmas bazar the club membership was divided into working groups, each choosing its own way of earning money.

Many Benefits.

Bridge benefits, candy and rummage sales were the means of adding $180.20 to the treasury. In November we entertained our district president, Mrs. Hague, of Marietta, whose interesting and inspiring address was much appreciated. In April the club entertained Rockmart Woman's Club and all the county clubs organized by our county demonstrator, Miss Zelia Phillips. The guest of honor was the district vice president, Mrs. L. C. Waldrop, of Tallapoosa. Musical programs were furnished at both meetings and refreshments served. The club gave the county demonstration agent, Miss Zelia Phillips, money for one scholarship for the state normal at Athens, and contributed $10 to the Tallulah Falls school; also $10 to students' aid.

Gives to Fund.

The club gave $10 to the fund being raised to send our superintendent of schools, J. E. Parks, to the international convention in Switzerland.

A box was sent to the inmates of the Milledgeville sanatarium. Last year we gave $750 for the building of both houses at the Kiwa swimming pool in Peek's Forest Park. This year the club is providing tables for picnic parties, a barbecue pit, and playground equipment for children. The Harpst home was given $166.75. A prize of $5 was offered for the yard exhibiting the greatest improvement.

Miss Annie Brumby, county school superintendent was awarded the prize, being responsible for the great improvement in the courthouse grounds.

Mrs. J. H. Sanders took entire charge of the sale of T. B. stamps, netting the club $80. The members enjoyed a course of five lectures on the government of the United States, also one on health by our city physician.

Wymodausis Club Celebrates Eighth Anniversary at Luncheon in Valdosta

The annual Dutch luncheon of the Wymodausis Club has become an auspicious recurrence in Valdosta and its eighth anniversary was held in the Valdes hotel parlors. The guests assembled in the parlors, and upon the announcement of luncheon, Mrs. Frank Smith played a processional by which members entered the dining room. The decoration was most convincing in its profuse use of club colors, both in the floral effects and the appointments of the tables. It was pleasing to note the artistic and generous use of pink roses, coral vine and several varieties of fern in their receptacles of green glass; also pink lighted tapers with arrangements of green. The Dutch windmill place cards were reminders, and pink baskets contained green colored mints. An additional note was the use of green glass on the tables. The luncheon was under the direction of Mrs. Fred Brown and committee, and piano selections were rendered by Mrs. Richard Parrish.

Interesting Program.

Mrs. R. A. Peeples, Sr., chairman of entertainment stated that one of the original purposes of the Dutch luncheon was to provide an opportunity for the members to hear reports from the federation convention or council, and such reports would therefore constitute the larger part of her program. But before going into that phase of it, she presented Miss Louise Lastinger, an expression student at G. S. W. C., who gave a humorous monologue entitled "The Pudding," as arranged by May Isabel Fiske. Mrs. Peeples introduced Mrs. W. W. Jones, of Tampa, a distinguished club woman of that city; Mrs. Jones made a happy, appropriate response.

Miss Lastinger was called upon, and favored the guests with several readings.

Report Council Proceedings.

Mrs. W. S. West and Mrs. O. K. Jones, having been delegates to the council were the speakers and each of these gave a splendid account of the council's proceedings, and were generous in their praises of Gainesville as a hostess city.

Mrs. West is a trustee of Greater Tallulah, and her report covered the day spent at this school. It was on the twentieth anniversary of its founding, and told of its market progress of growth from one building and twenty-six children to eleven buildings, 265 children, 250 acres of land and a property valuation of $250,000. As the speaker saw the situation, the greatest present need of the "Light of the Mountains" or "The Heart of the Federation" is an agricultural department for boys.

Mrs. Jones gave a resume of the business of the council. Some of the speakers of note who passed on valuable club ideas as well as reviewed the accomplishments of the federation, were Mrs. A. H. Brenner, state president; Mrs. Garrison, a prominent club woman of Arkansas; Dr. A. J. Soule, of the department of agriculture of Athens; Mrs. G. V. Cate, of Brunswick. Mrs. Jones spoke of the night of delightful entertainment furnished by Brenau students and faculty as a most artistic program.

Seventh District President Gives Splendid Account of Breakfast

BY MRS. HERBERT E. HAGUE
Of Marietta, Seventh Dist. President.

In thinking over the recent wonderful meeting held in Gainesville, the district presidents' breakfast comes back to me as one of the outstanding events of the week, and I think that is not only because of the beautifully appointed table and delicious repast, banquet I almost said, the grace and charm of our hostess, Mrs. Flanigan, of Winder, acting president of the ninth district, but mostly because of the intimacy and the fact that all district presidents have the same problems, no matter how much we hear to the contrary. There were eight guests other than the 12 district presidents, Mrs. Brantley, Mrs. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. David Woodward, our own Mrs. Sanford, Miss Rosa Woodberry, Mrs. Garrison, of Arkansas; Mrs. M. L. Judd, Mrs. Brenner. Mrs. Flanigan gave a beautiful address of welcome, in which she remarked that we were brought together by common cords of work and sympathy, with each striving for a full rounded club life for our districts.

Mrs. Sanford Responds.

This was responded to by Mrs. Sanford, who referred to the district presidents as 12 strong columns, standing for strength, beauty and symmetry. She urged simple procedure to avoid delays and asked each woman to carry back to the club her love and co-operation. Mrs. Brantley, director for Georgia in the general federation, spoke on the broad common sense of the women higher up—that they realized the needs of each individual club, and that she as our director must bring back to us the measures discussed by them, at the same time assuring us that the individual club member should be urged to express her views that all may work in accord.

Old Custom.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick demonstrated the old New Orleans custom of breaking bread, and as chairman of the Tallulah Falls luncheon, invited all to break bread with our children at the school and told of the wonderful gifts that had been made toward the luncheon. Mrs. David Woodward spoke on the memorial to Mrs. Wey and paid a lovely and loving tribute to that dear friend of the girls who apply to the student aid fund—that they may go through college. Many problems were talked over at that time and only the fact of limited time to get to the convention prevented everyone from speaking, but a tribute of appreciation to our hostess brought the breakfast to a close with the feeling that we understood better and sympathized more with each other.

Mrs. Tift Heads Twentieth Library.

The Twentieth Library Club of Tifton recently elected the following officers for 1929-30: President, Mrs. H. H. Tift; first vice president, Mrs. N. Peterson; second vice president, Mrs. W. E. Chandler; recording secretary, Mrs. C. H. Smoke, corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. E. Mosely; treasurer, Mrs. C. R. Dyer; auditor, Mrs. W. W. Bryan; parliamentarian, Mrs. D. M. Braswell; press reporter, Miss Leola Greene; librarian, Miss Lolla Holder.

Mrs. Dorsey Heads Marietta Woman's Club

At the annual meeting of the Marietta Woman's Club, held in the club house auditorium, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. J. T. Dorsey; first vice president, Mrs. A. D. Little; second vice president, Mrs. Hiram Mozley; recording secretary, Mrs. C. A. Keith; corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. R. Gatlin; treasurer, Mrs. George Northcutt, and historian, Mrs. Alice Brown.

The club is planning to hold regular meetings during the summer, with semi-social programs suitable for the warm days. The July program will probably feature an open forum on raising perennials from seed, August being the month when much of this work should be done.

Winder Club Holds Meeting In M. E. Church

The Winder Woman's Club met May 22 at the First Methodist church with the president, Mrs. R. H. Kimball, presiding, and opened with the song, "Georgia Land." The pledge to the flag was led by Mrs. Mildred Pledger, secretary, and the club collect was read. Mrs. John Carrington, chairman of child welfare, gave an interesting yearly report of the work done in this department. Mrs. G. W. de Laperrine, treasurer, reported $1,480.60 in the treasury.

Mrs. W. L. de Laperrine, membership chairman, reported the name of Mrs. Guy Thurmond, of Statham, for membership in the club. Mrs. A. D. McCurry gave an interesting report of the biennial meeting at Gainesville, Ga. One outstanding point of her report was the "zoning and planning law" brought out at this meeting. The Choral Club sang "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia." Mrs. Rubye Eberhardt introduced Judge Garland Watkins, of the juvenile court of Fulton county. He made an eloquent address and told the mothers that there was great work to do for the juniors.

Mrs. Barrow Is Hostess At 20th Century Club

Mrs. T. B. Barrow was hostess to the Twentieth Century Club, of Boston, at the club's last meeting for 1928-29 club year. The meeting will go down as one of outstanding importance in the history of the Twentieth Century Club. There was almost a unanimous answer to roll call, with several associate members and visitors present.

A call for miscellaneous business from the president brought up several important discussions, among which was the continued requests from our citizens to the council to cut our lovely oaks that grow on our streets. The club went on record as against cutting another one unless it was shown that it was ruining property or was so near dead that it could not be saved. A committee was appointed by the president to go to the council and enter protest and to co-operate with council about this matter, the committee was composed of the following ladies: Mrs. J. A. Horn, Mrs. James A. Mallette, Mrs. H. M. Groover, Mrs. J. J. Parramore, Mrs. Sam Cook.

The health committee was asked to go before the mayor and ask that he have all property owners of vacant lots in the town cut the weeds and growth on account of mosquitoes and snakes. It was also called to our attention that those carrying flowers to cemetery leave water there indefinitely thereby causing that section of town to be infested with many mosquitoes. A request was made that we remember that in the future and go back and empty urns and pitchers that stay there permanently.

It was shown by the treasurer's report and chairmen of standing committees that every committee had done excellent work during the year not only in their department, but had made quite a nice sum for our treasury, and that we went into our summer vacation with small balance in each division but that a balance was still due on the piano which the club had purchased during the year, and president ask committees to try to raise balance during the year before club meets in October.

The following ladies will serve as chairmen of standing committees during the 1929-1930 club year: Library, Mrs. J. J. Parramore; program, Mrs. L. L. Lundy; American homes and education, Mrs. H. G. Norton; public health, Mrs. Eugene Mickle; music and fine arts, Mrs. H. M. Groover; highway and civics, Mrs. R. W. Adams; junior membership, Mrs. J. A. Horn; entertainment, Miss Gussie Forrest; house committee, Mrs. T. B. Barrow; membership, Mrs. J. A. Mallette; garden committee, Mrs. D. R. Adams; war veterans, Mrs. J. W. Taylor; librarian, Miss Carolyn Harmon; publicity, Mrs. E. L. McKinnon. The chairmen of the standing committees form the Junior Woman's Club will serve with the chairman of each committee from the Twentieth Century Club during this time.

Mrs. C. F. Groover presented a program composed of the following numbers: A paper changing condition in the home, by Mrs. O. F. Jones; vocal number, by Miss Brewton; instrumental duet, by Miss Etheridge and Miss Mary Way Rogers; a poem, "How We Played the Game," by Mrs. C. F. Groover. A report of the council meeting of the Georgia Federation held at Gainesville was given by Miss Mildred Bradshaw. This was very interesting and Miss Bradshaw gave a very detailed report of the junior night at which our Junior Woman's Club was awarded the gavel for the most outstanding work done during the year and reported at this meeting, the work of our juniors is outstanding in many ways and the club feels very proud of them. We feel that too much credit cannot be given our junior committee for their untiring work during the past year with the girls. They are building a firm foundation on which many club leaders will rely in the future.

Miss Emily Plumley To Conduct Federation's Club Institute

Miss Emily Plumley, president of Connecticut Federation of Women's Clubs, who conducts the Georgia federation's club institute in July at the summer school of the University of Georgia.

Mrs. D. A. Howard's Article On "Gardens Fair" Interests Clubwomen

Mrs. D. A. Howard, of Hartwell, read the following article on "Gardens Fair," at a meeting of the Hartwell Woman's Club:

First Garden.

"God Almighty planted the first garden. Since the day when He made to grow in that marvelous garden fair every tree that is pleasant to sight, since the time when He placed a river in Eden to water His wondrous garden, since the day when He walked therein in the cool of the evening, garden lovers and garden makers have been treading in royal, sacred footprints. Down through the ages, the records show, these beauty spots have existed almost continuously since that first garden. Here and there, through the printed pages, we catch glimpses of them, gleaming like Aladdin's lustrous gems. King Solomon's garden was a thing of beauty, as was the garden of Cyrus of Persia. Herodotus tells of the glories of the hanging garden of Babylon which is counted as one of the world's seven wonders. Four acres in extent at its base, it was built in stories and planted with rarely beautiful shrubs and flowers. Human skill combined with fabulous wealth made this dessert place, in the long ago, to blossom as a rose. During the dark ages, gardening, like all other arts, languished, but with the Rennaissance of learning and the invention of printing, it was revived. As each country has made individual contribution to the world of arts and letters, so has each influenced in a peculiar way the art of gardening down to the present day.

"The Italians' gardens, which flourished under the patronage of Medicive, did not depend on floral ornamentation for their chief beauty; they were most appreciated for their architectural embellishments. Often they were built on three levels, of which the sunken garden of today is an outgrowth. The French gardens, of which Versailles laid out in the seventeenth century, is a notable example, paid much attention to vistas and plants and trees were pruned to formal outlines. Of the three, the English is the most satisfying, existing for its flowers and though not entirely devoid of architectural features, the masonry was yet softened by an abundant display of flowering plants. It is from the English that we derive the greatest inspiration for our own.

American Gardens.

Though America, heretofore, has not emphasized her gardens, the germ has been present though largely dormant, since our pilgrim fathers brought over the roots of flowers that were dear to their hearts and made them hereditary in a new land. Individual makers and lovers of gardens, we have had, but as a nation, we have not turned to gardening. This is due, perhaps, to a large extent, to the comparative youth of your country, for Sir Frances Bacon said in his essay on gardening, "A man shall see that when a people grow to elegance, they come to build stately sooner than to garden finely, as if gardening were the greater perfection." In 1843, Emerson wrote, "I think it will soon become the pride of the country to make gardens," and now 85 years later, our country is becoming, if I may coin the word, garden minded. Glance at the club pages of any of the Sunday newspapers for conclusive proof of this fact. Very much is being said today concerning the idle time and the idle money of the American people, concerning the impatience and restlessness and the mad rush for pleasure that is consuming our country as a disease. To me, it is a very happy omen that the pendulum of our activity is swinging gardenward. In the annual presentation of the subject of gardening before the Woman's Club, I believe the precedent has been to have a discussion of the technique of gardening. That phase of it, I shall not touch. The subject is too big for an adequate discussion in the limited time. Those interested in building gardens fair, may seceure expert advice on their individual garden problems by consulting the home demonstration agent, and books on any phase of gardening may be secured from the state library commission in Atlanta.

Bacon once said, "Gardening is the greatest refreshment to the spirit of man," and Emerson laughingly declared that "a brave scholar should shun a garden like gambling and should take refuge in cities and hotels from the pernicious enchantments." He never did, however. He gardened for the same reason that most garden lovers do; he couldn't help it. He found it refreshing and invigorating physically, mentally, and spiritually. "My good hoe," he said, "as it bites into the ground avenges my wrongs and I have less lust with which to bite my enemies. By smoothing out rough hillocks, I smooth out my temper, and by extracting the long roots of grass, I draw out my own splinters, and in a short time, I hear the bobolinks' song, and see the deluge of light and color that rolls around me." And gardens today recreate us when we are worn mentally, physically and spiritually. The put us in tune with our fellow man, and they put us in tune with God. If you have ever stood, silent and awed before some snow-covered cedar, if you have ever paused in breathless admiration before the startling beauty of a blossoming peach tree, you must have realized that God the Father is a lover of beauty and I think that in the making of gardens fair, we become His fellow workers. He draws very near to His children in a garden and in a peculiar way, we can "Speak to Him there

For He hears us and spirit with spirit may meet,
Closer does He come than breathing
And nearer than hands or feet."

"From a material standpoint, we need to build better gardens. It will advertise our section and enhance the value of property. Los Angeles, Calif., has recently sprung into the limelight again by virtue of a program of extensive planting of wild flower seed on the barren places about town. An army of Boy Scouts did the actual planting. Civic clubs and individuals contributed to the seed planting fund and public spirited citizens gave their labor to the cause. Georgia has unlimited possibilities as to her soil and sunshine and showers. We need to capitalize these acres of diamonds and the clubs of Georgia need to so unite and so work that we can each come to say, with apologies to Kipling in his Sussex-by-the-sea, "God gave all men all earth to love, but since our hearts are small,

Ordained for each one spot should prove beloved over all.
Each to his choice, and I rejoice the lot has fallen me.
The fairest land, the fairest land, Georgia land shall ever be."

"Spring is already coming radiantly down our land, but some cold dreary days yet remain. For the finest indoor sport imaginable, secure a flower catalog, inspiring, enchanting things they are, and with pencil and paper plan your garden. As you work you will become so enthralled that though the March winds may blow with lion like fury, and the rain may fall in a deluge, to you, garden lover, the rain is not, and the wind is not, and it is June, and you are standing knee deep in ragged robin, and petunias, and larkspur and snapdragon.

Kipling in his matchless l'Envoi has expressed his conception of heaven thusly:

"Those that are good," he says, "shall be happy.
They shall set in a golden chair, and splash at a ten-league canvas with brushes of camel's hair."

I don't know how you feel about it, but that isn't my conception of heaven.

Dr. B. D. Ragsdale, of Macon, has expressed his ideas and mine in "Hollyhocks."

"The streets of heaven, I've been told,
Are paved with brick of solid gold.
The walls are built of precious stones
And poverty's a thing unknown.
No thundershowers enter there
And every day is dazzling fair.
Yet strangely I have never heard
A flower mentioned, or a bird
And I think that I should tire
Of playing on a golden lyre
So if there's room along the walks
I think I'll plant some hollyhocks
As soon as they begin to grow
I'll tend them with a golden hoe
Day by day their stalks will climb
And birds will come at blossom time.
If Gabriel should pass my way
I'm certain he'd sit down and stay."

Mrs. Johnston Heads Canton Woman's Club.

The May meeting of the Canton Woman's Club has held at the home of Mrs. J. E. Johnston, and Mrs. Johnston, president, presided. It was voted the club would continue the meetings during the summer, especially since the club house affords such a delightful place for meetings during the summer season.

The nominating committee made the following report as follows: President, Mrs. J. E. Johnston; vice president, Mrs. O. G. Glover; recording secretary, Mrs. T. W. Price; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. A. McCanless, and treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Bagwell.

Reports of the biennial council in Gainesville May 7-10 were made by Mrs. Glover, Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Parham, who were in attendance at the council, the pilgrimage to Tallulah Falls school on Friday, May 10 by the council delegates seemed to fill all with a desire to do bigger and better things for the school, truly "The Lights in the Mountains."

After the business session the program chairman presented an appropriate program in observance of "Better Homes" week. Rev. J. O. Pettis made such a splendid and uplifting talk on Better Homes, physical, moral and spiritual. Then Miss Rochelle McClure rendered two appropriate solos with Miss Sheppie Hawkins accompanying her at the piano.

Mrs. Guy Bowen Heads Augusta's City Federation

Mrs. Guy Bowen is president of the Augusta Federation of Women's Clubs, succeeding Mrs. H. P. Buram, and the corps of officers serving with her include Mrs. J. P. Mulherin, first vice president; Mrs. M. M. Hurst, second vice president; Mrs. S. Lesser, third vice president; recording secretary, Miss Ethel Parks; corresponding secretary, Miss Anne Sancken; treasurer, Mrs. J. S. Plaxco; auditor, Miss Josie Bodeker, and under these capable officers the City Federation will keep up the splendid record for community service made by Mrs. H. P. Buram and the retiring officers of the organization.

The City Federation is composed of the Augusta Woman's club, the Philomathic, the Business and Professional Women, the Teachers, and the Council of Jewish Women. Mrs. Bowen has been president of the Woman's club for the past two years and her term has just expired. The club has grown and prospered under her leadership, and the City Federation is fortunate to have her as their presiding officer and executive head.

Mrs. Hardman Gives Diplomas At Tallulah

Tallulah Falls, Ga., June 1.—With the closing Thursday night for vacation period of the Tallulah Falls Industrial school here ten girls were presented diplomas by Mrs. L. G. Hardman, wife of the governor of Georgia. Mrs. Hardman was the special guest of honor as the trustee sponsor of the class at the senior luncheon and shared in the senior planting and other activities of the 1929 seniors.

The school is owned and operated by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs and is said to be the only institution of its kind in the world so conducted. Mrs. John K. Ottley, of Atlanta, is president of the board of trustees. Arrangements are under way to celebrate the twentieth birthday of the school July 9, according to announcement. Twenty years ago the school had one small building and 26 pupils. Today it has eleven buildings, 250 acres of land, 265 pupils and is an accredited high school of the state of Georgia.

The school as it stands is valued at $150,000, exclusive of money put into running expenses and scholarships maintaining children living at the school. These are maintained by scholarship gifts, either perpetuals of $2,000 or annuals of $150. The total cost of improvements and additions since the inauguration of a movement for a "Greater Tallulah" is said to be $100,000, made up of numerous contributions coming from every section of the country.

Pelham Woman's Club Votes On Monthly Programs

Pelham Woman's Club voted the May meeting to arrange for an attractive evening's program to be held in Collingsworth park once each month. Efforts are being made to secure interesting speakers for these occasions. The entertainment of each individual is only one of the many advantages to be derived from these get-together meetings. The strength and benefit of social intercourse and fellowship is the strongest tie that binds the small town together and holds true the old southern hospitality gone by when methods of livings and modes of transportation did not allow our next door neighbor to be a stranger.

The success of these evenings of entertainment depends not alone on those who promote them but each citizen helping to make up the citizenship of Pelham.

Lexington Club Gives Entertainment.

Lexington Woman's Club entertained the faculty, County High School Commissioner and seniors of the Oglethorpe County High school at a party Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Barron. Baskets of larkspur in pastel shades were used in decoration, while numerous placards with such mottoes as "Be Quiet," "Study to Improve Your Mind," etc., were suespended from the wall signifying the nature of the party. Each honor guest had the privilege of inviting some friend making a goodly number of young people.

Mrs. Barron received the guests at the door and informed them they were to be "pupils of the night school" for a short while. Mrs. Hamilton McWhorter, president of the Woman's club, acted as superintendent of the school. The bell rang and "pupils" were asked to take their seats. Mrs. McWhorter spoke words of welcome and introduced the "teachers" of the school. Mrs. G. A. Barron conducted a class in spelling, Mrs. W. H. Maxwell a class with "math" followed by a short recess. "Pupils" reassembled, and Mrs. Reynolds conducted a lesson in "geography" Mrs. R. F. Brooks a lesson in "music." Miss Louise Brooks received the highest general average and was awarded a graduation book; Ed Milton Watkins, her partner, a silver pencil. Miss Esther Barron, a "soph," gave, in a most attractive manner, a farewell to the seniors and presented each with an attractive little address book as souvenirs.

Waycross Woman's Club Celebrates Its First Birthday at Party

Waycross Woman's Club celebrated its first anniversary with a dinner at Hotel Ware, and the members entertained their husband and a few friends. The central decoration was the huge birthday cake adorned with one tall pink candle and surrounded with pink rosebuds and fern. The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. E. D. Dimmock, and following the presentation of the guests, Mrs. J. E. Penland sang two beautiful solos, accompanied by Mrs. W. G. Townsend at the piano. The new officers of the club were then introduced as follows: Mrs. E. D. Dimmock, president; Mrs. J. A. Rollison, first vice president; Mrs. Jack Williams, second vice president; Mrs. A. H. Reddick, recording secretary; Mrs. Cargyle Brinson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Howard Harley, treasurer; Mrs. J. R. Whitman, auditor, and Miss Mary L. McKnight, custodian.

Mrs. J. A. Rollison gave an interesting talk on the junior work in the Georgia Federation and introduced young Miss Theresa Graham, who is an enthusiastic leader of the Neighborhood Dramatic Club of Waycross, which was recently received in the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. Miss Graham made her talk on "What the Federation Means to Me, a Junior," which she gave when she represented the Eleventh District Juniors at the state convention.

Mrs. R. G. Dickerson, of Homerville, district chairman of Tallulah Falls school, was a guest and made a short talk expressing her thanks for the splendid co-operation she is receiving from everyone. Several impromptu remarks were made by the visitors and a beautiful tribute was paid to Mrs. Dimmock for her earnest and splendid work.

Those present included Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gillon, Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Reed, Miss Winifred Quarterman, Mrs. R. W. Whitman, Miss Leila Summerall, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Townsend, Mrs. J. E. Penland, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Ulmer, Mrs. Charles S. Van Winkle, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Williams, Mrs. J. A. Rollison, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Brinson, Miss Theresa Graham, Mrs. E. D. Dimmock, Mrs. R. G. Dickerson, of Homerville; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Blalock, Mrs. J. M. Fesperman, Mrs. Albert H. Reddick, Mrs. J. E. Greene, of Albany; Mr. and Mrs. Ivey Rabun, Miss Louise Breen and Mr. and Mrs. Liston Elkins.

'American Artists and Their Work' Was Theme of Donalsonville Club

Donalsonville Woman's Club held the last meeting of the season at the Oceola hotel with Mrs. Decima Babb and Mrs. Ray Darbyshire as hostesses. This meeting brought to a close a most successful year of club activities under the leadership of Mrs. Decima Babb. "American Artists and Their Work" was the study theme for the past year. The programs were made interesting by having copies of the paintings under discussion at the meetings.

In one very interesting program we used the slides showing the style and arrangement of pictures in different homes. These were shown at our local theater through the courtesy of Mr. Ellison Dunn, the owner. Mrs. J. L. Dickenson gave the lecture in connection with these slides. The club had four open meetings during the year. Two of these were for invited guests and two for the public. The public meetings were the one showing the pictures and the other the Armistice Day program sponsored by the club and held in the Baptist church Sunday morning, November 11, with W. R. Crites as the speaker, and also had special citizenship, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas programs.

Besides paying the state and national federation dues, the club has paid the following: $10 Tallulah Falls school, $10 loan for boys, Tifton A. & M. school, $2.50 students loan fund and $2.50 to the Georgia Association of Workers for the Blind. The club spent locally for social service about $200. Carried magazines to the rural schools, convict camp and jail.

Citizenship and civics committees report talks made in some of the rural schools on citizenship, people through the rural sections urged to go to the polls and vote and in many instances cars were sent to bring people to the polls who otherwise could not have gotten there. Through the Garden Club, which as yet is not federated, some of our members have helped in greatly beautifying the streets, having beautiful islands of grass, shrubs and annuals in the centers of all the city streets. About $300 has been spent on bulbs and shrubbery.

In addition to this a project is now under way to erect a memorial fountain to Sergeant A. A. Subers, one of the pioneer citizens of Donalsonville. This memorial will be erected in a park in which Mr. Subers during his lifetime had planted many rare trees and shrubs secured from all over the world. In addition to the fountain the base pool will be beautified by water lilies and goldfish. The 1929-30 program will deal with community service. The committee in charge of programs consists of: Mrs. W. R. Crites, chairman; Mrs. J. L. Dickenson, Mrs. Otho Benton, Mrs. C. U. Leach and Mrs. Ellison Dunn.

Mrs. Jenkins Heads Vidalia Woman's Club

Vidalia Woman's Club May meeting featured reports of chairmen and officers. The community service committee gave a reception for the teachers in September, and supplied books for eight under-privileged school children. The arts and crafts committee sponsored a class of arts and crafts for one week, taught by Miss McKinley. A lecture on "Historical American Paintings," accompanied by stereoptican views was given by this committee.

The library extension committee, through the generosity of Mrs. W. B. Fitzgerald, presented a set of reference books to the Vidalia High school. One volume of "Georgia History" was donated to the Georgia division of the general federation headquarters library by Mrs. Ober Warthen. The house committee, by putting on the play, "Dollar Bill," was able to provide chairs, screens, cabinets, and repairs for the scout house. The music committee furnished music for all club programs during the year. Besides this, the cantata, "Chimes of Holy Night," was presented in December, and an "at home" musical at the home of Mrs. M. F. Brice in celebration of Music Week in May. Two five-dollar gold pieces were given to the winners in the musical appreciation tests at the high school. This committee also aided in sponsoring the concert series during the winter. The better films committee raised money for the Florida storm sufferers and made a donation to the clubhouse fund.

The city beautiful committee organized a garden club, and gave two prizes, one to Mrs. J. F. Darby for the greatest variety of blooming flowers; the other to Mrs. W. A. Jones for the greatest improvement. The committee has kept up the grounds of the scout house and made a donation toward beautifying the old cemetery. It also improved and set out shrubbery in the park in the business section. The Tallulah Falls committee met its quota; the American citizenship department gave a program in October and met its Red Cross quota; the better homes committee gave an excellent report; the public health committee presented a health program and assisted in the sale of tuberculosis seals. An effort was made toward improving sanitary conditions of the city. It co-operated with the health committees of other organizations in putting on health programs.

Mrs. Roscoe E. Ledford, the retiring president, gave a very gratifying report. During her two years' administration she has conducted her office with dignity and ability. Due to her untiring efforts the club has enjoyed a period of growth and extensive development. And in appreciation of her splendid work she was presented with a beautiful mesh bag by the club.

The officers for the coming year were inducted into office, including: President, Mrs. A. C. Jenkins; first vice president, Mrs. T. W. Timmerman; second vice president, Mrs. Leon Oliver; recording secretary, Mrs. N. O. Carter; corresponding secretary, Miss Katherine Godbee; treasurer, Mrs. George Donovan; auditor, Mrs. W. B. Fitzgerald; clubhouse treasurer, Mrs. T. R. Lee.

MRS. T. W. TIMMERMAN.

Bravery of South in Two Wars Recalled in Recent Medal Awards

In presenting crosses of distinguished service to three persons here during the memorial exercises at the LaGrange First Baptist church, Mrs. Roy Dallis, past president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, said: "As the recorder of crosses of military service, it is a privilege and I deem it a very great honor to be chosen the one to present these first crosses of military service to be awarded in Troup county. I felt, and still feel, our very capable president would have done this more worthily, but as a Daughter of the Confederacy, when my commanding officers say 'Do!' mine's not to reason why. For a long period of time we have met on this day to lament the departure and commemorate the virtues of our beloved Confederate veterans. We have seen our veterans honored in every land and by all peoples; we have heard the principles for which they fought as the purest and most patriotic thought of human mind. As they stood their lot in the War Between the States, so their descendants in the World War did their part.

Heroes of Two Wars.

"The linking together of the history of our soldiers of the World War with that of their Confederate fathers or grandfathers is a beautiful work that appeals to both generations and gives the opportunity of preserving unusual facts of history as well as the privilege of showing appreciation of their heroism. Many of the greatest leaders and heroes of the World War were sons and grandsons of Confederate soldiers. There was no link of valor between the two generations until the United Daughters of the Confederacy adopted the cross of military service. This medal was designed by the artist, Chester Beach, of New York city, and bears the symbolic inscription, 'The Brave Give Birth to the Brave.' General Pershing said, 'Back of all other influences in the marking of the southern soldiers America's best'—referring to the boys in khaki who went overseas from southern states—'was the influence of the Confederate soldiers.'

South True America.

"It was Governor Lowden, of Illinois, who said that 'We learned during the World War that the purest American blood shed came from the south and that in the future to the south we shall have to look for our truest Americanism.' When our records are completed we expect to show that in the American expeditionary forces, the greatest per capita percentage came from the south for our crosses of service are bestowed only on lineal descendants of Confederate soldiers, and requests for 20,000 came the first year. If there are any in this audience who think the Daughters of the Confederacy organization is one only of sentiment, we would like for you to know that while the boys of Confederate ancestors were serving our country, the Daughters of the Confederacy formed 229 Red Cross chapters, contributed as chapters and divisions $448,000 in money and to the Red Cross and to other agencies $339,000 and bought officially $24,000 worth of Liberty bonds and war savings stamps. These figures do not include individual contributions but are actual official records, which also show that we made 6,000,000 surgical dressings, and 600,000 knitted garments. We adopted and cared for 2,200 Belgian and French orphans at a cost of $82,000. In the American military hospital No. 1, Neuilly Sur, France, the United Daughters of the Confederacy endowed 70 beds at a cost of $40,000 per year, each one a memorial to some great Confederate leader, some group of Confederates or the descendant of some Confederate soldier or sailor.

Endowed Memorials.

"When the new American hospital was built in 1923 at a cost of over a million dollars the United Daughters of the Confederacy sent $2,000 for the main elevator and a brass plate to be placed in the elevator, recording the fact that the elevator was a 'Memorial to Men of Confederate Descent in the A. E. F. who died in France during the World War.' And under the splendid administration of Mrs. L. D. Allen, president, the LaGrange chapter has just paid our last note to a $5,000 fund at the University of Georgia in honor of our World War soldier and by which descendants of Confederate soldiers can have assistance in getting a university course. We come to our medals. You will be interested to know of the display now being made by the Smithsonian institute of the decorations bestowed upon the late General William C. Gorgas, son of General Josiah Gorgas, of the Confederate fame, that conspicuous among these decorations is the cross of military service of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, conferred upon a noted son, of a noted father, in recognition of the great service to all humanity rendered by General William C. Gorgas.

Wearers of the Cross.

"Other crosses of military service have been awarded to General Robert Lee Bullard, Major Wallace Streator, Washington, D. C.; General Le Jeune, U. S. marine corps; General Summerrill, ranking officer of the United States army; General Patrick, chief of air service; General Walter Harris, of Georgia; Brigadier General Frank Parker, South Carolinian; Colonel Warren Jefferson Davis, of Virginia, director of military aeronautics of the American army; Colonel George H. Jamerson, of Virginia, and many other generals and officers of the World War who are sons and grandsons of Confederate soldiers, the records of whom make wonderful history of patriotic achievement by sons of the south. To these names the LaGrange chapter of United Daughters of Confederacy comes today to add three more names to history and to bestow upon them the cross of military service. Away from their happy homes in Georgia went these men with true hearts to share the perils and hardships of a contest waged not for extortion of indemnities, but to subdue forces of oppression beyond the seas and vindicate the sacred right of all men everywhere to be free. Beside their colonial ancestors, whom Washington led to victory, they may stand unashamed. They may receive without embarrassment in the unseen world the greeting of their Confederate sires and grasp unabashed the princely hand of Gordon and Jackson and Lee. It is with pardonable pride I award the first cross of military service to the grandson of my father, Captain W. S. Evans, Company B, fourth Georgia regiment of the Confederate army, who is Lieutenant Loyd Bradfield, Troup county volunteer of the 11th infantry, fifth division, who came back to us from the Argonne. The second goes to the grandson of Major A. D. Abrahams, Company F, 41st Georgia infantry of the Confederate army, who is Captain D. A. Leman, volunteer remount service quartermaster corps, and who served overseas. Captain Leman is also a veteran of the Spanish-American War. Baxter L. Schaub, Company G, 121st regiment, Dixie division, was the son of Julius L. Schaub, Company B, 14th regiment of North Carolina infantry of the Confederate army. Sergeant Baxter Schaub was one of the first of Troup county boys to pay the supreme price. We wish to award his medal to his mother, Mrs. J. L. Schaub. On a day like this every voice of prejudice and passion should be hushed, but I cannot miss this opportunity to say if these Confederate soldiers and these young soldiers should be called to speak and if the brave hearts of our fallen men could beat again they would rise from their graves throughout this southland and from their graves in France, and in one voice would plead that the treaty of peace be ratified without useless delay. In their name in this hour, plead for peace in the name of the Prince of Peace."

Un Mot Ici, Est Bien

Mrs. J. J. Harris, Editor Georgia Division, U. D. C.

BY MRS. J. J. HARRIS,
Editor Georgia Division, U. D. C.

Again, another milestone brings us to the commemoration of the birthday of Jefferson Davis, hero-soldier and statesman. At Charlotte, N. C., on June 3, the one hundred and twenty-first birthday of this immortal hero will be celebrated. The exercises will be held in the great auditorium of the armory, and leading southern orators will pay tribute to the memory of this great man. In our hearts we pay eternal tribute to the glory of the character of Jefferson Davis, whose personality emblazoned its way across southern history in letters of gold. The memory of his valor, kindliness, statesmanship and Christianity is our heritage for which we are justly proud. In the annals of his life there is no blemish. Every chapter in the Georgia Division, U. D. C., will pause this month and commemorate the date of his birth by appropriate exercises. It is a matter of pride for the southern-born to do this, and each organization feels it can do no less than pause reverently on June 3, and place immortelles in memory of Jefferson Davis, the first and only president of the Confederacy.

Mrs. Hardy Richard, of Madison, chairman of veterans' reminiscences, sends a plea which should be considered during the summer months when other activities have ceased. She asks for veterans' reminiscences to be sent to her. There is no location which cannot boast of at least one or two colorful stories of the south. Deeds of prowess, stories of love and patriotism, devotion to duty and country, make for interest and our southland teems with incidents which brought out the nobility and grandeur of the intrepid southern men who fought might with right so valiantly. These stories, so beautiful in pathos, can be exquisitely wrought by talented hands into a veteran's reminiscences and sent to Mrs. Richard and her committee. It will mean much to her and her committee, and those who are undertaking the work will find that their endeavor will bring forth good to themselves and to their local patriotic interest.

Mrs. L. J. Beeson, Milledgeville, chairman of the historical essay contest, today sends a letter of thanks for help on the contest and to A. A. Jamerson for his generous offer of the Dixie campships to the successful winners. Mrs. Beeson and her committee have been of infinite benefit and the division is greatly indebted to these women for their real labor and to Mr. Jamerson for his co-operation and interest.

Mrs. J. Collon Lynes, of Marietta, has been named as division representative on the staff of General Goodwyn, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans. She will represent seven states, comprising this division of the organization. Mrs. Lynes has been active in the affairs of U. C. V. for many years, and her husband, General J. Colton, has held some of the highest positions in the organization. He is at present inspector-general.

Mrs. Bankston Issues Message On Confederate Veteran Reunion

Dear Georgia Daughters: Your president enjoyed very much the Georgia Federation of Women's Club's biennial in Gainesville and in between the sessions held many important councils with state chairmen and officers who are also representative club women and was shown every courtesy by the Longstreet Chapter U. D. C. and the president, Mrs. W. A. Roberts. We are all quite excited over going to the Confederate veteran's reunion at Charlotte, N. C., next week when there promises to be a record breaking attendance of daughters from Georgia, if we may judge by the demand for pink identification certificates. We have sent out hundreds and have had to telegraph for more to supply the demand. These will be mailed out as soon as they arrive.

Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, first vice president general, will be Georgia's representative on the executive board of the United Daughters of the Confederacy which will meet in Charlotte during the reunion. Your president has been distinctly honored by being made honorary chaperone on Georgia's commander, General David B. Freeman's, staff.

We would heartily congratulate the winners of the campships and medals in the historical essay contest for Mrs. Beeson tells me that the essays are the best ever sent in which makes the winners all that much more honored. We wish to again express the deep appreciation of the division to Mr. A. A. Jamison for his generous gift of these wonderful prizes, the girls and boys campships at the famous Dixie camps.

We hope you are all working for the cash membership prizes recently offered by Mr. Bankston and me. I have decided to give the second prize to the new chapter that sends in the most membership papers, including the charter members which will give all of them an equal chance.

In honoring the memory of our beloved president of the Confederacy, Jefferson Davis on his birthday, June 3, remember there is no more appropriate way than to contribute to the Jefferson Davis Historical Foundation, Mrs. W. E. H. Searcy, Griffin, chairman, or the Jefferson Davis highway, Miss Emma Farr, West Point, chairman. Plans are under way to mark the highway in Georgia this year.

Yours to serve,
FANNIE B. BANKSTON,
President of Georgia Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation Plans To Purchase Stratford Hall

Concerted effort for the purchase of Stratford Hall, the birthplace and boyhood home of Robert E. Lee, is going forward through an organization known as "The Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation," composed of a national chairman with advisory board and necessary active officers. This board, so far as may be deemed advisable, is to be duplicated in each state. State directors are appointed by the national board, of which Mrs. Charles Day Lanier, of Greenwich, Conn., is chairman; Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, chairman of publicity; George Bollinger Lee, honorary president board of directors; Miss Ethel Armes, historian and executive secretary.

The following states, with their recently appointed chairmen who also serve as members of the national board of directors are: Tennessee, Mrs. Horace Van Deventer; Virginia, Mrs. A. C. Ford; Georgia, Mrs. Walter D. Lamar; New York, Mrs. Henry H. McCorkle; Missouri, Mrs. Harry B. Hawkes; Kentucky, Mrs. Thomas Floyd Smith; District of Columbia, Mrs. Minnegerode Andrews; Delaware, Mrs. Alfred I. Dupont; New Hampshire, Mrs. Orton B. Brown, daughter of General John B. Gordon; Connecticutt, Mrs. Emerson R. Newell; South Carolina, Mrs. Andrew Jackson Geer; Indiana, Mrs. C. A. Carlisle; California, Mrs. N. V. Livermore.

Preliminary Steps.

The preliminary steps for the acquisition of Stratford were taken by a little group of southern women living in New England, the members of William Alexander, Jr. chapter of United Daughters of the Confederacy of Connecticutt, of which Mrs. Charles D. Lanier is president. Inspired by Sidney Lanier's address on Robert E. Lee, delivered shortly after the death of General Lee, they set about the task of saving Stratford for the nation. They negotiated the undertaking, signed the contract of purchase, raised the funds for the initial payment and took title on General Lee's birthday, January 19, 1929, as was widely announced at that date. Since then they have formed the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation to complete the payments, take permanent title and undertake the work of restoration and through the foundation the states are being organized. Every state in the union will be given the opportunity and the privilege of taking part in this work.

As Mount Vernon is governed and directed by a board of women comprised of a regent and vice-regents from each state, so Stratford will be directed by a national chairman or president and chairmen from each state, all of whom shall be women. The national advisory board is comprised of men who for the most part are of national prominence in educational, political and business circles, who will co-operate actively with the board of directors in the way of giving counsel, advice and practical suggestions in behalf of the purposes of the foundation.

Built in 1725.

Stratford Hall was built 1725-29 by Thomas Lee, president of the colony of Virginia, and its first native-born governor. Its famous library will be renewed and a bureau of research and information established which may become a resort for historical writers, scholars and students, a repository of the records of the Lee family and of the Revolutionary War and colonial times and of the period of the War between the States. The colonial gardens and the ancient docks at Stratford Landing will be restored and the thousand-acre plantation converted into a memorial park.

It is proposed to open, under suitable regulations, the entire estate with its library, relics, buildings, gardens and grounds to the inspection of visitors. Kentucky led off with a gift of $5,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bingham and $500 from Mrs. Helen Bruce, Connecticutt, through the Alexander Field Chapter, U. D. C., $5,000 cash and indemnity $5,000; New Hampshire from Mrs. Orton Bishop Brown (a daughter of the Confederate general, John B. Gordon) $1,000. Mrs. Alfred Dupont, of Delaware, $5,000; Mrs. Walter Teagle, of Connecticutt, $1,000.

Georgia is just starting her campaign, and it is the earnest hope of Lee admirers that the state shall give generously, and Mrs. Walter D. Lamar, is director for Georgia of Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation.

Old Guard To Give Dance At East Lake

The mid-summer dinner-dance of the Old Guard, of Atlanta, will be held on the terrace of the East Lake Country Club house Friday evening, June 14. At this affair the friends and invited guests of the Old Guard who will go on the annual trip for the Caribbean cruise to Havana, Panama and Guatemala will attend. A large number have registered for the cruise, and will leave Atlanta for New Orleans July 12, where they embark on the steamer for the various stops en route to their Central American destination.

Major W. M. Camp, the genial commandant, and Adjutant Will L. Hancock, their popular entertainer, have arranged the details for the dinner-dance.

U. D. C. Members Take Interest In Davis Quiz

The following is a quiz on the life and service of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, that will be of interest to U. D. C. members:

1. When and where was Jefferson Davis born?

A. Jefferson Davis was born June 3, 1808, in Christian county, Ky.; now known as Todd county and where the town of Fairview is today.

2. Who were the mother and father of Jefferson Davis and what states were their homes?

A. Jane Cook, of South Carolina, was his mother and Samuel Davis, of Georgia, was his father.

3. How many children were there in the Davis family? Name them.

A. Jefferson Davis was the youngest of ten children. The boys were: Joseph E., who became a lawyer; Benjamin, a physician; Samuel and Isaac, both planters, and Jefferson, who became president of the Confederate states. The girls were: Anne, Lucinda, Amanda, Mary and Polly.

4. Where did Jefferson Davis attend school?

A. His first schooling was in a little log cabin near Woodville, Miss., at the early age of 5. He next attended the Roman Catholic school, St. Thomas, in Kentucky, at the age of seven, remaining there two years. His father then decided to place the young boy at Jefferson academy near home. At 12 he entered Transylvania college, Kentucky. Afterwards he entered West Point, where he graduated at the age of 20.

5. What national service had he rendered the United States government before the southern states seceded?

A. He served in the Black Hawk war, in the war with Mexico, was United States senator from Mississippi, and secretary of war under President Pierce.

6. What position of trust did Jefferson Davis hold 1861-1865?

A. He was president of the Confederate States of America, the highest honor his adoring fellow countrymen could bestow upon him.

7. How many southern states were touched directly by his life? Name the states and tell how he was particularly connected with each.

A. Davis' life touched eight southern states. His mother was from South Carolina; his father was from Georgia; he was born in Kentucky; he lived in Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Virginia and he fought in Texas to free it.

8. (a) What southern state first secured legislation to have Jefferson Davis' birthday, June 3, made a state birthday?

A. Georgia.

(b) What chapter of the U. D. C. performed this patriotic act?

A. The Margret Jones Chapter, U. D. C., of Waynesboro, Ga., has this distinction.

9. What are the characteristics that made Jefferson Davis great?

A. The gentleness, the force and strength of his character; his superiority to adversity; his superiority even to prosperity; his candor; his truthfulness; his fine sense of loyalty; his devotion to his country; his love for the union; his unyielding adherence to principle; his clean honesty alike in private and public life; his freedom from malice; the simplicity and purity of his life; his Christian charity—these are the things which made Jefferson Davis great.

10. Give a short summary of Davis the man.

A. Summing up his life it will be found that Jefferson Davis was a gentleman, a scholar, a statesman, an orator, a soldier, a patriot, a philanthropist and a Christian.

In New Orleans at a quarter of 1 o'clock on the morning of December 6, 1889, the great heart of Jefferson Davis ceased to beat, a stainless life was closed.

It has come to pass that the "men who wore the grey," the cause which Jefferson Davis sponsored, have been singularly honored by a precedent never before established in the history of the world—the issuance of a memorial coin by a government commemorating the valor or bravery of the soldier against whom they fought and over whom they were victorious, an act of which the south will ever be proud.

Though the nation can never erase its action in causing the arrest and imprisonment of President Davis and the failure to again accept him as an American citizen, this act was at a period when passion and hatred was at its height and after 60 years, clear-minded, patriotic citizens of the nation issued a beautiful coin inscribed a "memorial to the valor of the soldier of the south."

Not only has a precedent been established in the issuance of the coin but also in the fact that the government allowed it to sell at a price double its face value of 50 cents that the additional amounts might be used in the carving of Stone Mountain, a deserved honor to the Confederate government.

D. A. R. Chapter Reports Feature Annual Election of Officers

The following reports of D. A. R. chapter meetings, featuring the annual election of officers and the closing of chapter activities for the summer months, will be of wide interest to the readers of the D. A. R. page.

Mrs. M. M. Jordan, Jr., the efficient regent, and the entire official family of the Major-General Samuel Elbert chapter, D. A. R., of Tennille, were reelected at the annual meeting of the chapter which was held May 24. The reports from all standing committees submitted at this time were gratifying. The meeting was held in Wrightsville, at the home of Mrs. W. M. Shurling, who is a prominent out-of-town member of the Major-General Samuel Elbert chapter.

Irwinton Chapter.

The John Ball chapter, D. A. R., of Wilkinson county, held its May meeting at the beautiful country home, "The Oaks," of Mrs. J. F. Porter, Sr., with her daughters, Mrs. Ruth Porter McKee and Mrs. J. F. Hanson, assisting her. The regent, Mrs. C. G. Kitchens, presided. Mrs. Ruth Porter McKee reported that Alton Stuckey from Pleasant Plains school won the first prize for boys in the flag contest, and Miss Roberta Anderson from Gordon won first place for the girls.

The year book committee distributed attractive year books for the incoming year. The historical committee, working on the major project, the publication of Wilkinson county history, reported that the material for the book would soon be placed in the hands of the publisher. The program for the afternoon included roll call, response, "Why Patriotic Societies?" "Mary Ball, Mother of George Washington," by Mrs. J. F. Porter, Jr.; vocal number, "Mother Machree," by Mary Alice Faulk, accompanied by Josephine Adams, and a reading, "His Mother's Picture," Cowper, by Mrs. W. H. Bacon.

Covington Chapter.

Reports from officers and chairmen of standing committees and the election of officers for the ensuing year featured the meeting of Sergeant Newton chapter, which was held Wednesday, May 22, at the home of Mrs. J. E. Philips. Mrs. R. A. Norris will again serve as chapter regent. Other officers named were vice regent, Mrs. O. W. Porter; recording secretary, Miss Annabel Robinson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Lamar Smith; registrar, Miss Sallie Mae Sockwell; historian, Mrs. R. M. Mobley; chaplain, Mrs. Walker Combs; auditor, Mrs. W. D. Travis; reporter, Mrs. J. C. Upshaw; parliamentarian, Mrs. W. C. Clark; treasurer, Mrs. J. E. Philips.

The annual report of the treasurer showed a substantial balance on hand and the auditor gave a resume of work accomplished by Sergeant Newton chapter during the year. Mrs. Vallie Harwell, chairman of forestry, reported that a large number of trees and shrubs had been planted at Covington and Oxford this year. Mrs. R. E. Everitt, chairman of patriotic education, had purchased Frank L. Stanton's poems, "Just From Georgia," to be placed on the D. A. R. shelf in the Woman's Club library. Practical work has been done by the committee on welfare of women and children. The chairman of the World War memorial announced that the formal dedication of the fountain would take place June 14. Mrs. R. M. Mobley and Miss Sallie Mae Sockwell, delegates to continental congress in April brought messages of interest. Miss Elizabeth Skinner contributed a sketch of Hannah Clark to the afternoon's program, and during the social hour tea was served by the following hostesses, Mrs. J. A. Wright, Miss Elizabeth Skinner and Mrs. J. E. Philips.

Augusta Chapter.

Augusta chapter, D. A. R., met Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Ernest Merry. Mrs. A. H. Corley was welcomed as a new member. The guests at the meeting included Miss Julia Thompson, who delighted her hearers in a group of pretty songs with Mrs. L. V. Stone at the piano; Mrs. John Bailey, Augusta; Mrs. H. C. Shover, Atlanta, who was formerly Miss Gibbs, of Augusta; Miss Kelogg, Boston; Mrs. Fred Von Schlossen, Mobile; Miss Annie Martin, Atlanta, former member of the chapter; Miss Annie McK. Rowland, charter member of the chapter.

Mrs. W. Sanford Gardner and Mrs. B. S. Burch gave splendid reports of the recent national congress held in Washington, D. C. The main business of the afternooon was the reports of the committee chairmen, the officers and the regent. The report of the regent, Mrs. M. M. MacFerrin, showed a careful review of the year's accomplishments and a conscientious, painstaking consideration of every phase of the aims and purposes of the organization. Before reading her formal report she gave some beautiful poems as mottoes for the coming year. "I like to think of the Augusta chapter as a beautifully set broach, done in gold," said Mrs. MacFerrin. "The outer circle of which is composed of small jewels, but essential to its beauty and quite necessary, set with the members of the chapter; the circle just inside this one is another, set with bright colored jewels, the committee chairmen; then a third circle composed of rubies, sapphires and emeralds made of the executive committee; the largest, the most beautiful in the center of all is a stone, a diamond of the first water, clear and shining. Much of the year's work has been due to the radiance and inspiration of this precious stone, for Mrs. L. V. Stone has always been ready to do, to go, to write, to speak, to sell, to give her talent of music, to encourage and to smile. Her earnest cooperation is more than appreciated by your retiring regent for she has learned to really love this stone and she commends her to the tender care of the succeeding regents in the years to come; for this chapter could not accomplish as much as when Mrs. Stone is the treasurer and the regent's right hand."

At the resignation of the regent which took effect at this meeting the vice regent, Miss Isabelle S. Clark, will fill the unexpired term. The election of officers is for a term of two years and this was not an election year.

Miss Pullen And Mr. Walker Wed at Noon

A marriage of exquisite beauty and dignity was that of Miss Armide Pullen to John Nunnally Walker, which was solemnized yesterday at noon at the First Methodist church in College Park, Dr. M. D. Collins performing the ceremony. The church was tastefully decorated with stately palms, ferns and pedestal baskets of magnolia blossoms.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Mattie Jane Boyd sang "Because." Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Miss Sylvia Cartledge, who also played "Dream of Love" during the ceremony.

The bride's sister, Miss Marguerite Pullen, was her only attendant and wore a lovely gown of pink georgette with picture hat to match. Her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of pink roses.

The bride entered with her father, C. Emerson Pullen, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Herman Harper.

The bride, a lovely blonde, wore an ensemble of orchid georgette with accessories to match. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of bride's roses and valley lilies.

Charles Taylor and Joel King served as ushers.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Walker left for a motor trip through North Carolina and upon their return will be at home at 414 Temple avenue.

Mrs. Walker is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Emerson Pullen and was one of College Park's popular mony Mr. and Mrs. Walker left a responsible position with the Citizens and Southern bank, of Atlanta, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Walker, of College Park.

Mrs. Sharp Gives Report On Federation

Mrs. Norman Sharp, president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, was the recipient of many flowers and a handsome silver centerpiece at the annual spring meeting, which convened Friday and the name, "Deryl H. Sharp Scholarship" was given the one year scholarship to the Tallulah Falls schools, by the Tallulah Falls committee of which Mrs. Ed A. Pierce is chairman, as an expression of appreciation and honor to Mrs. Sharp as a most efficient and beloved leader. She presented a deed to a building lot secured through Mrs. Sharp and given by Mrs. Kate Green Hess to the Tallulah Falls school; also a deed to a lot at Crystal Lake, near College Park, Miss Rosa Woodberry, a member of the board of trustees of the Tallulah school accepted this gift with words of appreciation.

Mrs. Sharp gave a comprehensive report of activities and achievements for the period of two years which had been constructive and far-reaching in their influence for good; she spoke of the wonderful spirit of co-operation which had made possible a successful and joyful administration and thanked the members of federation for their loyal support.

Interesting reports from officers and committee chairman showed many outstanding achievements, among which was an amount of $500 realized from interest in lot given to the federation through Mrs. Sharp, by P. C. McDuffie; $250 of this amount to be applied to the "Passie Fenton Ottley Fund," $100 to the Tallulah Falls Athletic field and $150 to the "Deryl H. Sharp Scholarship." The total amount of scholarships for the past two years amounted to $3,000. The federation responded to the "Cry of Need" with more than $1,420 to the "Flood Relief Fund" and $1,900 was raised in the two years for the Tallulah Falls school fund. Two miles of water oaks was planted on the Stone Mountain memorial highway, and the various clubs in the federation made possible a wonderful "Book Shower" to the "Annie Tripp Rambo Library" for the tubercular at Alto, Ga.

Officers elected at the business session to serve the two years are as follows: Mesdames Samuel Francis Boykin, president; E. V. Carter, first vice president; R. Murdock Walker, second vice president; Francis C. Block, third vice president; James L. Logan, recording secretary; Harry Gershon, corresponding secretary; E. V. Carter, treasurer; H. G. Hastings, auditor, and Miss Rosa Woodberry, parliamentarian.

Chapter Meetings

The Louise Heard chapter, Children of the Confederacy, of Elberton, assisted the Jefferson Davis U. D. C. chapter with the Memorial Day exercises at the high school auditorium, and the following program was presented: Invocation, Rev. Hal Boswell; music, high school band; "America," audience; music, male quartet, "Tenting Tonight," by Clarke Edwards, Jr., Ernest Korten, Bobby Oglesby, Parker Smith. This was thoroughly enjoyed. Reading, "Mah Lady," Miss Mamie Jones. This captivated the audience. Introduction of speaker, Colonel W. F. Jones. Address, Hon. John T. Boifeuillet, one of the most popular men in public life of the state and a scholar and orator of high attainment. His address was wonderful from start to finish. The Children of the Confederacy marched in with the flags before the exercises began. Music, high school band. Benediction, Rev. Fred Glisson. The procession of veterans and widows of the veterans and their wives, the U. D. C., the Children of the Confederacy, the officers of the city and the various civic organizations, Boy and Girl Scouts, military companies, all under command of Major A. N. Drake, the marshal of the day, formed a procession and marched to the cemetery. The Children of the Confederacy with their leader, Mrs. John Dennis, decorated the graves of the veterans who have gone on before. The U. D. C. also placed green wreaths on all the graves of the veterans and on the graves of past presidents of the U. D. C. who have gone on before. The Wright Furniture Company invited the veterans to the store and had photographs made of them. Also they gave each veteran $5 in gold. The Wright Furniture Company presented the Children of the Confederacy with the veterans' photograph to go in their scrap book. Dinner was served to the veterans at the Fidelis class room by the U. D. C. Rev. W. A. Wray pronounced the blessing.

Tennille U. D. C.

On account of the district school meet coming, the James D. Franklin chapter, U. D. C., of Tennille, held the memorial exercises on Thursday, May 25, at the school auditorium. Superintendent Bruce McCollum was master of ceremonies and a most interesting program was rendered. Invocation by Rev. D. R. Hodges; greetings from the chapter, Mrs. W. B. Smith; "America," sung by the school children; piano solo, McDowell's "Polonaise," Buford Joiner; music of the sixties, Mrs. Lula Kendall Rogers; song in costume, "Long, Long Ago," Miss Catherine Purvis; introduction of the orator, H. M. Franklin; address, Hon. Thomas W. Hardwick; benediction, Rev. A. W. Quillian. The chapter felt honored that Mr. Hardwick accepted the invitation to be the speaker on this occasion. Having been born and reared in Tennille is justly proud of his record, for he has won distinction as congressman, governor of Georgia and United States senator, as well as an eminent lawyer. The veterans, their wives, the speaker and ministers and their wives and the chapter members were invited to the Hotel Pritchard, where luncheon was served.

Sandersville C. of C.

A meeting oht Lyllian Harris group of the Captain P. R. Tallaferro chapter, C. of C., was held May 24 at the home of Albert Evans. Delegates were elected to attend the Children of the Confederacy conference at Lithonia June 19 as follows: Virginia McMichael, president; Albert Evans, delegate. Certificates of membership were presented by Mrs. Dan C. Harris, president of the Mary Anne Williams chapter, U. D. C., of Sandersville, who made an address and at its conclusion a basket of Easter lilies and red azaleas, tied with red and white tulle, was presented her by the president, Miss Virginia McMichael, in behalf of the chapter. Mrs. J. J. Harris, director, spoke of the declamation and oratorical contests and urged all to enter for the state prize. A most instructive historical quiz on Jefferson Davis was held, conducted by Paul Mayo.

Mrs. Williamson Gives Bon Voyage Tea.

A bon voyage bridge-tea was given by Mrs. Will Williamson at her home on South Gordon street yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Williamson leaves at an early date for Europe and will be gone for several months. The hostess was presented with an Eastman autographic kodak by her guests. First and second prizes went to Miss Hazel Rutherford and Miss Frances Willard, while consolation was won by Mrs. Earnest Disharoon.

Among those invited were Misses Lucile Holmes, Ruby Whitley, Rosalie Cheatham, Frances Grant, Billie Clark, Haze; Rutherford, Myrtle Bolsius, Lida Mae McKibben, Ida King, Jayne Caldwell, Roslyn Morgan, Frances Willard, Rachel Carroll, Irene Williamson, Bessie Bankston, Cathryn Trollope, Mesdames Ann James, Martha Slaughter Mary Murray, Bessie Dell, Roy Cawhern, T. T. Brantley, George Riley, R. W. Donald, W. C. Donald, Hardin Harris, Edward Pyron, Edward Mathews and Earnest Disharoon.

Miss Bennett Honors "Win One" Girls.

Miss Doris Bennett entertained the "Win One" girls of the Second Baptist church at a dinner at her home on Winter avenue last evening. Those present were: Mrs. Drake, teacher; Miss Dot Bennett, Miss Sara Miller, Miss Flossie Daniels, Miss Virtue Drake, Miss Boyce Fletcher, Miss Annie Laurie Thompson, Mrs. Wilbur Swilley, Mrs. Ernest Williams, Mrs. John Van Duyne and Mrs. W. O. Gregory. Those assisting in entertaining were Mrs. S. H. Bennett, Misses Leila, Lillian, Helen and Carrie Bennett.

McArthur—Mozley.

Dr. and Mrs. A. L. McArthur, of Cordele, announce the marriage of their daughter, Evelyn, to William H. Mozley, of Marietta, the marriage having occurred in Atlanta Sunday, May 26. They will make their home in Marietta.

MOTORISTS SPEND DAY AMONG THE CLOUDS

AT CLOUDLAND PARK

Top, the new annex to Cloudland Lodge—that offers visitors every modern convenience. Bottom, the new Studebaker Commander we used on the trip.

Beautiful home-like Cloudland Lodge.

Center—Looking from the terrace of a stone cottage; from here you can see for many miles. Cedar Ridge can be seen in the background. This is just one place at Cloudland from which you can look from the top of the world.

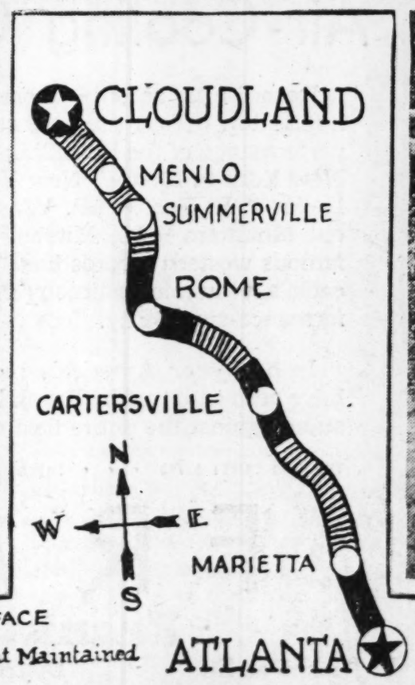

Our congenial host, W. T. Ledbetter. It was chilly but this log fire kept the lobby at a comfortable temperature.

Misses Marie and Frances Ledbetter. They posed for this one on a huge rock in the center of the lake. Yes, Kenneth Rogers had a boat.

This gives you a good idea of the type of road that has been provided to the top of the mountain. It is wide as well as smooth.

Cloudland, Georgia's "Nature's Roof Garden," Visited By Constitution Motor Party

All City Conveniences Found Despite Fact That Cloudland Park is A-top of Lookout Mountain.

By H. McCOY VAN DEVENDER, Automobile Editor.

Obeying that powerful call of the open road again, The Constitution motor party last Sunday visited one of the most beautiful spots in the state, Cloudland, Ga., "Nature's Roof Garden," located 12 miles from Summerville in the picturesque North Georgia mountains. It is doubtful whether this beautiful Blue Ridge resort can be equaled in Georgia, if in the south.

The accommodations at Cloudland are superb, with golf, tennis, dancing, fishing, swimming and most every recreation and pleasure that you could desire. The Cloudland Lodge, under the expert direction of W. T. Ledbetter, offers every modern convenience and a service that is congenial and homelike. Mr. Ledbetter is a real southerner and treats his guests with a personal interest that is only found in the south.

The recreation activities at this beautiful mountain resort are both varied and numerous. The Cloudland Park Club is a reservation of several thousand acres at an altitude of 2,100 feet, where a large number families have their summer homes and through which flows a beautiful stream alive with trout.

The accompanying photographs show only a small portion as well as part of this great reservation. There is a lake in the basin of the mountain crater. It is said to be the only lake in the south so formed.

Entrancing bridle paths weave in and out of the mountain fastness of gorgeous beauty which surrounds the palatial Cloudland Lodge. Here one can enjoy horseback riding as perhaps in no other manner.

Week-end visitors will be especially pleased with the dancing floor found at Cloudland Lodge. A fast, snappy collegiate band is there to furnish the music in a snappy way. A lovely ballroom is available in the lodge when the weather is damp and chilly outside—as well as the open air pavilion built especially for dancing on the property directly adjacent to the hotel.

The resort this year is catering to vacation, week-end and spend-the-day parties. You will find the fare on a par with any city hotel, and service accordingly.

Summing up, we can think of no finer place to spend the week-end than Cloudland. If you go once, then you'll become a regular visitor—so we say "Let's ride, Atlanta."

TRANSPORTATION LEADERS GATHER AT SPEED RACES

Automobile Track Classic At Indianapolis Speedway Draws Land and Air Chiefs

Front-Drive Auto and Aviation Chief Topic of Conversation—Miller and Rickenbacker Give Views on Future of Auto and Plane.

By E. Y. Watson.

(Written Exclusively for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Indianapolis, Ind., June 1.—The 500-mile automobile race brought to Indianapolis this week a group of transportation leaders whose activities both on land and in the air are being watched by the nation.

Among them were Harry Miller, noted designer of engines for racing cars, airplanes and motor boats, and Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, president of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Company, chairman of the American Automobile Association contest board, sales chief of a division of the Cadillac Motor Car Company, and envoy for General Motors Corporation in acquiring a foothold in aviation.

Mr. Miller, while here, announced the formation of a $5,000,000 company which will be a large factor in the production of aircraft power plants. Captain Rickenbacker, in addition to maintaining his position as leader of the automobile racing fraternity, appeared as a speaker at an aviation banquet.

75 Engine Designs.

Mr. Miller designs and builds high-speed gasoline engines in Los Angeles. His shop is celebrated. From it have come in the last few years no fewer than 75 power plants of various kinds, but most of them for racing cars. Each has been an individual creation, built to either Mr. Miller's own or some other person's specifications, and embodying new mechanical ideas. Most of all, Mr. Miller is responsible for the development of the front drive car as they now have it on the speedways, from which it soon may be translated to the highways.

In a conversation here, he said front drive cars were coming fast. In addition to one being produced by interests centering in New York, another is soon to come from this section of Indiana. Other interests have under construction a front drive bus, and still others, which include one of the largest of our present companies manufacturing several makes of cars, have front drive production plans in the formative stage.

Mr. Miller was the developer of certain front drive patents which he has disposed of to the Indiana builder whose front drive models are now on the road and soon will be announced. He says that contrary to prevailing opinion, front drive cars will cost hardly any more than rear drive to produce.

More Power Control.

"At first," he said, "I thought they were going to cost at least $50 more, but that is wrong. The front drives that will be built as stock cars will be nice, sweet-running jobs that pull rather than push the chassis over the ground. Going through sand, heavy mud or rough going they will be more effective than the rear cars, because the power is all in front and under better control than in most of the passenger cars we have now.

"They are good cars to put bodies on, because they can be hung low. There are no universal joints to interfere or drive shafts to allow for in building frames.

"And front drive cars certainly can climb over curbs and sweep around corners and curves, because the power is pulling right that way. The steering is so easy that it can be done with the pressure of two fingers. Anyone who has ever tried a front drive car marvels at its ease of operation."

With regard to the future of the 91-inch racers that made their final appearance at Indianapolis Thursday, Mr. Miller believes a race for them should be held again next year and in the years to follow, in addition to the contest for the stock cars of larger engine displacement, for which new rules will take effect in 1930.

Views on Racers.

Mr. Miller does not favor the return to the two-man type of racing car, because he contends that operation of a racing car with two persons in it is more dangerous at high speeds than when only the pilot is riding. Modern power plants, he points out, require only slight mechanical adjustments even in long distance operation, and, therefore, the necessity for mechanics to ride with drivers is lessened. Years ago mechanics who occupied the second seats in racing cars were there largely because the contests of that day were road races involving repairs and replacement of parts at times, and also tire-changing.

Captain Rickenbacker took time out from his position as sales manager of the La Salle division of the Cadillac Motor Car Company for the duties that go with his dual position of president of the Speedway company and chairman of the A. A. A. contest board. Recently he has borne a part in negotiations which have given General Motors a slice of the Fokker company and its airplane production, as well as of the Allison Manufacturing Company, of Indianapolis, which G. M. C. has acquired for the Diesel and other research carried on by that organization.

As a side issue from the 500-mile race there was an aircraft show in Indianapolis during the week, and Captain Rickenbacker was the speaker of the evening at a banquet preceding it. He referred to the General Motors Corporation as having picked Indianapolis as the scene of its concentrated aviation interests of the future.

Future of Aviation.

"Aviation is a real service to mankind," Captain Rickenbacker said. "I doubt if 15 years from now there will be any railroad passenger transportation. This is not my own statement but that of one of the largest railroad executives in the country. All mail must go by air in the future. This will include parcel post and express.

"We have millions of Lindberghs in America. Every mother's son is a potential Lindbergh if only he gets an opportunity.

"A cruising speed of 150 miles an hour will be developed in three years, putting Indianapolis four or five hours from New York, and moving the Pacific ocean eastward as far as Indianapolis so far as hours are concerned."

New Service Trucks for Hemlock 3-500 Tire Company

In order that their customers get prompt and efficient service these two new Ford model "A" trucks were put into service the past week by the Hemlock 3-500 Tire Company, local Seiberling dealers.

Local Seiberling Dealer Urges Monthly Inspection

A "fountain of youth" for automobile tires, where ten minutes a month means hundreds of miles of added mileage—this is the way H. H. Yates, of the Hemlock 3500 Tire company, local distributors of Seiberling tires, describes the new free monthly inspection service, recently inaugurated by his company.

"Hundreds of local motorists have learned," declared Mr. Yates, "that by splending ten minutes in our shop every month they can add 25 per cent to the mileage of their Seiberling tires. They come in every 30 days, and we look their tires over, check up on the air pressure, repair open tread cuts and look for evidences of faulty brake adjustment and wheel misalignment. Then they drive away, taking with them a free mileage 'bonus' of hundreds of miles.

"Experience has proved that it's these little things that cause rapid tire wear. Tires will 'age' rapidly if driven with air pressure too low and with tread cuts unrepaired, and it takes only a few minutes to attend to these things before they cause any harm. That's the reason we started our free monthly inspection service—the 'fountain of youth' for rubber tires. We have the equipment for making the necessary inspections and adjustments in the shortest possible time, so we invite every Seiberling user to take advantage of our service. Come in and let us cure your little tire ills before they become big ones!

"You will find that these little visits to our stop are well worth while. Twenty-five per cent extra mileage is nothing to be sneezed at, and besides, it's a satisfaction to know that your tires are being properly taken care of."

This free monthly inspection service, Mr. Yates pointed out, is offered in addition to the regular Seiberling tire protection plan, under which every Seiberling passenger car tire user is protected from tire repair expense for one year after purchasing the tire. The plan provides that any Seiberling passenger car tire damaged by road accident of any kind will be repaired free of charge by any one of the 5,000 Seiberling dealers throughout the country. If the tire is damaged beyond repair, a new one will be supplied at one-twelfth the original cost, if the accident occurs during the first month, two-twelfths if during the second month, etc.

Automobile Association Planning Record Outing

The largest crowd in the history of the Atlanta Automobile Association will assemble for the annual outing which will be staged this year at East Lake Country Club on Friday, July 12. The climax of the occasion will be a course dinner served on the grounds at 6:30 in the evening, followed by many interesting entertainment features and winding up with a dance at the club house. It is estimated that 1,200 members and their employes will be present, as many of the members have already purchased tickets for their entire personnel.

Preceding the supper and dance, throughout the afternoon a series of games and stunts has been scheduled for children and grown-ups on the clubhouse grounds, and a number of prizes will be awarded to winners. The lake will be open to those who care for swimming, and women who prefer bridge can attend a bridge party which will be staged at the club during the afternoon. In all probability a tennis tournament will also be arranged during the afternoon for men who like this sport.

The feature that has always excited the greatest amount of interest among members will be the championship golf tournament, which will start off early in the morning and continue throughout the day. The prizes include several beautiful silver trophies and a long list of individual prizes.

Arrangements have been made for dealers to close their places of business for half a day, and the main festivities will begin at East Lake shortly after 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

T. P. Hicks, of the Autocar Sales and Service Company, is general chairman of arrangements.

Canada To Be Wealthy.

Ithaca, N. Y.—(AP)—James E. Boyle, professor of agricultural economics at Cornell university, says Canada is destined to become the wealthiest country in the world. It is larger in area and of far greater natural resources per capita than the United States. Canadian exports, he says, figured on a per capita basis have a value four times those of this country.

Oakland-Pontiac Shipments During First Four Months Of 1929 Set New High Record

One More Working Day Would Have Made April Greatest Month in History.

Nation-wide substantiation of the optimistic forecasts for a record in 1929 automobile sales is clearly borne out in a statement just released by W. R. Tracy, vice president in charge of sales for the Oakland Motor Car Company. Shipments of Oakland and Pontiac Sixes during the first four months of 1929 totalled 118,222, making a new high record for this manufacturer.

"April shipments alone totaled 36,384 cars, which is just 76 cars short of the 36,460 shipped in March—the high month in the company's records," Mr. Tracy said. "But for the fact that there was one less working day than in March, April would have been the greatest month in our history.

"Our record shipment of 118,222 cars during the first four months of 1929 more than doubled the total of 53,877 cars sold in the same period of 1927 and bettered the 1928 period by 15,591 cars."

Mr. Tracy pointed to the March and April, 1929, sales as an indication of the general market trend, stating that the total for these two months shows a gain close to 30 per cent over March and April of last year.

"The industry as a whole is showing a decided increase in sales during the spring months of 1929. One of the greatest factors in this increase is the replacement market. During 1925 and 1926 a total of 8,736,135 cars and trucks were sold in the United States and Canada. These three and four-year cars are now being replaced with new cars and account in a large measure for the general sales increases throughout the country.

"Production schedules in the Oakland factories are keyed up to keep pace with the increasing demand for the Oakland and Pontiac sixes that are meeting with particular favor in the medium and low price class. In the low price field particularly spring buying has been most brisk.

"Our plant has been operating at capacity since January and it now seems probable that we will continue at top speed well into the summer season or for a longer period than ever before."

CLOUDLAND VISITED BY MOTOR PARTY

We made the trip by heading the nose of our car out Marietta street, toward Marietta, Ga.; then over a fairly good detour to Kennesaw, Ga.; there you pick up pavement that carries you past Acworth; then on a good sand gravel road to about five miles this side of Cartersville, where you again strike pavement that lasts for several miles beyond this pretty Georgia city. About 15 miles this side of Rome you again hit the hard-surface highway, one you stay on for 15 miles on the other side. Leaving Rome you follow Route No. 1 to Summerville, then through Menlo to Cloudland Park.

The New Studebaker Commander sedan was a real joy. It made all roads look alike in both smoothness and power. It was loaned to us through the courtesy of the Yarbrough Motor Company, local Studebaker dealer.

WHO CARES.

Mrs.: "I must dress at once, dear. The Browns are coming this evening to make us a visit. Should I put on the percolator?"

Mr.: "Don't bother, you're dressed good enough the way you are."

Dodge Brothers Report Big Gains In Truck Sales

Increased business activity in the commercial car field is evidenced by shipments of trucks, buses and motor coaches of Dodge Brothers for the first four months of this year compared to the corresponding period of 1928.

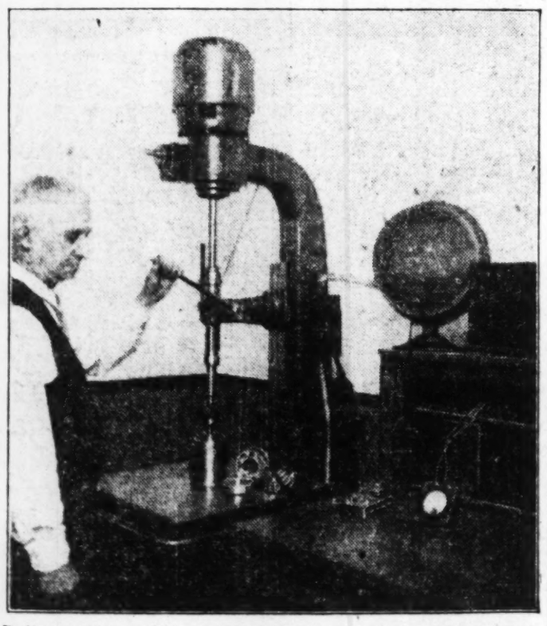

Truck shipments during this period represented an increase of 12 per cent over the first four months of 1928, while April shipments were 47 per cent greater than April a year ago.

In the motor coach division sales have exceeded last year's record by 52 per cent and school bus sales have increased 42 per cent over last year's mark.

"These gains show the rapid trend toward motorized passenger transportation as developed in the motor coach and school bus field," said C. W. Matheson, general sales manager. "Their dependability, safety, comfort, fine appearance, long life and economy are qualities that buyers demand in operating, whether it be in congested city streets or in sparsely settled rural school districts.

"The expanding domestic and foreign markets for trucks is reflected by the increasing demand reported generally from our international dealer organization. Unfilled orders in the truck division of the company represent a gain of more than 400 per cent over a year ago."

Packard Uses Radio Apparatus

Radio apparatus which measures and records sound waves is employed to test every roller or ball bearing used in Packard cars. Each bearing must meet a fixed standard for maximum sound volume while operating under heavy load.

Bearings are placed in a noiseless drill press, the spindle of the press driving the internal bearing race. Pressures can be changed to give fixed loads by the shifting of a lever. Noise from the bearing, actually no more than a musical hum, is picked up by a microphone closely resembling a loud speaker in appearance. The sound is amplified through several stages and a reading given on a milliammeter.

After the bearing has been run and the sound recorded pressing of a telegraph key to close the circuit reproduces the actual volume in a single musical note. This note then is taken up in another part of the device and separated into its component parts and the parts counted.

Because the noise produced by the dropping of a pin is sufficient to make the milliammeter needle dance, so delicately is the instrument atttuned, a special sound proof room had to be made for the new Packard testing device.

The room is actually one room placed inside of another with nothing between but sand. Floors, ceiling and the four sides have a thickness of 18 inches of sand besides the two wooden walls. The door which seals the room against both sound and air is much like that of a large refrigerator. A pipe, insulated against noise, carries fresh air into the room and another insulated pipe is used to carry air out. Fans for the air exhaust system, although practically noiseless, are located fifty feet away from the sound proof room.

The accompanying picture shows the testing device in operation. The operator, by pressing down on the lever, is giving the bearing its load. The milliammeter tells him at the same time instantly whether the bearing under test meets the Packard standard for quietness.

AC

Dependability sets another world record!

172 hours 32 minutes 1 second—more than 7 days and nights—is the World's endurance record just established by the monoplane "Ft. Worth" piloted by Robbins and Kelley—equipped with AC Spark Plugs.

Another endurance record added to AC's long list of famous flights.

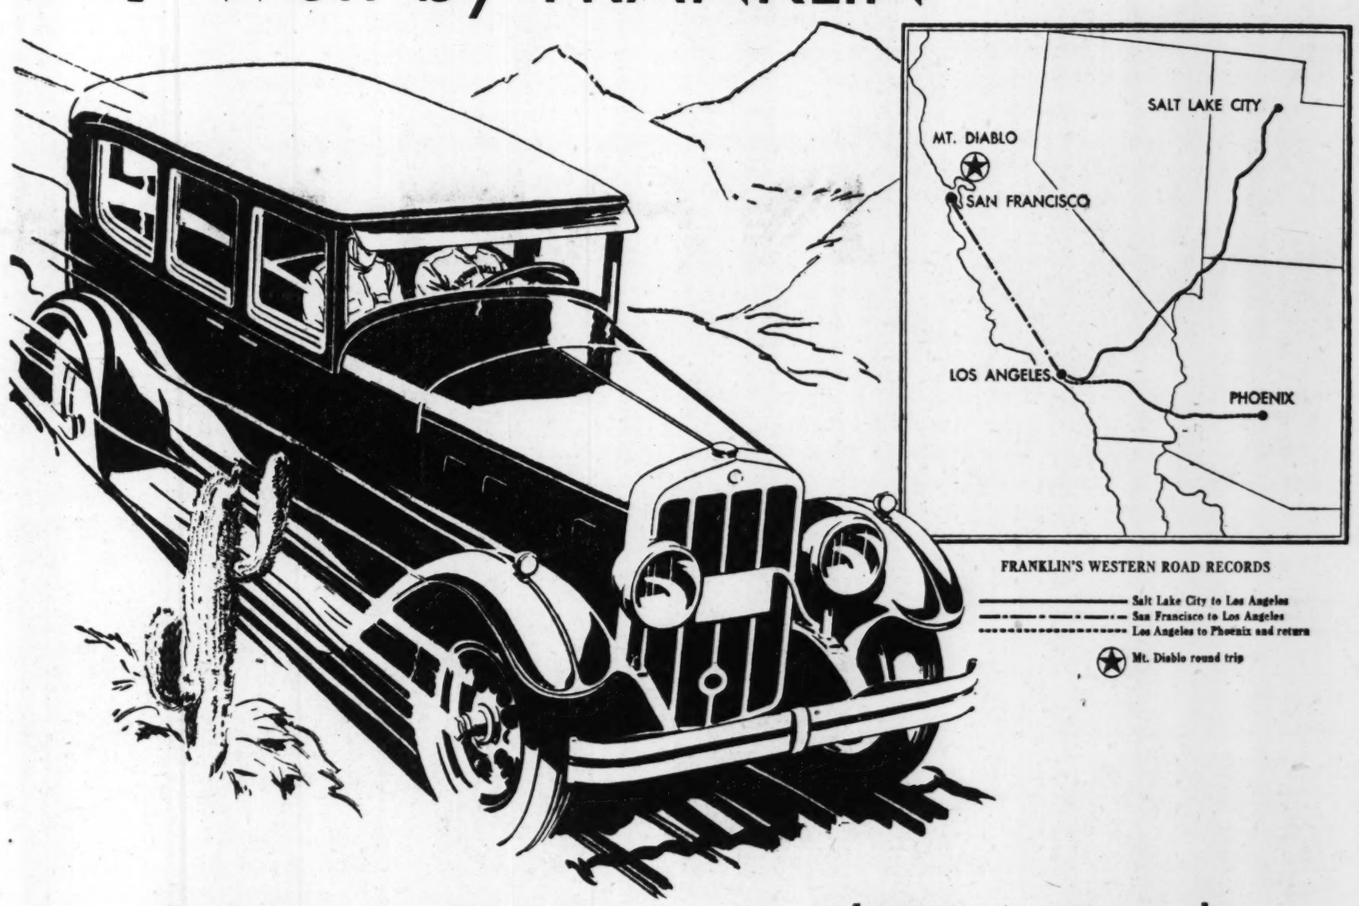

Every successful non-stop flight across the Atlantic from America to Europe has been made by planes equipped with AC Spark Plugs.

You, too, will find that AC's will give you better engine performance.

4 Famous Western Road Records Won by FRANKLIN

On Mountain, Desert and Open Road Air-Cooling Conquers with Flying Colors

Record after record—more than a dozen—has fallen before the sensational air-cooled performance of the Franklin. Coast-to-coast—New York to Miami—New York to Chicago—Dallas to El Paso—Mt. Washington—Lookout Mountain—Mt. Mitchell—and now four famous western records have been shattered—each a dramatic testimony of Franklin's performance-superiority.

In one year America's major road records have been captured by Franklin. And they still stand against the entire field of motor cars.

There are many potent reasons why Franklin wins records. When you drive the car you will recognize them. Reserve power at 60 miles an hour—ability to maintain high speed indefinitely—flashing acceleration even in the higher ranges of speed—easy, confident control—riding comfort that keeps you fresh on an all-day trip—Franklin is the roomiest of all 5-passenger sedans.

Take a ride—sample Franklin's unique air-cooled performance in traffic and on open road. Experience that airplane feel—it is absolutely different.

Hudson Motor Car Company Breaks Production Record President M'Aneeny Says

Predicts That Earnings for Second Quarter of 1929 Will Show Further Gains.

Announcing production schedules for 120,000 Hudson and Essex cars during the second quarter and predicting that earnings for that period would far exceed any previous quarter in the company's history, President W. J. McAneeny told stockholders of the Hudson Motor Car Company at the annual general meeting that this was by far the best year in the company's history.

The optimistic statement was in the nature of a birthday present to the stockholders, for this is the "coming of age" year for Hudson. Roy D. Chapin, who presided as chairman of the board, the late R. B. Jackson, Howard E. Coffin and McAneeny, backed by J. L. Hudson, started the company 21 years ago. It is now the second largest independent in the field.

"Since the introduction of our present Hudson and Essex models we have enjoyed a consistent and record-breaking demand," Mr. McAneeny said. "Shipments for the first three months of the year were 108,048 cars. This volume resulted in first quarter earnings of $4,456,783 or $2.86 a share—the most favorable first-quarter showing we have ever made.

"The second quarter will be larger—we expect 120,000 cars or more. On such a volume second-quarter earnings will likewise establish a new record. For the first half of 1929, therefore, we shall have placed more of our cars with the public and earned a larger sum for our shareholders than in any similar period.

"While spring is the most active selling season, we are confident that our sales organization will continue to provide us with our share of the growing demand. Aside from the proved popularity of our cars, a strong favorable factor is the prosperity of these selling forces and the small supply of cars now in their hands. The number of our active distributors and dealers in the United States exceeds 5,000—it is a strong, skilled and aggressive organization, accustomed to dealing with all problems of automobile merchandising. As to our engineering and production ability, the popularity and value in this year's cars is perhaps a sufficient comment.

"In export activities our business continues in its strong position. The increase of business to date over last year is 28 per cent. For the first four months of this year we shipped 27,071 cars as against 21,214 a year ago. Counting both Canada and overseas operations, we may expect an export business for the year of from 70,000 to 75,000 Hudson and Essex cars."

U. S. Cars Win French Awards

Europe was given another demonstration of the all-around performance of which American automobiles are capable when American entries carried off most of the prizes in the 2,730-mile tour of France organized by the Motorcycle Club of France. The tour, which was for both automobiles and motorcycles, consisted of nine-day runs of approximately 310 miles each.

The Ansaldo cup for all-round performance, the most coveted prize in the competition, was won by an Essex, driven by Andre Morel, a noted French driver. It finished without penalizations. Adding to the performance was the fact that a second Essex, driven by Lamy, also finished with a perfect score.

Dayton Tires Now Handled By Cottongim

Cottongim's Tire and Supply Company, at 323 Spring street, N. W., has completed arrangements whereby it has become dealer for the well-known Dayton tires. This announcement was made Saturday by W. O. Cottongim, operator of the tire house, following a recent trip east during which he thoroughly investigated the manufacture and distribution of Dayton tires and conferred with officials of the company manufacturing them.

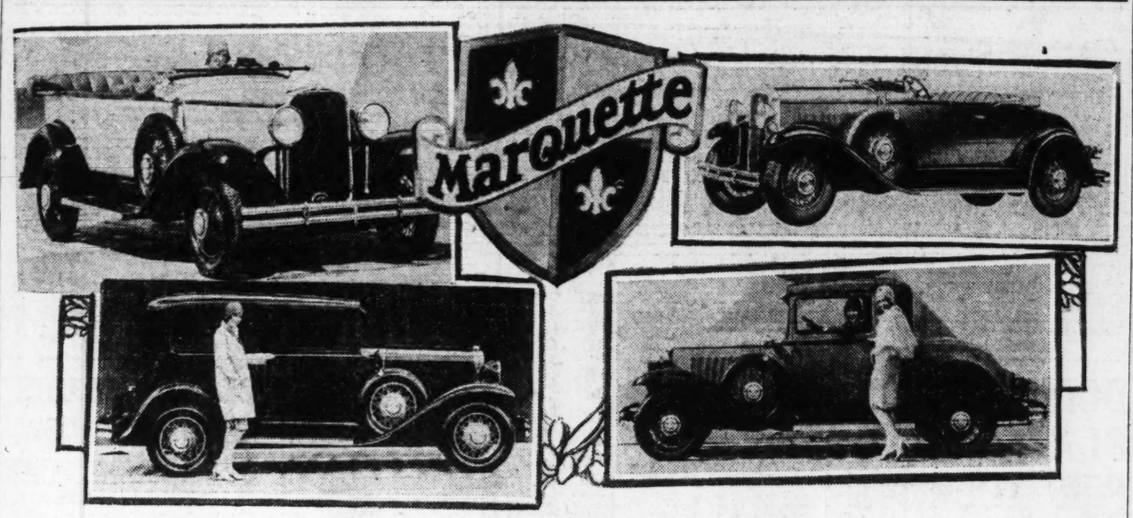

"While in the east," Mr. Cottongim added, "I talked with an unbiased, nationally-prominent authority on automobile tires. I wanted to get his personal advise regarding the relative merit of Daytons, which scores of my customers in Atlanta had told me was head and shoulders in quality above most of the extensively advertised so-called 'standard' and 'quality' makes.

"My trip subsequently influenced me to make exhaustive inquiries through friends from coast to coast—and the result was a revelation. Never had I received such glowing reports regarding any automobile tire. Never had I heard about such phenomenal mileage records and prestige in both commercial and passenger car service.

"I have concluded a special arrangement with the Dayton Rubber Manufacturing Company whereby its Dayton Thorobreds—already known to thousands of Atlanta motorists as the 'world's most distinguished tire'—can be obtained at exceptionally attractive prices, much lower than was ever thought possible for such unusually high quality.

"At my newly-renovated and redecorated store at 323 Spring street, N. W., my old customers will find Cottongim's friendly and helpful, all-inclusive service the same as usual."

Dealer System of Marmon Doubled in Five Months

The unusually rapid increase in the number of Marmon distributors and dealers throughout the country since introduction of the new Roosevelt eight has made available to Marmon and Roosevelt owners a nation-wide service organization extending not only to the smaller cities but to towns and communities from coast to coast.

Attracted to the Roosevelt by its numerous sales features, coupled with the fact that the car is the world's first straight-eight to sell below $1,000 at the factory, hundred of automobile merchants have taken over the Marmon-Roosevelt franchise and have opened new sales and service establishments in many towns and cities where Marmon heretofore has not had representation.

The number of Marmon-Roosevelt distributors and dealers throughout the country has increased approximately 100 per cent since January 1, making it possible for a Marmon or Roosevelt owner to drive his car practically anywhere in the United States or Canada with the assurance that authorized service will be obtainable.

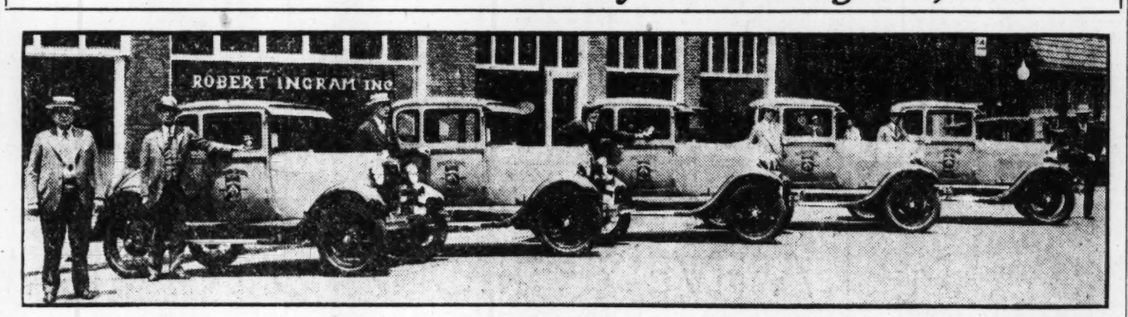

With Marmon and Roosevelt production showing an increase each month, the factory service department has extended its operations and has placed into effect flat rate service methods for both Marmon and Roosevelt cars together with a monthly inspection that enables owners to have their cars inspected thoroughly from bumper to bumper each month at but a nominal cost.

After being retained on the market in their present basic form for more than a year, the Marmon 68 and 78 models, both straight eights, have established enviable records as far as service requirements are concerned. A recent survey completed by the Marmon factory service department revealed that the average service cost on each of the two Marmon lines was less than two-fifths the average amount usually required for ordinary day in and day out maintenance and service work on a car during its first year of operation.

Plymouth Car Shipments Reported at Highest Level; Dealer Organization Grows

AC Plugs Establish Recod

A new world's record for continuous firing of spark plugs under actual operating conditions was created when the monoplane "Fort Worth" remained aloft more than seven days and nights.

The AC plugs in the "Fort Worth" flashed approximately 130,435,200 sparks, equivalent to an unbroken flash of light 41 miles long.

In commenting upon the achievement of the pilots, Kelly and Robbins, Hector Rabezzana, chief spark plug engineer of the AC company, said:

"A flight of this kind imposes one of the hardest tests on spark plugs, far exceeding that incurred by speedway automobile runs. And it shows that the spark plug is just as reliable as any other part of the engine. If the plugs in any one cylinder had failed to function, the plane would have been forced to land."

Production Now at 750 Cars a Day, With Factory 3,500 Orders Behind.

"At no time in the history of the Chrysler organization has the demand for its lowest-priced automobile exceeded the present sales demand for the Plymouth car," according to a statement by A. van-DerZee, general sales manager of the Plymouth Motor Corporation, in discussing April production and shipments.

"The display and demonstration week recently conducted by Plymouth dealers throughout the country has brought out clearly the remarkable interest in this car and the unusual enthusiasm with which it is being greeted in every section of the country," he says.

"Although the Plymouth Motor Corporation was established as a separate division of Chrysler Motors only four months ago, in January, our sales organization has already assumed huge proportions. More than 3,000 dealers have signed to handle Plymouth cars and many new sales agreements are being received daily. They are keeping the production at the factory working overtime in an effort to catch up with the orders.

"Our new ultra-modern plant, manufacturing Plymouth cars exclusively, started production less than four months ago and each week has seen an increase in the number of units produced. When the plant is operating on a full capacity schedule it will be capable of producing 1,000 cars per day. By adding gradually to our force of trained workers, we have advanced our production to 750 cars a day. Orders from dealers on hand at the present time justify a capacity production of 1,000 units daily and the production department is bending every effort to reach that goal as quickly as possible, without in any respect lowering the Plymouth's high quality.

"At the end of April, in spite of increased production, we find ourselves more than 3,500 cars behind shipping orders in hand. With constant increase in the number of dealers handling Plymouth and a public preference for the car which is daily becoming more evident, judging by retail deliveries, we are naturally highly pleased with the reception given the new Plymouth."

Franklin Springs Aid in Producing "Airplane Feel"

The "airplane driving feel" which aviators are said to have found in the new Franklin cars results from flexible chassis construction and greater resiliency of the full elliptic springs as well as from the lively power of the air-cooled engine. E. S. Marks, chief engineer of the Franklin Automobile Company, says.

"The peculiar buoyant glide of the Franklin car cannot be secured through power alone," Mr. Marks asserted. "Abundance of smooth-flowing power gives some of the exhiliration of flight, of course, but the cushioned softness which seems to float over bumps and ruts comes from the springs and chassis.

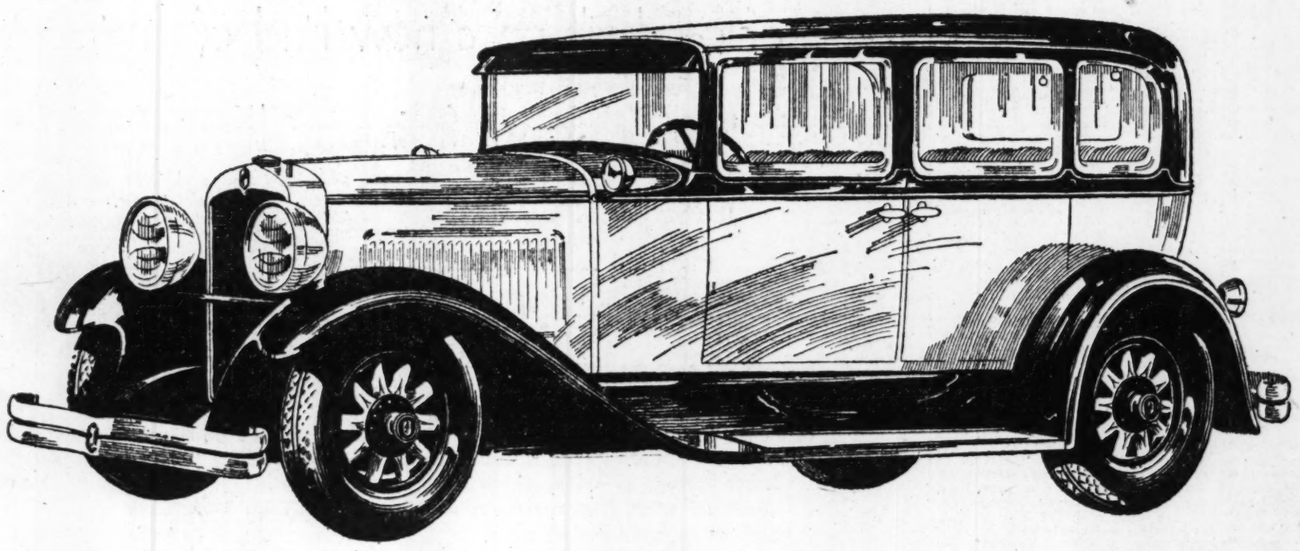

"Franklin has always had full elliptic springs and a chassis frame which has permitted independent movement between the individual chassis sills, with the result that the car has earned an enviable reputation for comfort over a variety of roads.

"Recent developments, however, have been made to perfect this in greater degree and to adjust these two features to the higher speeds of the current Franklin engine. The special merit of the system depends upon what might be called an interchange of action and reaction. The springs themselves are softer than formerly, their action is controlled more firmly by two-way hydraulic shock absorbers. One nullifies the other until all sense of wheel jiggle and vibration is practically lost.

"Severe bumps are counteracted through the canted position of the Franklin spring which takes the moving shock of the blow at the point of deepest spring section. This depth or chord in the full-elliptic spring permits a movement almost four inches greater than the semi-elliptic, before bottoming. Tranverse strains and rolling of the car are obviated through the unique construction of the flexible chassis. When one wheel strikes an obstacle the side affected rises and rides over the bump while the other wheel is not twisted sidewise out of its path nor lifted from the ground by a rigid frame.

New Car of General Motors, Marquette, Placed on Display For First Time on Saturday

Many New and Attractive Features Are Disclosed in Companion Car to Buick.

The Marquette, fast, new powerful car with lines of fleet beauty, designed, produced and distributed by the Buick Motor Company, was offered to the public Saturday for the first time by Buick dealers throughout the country.

This new creation is offered in six models—a two-door sedan, four-door sedan, business coupe, sport coupe, roadster and touring car. With a wheel base of 114 inches, it is an exceptionally large car for its price and class.

Although built to meet certain high pre-determined standards, rather than a price, the Marquette enters the medium cost field. The car brings to this field evidence of new standards of appearance, roadability, speed, durability and comfort. All bodies are Fisher built and finished in Duco color combinations that exemplify the modern trend of color fashion.

Many advanced features have been incorporated in the Marquette, including a non-glare, sloping windshield; a newly created type of waterproof mohair upholstery; a complete frame and radiator metal covering; stocky spoked wheels using large section tires; four-wheel, 12-inch, internal expanding brakes and a carburetion system that insures economy of operation.

The six-cylinder L-head motor has a bore and stroke of 3 1-8 inch by 4 5-8 inch and develops a rated horsepower of 23.44 and a maximum brake horsepower of 67.5. In accordance with time proven Buick standards, light cast iron pistons are used. The crankcase and cylinder block are cast integral. A tapered chassis frame, thermostatically controlled, water cooling system, forced lubrication to main, connecting rod, camshaft bearings and to the timing chain, are some of the engineering features. The engine is set on rubber mounting and thoroughly insulated from the frame.

The Marquette is the product of exhaustive engineering research conducted by the staff of the Buick Motor Company and backed by the facilities and resources of the General Motors Corporation. Before it was finally approved by Buick, the Marquette was subjected not only to many thousands of miles of hard driving, but to gruelling and unusual tests at the General Motors proving ground to definitely establish its standards of performance.

Hill-Climbing Ability.

Its hill-climbing ability was determined with a four-door sedan. This car carried a total load of 450 pounds. The hill chosen for the test presented a climb of 1,400 feet over an 11.6 per cent grade. The average grade is 7 per cent. The car approached the foot of the hill at a rate of five miles per hour, then, with the climb started, the engine was accelerated and with a quiet and steadily increasing speed it swept up the grade and passed over the summit at 25 miles per hour.

Other performance tests have proven that brilliant hill climbing ability has not been obtained at the expense of either speed or straight-away acceleration. Marquette has all three qualities in an abundance heretofore unknown in a car of its weight and price.

A five-passenger, four-door sedan, carrying a total load of 450 pounds was also used in a series of acceleration tests with the following results: The car accelerated from 5 M. P. H. to 25 M. P. H. in 8.8 seconds; from 10 M. P. H. to 25 M. P. H. in 6.3 seconds; from 10 M. P. H. to 40 M P. H. in 13.4 seconds; from 10 M. P H. to 60 M. P. H. in 31 seconds.

Efficient Carburetion.

Carburetion on the Marquette has been designed to a high degree of efficiency that insures heavy starting, economy and splendid performance. Carburetion is governed with an automatic heat control giving quick warm-up under all driving conditions, regardless of weather. Fuel is fed into the carburetor through an AC gas pump assuring the motor an ample gas supply on steep grades and under other driving conditions where other types of carburetor feed are frequently at a disadvantage. An air cleaner further insures the efficiency of the Marquette carburetion system.

Long semi-elliptic springs, used on both front and rear, together with the standard equipment of Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers and the well balanced steering mechanism, give a feeling of comfort and security that has never before been built into a car of the weight and price of the Marquette.

Four-wheel 12-inch internal expanding Duo-Servo type brakes are used. These brakes are of ample capacity to hold the car under all conditions. They operate with light pedal pressure and are protected against mud, water and dirt.

A distinctive treatment of both line and color is evident in the luxurious Fisher bodies. All exterior hardware is fully chromium plated and of a special design. The long, low lines of the car are accentuated by a stream line moulding running the length of the car.

A distinctive and major improvement is found in the new type of tilted non-glare windshield which will prove a new factor in safety driving. While retaining all the advantages of comfort and ventilation of the older type, this new windshield provides absolute freedom from glare, either from the front or rear. To accomplish this, the windshield is tilted outward at the bottom 1 7-8 inches which gives it an angle from the perpendicular of 7 degrees. This angle causes all the glare from the windshield, whether from the rear, front or sides to be reflected below the driver's line of vision.

The Marquette also brings out for the first time a recent and very valuable improvement in upholstery cloth. This cloth, a soft but exceedingly durable plush mohair, is impregnated, under a new process, with a rubber solution. This treatment protects the cloth from any damage by rain or moisture and makes it, by actual test, ten times more durable.

Front seats in all closed models are adjustable by merely turning the regulator handle at the front of the seat.

Graham-Paige Stock Issued

Detroit, June 1.—Graham-Paige stockholders have subscribed to more than 98 per cent of the recent offering of additional common stock, which expired May 20. Of the 283,758 shares offered at $25 a share, subscriptions for 278,430 shares, or 98.1 per cent, valued at $6,960,750, have been accepted. The Graham Brothers Corporation purchased unsubscribed shares at the offered price.

Proceeds of this offering amounting to $7,093,950, will be used for additional working capital required in connection with the company's increased production.

Durant Official Outlines Their Service Views

Entirely satisfactory motor car performance is possible only if all parties concerned live up to their parts of a three-cornered responsibility, according to A. K. Steigerwalt, director of service of Durant Motors.

"The manufacturer, dealer and private owners," Mr. Steigerwalt says, "have equal and equally important shares in the responsibility for the dependable, economical performance of any motor vehicle. Unless each assumes his share of this three-cornered responsibility owner dissatisfaction is certain to result. And in the trail of owner dissatisfaction follows loss of sales and profits by both manufacturer and dealer."

The manufacturer's responsibility, according to Mr. Steigerwalt, lies in turning out a motor vehicle built to give the buyer satisfactory performance.

"The dealer's job," he said, "is to maintain a properly equipped service department and an adequate stock of such service parts as may be needed in order that any needed adjustments or repairs may be made without undue delay and the work must be done at a fair price.

"It lies with the owner to see that the car receives proper care and attention, according to the charts or diagrams or instructions supplied by the manufacturer—particularly that it be oiled and greased faithfully. He should realize that his motor car is a fine, carefully built piece of machinery constructed to give long, carefree service, but that such service is possible only if he does his part. He should understand that a few minutes or few miles of operation without efficient lubricant between surfaces which turn or slide one against the other, whether they be in the engine or in the chassis, will result in more wear than thousands of miles of normal service—and that the resulting need of replacement of worn parts is costly.

"The Durant owner is encouraged to bring his car periodically to the dealer's service station for inspection. Trained mechanics look for any evidence that adjustment or attention should be given to forestall need of more costly repairs at a later time. Costly are the results of being guided by the erroneous belief that 'It pays to stay away from the service station as long as the old bus will run.'

"Periodic inspection of the motor car," he adds, "finds a close parallel in the rapidly growing practice of visiting the dentist every six months to have the teeth carefully examined and of calling on the physician periodically for a 'health examination' instead of neglecting minor symptoms until some major trouble calls for 'curative treatment' instead of "preventive treatment.'

"Durant Motors," Mr. Steigerwalt explains, "has had for five years a simple, workable plan which has been successful in fixing definitely at the time the car is sold the owner's responsibility for service. Durant owners to whom the plan is explained are brought to realize the importance of the doctrine summed up in the old adage regarding 'An ounce of prevention.'"

Fargo Truck Shipments Are Doubled in April

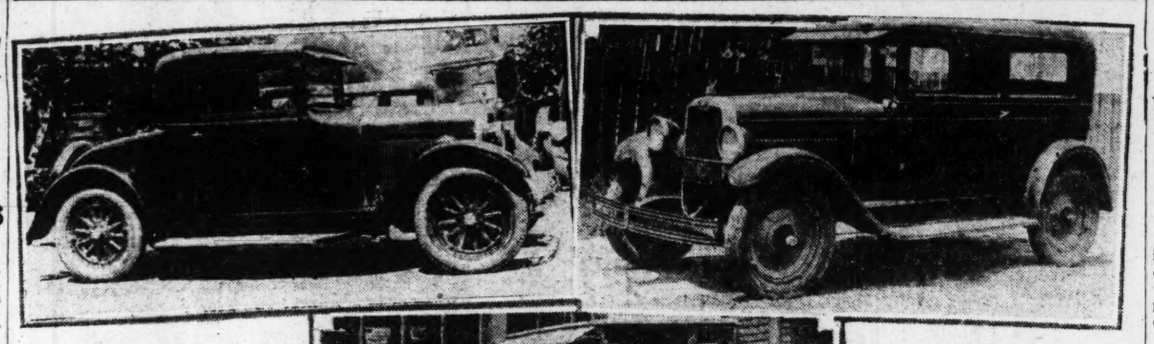

All previous records for shipments of commercial cars from the plant of the Fargo Motor corporation at Detroit were broken again by this division of Chrysler Motors during April when deliveries were more than 100 per cent above March, according to official figures recently announced.

Fargo gains were registered both in the Packet and Clipper lines. Officials pointed out this was the first month for Packet in the market as a six instead of a four-cylinder model.

"The new Packet, with its more powerful engine, has found immediate public acceptance," said Harry A. Kauffman, general sales manager for Fargo, at Detroit. "This was reflected in reports of heavy sales from dealers throughout the country. The new policy of offering color options on both these and the Clipper models was also an important factor in the sales increase. Business men showed keen interest in this innovation, pioneered in the commercial car field, as were beauty and symmetry of line, by Walter P. Chrysler.

"Fargo anticipates an exceptionally busy season and we have increased our production facilities at the plant to meet the record-breaking demand both from domestic and foreign markets. Fargo's original type of beauty with the Chrysler reputation for exceptional performance undoubtedly are responsible for its popularity, already established in the fine commercial car field."

Low Price, High Quality Mark Used Car Offerings Here

Here's another group of used cars offered by reputable Atlanta dealers that illustrate the high transportation values ruling on the local used car market. Upper left, a 1928 Dodge coupe that is an attractive buy at the used car department of the Lambeth-Eskridge Motor Company. Upper right, a snappy 1928 Chevrolet coach that represents excellent service at economical cost from the used car stock of the East Point Chevrolet Company. Below, a 1927 Model T Ford coupe that is attractively priced by the used car department of the Fulenwider Motor Company.

DODGE SENIOR BLAZES TRAIL FOR TOURISTS

Driving comfortably along with accurate road maps through sparsely settled country on hard dry roads, the hardships and dangers experienced by men who blazed the trail in the spring and made those maps, probably never occurs to one. Yet each year new maps have to be made to insure motorists' comfort and safety as new roads and new resorts are opened. And each year these trips must be made long before the average driver would venture far from home.

Racing against rising flood waters, sweeping over ice-covered roads and splashing through mud and water that at times completely covered the wheels a Dodge Brothers senior six piloted by member of the news research division of the Detroit Automobile Club recently finished such a trail-blazing trip through northern Michigan so the half-million summer tourists of the state may safey and comfortably follow the charter routes found by this scout car. Since December, the car has been driven 8,000 miles to chart roads for tourists.

The last trip covered 1,700 miles and required one week of practically continuous night and day fast driving over every kind of highway from new concrete pavement to gravel roads under water, so that the route had to be determined by following a line of broken telephone poles. Dependability of the car was essential in making the trip. Tourist camps, new resorts and historical data were noted so maps and touring information could be ready for motorists who each year spend their vacations in northern Michigan.

New Finance Co. Makes It Easier To Buy a Ford

One of the developments of the past year which created national interest in both automotive and financial circles was the organization of Universal Credit Company for the purpose of financing exclusively the time sales of Ford products throughout the country. Ultimately service of a similar nature will be provided in all countries where Ford products are sold.

Universal Credit Company is a specialized financial institution created to provide uniform and authorized time payment plans at low cost for the purchase of Ford products on an instalment basis. The company in the first year of business just closed has made sound and gratifying progress. The reception accorded the authorized Ford finance plans by the public and Ford dealers in the 21 large cities where branch offices have been established is indeed impressive.

Today UCC has purchased instalment contracts in excess of $75,000,000 which establishes a new record in instalment financing for an institution which has only been in operation for one year. It is anticipated that the volume of business handled will exceed $25,000,000 monthly from now on. In the short space of a year, the UCC organization has grown from an organization of ten people to one employing almost a thousand.

Already there has come a realization that the Universal Credit Company was created primarily for the sound financing of the Ford dealer and the purchaser, and not with the primary object of profit. Its establishment is thus squarely in conformity with the reiterated Ford policy of creating and developing every possible economy from mine to consumer, for the benefit of the public.

The purpose is to reduce the cost of credit, to the individual who buys on time, commensurate with sound business policies. This reduction in the cost of credit is made possible by the many economies that arise from the operation of an authorized plan, on the basis of nation-wide volume, and dealing exclusively with the Ford dealer organization. Simplicity of forms, special bookkeeping and statistical machinery and general uniformity of procedure all under centradized control and management, are constantly contributing to cut these costs.

This cost of credit is just as vital as the cost of any of the material that goes into the building of the automobile. It is in every sense a commodity which becomes a part of the completed articles before it is ultimately sold to the public.

Thus the Universal Credit Company's low finance charges are equivalent to a price reduction on the Model A car and other Ford products.

Then there is that important matter of good will. A buyer delights in dealing with an organization that gives him prompt, courteous service, that deals fairly with him, that maintains scrupulously the standard of its product and that is constantly instilling in that buyer a sense of reliability and confidence and appreciation of the seller and his product.

UCC is serving a still greater purpose in the economic and social phases of our national life. In addition to adding to the advancement of organized industry, UCC is at the same time contributing substantially to the happiness and contentment of society. By extending credit to every deserving person in the nation at the lowest possible cost, UCC is helping to bring greater health and happiness to a large group of American people, heads of families as well as their children. In the process of transition from the crowded city to the healthy country districts, UCC is aiding the American family to establish itself with economic advantage in more desirable locations and is thus helping to raise the standard of American living conditions.

DODGE BROTHERS ANNOUNCE NEW COMMERCIAL CAR

After months of development work, Dodge Brothers have announced a new half-ton delivery truck at a new low f. o. b. chassis price with added features in acceleration, speed and operating economy. Production schedules are geared to supply dealers for immediate deliveries of this lowest priced unit in the extensive Dodge Brothers truck line that meets 96 per cent of all transportation requirements.

Unusually roomy panel bodies feature the latest truck creations that have an overall length of 173 1-2 inches. Outstanding performance in economy, speed and acceleration is available in the L-head type of engine with a bore of 3 5-8 inches and a stroke of 4 1-4 inches, having a total displacement of 175.4 cubic inches. Controlling this speed and power are weatherproof four wheel internal expanding hydraulic brakes, operating in 11-inch drums.

Combustion chambers are machined to insure equal compression and smooth performance. The high compression cylinder head provides maximum speed and power. The engine is insulated from the frame rubber mounting to eliminate strain and vibration. Engine accessories include oil filter, air cleaner and crankcase ventilator. Lubrication is by pump and force feed.

Fine appearance and attractive colors, regarded as a definite business asset for the truck owner, mark the construction of the new truck throughout. Stylish lines of the bodies have been combined with the sturdiness and dependability long associated with Dodge Brothers trucks.

Merchandising of Used Car Now Vital Factor of Success In Business, Crowder States

Used Cars Acquired by Dealers on Scientific Principle of High Value Selling.

Evolution of the automobile selling business to the point where today each department is dependent upon the other for scientifically-planned success is a generally-recognized fact.

The dealer who sells new cars alone cannot hope to succeed, for used cars accepted in trades would accumulate and soon result in the outlay of his entire capital. The used car must be kept moving; it is now a vital factor in merchandising—a factor that is being given the best thought of the automotive industry.

One of the best posted authorities on used cars in Atlanta is R. C. Crowder, manager of the used car department of the Lambeth-Eskridge Company, located at 270 Peachtree street. Mr. Crowder is of the opinion that the used car ranging from a few hundred dollars to nearly a thousand dollars in cost today represents the best investment from a service standpoint that a prospective car buyer could make.

"Any idea that a dealer trades in used cars on a haphazard basis is fallacious," Mr. Crowder said Saturday. "The very reverse is true. When the dependable dealer accepts a trade-in under present conditions in the automotive world, he does so with only one thought in his mind—namely, that the used car must be thoroughly reconditioned and sold so as to allow him to get his money out of it.

"Taking any real loss on used cars means taking a loss on operation of the entire business. As a result the dealer makes an offer on the used car that will allow him to sell it without loss."

Used car merchandising is difficult because of the presence of low-priced new cars, Mr. Crowder added. Another factor that makes for low trade-in allowances and low prices to used car buyers.

"The used car dealer is in direct competition with the new car dealer in the very low price class," Mr. Crowder pointed out, "and he must realize that it is necessary to offer better values for smaller cost if he is to meet this competition.

"As a result, he finds it invariably necessary to have his used car offerings in maximum good looks. He not only reconditions the car thoroughly from a mechanical standpoint, but he also paints it, cleans the upholstery, puts in new rugs and installs new tires. Quite often he finds it necessary to take a loss on these improvements, and the wise, efficient dealer minimizes this loss by doing the work in his own shop at times when the shopmen would otherwise be idle, thus saving all labor costs.

"The public is smart when it comes to buying used cars. No reputable dealer would even attempt to deceive a prospect about the condition of the car he plans to buy. Such a course would be ruinous, and both the dealer and the public know it. As a result, assurance of high value, of fair treatment and of strict guarantee is absolutely certain."

Mr. Crowder has spent 17 years in the automobile business, having had experience in practically every phase of the selling game. Since 1918 he has been engaged alternately in new and used car merchandising, and his department is known as one of the most efficient of its kind in the city. He has on hand a comprehensive stock of used cars to meet every need and price requirement, and cordially invites public inspection.

Willys-Overland In Second Position In Registration Gains

New car registrations of the ten leading makes in all states, for the first three months this year, and in 14 states for April, place the Willys-Overland company in second position in the automobile industry in point of increase over the same period of last year.

Analysis of the Whippet and Willys-Knight increase over last year, as compared with the gains of other manufacturers, places the Willys-Knight registration gains in second place with an increase of 49.7 per cent, while the Whippet gain is 33.1 per cent. This places the increase of Willys-Knight registrations above the increase of the industry as a whole. Of the ten car manufacturers listed, six showed a loss in comparison with last year's registrations, while four made gains.

From Willys-Knight's increase in the current year, it is evident the Toledo manufacturer is getting a considerably greater share of the six-cylinder business in the Willys-Knight price bracket than last year, with an apparent influence toward increased profit possibilities during the second quarter.

Taking the Car Overseas

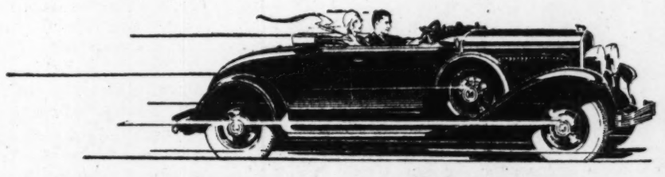

Whether it's Europe or the Orient, an increasing number of American tourists are taking their cars with them. Here is a California girl bound for Honolulu with her new Dodge Brothers Six roadster. Iron grips are fastened to the wheels, and the car is being lifted aboard ship for the long voyage.

A FIVE-YEAR-OLD FORECAST MORE THAN REALIZED

JUNE 7 1924

"+ + + the Chrysler is, in reality, the first step in the general revision of motor car design which is bound to follow its advent. + + + For it is an entirely new type of car, built on a new kind of engineering, which produces results radically different from any heretofore registered in the industry."

CHRYSLER'S INFLUENCE ON YOUR CAR

It has become an axiom of the motor car industry that much of what comes tomorrow originates in what Chrysler engineering does today.

No matter what car you drive, you owe a lot to Chrysler—for Chrysler influence on other motor cars has been universal. Five years ago Walter P. Chrysler produced the first car to bear his name. That was the beginning of Chrysler leadership—a dominant position that has never been relinquished.

It is a provable fact that most of the important automobile betterments of the last five years trace their roots to Chrysler, for Chrysler has been the industry's fountainhead of scientific advancement in engineering.

For five years, Chrysler has been the acknowledged leader in thrilling performance. For five years, Chrysler has led the way in individuality and modern smartness of design.

Those in possession of the facts know that there is scarcely a motor car today that does not owe some improvement in its make-up to Chrysler—and has not become a better car by reason of Chrysler engineering achievement.

Emulation is a nice compliment to Chrysler leadership, of course. But the mere copying of features cannot equal the complete Chrysler results.

To you who are about to choose a new car, a natural question arises: Why not enjoy a Chrysler itself, so long as Chrysler smartness, comfort, performance and quality are the goals to which other cars are striving? Let us show you in a test of your own choosing the superiority of Chrysler to anything aspiring to compete with Chrysler.

THE Marquette IS HERE

BUILT BY BUICK

A great new achievement in the automotive world—Marquette, built by Buick! Never before has there been such a car at moderate price—never before such extra value, such complete quality! Everything about this exceptional new six is thoroughly better. None but the best materials, the most expert design, the finest workmanship have been good enough. Buick wouldn't build a car any other way.

In outward appearance the Marquette is the smartest of the smart. Low-swung, rakish, hug-the-road lines. Beautiful color harmonies in exterior and interior finish. Tailored and fitted to perfection.

And what a performer this remarkable car is! Imagine flashing from 10 to 60 miles an hour in 31 seconds! Think of accelerating from 5 to 25 miles an hour in high gear up a long 11.6% grade! (The average road grade is 7%). Think of riding at 68 to 70 honest miles an hour with complete safety and comfort. That's the kind of pick-up and power and speed you need in a car nowadays—and that's what you get in the Marquette.

THE MOST COMPLETE CAR EVER OFFERED IN THE $1000 FIELD

The new Marquette Six combines for the first time the many fine car features that make a complete motor car.

Long rakish lines—114-inch wheelbase—a full size car in every respect.

Body by Fisher—all closed bodies are the latest product of the world's finest closed body craftsmen.

Non-glare Fisher VV type ventilating windshield—a brand new feature. With the tilted windshield the driver is not annoyed by headlights in back of his car or coming toward him—there are no distracting reflections.

New type mohair upholstery—has rubberized back—is waterproof and dustproof—a new development by Fisher, first shown on the Marquette—a great improvement. Keeps a fresh appearance through a long life of the hardest use.

Deep upholstered cushions—extra comfort from use of fine springs and upholstering. Seat-backs of extra depth.

Fine car comfort due to perfect balance—holds the road at any speed.

Spacious rear seat—47½ inches in width—three adults can ride in perfect comfort.

Ample leg room in front and rear compartment—interiors are spacious and comfortable, no feeling of being cramped in this car.

Interior and exterior hardware of special period design—unusually attractive, adds a smart touch to the finish.

Ash receivers—in sedan models.

Arm-rests in all sedan models—another fine car feature.

Adjustable front seat—driver can adjust seat at will, for his personal comfort and convenience.

Automatic windshield wiper.

Rear vision mirror—all models.

Remarkable power plant—motor develops 67.5 brake horsepower and provides the most brilliant performance ever achieved in this price field.

Piston displacement 212.8 cubic inches—a bigger displacement than any other car in the $1000 field, indicating power to meet every demand.

High-compression cylinder head—special non-detonating design.

Rubber engine mountings—at all four suspension points—shocks and jars to chassis frame are absorbed before they reach the engine.

Counter-balanced crankshaft—vibration eliminated and power delivered in a smooth, silent flow.

Automatic heat to carburetor—saves fuel and insures quick warm-up and easy starting in all seasons.

Thermostatically-controlled water cooling—insures normal operating temperature of motor in shortest possible time.

Completely sealed engine—oil filter, fuel strainer and air cleaner prevent dust, dirt and water from entering engine. Crankcase ventilator prevents oil dilution.

Forced lubrication—to all main bearings, connecting rod bearings, cylinder walls, camshaft bearings, and chain drive—the best engineering practice.

Silchrome steel exhaust valves—resist terrific heat without warping.

Steel-backed bearings—main and connecting rod bearings are steel-backed with high grade Babbitt lining.

Ignition system—fully protected against dust, oil and water.

Crankshaft bearings stepped in size from front to rear—reducing vibration to a minimum.

Crankshaft weighing 75 lbs. is placed in both static and dynamic balance—to assure a smooth, quiet motor at all speeds.

Water pump, fan and generator are V-belt driven—simply and conveniently adjusted.

Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers, both front and rear—perfect riding ease.

Four-wheel internal-expanding brakes—Duo-Servo type protected from dirt and water.

Brake cross shaft is equipped with three bearings as an added protection—providing useful braking power in every event. Controlled with self-aligning bearings which are not affected by chassis strains and twists.

Special self-adjusting spring shackles—eliminate rattle and slaps from wear.

Adjustable steering wheel—driver can have steering column raised or lowered to suit his particular preference.

Tapered chassis frame—remarkably sturdy and stiff to resist shock and provide balance and easy riding qualities.

Radiator of extra capacity—has a frontal cooling area of 430 square inches—ample area to provide effective cooling on the hottest day.

16-gallon gasoline tank—enough capacity for long trips without the bother of refilling.

Hydrostatic gasoline gauge on dash—a much-appreciated convenience.

Built-in bumper brackets integral with frame—avoiding the use of breakable castings.

Coincidental ignition switch and car lock—a safeguard against theft.

Guide tilt-ray lamps—a fine car feature unusual in a car in the $1000 class.

Full-crown one-piece fenders—add distinction and beauty to appearance.

New construction of headlamps—makes them dustproof, keeping reflectors clean and lights efficient.

Headlamp standards are chrome-plated on all models—an attractive feature of the front view.

Chrome-plated cowl lights and cowl moulding—the finish of every detail has been carefully done.

Chrome-plating on headlights and tail lights.

Running board fully bound, with no exposed screws—the Marquette is carefully finished everywhere.

A host of other extraordinary features that combine to make the Marquette America's most complete car in the $1000 field.

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN,
Associated Press Market Editor.

Chicago, June 1.—(AP)—Quick right-about-face action of the wheat market today brought about price upturns strongly in contrast with the recent long succession of setbacks. Aggressive buying from important sources developed, with trade leaders taking the ground that lowest quotations on wheat for at least some time had been reached.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1-4c to 7-8c net higher, corn 1-4c to 1c up, oats 5-8c to 1c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12c.

Accompanying the rise in wheat values today were estimates from one of the foremost unofficial crop experts here that the outlook was for 70,000,000 bushels less in the United States this season and 110,000,000 bushels less in Canada than last year. It was said the Canadian output last year was of a freak nature, and that the 1929 Canadian harvest as figured on the present estimate of acreage and on a 10-year average yield would be but 387,000,000 bushels compared with 509,000,000 bushels last year and 377,000,000 bushels average in the preceding five years.

Assertions also were made that although there has been sufficient rain in Canada of late to give wheat a favorable start a deficiency of sub-soil moisture still was apparent, and that this shortage must yet be overcome by frequent rains to maintain good conditions. At the same time the 1929 United States winter wheat crop unofficially was forecast as 40,000,000 bushels larger than in 1928.

Contributing to the upward course of wheat values today were indications of considerable export business in No. 2 hard winter wheat from the United States.

St. Louis messages said some wheat had been taken there last night for trans-Atlantic shipment. Reports of unwelcome rains in Kansas and elsewhere southwest also were construed in some quarters as being a factor toward higher prices. Other traders, though, made light of complaints about too much rain, and said that by far the best ground for advance in the market was the extreme low prices prevailing.

Corn, oats and provisions were responsive to the renewal strength shown by wheat values. Notice was taken that as against talk about corn being too high compared with wheat, cash corn in Liverpool, brought within 2c a bushel of the price of wheat. The majority of corn traders today were expecting a good-sized decrease in the corn visible supply total Monday.

New York, June 1.—(AP)—The most active Saturday bond market in two months saw convertibles and foreign issues make further progress in a list that recovered some of the ground it lost earlier in the week.

European obligations, particularly the German and French bonds, responded to the reparations settlement by adding to yesterday's gains, although the advances were not so large. German Republic 7s were up a point and several of the central agricultural bank obligations improved from 1-2 to 1 1-2. French Republic 7s touched new high ground at 109, closing one-half point below that figure on the largest turnover in the foreign group. A few of the German industrials gained as much as a point.

Atchison 4 1-2s and Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s were well taken in the convertible group and each made a new high, the former closing at 120 1-2 and the latter at 108 for gains of 1-2 and 2 points, respectively. American Telephone 4 1-2s were up more than a point and International Telephone 4 1-2s took a 3 1-2-point rise on the strength of the stocks. New Haven Railroad Convertible 6s were active at a net advance of 11 1-4.

The rest of the list, including United States government securities, was irregular, although the averages showed a firm to stronger tone. Cement company bonds took a spurt, International Cement 5s gaining 1 1-4 and North American 6 1-2s advancing 1 1-2. The latter, however, surrendered its gain in the late trading and closed at a small fractional net loss. A few of the utilities met with selling which forced Utah Power and Light 5s to a new low for the year on a net decline of 3 3-4.

Industrials were firm and some of the railroads mortgages worked up.

State and municipal bond offerings scheduled for next week total slightly more than $49,000,000. The largest issues are $21,000,000 state of Tennessee obligations and $70,000,000 in bonds of the city of Philadelphia. In view of the small supply of securities of this type appearing in the current dull market, the bidding on these issues by dealers is expected to be keen.

LIQUIDATION HALTS EASY RALLIES ON COTTON MARKET

COTTON DECLINES OVER WEEK PERIOD

The cotton market during the period May 25 to 31 continued steady with fluctuations rather narrow and final quotations somewhat lower than those of May 24. Domestic demand continued good, with business, however, restricted due to scarcity of sizeable offerings of spot cottons. Almost all grades were inquired for during the week with some reports indicating more willingness on the part of buyers to meet the stiffer asking prices of sellers. Foreign demand was reported much improved with more disposition on the part of buyers to purchase for forward deliveries.

According to the weather bureau, conditions during the past week continued most unfavorable for cotton. Except the latter part of the week, temperatures in the east were too low for good growth, though conditions improved towards he close. Field work made generally good advance the first half of the week, but the last two days were too showery with the crop needing warmth and sunshine.

Quotations for middling, 7-8 inch, May 31, Norfolk 18.25, Augusta 18.50, Savannah 18.17, Montgomery 17.75 New Orleans 18.52, Memphis 17.65, Little Rock 17.42, Dallas 17.50, Houston 18.10, and Galveston 18.10. Average for the ten markets May 31 18.00 per pound, compared with 18.28 May 24 and 20.25 for the same day the previous season. Sales of spot cotton reported in the ten markets for the week 38,505 bales, compared with 41,385 the previous week and 21,285 for the corresponding week last year.

July future contracts for the week at New York declined 40 points to 18.16, New Orleans 31 points to 18.26 and at Chicago 66 points to 18.45.

Certificated stock, May 31, New York 166,840 bales, New Orleans 18,965, Houston 26,312 and Galveston 41,131. Total stocks, May 31, New York 172,793 bales, New Orleans 205,509, Houston 340,955 and Galveston 218,564 bales.

Differences Revised.

Differences between grades were further revised slightly during the past week and on May 31 the average as compiled from the quotations for the ten markets for good middling was 47 points on middling, strict middling 33, strict low middling 75 points off middling, low middling 169, strict good ordinary 250 and good ordinary 340. One year ago, good middling stood 40 points on middling, strict middling 26, strict low middling 33 points off middling, low middling 77, strict good ordinary 143 and good ordinary 218.

Premium staple cottons were said to have witnessed a continuation of the recent good demand, with the supply of almost all grades and lengths limited, with the result that such of the business transacted was at full values. Some reports indicated a very good demand for middling and strict middling, 1 1-4 inches, as well as for strict middling 1 1-16 inches.

Southern mill centers reported a fairly active demand with some resistance in meeting any further advance in the basis which has recently been advancing steadily. Southern spinners takings to May 24 5,101,535 bales, against 4,467,124 to the same day last year.

New England mill centers said that a rather keen demand prevailed for spot cotton with offerings rather light, particularly of premium staple cottons. Some mills were said to be interested in covering their early fall requirements of raw cotton since expectations are that the present activity in the gray goods markets promises to continue through the summer months. Northern spinners' takings to May 24, 1,280,558 bales, against 1,307,040 a year ago.

Dry good centers reported a rather quiet business, with demand particularly centered on wash goods for delivery early this summer. Reports indicated that it is likely that sales of wash goods this summer will be the heaviest than for some time. According to the bureau of the census, the production of cotton cloth printed in cotton mills and outside for the months of April amounted to 88,635,000 yards, compared with 69,378,000 for April, 1928, and fine cotton goods production for April amounted to 425,925 as compared with 255,949 for April, 1928.

Situation Better.

Foreign markets reported an improved situation for American cotton. Liverpool said that demand was increasing, particularly for immediate requirements. Sales of American for the week amounted to 22,500 bales, which were larger than those reported recently. The general election was said to have had a somewhat disturbing effect on the market. Liverpool stocks, American, on May 24, 603,000 bales, compared with 550,000 the corresponding day last season.

Manchester reported an improved demand with more disposition to buy for forward deliveries. The demand seemed to be for almost all grades and staples in supply. The yarn and cloth demand was reported poor with sales less than production and order list running down. Political situation said to be causing uneasiness in that market. Stocks of American at Manchester May 23, 79,000 bales, compared with 59,000 last season.

Havre reported a very strong demand for spot cotton in that market, with high basis paid during the past week. Demand for forward shipments was said to be somewhat quieter. Price fixing was reported very moderate. Stocks American cotton at Havre, May 24, 183,000 bales, against 233,000 a year ago.

Bremen reported the spot situation rather quiet, but that inquiries for new crop cottons, especially for early sailings, were in evidence the past week. Stocks American cotton at Bremen, May 24, 427,000 bales, compared with 433,000 a year ago.

United States port stocks, May 24, 1,140,017 bales, against 1,299,471 a year ago. Interior stocks, 446,703, against 587,760. World's visible supply of American cotton, May 24, 3,-260,420 bales, against 3,703,531. World's takings, all kinds, to May 24, 19,236,101 bales of which American 13,022,501, compared with 18,011,976 to the corresponding day the previous season of which American 13,168,816.

New York, June 1.—(AP)—Bulls launched a vigorous buying movement in the utilities in the final transactions of today's short session of the stock market, which prompted short covering and stregthened the entire list, as it was slipping under weekend liquidation and short selling.

The Associated Press price index of 20 leading utilities rose more than 3 points to a record high level, and this but six days since the index of 50 industrials dropped to a new low for the year. Rails and chemicals were also well supported. The days' business, however, was comparatively light, with only 1,533,770 shares changing hands, but this turnover was substantially greater than for the two previous Saturday sessions.

The response to the record-breaking weekly reduction of $232,000,000 in brokers' loans was rather disappointing during the first hour, when gains were confined to 2 or 3 points. This encouraged bearish operations, appearing to be centered in Radio, which was depressed 3 points to 84, a new low for the movement.

Announcement of the reaching of an agreement at the reparations conference, however, appeared to revive confidence. Coppers, which have been particularly sensitive to reparations developments, strengthened. Checking of the decline in the grain markets also helped stock market sentiment.

Despite the reduction of brokers' loans, the credit situation still caused uneasiness. Although the Federal Reserve bank statements showed further improvement at New York, discounts for the entire system, instead of declining further, turned sharply upward, reaching a total of $988,194,000, in contrast to $904,426,000 a week ago. Wall Street felt that this might cause even greater pressure against the use of credit for speculation. Yesterday's 6 per cent call loan rate carried over the week-end, but higher rates are expected next week, as the month-end dividend and interest checks return to the banks.

Federal Light & Traction and Standard Gas & Electric were high fliers of the utility group, both mounting about 6 points, the former to a new peak. North American Company lost about 3 points in realizing, then more than made up its loss, closing about a point higher. American Water Works, which jumped 17 1-2 points yesterday, sold down 4 points at one time, but was off less than 2 points at the close.

New York Central was a strong spot of the rails, getting back to 200 with a gain of about 4 points, only about 4 points from its record price. Atchison jumped nearly 3 points to a new peak but lost its gain in profit taking. It is rumored that this road may seek approval from the interstate commerce commission to declare a 40 per cent stock dividend. Norfolk & Western rose about 2 points to a record price in response to rumors that the Pennsylvania may seek to lease it. The first 68 roads to report April earnings show an aggregate gain of 33 1-2 per cent over April of last year.

Columbian Carbon, Commercial Solvents, Union Carbide and Allied Chemical sold up from 4 to 6 points and Burroughs Adding Machine jumped 10. Farm Implement issues rallied from the low levels reached in yesterday's break, with Case, Advance Rumely preferred and International Harvester mounting 2 to 5 points. American Telephone, Curtiss Aero, General Electric, Greene Cananea, Anaconda, Indian Refining, Mohawk Carpet, Republic Steel and Wright Aero made moderate gains, some of which were reduced by realizing.

A weak spot was Westvaco Chlorine, which has been on the decline for several sessions. Today it broke about 14 points to a new low at 49 3-4. Motors were inclined to heaviness for a time, but closed fairly steady. Auburn rallied 8 points. Chrysler advanced about 3 points on reports that liquidation of an unsuccessful pool had been completed, but lost most of its gain. General Motors and Packard closed fractionally lower. United States Steel sagged a point.

The halting of the decline in the grains was the most notable development in the commodity markets. Wheat sold from 1-2 to 1 cent a bushel higher on better export demand. Corn mounted a cent a bushel on small receipts on forecasts of rain. Cotton, however, was again under pressure, closing about 50 cents a bale lower.

Foreign exchanges were quiet, with marks and sterling showing some firmness in response to the reparations agreement. The Japanese yen and the Spanish peseta, however, both dropped to new lows for the year.

GEORGIA PEACH CROP OF 10,000 CARS LIGHTEST IN YEARS

PRODUCE MARKET OF WEEK STRONGER

Rather moderate shipments of new potatoes and gradually decreasing movements of old stock helped to advance the price considerably last week on both classes of potatoes. It is questionable, however, whether the higher level can hold long, in view of the opening active movement in North Carolina and Virginia. Prices of cantaloupes and watermelons declined sharply under the increasing daily supply. Markets for apples, tomatoes and lettuce were mostly firm. Onion prices were moderate, but much better than a year ago. Strawberries were selling at relatively low ranges, and cabbage showed no uniform trend.

A heavy crop of cucumbers is expected in four early states, about 1,500,000 hampers, or 50 per cent more than in 1928. All sections show sharp gains. Alabama may have 584,000 hampers, South Carolina 506,000, Louisiana 274,000, and Georgia 90,000. Indicated yields per acre are much higher than last season, and condition of the crop in seven leading states is 13 points above that of a year ago.

Shipments of citrus fruits were much lighter than they had been, as the Florida season neared an end. Celery forwardings decreased to 255 cars; California increased to 115, but Florida shipped only 140 cars. About 45 carloads of celery arrived from Bermuda. Apple movement was down to about 320 cars for the week. Combined forwardings of 29 fruits and vegetables decreased slightly to 18,250 cars and were 1,500 lighter than during the same period last season.

Georgia Peaches.

The commercial peach crop in Georgia will be very light. Early estimates are for slightly less than 10,000 cars this season, compared with shipments of nearly 16,000 last year and approximately 12,000 cars in 1927. Compared with the 1928 movement, a decrease of 3,300 cars is expected in southern Georgia and a decrease of 3,000 cars in the central part of the state. North Georgia will ship only slightly fewer cars than last season. Movement of Hileys and Elbertas may be only 55 per cent of last year's output of these varieties. Only 4,800 cars of Elbertas and 2,100 cars of Hileys are expected. About 20 cars of early varieties rolled from Georgia the past week and the first car was reported in California. South Carolina expects one-fourth to one-third fewer peaches than in 1928, while the crop in North Carolina will be slightly below last year's figure.

Tomatoes Moving.

Efforts are being made in central Mississippi to hold back tomatoes until a better stage of maturity was reached. However, the first 60 cars of the season moved during the past week. Southern Texas forwardings increased to 560 cars, while Florida dropped to 215. The Mexican import season is about done. Total domestic shipments were 850 cars, and about 110 arrived from Mexico. A satisfactory season is being experienced in the Rio Grande valley, with prices of lug boxes firm at $2.50, though four-basket crates declined to 85c-$1. Mississippi fours were bringing $1.35 cash-track at loading points.

Mississippi expects to ship more cars than last year, even from a lighter acreage. The crop in the state is forecast at 1,717,000 bushels, compared with 1,344,000 last season. Eastern Texas expects only a small increase of a crop of 1,154,000 bushels.

The city jobbing range on southern Texas lugs was $2-3.50, while lug boxes from Mexico showed a wide range of 75c-$3.00. Original six-basket crates of Florida fancy-count tomatoes were bringing $3-4.50 and repacked stock $6.50-7.25.

Eastern Potatoes Active.

All potato sections along the Atlantic coast were beginning shipment earlier than expected. First sixteen cars have already moved from North Carolina, and light shipments have come from the Norfolk section and eastern shore of Virginia. Total forwardings of new potatoes increased 1,900 cars last week, while movement of old stock held around 2,300 cars. South Carolina was leading in the south, with nearly 1,100 cars for the seven-day period. Alabama decreased to 235, while Texas increased to 260 cars. Louisiana and Georgia each marketed about 110 cars. Eastern barreled stock advanced considerably in price, but southern sacked Bliss Triumphs were mostly lower. North central states reported much higher prices than the week before on old stock, and the Chicago carlot market advanced to 80 cents to $1.10 per pound on northern Round Whites and $1.90 to $2.05 on Idaho Russets.

Peak movement in South Carolina probably is past, and shipments from that state after June 1 will be very light. About 2,200 cars have been shipped from South Carolina to date. First peak in North Carolina is expected by June 15 and a second peak a week later. South Carolina Cobblers in either stave or slat barrels were bringing mostly $5.50-6.75 in large consuming centers, and Florida Spaulding Rose had advanced to $6.00-7.25 a barrel. The f.o.b. market in southern Alabama weakened to $3.00-3.25 per 100 pounds sacked. Rains were hindering potato movement in the San Antonio district of Texas. Partly graded Cobblers were returning shippers $2.25-2.35 per sack in that section, while Bliss Triumphs in the Sugarland district sold at $3 cash. Alabama Triumphs jobbed in terminal markets at $3.25-4.50, compared with Texas arrivals at $7.50 to $14.00, and Louisiana stock at $2.50-4.00.

Cantaloupe Supplies.

Imperial Valley had become a center of great activity on cantaloupes. About 615 cars rolled from that southern section of California during the week, compared with 50 the preceding week and 1,840 during the same period in 1928. Standard crates, 45's, of salmon tints declined sharply at Brawley to a range of $2.40-2.50, with ripes for western markets slightly higher than that level. City dealers had to lower their prices as arrivals increased, and the closing range on standard crates from California was $6.75 to $8.00, with flat crates at $3.00-4.00. Texas flats were jobbing at $2.00-2.25 in St. Louis.

Watermelon output jumped to 960 cars last week, as against 150 during the same period in 1928. Most shipments were from Florida, with light movement in Texas and Imperial Valley. Cash track prices in central Florida declined to $125.00-375.00 per carload of 22 to 30-pound melons, according to size and variety. On a unit basis, city dealers were getting 35c to $1.15 per melon. On straight carloads, the city price was mostly $325.00-375.00. The center of activity will soon shift to northern Florida and southern Georgia.

Fewer Berries Moving.

Strawberry shipments decreased temporarily to 2,365 cars for the week. The season was waning in Arkansas and Tennessee, and was near the finish in the Norfolk section and Eastern Shore districts of Virginia. Increases in carlot movement were reported for Maryland, Delaware, Kentucky and Missouri. The forecast of production in Maryland has been reduced considerably to 26,000,000 quarts. Prices were at a moderate level in most districts, ranging $1.75 to $5.00 per 32-quart crate in Maryland and Virginia and $2.50 to $2.75 per 24-quart crate at auction points in Missouri. Delaware shipping points quoted sales generally at $3.00 to $5.00 per 32-quart crate, while city prices were $3.50 to $5.00. Virginia and Maryland arrivals sold on a quart basis at 6c to 18c, according to variety and condition. The extreme jobbing range on 24-quart crates from Kentucky, Tennessee and the Ozark region was $1.75 to $4.50.

The strawberry crop in five late states is forecast at about 52,000,000 quarts, compared with 48,400,000 last season. Most of the increase is in New York and Ohio. First cars are now moving from the 16,000,000-quart crop in the state of Washington. General condition of the berry crop on May 15 was 80 per cent of normal, as against 74 per cent in the late May, 1928.

Onion Prices Moderate.

Total onion shipments decreased to 535 cars. Southern California increased to 235 cars, and the cash track price of Bermuda type onions in the Coachella valley was $1.15 to $1.20 per crate. Texas forwardings dropped to 275 cars. About 23 carloads of onions arrived from Egypt and 7 from Chile. Best yellow Bermudas from southern Texas sold in important cities at $1.25 to $1.90 per crate, and Crystal Wax onions ruled $1.25 to $2.15. Arrivals from California brought $1.50 to $1.50. The growing condition of onions in five states was better than a year ago, averaging 92 per cent of normal.

Of the week's 1,100 cars of cabbage, about 580 came from Virginia, 350 from Mississippi and 65 from Tennessee. Mississippi stock was having a wide distribution, with some shipments destined to Canada. The f.o.b. market in the central part of that state was firm at $1.00 to $1.10 per barrel crate, and this cabbage sold at $1.75 to $2.50 in large consuming centers. Crates from Alabama were jobbing at $2 to $2.25. Some of the Virginia cabbage was rather ordinary and Eastern Shore crates could be had in city markets at 75c to $2.00, compared with Norfolk section stock at $1.00 to $1.10 and 1 1-2 bushel hampers at 45c to 90c. Condition of the cabbage crop in eight states is 84 per cent of normal, or 7 points higher than last spring.

Lettuce markets were mostly firm, as the total movement decreased. Central California shipments dropped temporarily to 760 cars, and other parts of the state originate only 30. New Jersey shipped about 20 cars by rail. Crates of 4 to 5 dozen heads of Iceberg type lettuce ranged $2.50 to $3.00 in the Salinas-Watsonville district of California, with some sales of best stock at $3.25. The city jobbing range was $3.50 to $5.25. New Jersey Big Boston lettuce declined to $1.00 to $1.50 per crate of two dozen heads.

STOCK MARKET UNDERGOES NEW DRASTIC REACTION IN PERIOD OF WEEK

Call Money Holds Steady At 6 Per Cent; Rise Expected

BY STANLEY W. PRENOSIL,
Associated Press Financial Editor.

New York, June 1.—(AP)—The stock market went through another drastic reaction this week, coincident with a break in wheat prices which carried some options to the lowest levels in 15 years. Curiously, the credit situation, tightness of which was blamed for last week's decline, showed signs of relaxation, due probably to the release of a large volume of credit by the drop in securities prices. Bond prices drifted to new low levels.

Call money held steady at 6 per cent all week, although predictions were freely made last week that the heavy holiday and month-end demands for funds would send the rate to 10 or 12 per cent. Time money rates also eased somewhat, with 8 1-2 per cent quoted for all maturities as the week closed, as against 9 1-4 or higher for some of the short maturities earlier in the week. With about a billion dollars in stock subscription rights coming due in June, Wall Street looks for a month of erratic call money quotations.

The decline in stock prices was sufficient to carry the Associated Press index of 50 leading industrials to a new low level for the year. More than 200 issues, including such recent favorites as General Motors, Hudson, Chrysler, Montgomery-Ward, Anaconda Copper, International Combustion, Johns Manville, Marland Oil and Wright Aeronautical, sank to new low levels for the year.

Heavy buying of the rails and public utilities, several of which broke into new high ground, finally checked the decline. The demand for the rails was influenced by the speculative belief that they were out of line with the general market, and had not fully discounted the beneficial effects of the St. Louis and O'Fallon decision. Public utilities responded to the publication of excellent earnings reports and rumors of new alignments in the industry.

Steel shares were rather sluggish despite the continued high rate of output and demand, and the optimistic predictions of second-quarter earnings. A few of the minor steels, such as Vanadium and Superior, broke into new low ground, while the market price of Sloss Sheffield, one of the largest pig iron producers, was nearly cut in half on the omission of the quarterly dividend.

Oil shares likewise failed to make much progress, the recent gasoline and crude oil price advances apparently being offset by the large increase in crude oil output last week. Leaders of the industry expect constructive developments from the conservation conference called by President Hoover to be held in Colorado Springs about the middle of June.

Mail order and farm equipment shares were sold heavily as a result of the break in wheat prices on the theory that the purchasing power of the agricultural regions would be impaired. Case Threshing, which sold as high as 509 earlier in the year, broke to 293. Montgomery-Ward sank below 100 for the first time this year, and the Advance Rumley issues sold at only a small fraction of April's high prices.

Reports of a falling off in automobile sales and a lessened demand for steel on the part of automotive manufacturers brought about fresh selling of the motor and accessory shares, many of which crashed into new low ground. Wall Street also heard during the week that some automobile executives had taken large losses in the market.

While the sharp decline in stock prices was not accompanied by an unusually large volume of selling, scores of issues nevertheless were carried to levels 25 to 150 points below the year's highs. The weekly statement of brokers' loans showed a drop of $232,000,000, bringing the total down about half a billion dollars below the recent high.

DAY IN FINANCE
By R. L. BARNUM

Numerous Spots of News Interest in Week Have Varied Effect on Stock Market Transactions.

New York, June 1.—This week's high spots in the news of interest to Wall Street included the English election, the collapse in the wheat market, very heavy liquidation in the stock market, easier money because of the heavy liquidation in the stock market and the warning by the Guaranty Trust Company, now the country's largest financial institution, in point of deposits, that while the high level of trade activity continues, "in some leading industries observers definitely predict a recession of more than seasonal magnitude within the next few months." This prediction was made early in the week before the collapse in the wheat market.

Wheat has dropped 25 cents a bushel within a month to far below $1 a bushel. Until this week, for 15 years it has not been at that figure. There was a large carry-over from last year's crop; but stimulated by the promise of government aid another big winter crop was planted this year with growing conditions exceptionally favorable. The result is the steady decline in the price of wheat the past month to the lowest level since 1923. Unless there is crop destroying weather this country and Canada will raise a bumper wheat crop this year with the buying power of farmers curtailed.

Heavy liquidation in the stock market started first because of high money and increased with signs of a slowing down in general trade even before the wheat market collapsed.

Call money at month-ends this year has been as high as 10, 15, 20 per cent with the average for the month the highest since 1920. On May 3 the average price of 50 representative stocks made the third new high for all time since the beginning of 1929, each time after violent price declines. Each time the average price made a new high holders of stocks expected the upward price movement to continue as it has time and again in recent years when a new top was established. But instead of continuing to advance, the stock market in recent months increasingly has been subjected to violent liquidation, indicating plainly that holders of long stock discouraged by the heavy carrying charge were using good news to get out of the market.

When the last downward price-movement in the stock market started a fortnight ago holders of long stock were extremely uneasy over the approaching money market requirements. Holders of long stock on margin already discouraged over the high carrying charge, could see ahead a new high rate for the year for call money. Hence the liquidation in the stock market which has been accentuated first by trade reports such as the one made public this week by the Guaranty Trust Company and next by the collapse in the wheat market.

As a result of the heavy liquidation in the stock market, there has been a decided change in the money market picture. This week has been an easing of time money rates with call money easier than for any month end this year.

No greater imagination is required to see even easier money ahead. This is the time of year when there is seasonal slowing down in general trade, making for seasonal ease in money. The stock market not commercial requirements, has been responsible for this year's high money rates. It is not likely that bullish operations will be resumed in the stock market until it can be definitely determined whether or not something more than seasonal slowing down is ahead in general trade. With the stock market and general trade both slowing down, easier money is a certainty.

Easier money will bring about a resumption of offerings of foreign securities in this market, stimulating both our domestic and foreign trade. Part of the money thus being raised will be spent here, stimulating our domestic trade, and part withdrawn to stimulate general trade abroad which in turn helps our foreign trade. The credits established here through the sale of securities to us, for the longer look ahead, both from the viewpoint of the stock market and general trade easier money will be helpful.

THE PAVED ROADS DEBATE.

The issue as to whether Georgia is to ever have a consistently-built and maintained system of state-wide hard paved roads will probably be settled by the action of the general assembly this summer.

Public sentiment is being aroused throughout the state by the strong advocates of the bond issue plan of getting quick and effective road system construction, while the adherents of the pay-as-you-go plan, falsely so-called, are opposing a bond issue with all their ingenuity and might.

There might be some genuinely debatable ground between the two parties but for the fact that most of the states already paved or undergoing paving, have found the bond issue plan the available, economical and only satisfactory method of getting hard road systems promptly and permanently.

Nearly every state in the Union, several of the immensely richer ones only excepted, have resorted to either state or county bond issues for the building of their hard road systems. Those persons who point to states that have built their roads with county bond issues as examples of what Georgia should do, seem to forget that at the bottom of those county bonds is the responsibility of the state; that a county bond authorized by the state is in reality a state obligation. That principle has been established by the highest courts of the country.

Georgia is already indebted by some $21,000,000 or more for county bonds issued in aid of highway building and he would be a rare lawyer who would contend that the state is not thus legally and effectually bonded.

The proposition to bond the state for highway construction upon a modern, business approved plan, includes the replacement of those dual county-state bonds with self-redeeming purely state bonds. And that proposition has behind it every argument of common sense and wise financing.

It must not be overlooked that those county bonds must ultimately be paid under the contract with the highway board and the only open question is when to pay them—now, or ten years, or forty years, hence.

When this matter comes directly before the general assembly there will be a sweeping away of the Cassandra cries, the fictitious figures and the prejudiced ap captandum vulgus arguments now arrayed against the demand of the progressive people to "lift Georgia out of the mud—and do it now!"

FOREFENDING THE FARMERS.

The farmers in overalls may find it hard to figure out the relief for their ills in the bill now pending in congress, but the farmers in tailor-made suits and broadcloth shirts who represent them in the farm lobby at Washington will hail its enactment with "three cheers and a tiger!"

The reason why is that it provides for a farm board to administer the uses of a $500,000,000 revolving fund, drawn from the treasury of the whole people to finance farm products and insure profits from their marketing. If any one thinks that the tuxedo-coated grangers who infest the capitol are going to let those beautiful bonuses get away from them he is a fit subject for scientists to unload their myths upon.

Congressman Haugen, the Cincinnatus of the corn-cattle-and-wheat belts, writes in the Farm Journal's current issue that the half-billion fund is, among other eleemosynary objects, "for insurance against price declines; for working capital; for purchasing, storing, merchandising, or otherwise disposing of the commodity."

One naturally wonders what the farmers themselves would say to a bill proposing to assign a half billion public dollars to do those same things for the textile, or the boot and shoe, or the ready-made clothing, or an overproducing automobile industry? Yet any one of them, in seasons of surplus production or slack market demands, would be equally entitled to a like government subsidy.

However, the public mind has been educated to the belief that farming is the preferred industry of the nation and that, no matter how foolish, improvident and unbusiness-like the farmer may be, he is entitled to be cared for at the general expense.

The great experiment is now to be made of furnishing the farmers with government guardianship and financial aid, and the hope of the nation will be that it may not end in worse troubles for agriculture and enormous loss to the people's treasury.

BECK AND STATE RIGHTS.

The address which Congressman Beck, of Philadelphia, made to the Georgia Bar Association on Friday was in a vein of thought not unexpected from him as a meticulous student of the federal constitution. There can be no gainsaying the validity and pertinency of his warnings that the once cherished and strenuously defended rights of the states are being either usurped by or surrendered voluntarily to the federal central government. Examples of those facts are multiplying from session to session of the congress.

But the observant publicist will be prone to inquire what good is to come from ringing a fire alarm about the obvious condition now? Most of the transfers of state rights and powers, or mergers of them with federal functions, have been made already and irrevocably. To recover to the states their original constitutional rights and plenary powers now would require a very thorough reorganization of the federal government. It would mean stripping that government of many functions and services that congress has imposed upon it during the past half century, the discharge of a whole army of officeholders, and the taking from the people of many benefits which they think they are now getting free of charge.

It will not need many more shifts of state functions to federal cooperation and eventual full control to convert this republic into one great federal state of forty-eight counties, little better in status and powers than so many colonies, similar to Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines.

Members of the historic Jeffersonian democratic party have had the repute of being sticklers for and defenders of state rights, but it is doubtful that today twenty members of that party on the floor of either house of congress would go on record to return the federal government to its original functions and limitations. They are all too intent upon making Uncle Sam do something for the folks back home!

State rights were once highly valuable possessions, but there are no worthwhile state rights any more.

SMOOT IS THEIR STAND-BY.

The statement by Senator Smoot, chairman of the finance committee of the senate, that it will take the republican members of it two months to propose amendments to the tariff bill sent over by the house is significant. It means that he and his senate Smootites intend to rip the bill up the back, let out much of the house sawdust and restuff the goose that lays the golden eggs for the protected special interests with plenty of subsidy sage.

No other man in all the congress is so smooth an adept in playing the protection game as Senator Smoot and when he says he will need two months in which to revamp the house bill it means that no republican interest that accumulates "fat" for the support and supply of the republican party will fail to get full calculation and compensatory duties.

That does not mean that he will ignore the farmers, for he represents the beet root farmers quite largely, and mining and live stock interests of the west also, but—Smoot is the Horatius of the high protectionists of the east who will defend the bridge and see that no spoilers get over into their preserves. They bet on Smoot and he will not fail them.

CITIZENS, OR SUBJECTS?

The question as to whether the aliens in a state should be included in the population entitled to representation in the congress was warmly debated in the senate the past week, but the amendment to exclude them was defeated.

With reference to the operation of our laws in general the supreme court long ago decided that the alien must occupy the same relations as the native born or naturalized citizen. He is entitled to the same protection and must assume the same obligations. All of that line of rulings should be obvious enough.

But the privilege of the suffrage and the right of political representation come under a different line of legislation and judicial precedents. Congress was constituted to represent and act for the potential people of the United States. It is extremely doubtful that the fathers of the constitution ever intended that transient or domiciled aliens, unnaturalized, should be counted among the actual citizens of the nation. So long as they are unnaturalized they are subjects of sufferance, and not citizens.

Therefore, it seems a constitutional solecism to include them among the citizens entitled to representation in the political legislature of the nation.

LUDLOW'S SOUND LOGIC.

There is a newly elected democrat from Indiana in the house of congress who, in spite of his newness on the floor, is no novice in democratic doctrines and in congressional activities. He is Louis Ludlow, from the Indianapolis district, who for a couple of decades has served in the press galleries of congress as correspondent for several leading newspapers of the nation. That compreerensive experience fully equips him to speak with knowledge and authority.

Recently Congressman Ludlow delivered a pair of addresses worthy of the attention of loyal democrats everywhere. One was on "The Future of the Democratic Party" and the other on the proposition that "If the Debenture Plan is Democracy, Thomas Jefferson was not a Democrat."

Having been politically reared in the school of David Turpie, John Kern, Tom Marshall and Sam Ralston it goes for granted that Ludlow is an all-wool, yard wide, blue-dyed democrat. He believes in the utter soundness and persistence of the principles of democracy formulated by Jefferson, vindicated by Jackson, and given world-wide popularity by the powerful and as yet unrequieted labors of Woodrow Wilson.

This drilled and accomplished Hoosier democrat takes no stock in the pessimistic opinion that the democracy of Jefferson is obsolete and deficient for the political, economic and international needs of the American people. He does not agree with many who are assuming to be tutors of the party, tempting democrats to policies of expediency, of compromise, of surrender of cardinal principles in order to win jobs and spoils.

As an instance of his democratic integrity Ludlow refuses to accept the debenture subsidy as a democratic device and duty. He has demonstrated how utterly at variance it is from the Jeffersonian principle of "equal rights to all and special privileges to none" and expresses his amazement that present-day spokesmen for the party in the congress have given the alien subsidy their support.

Congressman Ludlow may not be able to withhold the party leaders from a fatuous commitment to the debenture heresy, but he must be credited with having warned his fellow partisans that such action will be treason to the fathers of the American democracy.

ARKWRIGHT AND ARC-LIGHTS.

It has become axiomatic that Atlanta holds a life-seat in the national spotlight and that fact had a brilliant illustration at Atlantic City on Friday evening when the national Edison "Festival of Light" was inaugurated.

It fell upon an Atlantan, Preston S. Arkwright, as president of the National Electric Light Association, to open the five months' national celebration of the invention of the incandescent electric light by Thomas Edison, the wizard of the etherial energy of light and motive power. The address of the occasion was one of those informed, lucid and prophetic speeches for which Mr. Arkwright has achieved both local and national fame.

The "Festival of Light" is to go on throughout the nation until October 31, when it will culminate in a tribute to Edison in which will be mingled the praise and gratitude of many nations now enjoying the multiple benefits of his marvelous inventions.

Atlantans are proud to know that one of their beneficial leaders was honored with the office of inaugurating the world-girdling and unprecedented event.

THE BRITISH ELECTION.

The British elections turned out some surprises of an individual character, but the general result cannot be looked upon as an unexpectable outcome of the red-hot campaign of the last month.

There has been growing popular unrest in Great Britain since 1924 when the short reign of the labor party was ended by a revival of conservative party power. But the conservative administration under the premiership of Stanley Baldwin has been uncertain in aims, unstable in policies and unsatisfying in performances. The paramount problems of trade depression and labor unemployment have baffled all its skill of statesmanship, so that the inevitable spirit of reprisal, bred of disappointments, has consolidated the discontented in the labor party and relegated the conservatives to the minority.

The natural expectation is that a labor government will be set up, with Ramsay MacDonald given a second chance to prove that he can conduct a safe, economical and satisfying administration of the complex affairs of the British people.

Along with the latest returns comes the prediction that the labor majority will be too thin for a competent "carry on" and the new parliament will not last through the year. That would mean another general election and an appeal to the electors for a majority one way or the other that will be able to dictate and conduct a definite line of policies.

On this side of the big pond the American people are sympathetic with the efforts of the British people to stabilize their government policies in the interest of domestic peace, industrial tranquillity, and concord with the tendencies to world pacification. And for those accomplishments any government in England, striving for them, will have the good will of our people.

MORE GEORGIA PUBLICITY.

The proposal made to the Georgia Bankers' Association by W. R. C. Smith, Atlanta promoter par excellence, for a Georgia advertising fund of $250,000 is a most timely suggestion and more than modest enough.

Philadelphia alone is now collecting a popular fund of $1,350,000 to advertise the advantages of that ancient city for industries and general national and international trade. One of the main incentives to that wakening up of the Philadelphians is the slipping off into the south of great numbers of industries of the eastern region. Retail trade, imports and exports, transportation incomes, housing and other important interests of the eastern cities and industrial areas are suffering decimation by the growing southern trek.

The proposal by Mr. Smith to match in part these eastern advertising campaigns for people and capital by an offset campaign in the interest of Georgia is one that should be taken up heartily by every progressive community in the state, and no interest in the state can carry out the needed program of publicity so easily and successfully as the bankers of the state.

CIVITANS ON CIVIC DUTY.

In keeping with the general high purposes of the organization the Civitan International, meeting here in annual convention on June 10-12, will consider as of first importance an amendment of its constitution requiring every member of a Civitan club to vote at every election available to him. The penalty will be to lose his standing as a loyal member of the order.

The chief test of good citizenship in this democratic republic is faithful and honest use of the right of suffrage. Our civic life, local, state and national, is almost wholly determined by the ballots cast in our elections. Most of the evils of bad, ignorant, inefficient, and corrupt government can readily be traced to the non-use or misuse of the ballot. The majority of those normally qualified to use the ballot fail or refuse to use it in the making of government and its officials.

Every person who claims to be a representative American citizen should be jealous of the value and power of the ballot and be always alert to use it. The Civitans will do an enormously valuable patriotic work if, by making the use of the ballot obligatory upon its membership, it stimulates the civic organizations throughout the nation to follow its example. The times demand the sanest and fullest voting power of the republic operating at the ballot boxes in every public election.

A pall of mystery hangs over the weed from the fiber of which an European promises an artificial cotton. Possibly it is the widow's weed.

That Chicago editor who is fighting extradition to Georgia for escaping from a prison camp was sentenced four years for stealing $4. Sort of a dollar-a-year man.

What has become of the old-fashioned motorist who used to smear the brake lining of his car with printer's ink to make the brakes hold?

The New Jerseyite who shot at the Los Angeles and missed it was found not guilty by a naval court. The court didn't hit him in its discharge.

A Broadway theater permits owners of lap dogs to fetch them along when attending matinees. At least the actors can truthfully say their stuff is lapped up.

The reformer who is demanding a newspaper free from sensation should be satisfied with the papers of today carrying so much plane news.

Citizenship was denied Mrs. Schwimmer, of Hungary, because she would not bear arms. She must wear an old-fashioned swimming suit.

The parent of today offers his son an airplane if he doesn't smoke until he is 13 years of age.

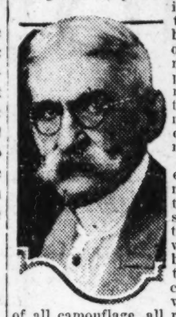

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, a woman of the hour, was after all only an alarm clock.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL.

Thoughts That Revolve Around the Hard Roads Bond Issue Proposition.

No more important state policy has been up for debate by the people of Georgia in 50 years than the present issue whether the state shall be taken up out of her perennial mud holes and put upon solid roads fitted to the daily demands of a civilized community?

When the general assembly meets later in this month the situation as to the state's highways is going to be put up to the members completely. It will be stripped of all camouflage, all reactionary rubbish, all appeals to reverence for Bob Toombs and all the tears of the rich for the heavy burdens of the "poor taxpayers," most of whom do not pay state taxes enough to wad a single-barrel shotgun!

Bold and blatant efforts are being put forth to becloud the hard roads problem with figments of imagination and figures that will not fit into any system of ordinary business accounting. And these fictions are being exploited by men who could easily buy a new Packard motor car every month with their pocket money.

A Concensus Most Convincing.

In every national convention of highway experts and advocates there is a concensus that the most practical and cheapest plan of furnishing a state with a comprehensive and competent hard road system is to issue bonds enough to quickly build it and let the constantly increasing revenues from the gasoline and motor taxes pay off the bonds, principal and interest.

That plan long ago passed the day of experiment and interrogation. It is now demonstrated in a score of cases to be working out as calculated and without adding a red cent of burden to the ordinary budget of the states.

Any high school boy knows arithmetic enough, given the factors of cost and revenues, to work out the perfect equation of an amortized road bond issue.

Therefore, it is the rankest and most repulsive sort of demagogy when men of known intelligence, legal competency and state administrative experience deliberately deceive their unskilled fellow-citizens by parading before them the "rawhead and bloody bones" of a great oppressive state debt and scarifying taxation!

* * * *

Whose Ox Is Being Gored?

These rich warriors against good hard roads for the common citizen do not stand to be nicked a single nickel by a state road bond issue. Not a copper will be levied upon their plethoric property to pay the bonds. Probably it will take not as much gasoline to run their limousines on hard roads as it does now to plug them through the mud. And may be they will not buy as much gasoline any year as the little Ford-owning farmer, for many of them tour Europe in the summer and sand their hides in Florida beaches in the winter. But the little old Ford-chugging farmer must be on the road daily taking the kids to school, or his stuff to town, over the miry roads, suffering excessive wear and tear and using up his machine in half its proper lifetime.

Mister Millionaire, living on his estate outside of the city, buying his gas from a country filling station at the cheapest rate, using the city streets "free gratis for nothing," objects howlingly to a bond issue to give good roads to the city man to reach out into the country and to the countryman to make his sales and purchases in the city easier and cheaper. If you can find beneath the sun any meaner selfishness than that you can have my spare shirt!

Remember One Salient Fact.

The proposed road bond issue is to replace on better terms the nearly $25,000,000 of county bonds issued under contract with the state highway board to carry on its patchwork road plan. The state owes that money to the counties and it will cost the state less to pay these bonds off now than ten or fifty years from now.

The $75,000,000 asked for road construction will not be issued at once, but by installments as the work proceeds. Hence the bugaboo of the state having to begin at once to pay an interest charge of $5,000,000 and keep it up for the whole life of the bonds is a piece of calculation that wouldn't be expected from the keeper of a hot-dog stand.

And the proposition to increase the gasoline tax to 5 or 6 cents per gallon is to put a rate of taxation upon a daily commodity that no other in the state could stand. If there is so awful an outcry against a one-tenth of one per cent sales tax on general commodities what ought not we to hear against this 25 to 35 per cent tax on gasoline?

Well, this is enough for Sunday morning, but there will be more when the church doors are not open!

Rosika Schwimmer and Citizenship.

Rosika Schwimmer was born in Hungary in 1877 and came to this country in 1921, to live in Illinois. When she applied for citizenship, the federal district court denied her application because she refused to take the oath of allegiance, without a mental reservation against bearing arms in time of war. The circuit court reversed this decision and it was then carried to the supreme court. That court in turn reversed the circuit court, sustaining the district court in its denial of the privilege of citizenship to this woman.

A Great Judge Dissents.

The record of the examination of Rossika Schwimmer is revealing in its significance. She said that while she would not take up arms personally, she could not see that a woman's refusal to do so would be at variance with her oath of allegiance. She promised that she would uphold the United States against written attack in foreign publications, whenever the opportunity offered. She was clear and distinct in the expression of her admiration for our form of government, and took occasion to condemn government by proletarian classes, or fascist dictatorship. In unqualified language, she declared her preference for the government of the United States, as against any other government in the world. Miss Schwimmer is an extreme pacifist. Extreme, not in the sense that she would not die for our constitution, but in the sense that she would not kill someone else in its defense. It is true that she is a woman of 50 years of age, and there is not the remotest possibility that she will ever be called upon to shoulder a gun or throw a deadly chemical into the ranks of the enemy of the United States. Nevertheless, this paralyzing and deadly technique of the court considers this woman an undesirable citizen. This is done because she is honest enough to answer no, when questioned by petty officials, (in a merely supposititional situation which could never arise), whether she would support the government by force of arms. The reason this question was asked her originally was that she had been writing and making speeches in favor of her extreme pacifist views.

That free and noble spirit, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, joined by his spiritual comrade, Justice Brandeis, delivered a dissenting opinion, which should become a classic in American literature and be taught to our boys and girls. Speaking of the fact that Rosika Schwimmer was only guilty of seeking, from her standpoint, to change the constitution of the United States in order to abolish war, this distinguished judge says: "This seems to me not materially different in its bearing on this case from a wish to establish cabinet government, as in England, or a single house, or one term of seven years for the president." Then he adds, with a keen satire, which might well sting the Pharisaic loyalists to the constitution, "To touch a more burning question, only a judge, mad with partisanship, would exclude a would-be citizen because the applicant thought the eighteenth amendment should be repealed." One is provoked to raise the question, even if he must smile in doing so, whether it would not be in harmony with this decision of the supreme court to put as a test of citizenship one's loyalty to this same eighteenth amendment?

Free Freedom.

Of course this case came to the supreme court merely as a legal technicality, and was so decided. Its origin, however, and the spirit of its prosecution was, as Justice Holmes clearly intimates, a bitter prejudice against her pacifist views. He says: "Some of her answers might excite popular prejudice, but if there is any principle of the constitution that more imperatively calls for attachment than any other, it is the principle of free thought—not free thought for those who agree with us, but freedom for the thought that we hate."

Would it not be wholesome to write that sentence over the desk of every school-teacher and over the pulpit of every preacher in America: "Freedom for the thought that we hate?" Here and here only can there be a true spirit of freedom. It is the freedom which allows the other man to hold and express opinions diametrically opposed to our own. Not only do we thus express our willingness to grant freedom of thought to others, but only thus do we reveal a wholesome faith in our own opinions. The spirit which seeks to suppress the expression of opposing views is born out of a skeptical fear that one's own opinion cannot bear the test of debate.

The closing sentence of this remarkable opinion takes on an emphasized significance, when we remember that we have a Quaker president. Says Justice Holmes: "I would suggest that the Quakers have done their share to make the country what it is. . . . I had not supposed hitherto that we regretted our inability to expel them, because they believe more than some of us do in the teachings of the Sermon on the Mount."

The Background of Foreign Affairs

Another Friendly Financial Gesture; Prohibition and the Diplomats; Jockeying on Film Quota; Dictatorship Tightens.

BY HENRY KITTREDGE NORTON.
(Copyright, 1929, for The Atlanta Constitution.)

Following hard upon the heels of the offer to cut the American claims against Germany to facilitate a settlement of the reparations matter, comes another gesture as evidenced of a more accommodating attitude in Washington.

When the American armies returned from France they left behind a vast accumulation of military supplies which were never likely to be needed on this side of the water. General Dawes, therefore, made a bargain offer to the French and sold them the whole lot for $400,000,000. Not cash, you understand, but a note—a note which is due August 1, next.

When Senator Berenger came over to negotiate for a settlement of France's war debt to us, the American debt commission agreed to include this $400,000,000 in the general settlement which was to be made over a period of some 60 years, beginning at $30,000,000 a year. France has paid the $30,000,000 each year, but her parliament has never ratified the Mellon-Berenger agreement.

Without this ratification it is of no effect and the $400,000,000 falls due August 1, France could pay it. She has balances abroad of several times this amount. But she would prefer to pay it on the proposed installment plan. She is not yet ready, however, to ratify the agreement. There is still hope in France that the United States may, either before or after the settlement of the reparations question, make some further remission of the allied debts. The French government would, therefore like to postpone payment of the munitions claim until after the report of the reparations conference is in, and Ambassador Claudel has suggested this to Secretary Stimson.

The reply might have been "ratify the Berenger agreement or pay the $400,000,000 on August 1." But this would have been a shortsighted policy. France would have paid, grudgingly, the munitions claim and the whole question of the debt settlement would have been reopened in an atmosphere of bitterness and recrimination.

Instead, resolutions have been offered in both houses of congress extending the munitions note to May 1, 1930. Thus France's request is complied with. And in return it is understood that the Poincare cabinet will make the ratification of the Berenger agreement a government measure and make every effort to bring about a final settlement.

Prohibition, of course, is a purely domestic question. But it exhibits a striking ability to stir up international issues. The discussions with Canada over the border leakage and the "I'm Alone" case are recent examples.

The hesitation of the rest of the world to follow our example in making the noble experiment has now produced another issue. The experimenters have never been quite as noble as the experiment and the consumption of liquor in Washington is known to be high.

A part—but it is feared a very small part—of this is due to a privilege which the foreign embassies and legations enjoy under international law. This is a species of extraterritoriality by virtue of which the embassies and legations are considered each as a part of its own country and subject to its laws rather than those of the United States.

Under this privilege the embassy and legation population has received its regular quota of alcoholic drinkables. In fact, there is a suspicion that it has received more than its regular quota and that frequent late afternoon callers who bear suitcases in and out of the diplomatic portals have substantially increased the meager incomes of some of the minor attaches.

This has attracted the attention of the prohibition forces and the possibility of depriving embassies and legations of their liquor has been discussed. In an exchange of letters on the subject Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, is reported to have said that so far as he was concerned he would be quite willing to relinquish his diplomatic privileges in this regard. Other diplomatic officials have shown no great haste to follow Sir Esme's example.

It would be quite possible for this country to force diplomatic officers resident here to forego alcoholic refreshments. It would be possible because national law can always override international law where the issue is too small or the country too great to warrant the injured states in going to war in support of international law as they interpret it. In the case of diplomatic liquor we should have both conditions; the issue would be too small and this country is too powerful to make likely anything more than diplomatic protests from the other nations. By following such a course, however, we should add another to the list of precedents in which a single nation, because it felt itself strong enough, has cut through international law to give effect to a national purpose.

The debate on the French film quota still drags among its weary course. The French contingent proposal seems an example of the worst type of governmental interference with the natural course of trade. To be sure, France was overrun with Hollywood films. Following American practice, a tariff was placed on imported films. The French public continued to insist upon the American product, however, and was willing to pay the additional centimes which were necessary to see them. The Americans were satisfied; the French government was getting a good income but the French film producers were getting nowhere.

Finally they hit upon the device of the contingent sale. For every seven American films imported into France the Americans were required to buy one French film. American producers were thus forced to subsidize the competitive French production. And the French producers liked it. It worked so well that they decided to try to make it work better. Instead of one French film for every seven American productions they asked for one French film for every three American productions.

The Americans announced flatly that if this change were made they would not be able to carry on business in France at all and would withdraw from the country. Immediately there was an outcry on behalf of some 5,000 French employees of the American film industry and on behalf of the French exhibitors who were showing American films.

Here enters patriotism. It is patriotic to have films made in France, even though they cost more and are not so good and people don't like them. A French government official is very sensitive to the charge of lack of patriotism. A compromise is now suggested in a ratio of four American films to one French. But American producers feel that even this ratio would impose too heavy a burden to permit them to continue business. Worst of all, from the point of view of America's increasing exports is the possibility of an extension of this contingent device and make American producers carry foreign competitors on their backs.

When King Alexander of Jugoslavia abolished the parliament at Belgrade and proclaimed himself dictator he raised many questions which only time could answer. Granted that the parliament had wholly failed to satisfy the various peoples annexed to old Serbia—especially the Croats—there was room for the hope that the king by assuming personal direction of affairs might extend the sphere of local government and thus free the Croats and others from oppression of the Serbian politicians. But there was also room for the fear that in the absence of parliament their power might be increased.

The appointment of General Zhivkovitch as premier left the matter still in doubt. At first there seemed a marked tendency on the part of the dictatorship to mollify the Croatians. A Croat citizen was appointed mayor of Zagreb, and there was even talk of the king moving his capital to Zagreb for a time.

This favorable trend has now been reversed. Doubtless the Croat leaders, confirmed in the habit of complaint and demand, must bear a share of the blame for this. And curiously enough, the Serbian politicians, as a group, are exempt from blame. For they, too, have found themselves pushed aside by the dictatorship. The king and his premier have not only ceased to cater to the Croats, but have arrested their two outstanding leaders, Pribitchevitch and Matchek, the latter Stefan Raditch's successor as chief of the Croat peasant party.

It may well be that by tightening the reins of the dictatorship King Alexander will ameliorate the situation in Jugoslavia—not by himself acting as arbitrator between the different peoples, but by uniting them in opposition to the dictatorial system.

NEW YORK SKYLINES

BY CHARLES ESTCOURT, JR.
(Written Exclusively for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance.)

New York, June 1.—The chairman of a committee which has just made public a gigantic plan for a super-New York was born in Hong Kong, which is said to need a plan fully as much as this city, and recently he has been to Persia studying the possibility of substituting some other industry for that of opium raising in the sad land of Omar Khayyam.

This chairman, Frederick A. Delano, is an architect and chairman of the federal reserve bank of Richmond, and he has convictions on the importance of preparing cities for their manifest destiny. He points out that the farmers are growing fewer, proportionately, all the time, and that the trend is steadily cityward.

"We shall, many of us," he says, "live to see the proportion of those earning their living on farms cut down to 10 or 15 per cent. This is especially true in prairie sections."

Mr. Delano is also on the planning commission for Washington, the capital, and has a French medal for his efforts toward advancement of art and architecture. He used to be president of the Wabash railroad, and it was in planning railway terminals that he gained perspective on the development of cities. Early in life he set out to accumulate some money, with the idea that by 50 he would be able to devote himself to tasks completely after his own heart.

When Woodrow Wilson offered him the banking post Mr. Delano quit his business connections and became a member of the original federal reserve board at one-third the money he had been getting.

But It Beats the Dutch.

If the early Dutch ghosts of New Amsterdam are aware that 150 men have worked seven years at a cost of $1,000,000 to plan the future New York for an expected population of 20,000,000 in 1965, those ghosts shouldn't feel too bad about it.

As the first settlers hereabouts they couldn't have planned the super-city now in prospect without foreknowledge of all the inventions, and developments, scientific and technical, that have quite undone their simple world.

A similar ignorance has bothered the men engaged in the present undertaking. Foreseeing the spread of steel and stone over land that is still green they emphasize the importance of setting aside many park spaces even now, while they are available. And with the certain advance of aviation in mind they insist upon the wisdom of selecting sites for these future developments yet to be wrought through discovery of new forms of power and their application.

The technical miracles to come from further scientific research are as far beyond their imagination as the practical uses of steam, oil and electricity were beyond the fancy of the old-timers.

So far no telephone girl has attempted to take credit for the mistake that gave one customer the wrong number but thereby awakened another just in time to save himself and his family from being asphyxiated.

This fortunate mistake follows close upon the announcement by Dr. William Crocker, director of the Boyce Thompson institute for plant research, at Yonkers, that the humble tomato plant proceeds to wither in the presence of only one part of gas to 200,000 of air.

The tomato plant therefore is excellent for giving warning about gas, in the daytime, but being a singularly quiet plant it is no good at night. People would sleep while it withered, and never know. Therefore, the tomato plant should be harnessed to the telephone, or to some electrical contrivance, so that at the slightest withering a bell would ring.

This is something for Dr. Crocker to work on. He has the facilities. In his greenhouses and laboratories 17 miles above New York he can make all climates and control moisture and light. He keeps a jungle, as miasmic as the South Sea islands where they are miasmic. Some plants exist in complete darkness in the cellar. Others bloom in the rays of 48 arc lights of 1,000 candle power.

The tomato is certainly in the public eye these days. It was used with rare effect in Jersey City's recent political campaign. Enough soup is made of it here daily to form a red river, and the drug stores are riotous with cocktails of its juice.

The Sidewalks of New York.

He lay in the gutter. Drunk, no doubt, yet it seemed a shame to leave him there. So thought the Good Samaritan of Manhattan, 1929, and he looked down at the motionless sot and then around at the windows of the houses near by, wondering what to do.

In one window was a woman, intently watching.

"Better help him up, hadn't I?" the passerby asked.

"No," said the woman, with no evidence of emotion. "Let him be where he is. He's too dirty to come into the house."

She was the wife.

Wealthy With $200 a Year.

One of the most curious of missionary ventures, although really no missionary attempt at religious conversion is involved, is now being undertaken by a Unitarian church in Brooklyn. Dr. John H. Lathrop, the minister, who recently returned from India, has obtained funds to support a full-time minister for the Brahmo Samaj, in Alleppey, South India.

"The congregation there," he says, "is made up entirely of outcasts, who are not permitted to walk on the public roads or drink from the wells used by members of the four Hindu castes. These outcasts are not diseased. They have no disability except that inflicted upon them by the castes. It is a distinction of superstition and of race.

"The reason so many of these outcasts accept Christianity is that when they do the rule against outcasts does not apply to them. This congregation of 200, however, represents the reform movement in the Hindu religion, and occupies the same position in India as Unitarianism does here. The minister, one of the congregation, will get $200 a year. That will make him a wealthy man, relatively, for the daily wage of one of these outcasts is about five cents."

And Many Lumps, Please?

American visitors in London are often amused by the spectacle of afternoon tea in business offices, and even on newspapers, but now this insidious break in production routine is touching business in New York.

The custom is introduced by someone in authority, and naturally the employes appreciate it. The custom finds favor particularly in a business that requires a certain "front," for things English are class and distinction in some quarters here. Of course a number of English houses have agencies in New York. One opened recently and engaged a few girls as secretaries and stenographers. About 4 o'clock on the first day the boss told the girls it was tea time, and that it would be their duty to prepare and serve it.

He had provided the tea service but, would you believe it, not one girl in the all-American group even knew how to make tea?

A Tale of the Sea.

Steamboat Atlantic sank, but her bell hung on a mast above the wreck, tolling, tolling. It was cut loose and taken ashore and now hangs above the new entrance to the enlarged seamen's institute near the Battery. It happens that the bell was cast in the same year that the institute was incorporated.

John Gilbert Explains Why

:: "NICEST BLOND I EVER MET," HE SAYS ::

He Married Ina Claire

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

(Copyright, 1929, by The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Hollywood, Calif., June 1.—He has known more beautiful women than any other man in the world. But he married the girl who is "the nicest person I ever met." That is the description of Ina Claire which John Gilbert gave me today.

"Come now," I said to him, "you've known all types of women—beauties, too—women who must have had quality. Just what has Ina Claire beyond all these others that you wanted to make sure of her for life?"

And then Jack Gilbert described her as the "nicest girl I've ever met. The most charming person I have ever encountered. The woman who has more of talent and charm and beauty and accomplishment in a professional way, yet who puts all these things aside as if they were not, and is an interesting and absorbing human being.

"All of These."

"I've been enchanted for an evening, intrigued for a season; or even more, caught in the allure of blonde or brunette or titian types—but most of them were, in the final analysis, just another woman. A man wants the woman who is delightful, interesting, surprising. Ina Claire is all of these things.

"In the first place she is Irish. And that means volatile. She thinks one thing in the morning and another at night. And that makes for an interesting day. She is intense—touches the heights of joy and the depths of discouragement all between breakfast hour and midnight. And withal she has such a delicious sense of humor—her own name is Fagan, you know."

(I didn't know, but I had been told she came of Hibernian stock and that New York producers attributed much of her quality to this fact.)

Life, to Jack Gilbert, has taken on tremendous zest. He has suddenly found himself transposed from the most sophisticated and assured figure in silent pictures to an enthusiastic neophyte of talkies.

Ticklish Career.

And he has begun a matrimonial career with a famous actress; a career which faces Jack Gilbert with a tremendous amount of responsibility. A career which will call out the full resource of his charm.

He will pit the Gilbert personality against the charm of Manhattan. He will wage war against the tidal pull of the footlights of Broadway. For the Ina Claire who just now is happy in her honeymoon with Jack Gilbert will surely meet the day when the remembrance of that gay theatrical thoroughfare she has known in the past will tear at her heartstrings with a nostalgic demand not to be ignored.

Nobody is more keenly aware of all these things than Jack Gilbert. And he is ready to meet them. He brought the subject of the theater up.

"And if and when it happens," said he with his vital smile, "I want her to go and do the things she wants to do. Because nothing in life is worth while save doing the things you want to do in the way you want to do them. Besides, I realize that circumscribing a person is the best way to ruin your own cause with them."

Co-ordinated.

The keynote to Gilbert's personality is co-ordination—that rapport between thought and action which results in quick, satisfactory speech and gesture. I am weary of the assertion that Gilbert is a pretty boy—that he is effeminate—all the other useless gibber of the unobservant.

He is nervous, quick, vital. His voice is not deep and booming, but it is expressive and well modulated. He displays a gratifying humility about his beginnings in the talkie field. He has just finished his first talkie. His second will be made under the direction of Lionel Barrymore. He expressed great satisfaction over this because he feels Barrymore can teach him so many things about talkies that he needs to know. And he meets the struggle with this new medium gladly.

"We became routined in the old medium," Gilbert explained. "Not that we were really aware of it. But as I look back on it now I realize that I came in here and put on my make-up. Slipped into a peasant's frock or a prince's uniform. Went out and kissed women. Kissed them at right angles and at left angles. Bent them backwards or forward or any other way the director could think of. Naturally one came to the stage where a picture meant repetition—and repetitions are never constructive."

Met "Nicest Blonde."

John Gilbert says he didn't know he was talking with Ina Claire the night he went to a party and met the nicest blonde he ever chatted with. He learned her identity afterward. She didn't talk about herself. Or her conquests. Or ambitions.

There is an element of novelty and of danger in his marriage with Ina Claire. And this novelty Jack Gilbert appreciates to the fullest. The danger—well, his one idea of perfection in living is never to become smug. The worldling who has lived so well that existence is boring to him cannot bring happiness to others or find joy for himself.

And Jack Gilbert's idea of keeping the zest in life is in being married to Ina Claire—born Fagan—the nicest person he has ever met.

Atlanta's Social Welfare Development Is Advocated

Development of Atlanta's social welfare work to a point at which definite and dependable provision will be made for its needs, rather than the present hand-to-mouth arrangement, was suggested by Frank Miller, executive director of the Atlanta Community Chest, in his report of activities of the Chest and its 39 organizations in April.

The societies served a total of 18,916 families or individuals in April, the report disclosed, of which 6,317 families were served by organizations of the relief, or "direct help" group. The largest number served by a single agency in this field was 1,197, listed as applicants for work through the Community Employment Service, a free agency maintained by the Chest.

The child welfare group served 983 children—orphans, abandoned waifs, or the children of working mothers who except for day nurseries operated by agencies supported through the Chest would be neglected or subject to the perils of the streets.

The "individual" group, including the homes for old women and incurables, the Churches Home for Girls, the Community Home for Girls, and the Community Shop, ministered to 334 persons.

10,676 Enrolled.

In the character-forming group, directing the play-time activities of boys and girls for character training and wholesome development, 10,676 were enrolled. This group was described as the city's insurance against future dependence, want, and degeneracy.

The Social Service Exchange cleared 606 cases, by this means preventing duplication of effort and funds by the agencies and co-ordinating their activities.

"These organizations all form a closely-knit group interested not only in social planning and work for the community but in the annual money-raising campaign and administration of the Chest," Mr. Miller reported. "Their welfare work is co-ordinated by a well-developed plan in which each agency takes its share without duplicating, overlapping, or competing in any way with the others.

Interest of All.

"The interest of one is the interest of all. They are working for the future welfare of Atlanta. Their executives meet in weekly conferences in the Chest office to further their plans and their service. Thus family and individual relief and service, child welfare, health service, and character training, are carried on effectively because of complete understanding among the societies. Contributors to the Chest may be assured that their investment in welfare work is being faithfully and wisely used. The Chest is well organized and directed, and is worthy of confidence.

"Paupers and orphans are community liabilities. Our job is to change them into community assets. This cannot be done in a day. We are making progress in this direction and have proof of it. We can point to families and individuals, formerly indigent, who now are productive and have purchasing power.

"The financial report shows an apparent Chest shortage of $46,980.16 that will develop on December 31, 1929. If one-half the unpaid pledges of 1928, which would be $31,161.40, and the estimated $45,000 shrinkage for 1929, were realized on, a total of $76,161.40 can be collected and this shortage will be more than wiped out."

Mr. Miller pointed out that plans for the campaign for 1930 funds already is under way, with appointment of Roy LeCraw as general campaign manager and with arrangements to start at once the solicitation of "big givers," many of whom are missed in the short period of a limited campaign. The general campaign will not begin, however, until next fall.

NANCE APPOINTED MEMBER OF ROAD BOND COMMISSION

Following the adoption of a resolution in favor of highway bonds for the state of Georgia in its annual session at Augusta in April, the Georgia Federation of Labor, through the president, O. E. Petry, of Augusta, Saturday notified the joint committee for highway bonds of the following nominations to the committee from the labor body:

A. S. Nance, J. Sid Miller, Miss Mary C. Barker, George F. Haynie and Louie P. Marquardt, of Atlanta.

On receipt of these appointments Walter B. Stewart, chairman of the joint committee, named Mr. Nance as a member of the executive committee of the state-wide organization.

The joint committee for highway bonds is composed of five representatives from each of the state-wide organizations which have indorsed a highway bond program. Organizations which already have appointed their representatives include the County Commissioners' Association of Georgia, the Georgia State Automobile Association, the Macon Chamber of Commerce and the Georgia division of Kiwanis clubs, in addition to the Georgia Federation of Labor. Other bodies are expected to appoint members of the committee at an early date.

J. Frank Beck Proposes Sale of Candler Field

Editor Constitution: I have had something to say before on the subject of our Atlanta airport, Candler field. And have read with interest the report of the U. S. expert, William T. Centner, on the subject of its improvement. He declares that Atlanta's geographic location and its importance as a business center make it a natural air center. He recommends that another expert should be employed to further survey the field and segregate various activities in order to utilize the field to the maximum degree. He says that the commercial activities there are increasing daily and that an extensive development program should be immediately inaugurated to properly accommodate this growing business and that the present layout is entirely inadequate even for present day needs. It can hardly be rated as a Class 4, and should be converted at a large expenditure into a Class A-1 field to meet the requirements of the future. Now why should Atlanta do this?

In the beginning of this new airplane industry it was probably necessary for municipalities to offer an incentive to the early operators, by furnishing them with a field on which to land. Active competition between cities occupying points of advantage probably compelled Atlanta to make the very considerable expenditure now represented by Candler field. Atlanta's position in this field is now assured.

It is now pointed out by these experts in air field construction that we have but made a beginning in this development, and that further expenditures of large and unknown amounts must now be immediately provided to make ours an A-1 field. I am for calling a halt. For it is evident that Atlanta is now being exploited by various commercial enterprises connected with the business of air transportation using our property for profitable business purposes of their own. Why should we allocate and develop city property and furnish sites for the operation of flying schools, airplane factories, corporation owned mail carriers, federal post office, passenger carriers, refreshment stands and now a hotel.

Other transportation companies furnish their own terminals and make their own improvements. I see no distinction between air transportation and railroad and street car transportation. The latter spend millions in large centers for terminal facilities, which we are expected to furnish at little or no cost to the air field operators.

Atlanta is not in a financial condition to furnish a satisfactory air terminal to meet the desires of all comers who wish to use this field for their commercial purposes. It is certain that Candler field will not long remain sufficient to accommodate the rapidly expanding requirements of air transportation at so important a center. Will it be the policy to continue to purchase and develop sites for this purpose?

Is Atlanta prepared to enter permanently in the speculation of outside business enterprise?

My plan is to invite bids on a lease of Candler field, that will return an income to the city for the expenditures already made, and allow some corporation to take over this property for a term of years, to make such improvements as are necessary at their expense, with the privilege of charging for their use.

Or better still, to sell to the highest bidder, the entire property with improvements, which should return to the city more than the cost and free the city from a mistaken business enterprise which should not be continued.

Order to Absent Teachers Is Denied by Mrs. Nelson

Editor Constitution: Several dependable principals have informed me that Superintendent Sutton recently told a formal gathering of teachers that "Mrs. J. O'Keefe Nelson had notified him that all teachers absent on account of sickness must show a doctor's certificate to that effect, in order to get their salary during such absence."

Thus Mrs. Nelson alone, of her sovereign power, gave out this mandate! Mrs. Nelson does not possess the authority to issue such notification. I not only did not so notify Mr. Sutton, but I have never uttered one syllable to him directly regarding the subject. The only reference to it I have ever made in connection with him was in the article in The Constitution, March 24, 1929. In it I mentioned several rules of the board of education constantly violated by Mr. Sutton. One such rule, in regard to payment of teachers' salaries during sickness was, "all such payments or salary are conditioned upon weekly certificates of sickness from a reputable physician." I added, "Never in one single instance have I known Mr. Sutton to present certificates when asking the board for payments of these salaries" (during long illness). Thus requiring certificates from physicians in such cases was not a notification from Mrs. Nelson, but was a rule passed by the entire board of education June, 1926. These principals tell me that Mr. Sutton in all these years has never notified the teachers of such rule and they have never obeyed it. A former book of rules for the board required certificates from physicians in giving leave of absence to teachers.

In passing this rule in June, 1926, the board of education did not wish to do injustice to even one teacher or principal. Council was short of money and the board of education was harassed by the lack of funds. In some cases, school roofs had been leaking badly, sanitary conditions were menacing the health of teachers and pupils alike, there was no money to buy materials for that most appealing and inspiring school department, the special classes, and other needs were dire and many. I doubt if any section has more intelligent and loyal teachers and principals than Atlanta. They have held the schools together through changing administrations and sometimes unfavorable environments. But in every large corporation there are some thoughtless ones, some who, perhaps, do not fully realize the inconvenience which their absence caused to those faithful ones who were never absent.

Prominent principals had mentioned the abuses sometimes caused by preventable absences. So in formulating the above rule, we were merely trying to deal with a difficult situation. Among those board members actively supporting this rule were those having daughters teaching in our schools. But the rule is not as drastic and indiscriminating as would seem from Mr. Sutton's statement. I wish we had a rule which would always penalize the erring and never the innocent.

Opposed to Proposed Division of First Ward

Editor Constitution: I notice that Councilman Wells proposes to divide the first ward for the benefit of some of the other wards and thereby carve out a new and additional ward for the city. As an humble citizen of the first ward who has lived in it for many years and contributed my bit to its merited development, I most solemnly protest.

In the first place, what is the need of another ward unless it comes from newly acquired territory? Why seek to increase the size of council, thereby increasing the expense of administration and at the same time giving the city a large and unwieldy group of law-makers? But if we need a large body suppose we get more territory. Instead of disturbing the citizens within why not interest the citizens without? The suburbs of Atlanta are not fair to Atlanta nor true to themselves. They are enjoying the benefits of our city and giving nothing in return for upkeep and protection. We should go out after them instead of disturbing this poor little negro ward on the west.

JOHNSON SELLS RIALTO INTEREST; WILL LEAVE

BY ELMO HAMBY.

Arthur R. Johnson, for the past several months co-owner and operator of the Rialto theater, announced Saturday that he had sold his interest in the theater to his partner, John A. Comzy, and will leave this morning for Chicago, where he plans to attend the International Sound Exposition before going to New York.

In this age of chain theaters, owners and operators of theaters of any size are exceedingly few and far between and thus it is that Mr. Johnson and Mr. Comzy occupy a unique place in Atlanta theatrical circles, albeit an exceedingly popular spot.

ARTHUR R. JOHNSON.

A native of Indiana, and with Indianapolis as his principal stomping grounds, Mr. Johnson has had wide experience in theatrical circles of Chicago. He also was connected for some time with Publix theaters in Florida, where he opened several new theaters for the company.

Negotiations for the purchase of the Rialto theater in Atlanta from Publix were begun early this year by Mr. Johnson and Mr. Comzy, also from Chicago. With the completion of the deal, both came to Atlanta to operate the theater and operation has been unusually successful, they announce.

At length, the wanderlust that had carried him hither and yon all his life struck Mr. Johnson and he disposed of his interest in the theater to his partner.

He hasn't decided just what he'll do next, he said Saturday, so don't be surprised if he happens to drop back again and become owner of the Howard, or makes some other totally unexpected move.

MINISTERS' BODY PLANS TO OBSERVE 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Plans for appropriately observing Sunday, June 23, the fiftieth anniversary of the Evangelical Ministers' Association, are well under way, according to Rev. E. M. Poteat, pastor of the Second Baptist church, who is president of the association.

A feature of the observance will be an exchange of pastors in 68 churches and a union service in the afternoon at the Wesley Memorial church. Dr. Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., city organist, will be in charge of the musical program at the union service.

A joint meeting of the Evangelical Ministers' Association and the Christian council, together with executive committees of both organizations, will be held Wednesday, June 5. Dr. A. Earl Kernahan will be the principal speaker at the meeting.

Thinks Freight Rates Already High Enough

Editor Constitution: I read in your paper today an article by Mr. J. L. Edwards, vice president of the A. B. & C. railroad.

If the railroads are doing so poorly how has A. C. L. stock gone from $115 per share in 1925 to $175 now and paid 8 per cent per annum cash dividends, how about Southern railroad, four years ago at $42 per share, now $138 and 8 per cent cash dividends yearly, New York Central at $76 five years ago, now $180, Texas Pacific $75, now $180, in five years time?

It looks to me like a smoke screen thrown out to put us poor devils who are paying the freight a little while longer to sleep. Owing to excessive freight rates it is impossible for the grower of melons, peaches, potatoes, oranges and grapefruit to make any profit any longer. It makes little difference to the farmer whether the Mediterranean fly eats his oranges or peaches, he gets nothing either way.

Oranges have been selling in Florida the past winter at 60 cents per box while the price in New York was $3.50. Railroads got it all.

In Canton, Ga., a few weeks ago, I saw the bill for a car of seed potatoes from Maine. The total cost delivered for 10 pecks was $4 of which amount the railroad received as freight $3.40 the farmer got 60 cents less, 10 cents for the sack and 6 cents commission or net 44 cents.

In 1914 I shipped 30 cars of melons from Albany, Ga., to Chicago, Ill., and paid $80 per car freight and one train crew and engine hauled 20 cars and received $160 for doing the job, today the rate is $200 per car and one engine and crew haul 80 cars and receive $16,000 or ten times as much. How can the farmer exist with high tariff, farm implements, trusted fertilizers and railroads extracting the last drop of blood? Why don't congress see the main evils?

Police Chiefs

of the International Association

ATLANTA GREETS YOU!

This week the guests of our great and glorious city are the Police Chiefs of the International Association. Every American citizen is indebted to these stalwart representatives of law and order, and it is the privilege of this city to extend a welcome that will show an appreciation of their work in making the communities of the nation safe for our homes, our women, our children and ourselves.

The hospitality of this key city of the south has never failed to respond, and its traditional spirit of fellowship has never answered a nobler, finer cause than in behalf of these men who are willing to sacrifice their lives for the protection of humanity.

Open wide the doors---make way for these "chiefs of justice"---make known that Atlanta stands in full accord with their noble achievements.

SUNDAYMIDNIGHTSHOW OPENS GEORGIA FILM

Never before have there been so many new faces in Hollywood, many of them long time favorites in the ligitimate theaters of New York and larger cities. This influx of new talent is evident in "Alibi," the United Artists all-talking mystery thriller, which begins the new week at Keith's Georgia on Sunday night at 1 o'clock midnight. This midnight show is being given for the benefit of the Atlanta Police Fund. This spectacular melodrama directed and produced by Roland West, who gave the world, "The Bat," "The Dove" and "The Unknown Purple," may create at least half dozen new screen favorites.

Chester Morris, former Broadway star, who makes his flm debut in "Alibi," is declared to be headed for stardom as a result of his acting in the colorful part of "Chick" Williams, master gangster and jailbird. "The best actor on either the stage or screen, is Roland West's tribute to Morris. Another actor, brand new to the screen, whose performance in "Alibi," is heralded as nothing short of sensational, is Regis Toomey, who won fame on both New York and London stages before accepting a contract in pictures.

"Meet the Missus," a Paramount all talking comedy will furnish you entertainment in a lighter vein. On the stage the usual bill of Keith vaudeville, with Jimmy Burchill and Blondes of 1929 in the headline position will entertain you. "Blondes of 1929" is a pot pourri of fun, song and dance.

'Moulin Rouge' Is New Rialto Musical Film

More than a year was consumed in the production of "Moulin Rouge," the spectacular special feature which is coming to the Rialto theater on Monday for a week's run. E. A. Dupont, who also directed "Variety," believes in doing a job thoroughly, no matter how long it takes, and the consensus of opinion is that "Moulin Rouge" not only comes up to his high standard but actually suspasses anything he has ever done.

This photoplay is the first of a selected list to be imported to America by World Wide Pictures. The pictures are chosen for their distinctiveness and unusual qualities from the higher grade productions from all over the world. They are realistic and absolutely true to life, photoplays made where the story's laid.

"Moulin Rouge" is a dramatic spectacle with its background laid in the gay Parisian theaters and midnight cabarets with the beautiful women of stage and society clad in gorgeous gowns and glittering jewels. The title of the picture is taken from the famous Parisian theater of that name and affords a peep behind the wings into the intimate life of the players in their dressing rooms, their homes and the midnight cabarets.

The plot is intensely dramatic, being the love of a handsome young French aristocrat for the most noted of Parisian stage stars, who happens to be the mother of his fiancee.

On the Theatrical Menus

Edith Griffith, charming personality singer, who is shown at the left, will be featured at Loew's Capitol this week in a beautiful act, "Love in the Ranks." Marian Grant, star of the Fulenwiders, will be seen in "The Royal Family" this week. The two young ladies who are backing each other up in a material way are to be seen with the "Blondes of 1929" company at Keith's Georgia. The bloke with the uke is Frank Crummit, Vitaphone singer at the Howard, while "Phil Baker in Spain," at the lower right, is the Vitaphone short at the Metropolitan.

'BLONDES OF 1929' TOP GEORGIA BILL

The new bill of vaudeville at Keith's Georgia this week is topped by Jimmy Burchill and Blondes of 1929. There have been blondes since the beginning of time but Jimmy Burchill is of the opinion that the blondes of 1929 are the flower of the crop. Mr. Buchill, an unctious comedian, offers a new potpourri of fun, song and dance called "Blondes of 1929." In this he is assisted by four comely girls who match the title.

A matter of mirth and melody is offered by Jack Kraft and Elsie La Mont in "Whoopie." As the title will denote "Whoopie" is an abundance of merry making. Miss La Mont and Mr. Kraft are catch-as-catch-can comedians, that is, they both go after the laughs. Should this not be enough they sing also.

Then there are two boys known in vaudeville and musical comedy as Barnum and Bailey. These boys have stepped into vaudeville from the Greenwich Village Follies. They were one of the brightest spots in that revue; and they are just as bright a spot in the Varieties. Manuel Vega, "The Man With Original Ideas," completes the new show.

The feature picture show along with this vaudeville bill is United Artists' latest all-talking production, "Alibi." For the benefit of the Atlanta Police Fund the Georgia theater will give a special midnight performance of this picture Sun— night.

Alamo No. 2.

The strongest supporting cast she has ever had, surrounds Colleen Moore in her special production "Lilac Time," coming to the Alamo No. 2 theater Mond.y. Among other it includes Gary Cooper, Burr McIntosh, George Cooper, Cleve Moore, Kathryn McGuire, Eugenie Besserer, Emile Chautard, Jack Stone, Edward Dillon and Dick Grace.

"Lilac Time" is not a war picture. It is a picture of the effects of war and like all great pictures it is realistic, simple. We see Miss Moore as a pathetic little figure caught in the maelstrom of the conflict. She loves a dashing young aviator who flies away each morning to gamble with death and returns in the evening to laugh and joke about it.

Edith Griffith Heads New Bill On Loew Stage

A spectacular military production that presents a varied program of songs, dances and entertaining comedy, constitutes the headline act on the vaudeville bill at Loew's Capitol this week. Edith Griffith in "Love in the Ranks," presents the offering, which includes selected numbers by the Royal quartet, a group of male vocalists well known on the vaudeville stage. Then, too, there is the team of Montgomery and McDowell, dancers, all supplementing the work of Miss Griffith, a singing comedienne of recognized talent and ability. The ensemble is staged in elaborate military style.

An air of mystery encompasses "The Monologuist," whose unique sketch discloses plenty of surprises and fast-moving comedy of a most unusual character. "The Monologuist" presents an act quite out of the ordinary and thoroughly entertaining.

Bobby O'Neill and Gertrude Manners have a laughable little skit, "The Gas Man," which is the vehicle by which they present an assortment of snappy comedy, some clever dancing and several tuneful melodies.

Eccentric dancing that reveals the secret of why this variety of terpsichorean entertainment is termed "eccentric," is demonstrated by "Looselegs Johnny," who appears with the Convey Twins, beautiful songbirds. An artistic acrobatic novelty is presented by the Howard girls, two skillful young women who perform some really astonishing feats.

JUST A PLAIN QUEEN.

Mandy, the colored laundress, picked up a magazine and began to turn over the pages aimlessly. Then she seemed to be fascinated by one of the pictures.

"Who dat woman, Miss Blank?" she inquirgd.

"That's Queen Elizabeth, Mandy," said Miss Blank. Mandy seemed to be stricken dumb. Finally she burst forth breathlessly:

"Am dat de queen, Miss Blank? My land, what a homely woman! My land, what a ugly woman! Why, Miss Blank, that queen ain't no better looking than you is."—New York Sun.

'ROYAL FAMILY' IS NEW BILL OF FULENWIDERS

"The Royal Family," which is being offered this week by the Fulenwider All-Star Players at the Atlanta theater, is a hilarious, vibrant parody on the home life of a celebrated family of stage favorites.

Unlike any other play ever produced, this tremendously interesting and fascinating story gives an intimate picture of the domestic affairs of famous theatrical personages in the midst of their feverish, buoyant life.

The members of this "royal family" are proud of their heritage and their superior professional standing. The tradition of the stage is born into them and nourished from the cradle, and no other thing on earth is so important as acting.

Irresponsible, temperamental, easily excitable, these charming people live in a romantic, brilliant atmosphere that has no counterpart in any other phase of American life.

The action of the play all takes place in the sumptious apartment of the family in New York, where for years they have lived apart from the rest of the world, clannish, secure, disdainful.

The head of the family, the lovable old Fanny Cavendish, is played by Miss Peggy Leonard, who will have in this part the greatest opportunity of her distinguished Atlanta season. She it is who preaches the doctrine of avoiding trouble by remaining in the theater away from outside "riff-raff," and who holds up to the younger members the noble history of the family.

Julie Cavendish, patterned after one of the greatest and most popular of living stars, will be played by Miss Frances Woodbury.

Psychology Lecture.

"The Law of Compensation and Restitution" will be the subject of the lecture in applied psychology to be given by Mrs. Rose Mae Ashby, psychologist, at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the mahogany room of the Ansley hotel.

DOMESTIC ECONOMY.

He: "But don't you cook much more for dinner than we use, darling?"

She: "If course, silly! If I didn't how could I economize by making left-over dishes?"—Windsor Magazine.

Former Augusta Teacher To Star Talking Pictures

:: EDITH GRIFFITH AT LOEW'S CAPITOL CURRENTLY ::

EDITH GRIFFITH.

BY ELMO HAMBY.

"Georgia school officials thought she sang too much like Fanny Brice and looked too much like Helen Morgan to make for proper classroom dignity" and so they dismissed poor little Edith Griffith, who up to that time had been working long and late in Augusta as supervisor of grade-school music.

Well, what do you know about that!

And now, our Edith, known to Atlantans after three trips over the Publix circuit, is going into talkin' pitchers!

The most talented and the cutest (see Exhibit A, above) jazz singer of them all returns to Atlanta this week at Loew's Capitol on the second week of vaudeville contract which she must complete before she is at liberty to accept one of four talking picture contracts.

It all came about this way, according to the chronicling of New York papers three weeks ago:

"Because her eyes, in addition to other charms, have exceptional attractiveness to a degree not possessed by the subjects of nearly 2,500 other talking-film tests made by several film companies, Miss Edith Griffith of vaudeville is on her way to screen stardom.

"The discovery apparently has been made simultaneously by talent-scouts for at least four film companies, and now while she is fretting in her apartment at the Hotel Piccadilly over the subject of an apparently unbreakable vaudeville contracts, her manager, Harry Bestry, is studying proffered contracts to be effective when and if her vaudeville commitments can be dissolved.

"After she had made film tests which apparently had been forgotten for months, Miss Griffith signed a contract to appear as the star of the Golden production, 'Love in the Ranks,' which has its Broadway premiere Saturday at Loew's State theater.

"She has had a year's vaudeville and musical comedy experience, which followed her dismissal in Augusta, Ga., as supervisor of grade-school music. Georgia school officials thought she sang too much like Fanny Brice and looked too much like Helen Morgan to make for proper classroom dignity."

'Rarin' To Go' New Midnight Frolic at 81

"Rarin' to Go," a sparkling comedy revue presenting a host of popular colored entertainers, will be presented Friday night at 11:30 o'clock in the 81 Theater's regular weekly midnight frolic performance for a white audience.

This announcement was made Saturday by Manager Tom Bailey, of the Decatur street playhouse, who said that "Rarin' to Go" will bring before the footlights a brilliant array of old stars in new lines, new songs and new costumes.

Onnie (Lolly Pop) Jones and Grace Rector head the talent that will present "Rarin' to Go," being ably supported by such stellar performers as Brownie Campbell, Freddie James, Silvers and Whiley, Alma Perry, Pearl James, Swain and Swain, Jack Smith and Frank DeLyons. In addition, a chorus of 12 high-steppers and a special orchestra will add interest to the show.

Seats will go on sale Monday morning at the Rex on North Pryor street and at the box office of the 81 Theater.

PONCE DE LEON

Boy Scout Minstrels Supplement Film Bill.

In addition to a quintet of outstanding screen successes just released, the Ponce de Leon theater this week will offer its patrons two highly entertaining stage attractions, Wednesday matinee and night the Boy Scout minstrels will stage special performances featuring talented local songsters, dancers and comedians, and on Friday night the theater's regular weekly "amateur night" will again prove a big drawing card.

The first pictures of the week will be "Sal of Singapore" and "Junior Years," scheduled for Monday and Tuesday showing. The former picture sees beautiful Phyllis Haver come into brilliant stardom in a thrilling story of the high seas, and the latter screen offering witnesses another return of "The Collegians."

"Excess Baggage," Metro's latest dramatic success, is booked for Wednesday and Thursday, presenting William Haines in another remarkable character role. For Friday the Ponce de Leon has secured Pathe's great picture, "Power," with Jacqueline Logan and William Boyd sharing honors in a splendid combination of laughs and thrills.

Saturday's screen offering is First National's "Penrod and Sam," with Wesley Barry in the leading role.

'HEARTS IN DIXIE' FILM ON CAPITOL SCREEN

Something decidedly unusual will be seen and heard at Loew's Capitol this week, where "Hearts in Dixie," a sound film that depicts a simple but effective drama of the delta region on the Gulf coast, is the screen attraction. It is a Fox Movietone production in which colored actors are used exclusively, something very much out of the ordinary in modern motion picturization.

"Hearts in Dixie" presents an extraordinary feature in that more than a score of the old-time spirituals and chants of the darkies along the Mississippi and throughout the cotton belt are sung by a chorus of selected voices.

The story is that of an aged darky, born in slavery, whose life is bound up in the superstitions and prejudices of his race. He sees his daughter and baby die under the ministrations of a "voodoo" doctor of the low country, and learns too late that modern medical science would have saved their lives. He rebels against racial superstition and decides to give his young son educational advantages that will liberate him from the shackles of "voodooism." But such opportunities mean separation of the old man from the youngster whose companionship is the only solace of his fading years. The dramatic climax comes as the aged darky makes the sacrifice that constitutes the supreme problem of his life.

West End.

William Haines and Joan Crawford in "The Duke Steps Out," a romance of college and the prize ring, a late Saturday Evening Post story, is feature attraction at the West End theater on Monday and Tuesday.

"What a Night," a comedy-melodrama of newspaper life, starring Bebe Daniels, is the feature for Wednesday. Excitement, thrills, laughter and love make up the adventure which this dashing star evokes. "Tarzan, the Mighty," is the added attraction on this date.

On Thursday and Friday William Boyd will be seen and heard in "The Leatherneck," a synchronized feature with talking sequences. Richard Dix will be seen in his latest and greatest feature, "Redskin," on Saturday.

He: "Sheep are the dumbest animals."

She: "Yes, my lamb."—The Progressive Grocer.

NEW HOWARD PICTURE IS 'GLAD RAG DOLL'

Beautiful Dolores Costello, who made her screen debut several years ago opposite John Barrymore in a dramatic role in "The Sea Beast," appears for the first time in a comedy role in her new picture, "The Glad Rag Doll," which is to be the featured attraction at the Howard theater during the week commencing tomorrow.

Also featured on the Howard program for the week are two singing and talking presentations which are said to be of outstanding merit. In one of these Frank Crumit, noted musical comedy, radio and recording star, appears in his first Vitaphone act, "The One Man Glee Club," in which he sings several of his own "nut" songs, accompanying himself on his trusty uke. "Dear Teacher," a Paramount farce with a schoolroom setting in which Smith and Dale, Jack Powell, Mario and Lazarin and Lillian Gordon are featured, is another attraction. There also will be a Krazy Kat animated cartoon, and Pathe talking news and Paramount news.

Miss Costello appears in the feature picture in the title role as a musical comedy actress who invades the home of a wealthy and aristocratic family who opposes her marriage to the young son. Through a number of comedy situations she has all the cards in her own hand until she falls in love with the head of the family—the elder brother of the spendthrift youth, who has most bitterly opposed admitting her into the family and procured her discharge from the show when she refused to give up his young brother.

Legend of a Police Reporter Who Saw "Front Page"—and Liked It!

Perhaps you saw "Front Page" in its recent seriously-diluted presentation in Atlanta. Perhaps you thought it was a great piece of fiction; a roly-poly comedy, burlesqued from start to finish. Certain members of the local press would have you believe that. And until this late hour, your correspondent, with all the righteous indignation of art belittled, had not found a suitable answer to the slights.

It came last week from Benny Horne, police reporter for The San Francisco News, a veteran, who saw the piece and spoke his mind:

"This may be rank heresy. I know at least three or four persons who will do me verbal violence and their language will shame the stage dialogue after they read this.

"But the wife and I saw 'Front Page' at the Geary theater the other night—and the truth must out.

"Before going, my friends at the Hall of Justice pressroom warned me. They had seen the play. Two or three of them had spouted their indignation in print. They shed type tears. The play had riled them. It was a tissue of lies. A couple of renegades, Ben Hecht and Charlie MacArthur, had done the police reporting fraternity dirt. They had made hoodlums out of hard-working (?), respectable (I hate to use that question mark again), honest folk.

"In the pressroom proper my friends cast aside refinement. That dirt yblankety-blank, so-and-so, pair of well, the next epithet you can guess—were so-and-sos. The critics who praised the play were worse. And as for the police reporter who enjoyed the thing. Well, he was a (use your own judgment).

"Well, I am that. I saw the play and had a lot of laughs. It was a more or less true to type picture of life. More than less true.

"It appears that my friends who saw the play (free) and kicked were ashamed of being undressed in public. We mean verbal undress.

"They saw a play and used their eyes only. They went to the office and typed out their grief, anger, humiliation and discomfiture.

"Yes, police reporters are like what you see on the Geary stage. They see life in the raw, and after a few years are touched by it. Like all artists (pardon the ego), they live like they work—during the office hours, and some go home like that.

"I know a few who do. They show a most hard-boiled front and hide soft, chicken hearts. They're cynics. They're suckers. They're burglars, but don't steal. They'd go to hell for the paper that pays them, and curse it with hard, bitter oaths. They love their editors and hate them. They abhor their life and enjoy living it.

"Try to analyze them. I am one of them—and can't. They hate policemen (some policemen) and protect them. They snarl at the underworld and pity it.

"The play's good and true to life. It makes light of a life and work that's tough and hard.

"Perhaps you, reader, could stay up a night waiting for a hanging without playing poker and using cusswords and drinking. Have you ever waited for a hanging and witnessed it? Then, have you ever tried to writ about it—and eat breakfast later?

"Try and do it. Sit all night waiting for a human to go. If you can do it and discuss higher life and letters while waiting—well, I'm entitled to my opinion of you as a human being.

"I'm more or less a police reporter."

Smaller Movies

entirely different, in theme, are offered on the screen at Loew's Grand this week. "Fugitives" is the attraction for the first three days, to be followed on Thursday by "The Redeeming Sin," which rounds out the week.

Madge Bellamy and Don Terry have the principal roles in "Fugitives," while Conrad Nagel and Dolores Costello, whose work in melodramas of gangland have won them nation-wide recognition, are starred in "The Redeeming Sin."

The story of "Fugitives" is that of a singer in a dubious resort of the underworld who is "framed" in a gruesome murder case and railroaded to prison by circumstantial evidence.

"The Redeeming Sin" presents something of a problem, being the narrative of a woman of the underworld who combines the qualities of a saint and a thoroughly unscrupulous bird of prey. In this role Dolores Costello presents a splendid dramatic characterization, with Conrad Nagel playing as her much-puzzled sweetheart who is at loss to understand her peculiar mental reactions.

Tenth Street.

The screen's most popular female star, Greta Garbo, will open the week's program at the Tenth Street theater Monday in "Wild Orchids." Co-starred with Niles Asther, this blonde beauty of the silver screen furnishes entertainment aplenty in her latest success.

Wednesday, Flash, the dog star, will be featured in "Honeymoon." Thursday and Friday, William Haines and Joan Crawford will be seen in their latest and best sound production, "The Duke Steps Out." On Saturday, "The Haunted House," a real mystery story will close the week's program.

ON THE MOVIE LOT.

"Toady, I want you to take a close-up of the tiger."

"How close?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

'BLOCKADE' IS FILM ON MET SCREEN BILL

As the star of the picture puts it, she thinks "Blockade," the Metropolitan's attraction for the week, a better subject than her never-to-be-forgotten "Ponjola" and claims that it takes the spectator to even greater dramatic heights than that now famous motion picture.

Anna Nilsson, blonde beauty, is the star. She has appeared in many great dramatic triumphs and that she believes "Blockade" to be better even than "Ponjola" is a sufficient boost for the picture.

It is the story of a man, a titan in his home town, public benefactor, philosopher, a man whose name was on the tip of everyone's tongue—a headliner in the fight for law enforcement, but still in the heart of his country there was the most notorious of rum running gangs, headed by a mysterious figure who commanded the law to stop.

In comes a girl, one "Bess," queen of the rum runners, and another mysterious figure, who conspire to throw a monkey wrench into the smooth machinery of this mysterious figure.

The story opens there and carries the audience to dramatic heights, with thrills galore. There are talking sequences which add to the intensity of the action and help the picture to untold success.

Besides Miss Nilsson, Walter McGrail and Francis McDonald appear in "Blockade," which is a George B. Seitz production.

Publicity Carries Far.

Concord, N. H.—(United News.)—The wonders of New Hampshire as a vacation land were described over the radio recently by Governor Charles W. Tobey. Shortly afterward, he received a letter from one Thomas Newall, of Manchester, England, who said he had listened in on the speech with his two-tube receiving set. The distant fan requested rotogravure books containing scenes of this state.

The first trans-Atlantic cable was laid in 1866.

"REDSKIN" AT CAMEO

New Richard Dix Bill Opens Film Bill.

"Redskin," the new Richard Dix epic of the west, which shows Monday and Tuesday at the Cameo, marks an amazing step forward in technicolor. Beautiful scenic backgrounds are revealed in their true color and beauty. The hills and valleys of the Indian country are reproduced for the screen just as the eye sees them in nature. D. W. Griffith has chosen the romance of the low and the high born as the theme for his latest picture, "Lady of the Pavements," which comes Wednesday and Thursday. William Boyd, Jetta Goudal and Lupe Valez are the principal players in this film. The gaiety and splendor of the court of Napoleon III is contrasted with the bizarre haunts and strange fascinations of the notorious Parisian underworld.

Friday and Saturday brings Bob Steele, the popular and virile young action star in "Laughing at Death."

"That's old Dogsbody just come out of the telephone box; he's turned 92!"

"Lord! How old was he when he went in?"—Sydney Bulletin.

Comes to Empire in "The Singing Fool" for Day.

A big film bill which brings back Al Jolson, premier master of the talking screen, in his second and greatest success, "The Singing Fool," will be seen this week at the Empire theater, corner Georgia avenue and Crew street, where Manager Alpha A. Fowler has arranged to present some of the outstanding pictures of the year with his exclusive Vitaphone and Movietone apparatus.

That screaming comedy which is a sequel to all those other uproarious "Cohens and Kelly" films, "The Cohens and Kellys in Atlantic City," will open the big bill for showings on Monday and Tuesday of this week. The same sterling cast that was featured in the previous comedies is seen in this laughfest.

"The Singing Fool," in all its glory, with Al Jolson singing again that unforgettable "Sonny Boy," will be shown for Wednesday only. Mr. Fowler has secured a brand-new print of the picture which is perfect in reproduction and photography. Billie Dove, gorgeous star of the screen, will be seen in "The Stolen Bride" on Thursday only.

Dorothy McKaill will be featured with Jack Mulhall in "Man Crazy" which will have showings on Friday only, while on Friday night, "Amateur Night" again will be featured with another big array of prizes offered as Manager Fowler's awards to the most talented amateur performers of the community. Richard Barthelmess in "Out of the Ruins" is the feature film for Saturday.

ANNOUNCES

THE RETURN OF TARZAN

The Strip of Thrills

By

Edgar Rice Burroughs

No strip has ever aroused more interest and enthusiasm than TARZAN OF THE APES last year in The Constitution---Beginning Monday, June 3, there will be a review, For One Week Only, of these earlier adventures of Burrough's great elemental character who has gripped the world---Then, on Monday, June 10, Tarzan moves on to other and more glorious adventures.

Tarzan and the Apaches of Paris--
Tarzan and the Russian Spy--
Tarzan and the Algerian Conspirators--
Tarzan and the Ouled-Nail Dancing Girl--
Tarzan, King of the Waziri Warriors--
Tarzan and the Priestess of the Flaming God

"THE RETURN OF TARZAN" gives the concentrated essence of the absorbing romance of the untamed man of the jungle and the American girl he loved. Here IN PICTURES is the story that has thrilled the world. Here is a serial that can be read every day ---at a glance. See Tarzan of the Apes, the Elemental Man, entangled in the subleties of modern intrigue. Follow him through his adventure in Paris on the Rue Maule---a street darker and more treacherous than the jungle in which he had grown to manhood. Follow him--and the girl he loves--into the jungle.

GRAVURE PICTORIAL SECTION

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

SUNDAY JUNE 2nd 1929

GAINESVILLE PAGEANT PRIZE-WINNER—This float entered by C. R. Hammond captured first prize in the merchants' division of the Gainesville spring festival parade. The tiny groom is James Dunlap and Merryl McConnell is the bride. In the front seat are Misses Janet Mills and Shirley MacEntire. Others in the picture are little Misses Susan Pierce, Martha Laws, Martha Wey and Marion Roper. (Kenneth Rogers)

SPRING COMES SINGING—Here's one of the striking floats appearing in the colorful processional last week in Gainesville, Ga., marking the opening of the mountain city's spring festival week. The smiling young women are Misses Betsy Michaelis, Lollie Newton and Mildred Avery. The Palmour Hardware company sponsored the float. (Kenneth Rogers)

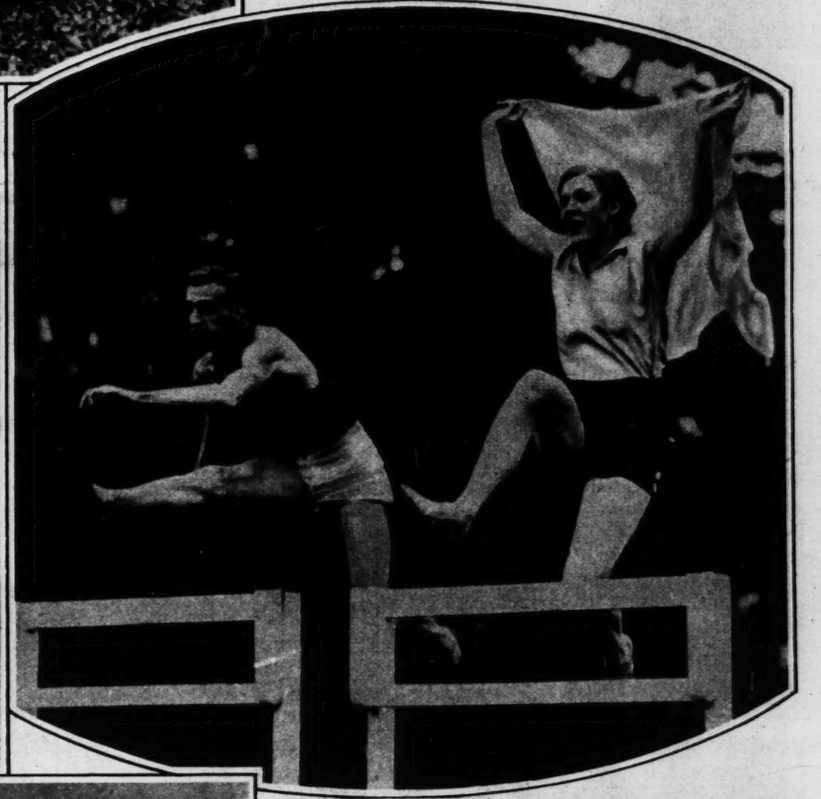

THAT TYPICAL AMERICAN GIRL—Miami, Fla., has decided that pretty Edna Peters, 18, is the embodiment of the spirit of the modern miss of these United States. Yes; she just loves to wipe the dishes. (International)

PROVING THAT TROUBLES COME IN PAIRS—Attorney Ernest Woodward, of Los Angeles, registers bewilderment as these twin sisters, Lucy and Louise Doyle, explain that they want twin divorces from twin brothers on twin charges. The twin husbands are Willis and Alvin Young.

TOO MUCH HANDICAP—Paced by beautiful Ruth Anderson, University of Washington coed, Steve Anderson (no relation) finished a poor second despite the fact that he's the college's star track athlete. (Associated Press)

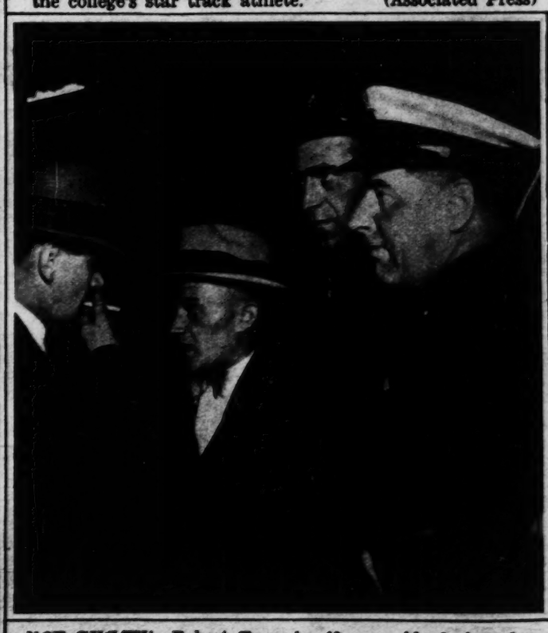

HONORED BY EASTERN STAR—Mrs. Joseph Egleston Haley, prominent in Atlanta music circles, who was recently elected Grand Organist of the Order of the Eastern Star of Georgia for the third time. Mrs. Haley will direct the musical program at the O. E. S. convention in Macon June 10-12.

CANTIGNY LIVED OVER AGAIN—Here's a graphic scene from the re-enactment of the Battle of Cantigny, to be staged this month at the Governor's Island military tournament. (International)

QUEEN OF SPELLING BEES—Virginia Hogan, Omaha girl, won the national spelling contest held at the National Museum in Washington. The prize was $1,000 in gold. (International)

NOT GUILTY!—Robert Tornado, 40-year-old Mexican inventor, went to the Maine estate of the Morrows and was promptly arrested on suspicion of being the person who sent threatening letters to Constance Morrow in a $50,000 extortion plot. He convinced police he had only come up to interest Lindbergh, fiance of Constance's sister, in one of his aerial inventions. (International)

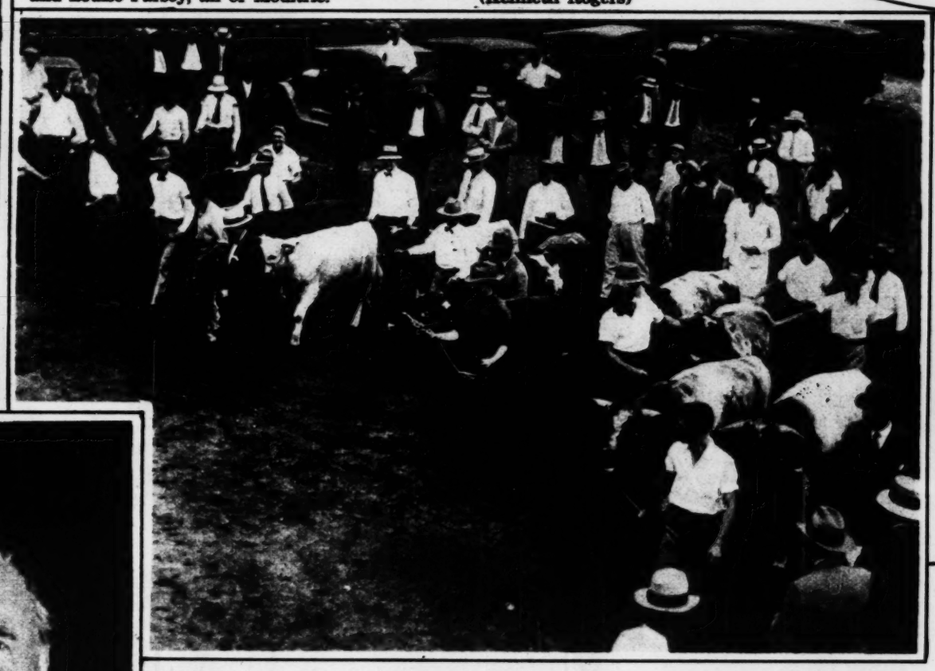

GEORGIA BRIDE—Mrs. Clarence Monroe Ruffner, formerly Miss Jessie Collier, daughter of former Senator and Mrs. J. C. Collier, of Barnesville, Ga., who recently married Captain C. M. Ruffner, of the United States Marine corps. The couple sailed May 25 for Shanghai, China. (Kelley)

BEAUTIES AND THE BEAST—This pure-bred, beef-type bull appears unconcerned despite the fact that he is the center of attention. The scene was snapped by Kenneth Rogers, staff photographer, at the Swift and Company stock yards at Moultrie, Ga., when over 100 full blooded sires were sold to farmers of the surrounding country in an effort to raise the standards of cattle raising. Included in the picture are Katherine Bennett, Miriam Trimble, Anne Reading, Buford Williford, Sarah Manning, Carrie Hitchcock, Hazel Austin, Wilma Meeks and Louise Farsey, all of Moultrie. (Kenneth Rogers)

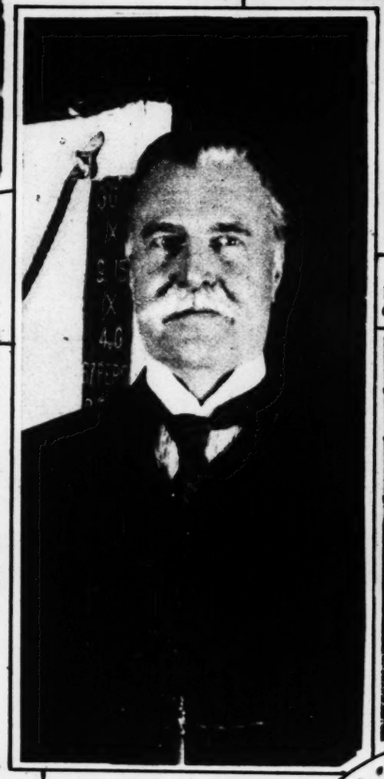

ARE WE DOWNHEARTED?—W. E. Aycock, secretary of the Moultrie (Ga.) Chamber of Commerce, and W. C. Vereen, president of the Georgia Bankers' Association, appear to be well pleased with the result of the sale of pure-bred bulls which they were largely instrumental in bringing about. The young women sharing their enjoyment are Mrs. Wiley Belvin, Mrs. Ben Daniels, Miss Theo Milligan and Miss Florence Horkan. (Kenneth Rogers)

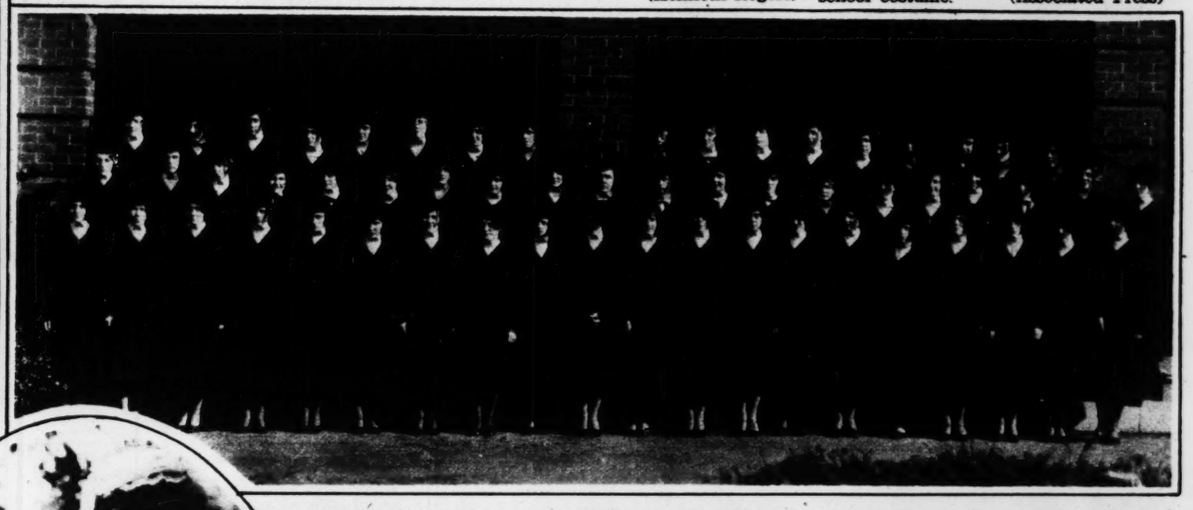

SPANISH ATHLETE'S DELIGHT—A small section of the lot of more than 100 pure-bred, beef-type bulls sold at Moultrie, Ga., recently to urge Georgia farmers to adopt diversification. (Kenneth Rogers)

MENACED!—Constance Morrow, daughter of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow and sister of the fiancee of Charles A. Lindbergh, has been made the subject of a $50,000 extortion plot. The sum was demanded under penalty of torture and death, and she was spirited away in the plane of the transoceanic flyer and is heavily guarded. She is shown here in school costume. (Associated Press)

MILLIONS STILL UNSPENT—C. Harold Smith, prominent industrialist who recently inaugurated a contest with the object of learning the best method of disposing of $10,000,000 in a way that would benefit mankind, is shown sailing for Europe to spend the summer. (Associated Press)

BESSIE TIFT COLLEGE 1929 GRADUATING CLASS—The young women will receive their diplomas June 3 at the Forsyth, Ga., educational institution.

OFF THE SNAKE, ONTO MILADY—The skin of a 22-foot python slain in Java will become a modish coat for a Los Angeles beauty. (International)

GLAD RAG DOLL Beautiful Dolores Costello plays the title role in an all-talking picture by that name to be seen this week at the Howard theater.

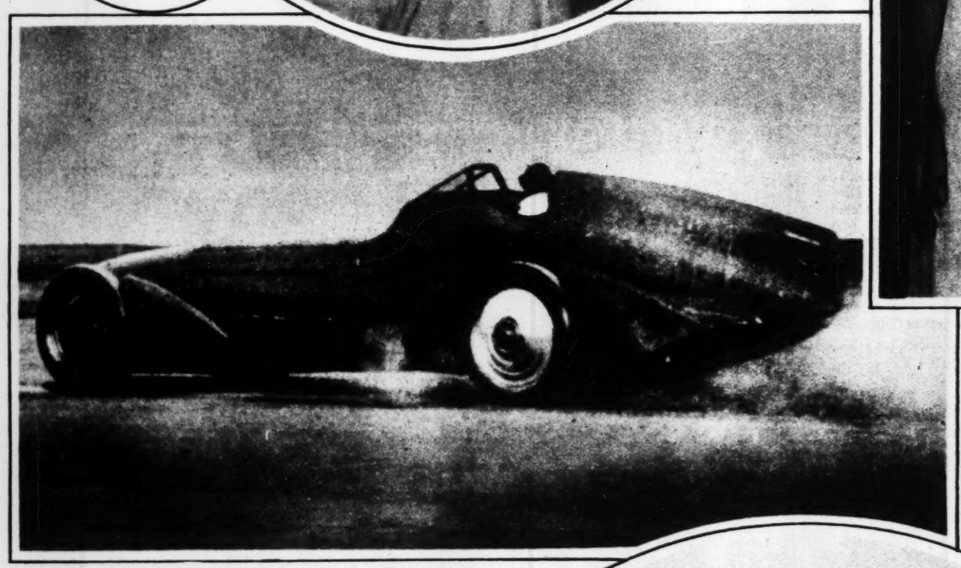

ON YACHTING TRIP—Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Richardson, Jr., of Atlanta, taking life easy aboard the Zapala, palatial yacht of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Coffin, hosts to a party of Atlantans recently. The picture was taken en route to the Coffin's Sapeloe island estate.

GRANT PARK SCHOOL MAY QUEEN—Miss Sara Frances Aven, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Aven, of Atlanta

LEADER OF THE JUNIOR TORNADO—Bill Hutt, newly-elected captain of Atlanta's Tech High school football team.

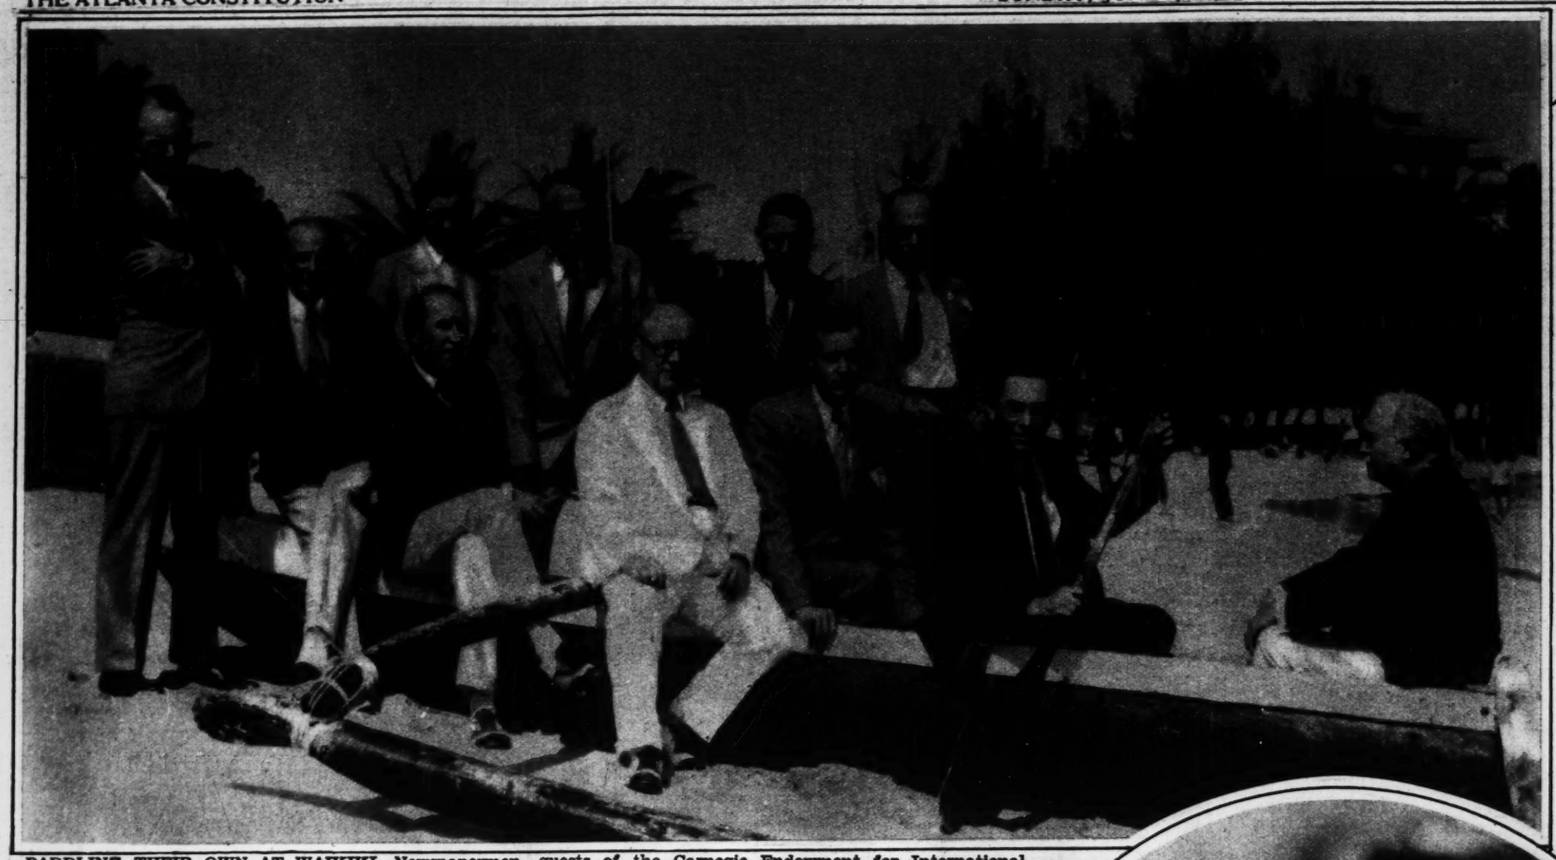

"THE MAN ON THE BOX"—An odd "shot" of young William H. Vanderbilt driving the famous old London-Dover coach "Venture" at the Jacob's Hill horse show at Seekonk, Mass. Mr. Vanderbilt's father gained international renown as driver of the vehicle on the London-Dover route. (Herbert`

SISTERS SWEEP HONORS—Emily Trussell, right, was first honor graduate of the Woodland, Ga., consolidated school, high school department, and Gladys Trussell won similar ranking in the grammar school. They are daughters of R. E. Trussell, clerk and treasurer of Woodland.

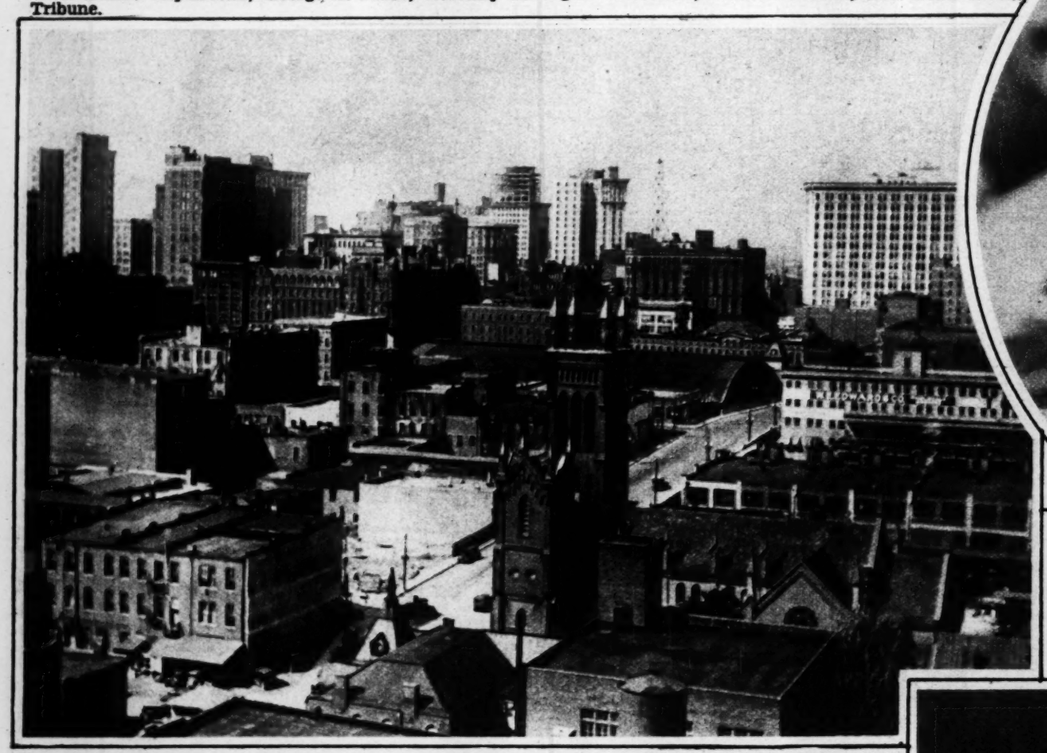

CLUB CHIEF—Mrs. Virginia B. Rangeley, of Montgomery, Ala., elected president of the Pilot Club at the Macon, Ga., convention of that organization.

FROM THE NEW CITY HALL—Atlanta's skyline takes on a new aspect when viewed from high up in the new city hall. (Kenneth Rogers)

TEDDY KNOWS HIS MASTER—Julian Kahn and Elsie Cambridge got into an argument as to who owned Teddy. In New York police court Teddy soon demonstrated that he was Kahn's dog and to Kahn the court awarded him. (Associated Press)

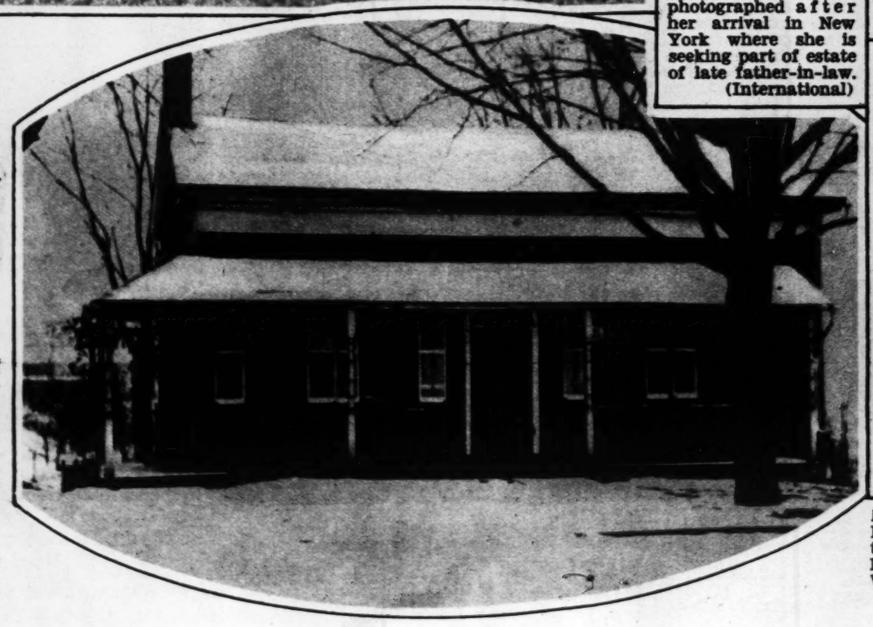

TRANSFER SICK MAN AT SEA—Nolan Raby, a sailor on the S. S. Jollee, became suddenly ill and when his ship lacked facilities he was transferred in midocean to the S. S. Minnetonka. This International Newsreel photo shows the sick man being hoisted to the Minnetonka.

SEEKS SHARE IN CARUSO ESTATE—Mrs. Elena C. Caruso, wife of Enrico, Jr., photographed after her arrival in New York where she is seeking part of estate of late father-in-law. (International)

THE ISLAND HOME OF THE MORROWS—Workmen already have begun preparing the Maine coast home of Ambassador Morrow for Lindy and Anne. A runway for Lindy's plane also is being constructed. (International)

THE BIRTHPLACE OF EDISON—Henry Ford is said to be considering the purchase of this little home where the famous inventor was born. It's at Milan, Ohio. (International)

DAWES BIDS PRESIDENT FAREWELL—Charles G. Dawes, the new ambassador to Great Britain, photographed at the White House before sailing. (Associated Press)

GIANT BRIDGE DOOR TESTED—The gigantic door of the new Hudson river bridge is shown undergoing test of U. S. bureau of standards. (International)

THE RUINS OF TINTERN—Beautiful even in desolation. There is nothing quite like them anywhere.

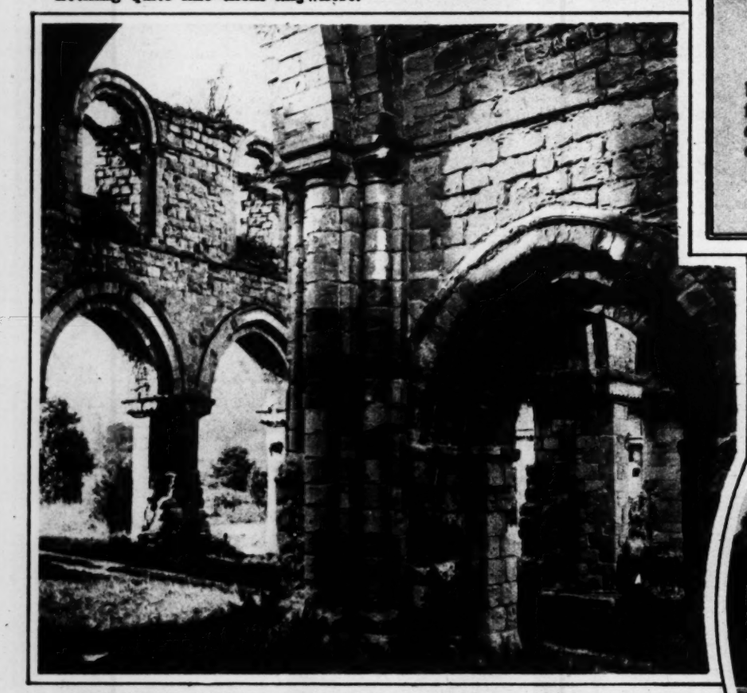

Cathedrals of England Lure World's Students of Art.

Nowhere in the world perhaps can be found a more beautiful series of churches than in Old England. Famed for their architecture and design they are objects of interest for travelers from all over the world. Here are some of the most beautiful and most highly architectural.

(All photos by Herbert)

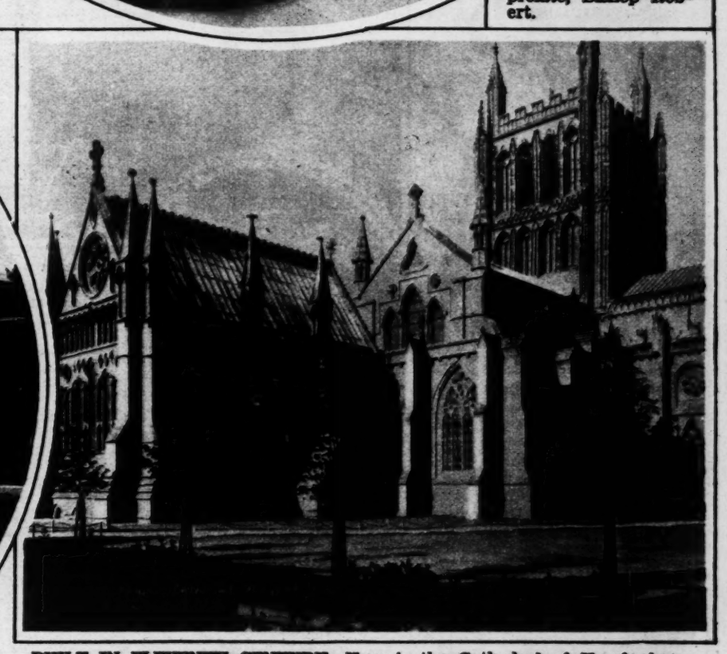

THE SEE OF BATH AND WELLS—This is described as the world's only complete cathedral. It is credited to a single prelate, Bishop Robert.

BESIDE THE BEAUTIFUL SEVERN—Buildwas, one of the oldest and most historic churches in all England. The outer walls are intact though the church is centuries old.

BUILT BY THE NORMANS—Here is the Cathedral of Worcester, built within 30 years after the coming of William the Conqueror. The influence of the Norman is quite noticeable.

BUILT IN ELEVENTH CENTURY—Here is the Cathedral of Hereford, one of the oldest in the world. It was built in 1079 to replace an "old" Saxon temple.

ANOTHER VIEW OF THE COMPLETE—The Cathedral at Wells in an unusual perspective. An idyllic view.

New—a Skin Physic

Makes old-looking, poor-color skin youthfully clear—refines away enlarged pores—corrects oily skin, heals eruptions and dissolves blackheads

Poor-color complexions, oily skin and blemishes are due to acid-skin impurities. And, everybody knows there is nothing like magnesia to neutralize acid. So, when the face is massaged with cremed magnesia the skin throws off even the most deep-set pore impurities. It physics the skin in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. That's why magnesia is called the beauty miracle of modern science.

Physicing the skin rejuvenates the complexion so quickly that any face looks years younger in five minutes. It changes old-looking, poor-color skin to youthful clearness and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons. It's astringent; it reduces enlarged pores to the finest texture and smoothes out the tell-tale lines of age almost as if by magic.

It removes make-up better than soap or cleansing cream. And, because it's so mild, it's a blessing for fine, sensitive skin that soap so easily irritates and coarsens. That's why mothers use it to bathe infants. No wonder thousands of doctors urge their wives, patients and nurses to use nothing but magnesia to cleanse their faces.

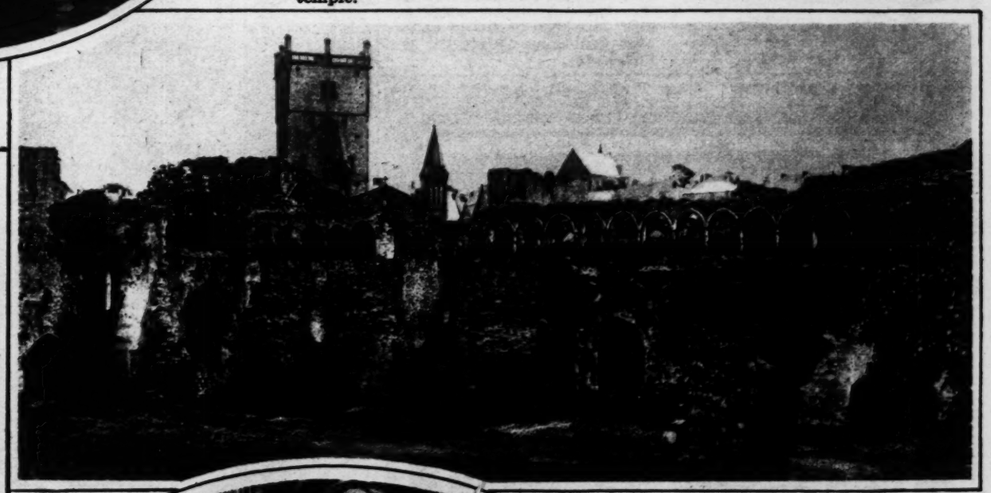

Physicing the skin beautifies any complexion in five minutes

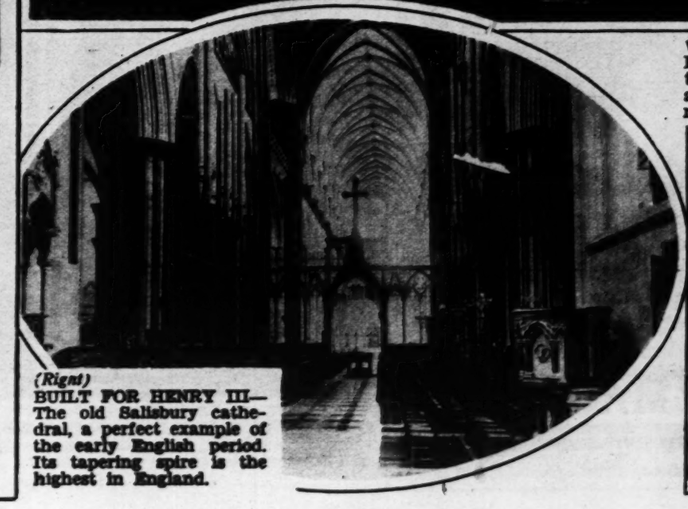

Thousands of delighted women send letters of praise and say they did not at first believe anything so simple could be so wonderful. But, they were convinced when they saw so many friends suddenly get lovely complexions.

To get genuine cremed magnesia, ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia. When you use it you will at once see why druggists find it hard to get enough to supply the tremendous demand.

No More Ugly Nose Pores

NOTE: These facts about the amazing skin-beautifying virtues of magnesia were learned from the experience of the first hundred thousand women who bought it. Because of its superior skin-beautifying qualities, magnesia is rapidly replacing the use of soap and cleansing cream with millions of women who give intelligent care to their complexions.

"The soft, natural wave in my hair has aroused such enthusiastic admiration that I am happy to say that it has been made possible through Frederics Vita-Tonic Process. No other method is like it for producing such smooth, wide, flowing, natural waves."

Marian Nixon

invites you into her confidence

SHE will then tell you, quite frankly, that the soft, lustrous flowing waves of her hair, which have aroused such enthusiastic admiration, have been acquired through the Frederics Vita-Tonic Process of Permanent Waving.

Any woman can now easily obtain a natural permanent of radiant sheen like Marian Nixon's, if she will insist on the new Frederics Vita-Tonic Method of Waving.

Trained Frederics operators the country over can be found in every exclusive hairdressing salon that excel in this work. Be sure, however, that you get the real Frederics Vita-Tonic Wave. Ask to see the name "Frederics Vita-Tonic" on each wrapper used on every waved tress of hair.

Write for the booklet, "The Glorious Gift of Lovely Hair" which tells how to care for your permanent wave. A generous free introductory tube of the new Frederics Hair Tranc Cream, for keeping straight hair orderly, and for setting your wave will also be sent you with a neighborhood list of Beauty Salons specializing in Frederics Vita-Tonic Method of Permanent Waving.

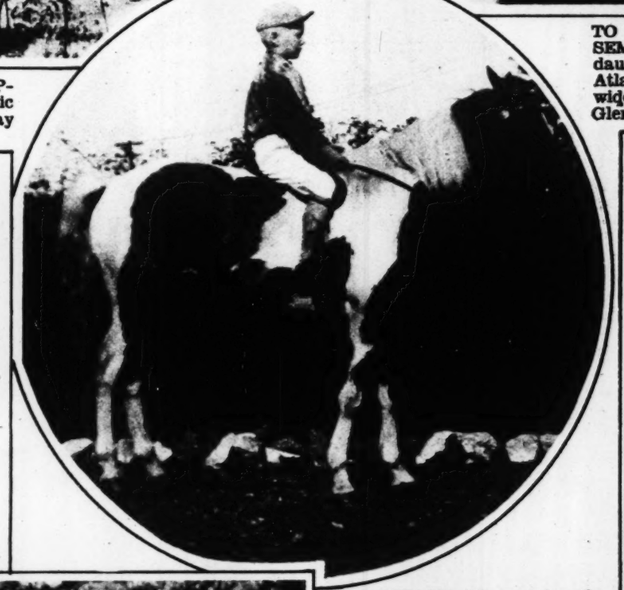

Look for this Frederics mark of quality. It is your guarantee of satisfaction.

A New Era In Immigration

Every Effort Has Been Made to Reduce the Hardships With Which America's New Residents Are Confronted

Drawn by S. Delevante

BY JAMES J. DAVIS

United States Secretary of Labor

EIGHT YEARS is a short period in a nation's history, but in such a brief term the destinies of the world may be changed.

It is seldom, during times of peace, that the policies of a nation particularly affecting the citizens and subjects of other countries are radically altered and the future of that nation vitally affected in so short a time. Yet that has occurred in the United States since 1921.

The spring of 1921, as we well remember, found millions of American wage-earners out of employment. Immigrants were pouring into this country at an increasing rate which threatened to equal or exceed the highest in our history. With shipping facilities still unadjusted after the war, they were coming in at the rate of more than 800,000 a year.

The emergency demanded stoppage of the flow to enable the country to meet its problems of unemployment and to put back to work the millions of young men who had served in the military forces. There were other factors leading to this demand for limited immigration, including the necessity for assimilation of the groups of foreign born already in the country, but the vitally influential factor which brought about limitation was that of employment.

When the first quota act, using the quota basis of 3 per cent of the census of 1910, was approved by President Harding in 1921, a new chapter in American history was written. This law permitted a certain number of persons of each nationality to enter annually, the count being made at United States ports. It was necessary, therefore, for a prospective immigrant to break up his home abroad and make a journey of from 3,000 to 5,000 miles or more before he could know whether or not he could enter the country, even though he were satisfied that mentally, morally and physically he was qualified for admission. On the first day of certain months a portion of the quota became available, and those who applied at that time might be admitted. They might arrive a minute or an hour late, and have to be turned back. And so it was that the most important races of history were staged on the ocean in those days.

Technically, the law was so framed that when the gate swung closed it even tore babes from their mothers' breasts. Actually, as the administrator of the law, I took the responsibility of refusing to let that occur, but there were thousands of instances where no stretch of administrative construction could serve to relieve the hardships which the law created.

While it was the prime purpose of the temporary quota act to reduce immigration, I could not lose sight of the fact that we were dealing with human beings, and in making my first recommendations regarding legislation to correct errors and omissions in the law, I kept that in mind. Imposition of larger fines against steamship companies for bringing inadmissible aliens helped to prevent unscrupulous practices. In one instance a steamship company which packed its ships with immigrants without regard to the quota limitation, even carrying on one ship more than an entire year's quota for a particular country, was put out of business. Nearly 1,000 fines were assessed against it.

The greatest single stride was made when the Immigration Act of 1924, under which we are now operating, was passed.

The fundamental difference between this and the previous law is that it provides for determination of quota status before the immigrant leaves his foreign home, and gives a reasonable time after the quota visa has been issued in which he may settle his affairs and depart for the United States.

A new quota system was also established, using the census of 1890 as a base, and allowing a quota of 2 per cent of that census, but providing also for what is known as the "national origin" quotas to become effective, as the act was amended, beginning July 1 of this year. Unless congress repeals or changes that section of the 1924 act these new national origin quotas will be effective on the first of next month.

The 1924 act gave to American consuls the right to refuse visas to immigrants who, in their belief, would not be admissible upon arrival at a port of the United States. This fact, together with the quota control by consular officers, gave me a long-sought opportunity to put forward my plan for examining aliens abroad, and to save them the expense of a useless journey to this country.

I already had made a study in many of the countries of Europe, had conferred with representative officials there, and had found that there would not be any serious objection to this procedure. Most countries welcomed this opportunity of protecting their nationals. The plan was first tried out at consulates in Great Britain and the Irish Free State, and it worked so smoothly and so satisfactorily that gradually the system has been extended, by invitation of the foreign governments concerned, to all the larger immigrant sending countries.

Experienced immigrant inspectors and physicians of the public health service are stationed at United States consulates, and when an alien is about to receive an immigration visa, these officers examine him and advise the consular officers as to whether or not he appears to be worthy of admission to the United States. Rejection at the port of New York have dropped from several per cent to a small fraction of 1 per cent, and would be reduced still lower but for the fact that we have still been unable to work out a satisfactory method of overseas examination in a few countries from which small numbers of immigrants come.

Another feature of selection which the 1924 law provided was the preference and non-quota status given to certain relatives of American citizens — preference for fathers and mothers, children under twenty-two and husband—and the non-quota status of wives and children under eighteen. Preference also was given to immigrants skilled in agriculture, their wives and children. Thus it will be seen that to a certain extent the law itself is selective in principle as to certain classes, but not as to individuals within the classes. However, no other preferences were allowed.

While the 1924 act incorporated many humane features, several modifications were necesary. For instance, I believe that an American woman is entitled to bring in her husband, regardless of the quota. We admit the wife of a citizen; why should we not admit the husband of one? This is a country of equal rights to man and woman.

Furthermore, why should not an unmarried child under twenty-one years be entitled to the same non-quota status as a child of eighteen? Who would say, in a given case, that a girl of nineteen, is better able to look out for herself, separated from her family, than a boy of eighteen? As a father, I am inclined to believe that I should rather let the boy of eighteen go on his own than the girl a year older. Congress heeded this suggestion, and in May, 1928, passed an amendatory law giving non-quota status to unmarried children of citizens, up to the age of twenty-one. It also gave non-quota status to husband of Amerian citizens who were married prior to May 31, 1928.

The reunion of families separated by the coming of fathers and husbands to this country to establish new homes has been of particular concern to me. Until last year no provision was made to facilitate such reunions. I did not believe that the bars should be thrown down to all comers, but it seemed to me that within the quota we should be especially concerned with the needs of those already here. The act of May 29, 1928, gave a second preference in favor of the wives and minor unmarried children of aliens who are lawfully resident in the United States. This has greatly facilitated the reunion of families.

By the act of 1924 aliens ineligible to citizenship were debarred. Congress probably did not realize the extent of that provision, for it included, among others, Canadian-born Indians whose original domain had been in the United States as well as in Canada. We had always felt that we should let these Indians across the border freely. Under the law, however, they cannot become citizens, hence they were excluded. A special law was passed to give these Canadian Indians the right to cross our boundaries.

Two laws recently added to the many which deal with aliens relate to naturalization and deportation. The naturalization law signed by the president March 2, 1929, makes naturalization somewhat easier for those who are morally and mentally qualified for citizenship, and also makes possible the naturalization of such aliens who arrived prior to June 3, 1921, and were unable to produce their records of admission. They may now, if not subject to deportation, have a proper record made of their arrival and may become citizens.

The deportation law signed March 4, 1929, is a very drastic act. From what I have already said about the way the laws have been amended from time to time so as to protect aliens you may understand that in safeguarding the nation's interest the humane factors have not been overlooked. In fact, we have been so careful to protect the alien that we have been taken advantage of. Thousands of aliens have gone to nearby territory and endeavered to sneak in through holes we were not watching.

A good many have got away with this practice, but not so many as may commonly be supposed. Sooner or later many are apprehended. Under the first limitation laws there was a time limit on deportation and those who came in improperly are now mostly safe from deportation. But all who have gained illegal entry since July 1, 1924, may be deported at any time they are found, regardles of how long they stay here.

Because we have been taken advantage of so often, especially by aliens who keep returning after they have been deported, congress decided that some drastic action was necessary. So the new law provides new grounds for deportation. Any alien who enters by making a false statement may be deported; any alien who has ever been ordered deported is forever barred from the country. Such a barrier is, by the law, effective even though formal deportation was not accomplished—when, for instance, the alien departed voluntarily upon consent of the secretary of labor. While this law is more drastic than I should write it so long as it is the law of congress it will have to be enforced.

There are many aliens who have been deported because of minor irregularities in connection with their entry, but deported without prejudice to their right to reapply in a legal way. Under the law as it now stands they will be forever barred from admission to the country, and I believe that authority should be given to the commissioner general of immigration to use his discretion in the matter of their reapplication, subject to the approval of the secretary of labor.

At the time this deportation measure was under consideration other grounds for deportation were considered, and these probably will be taken up again at another session. I have much sympathy for the alien who, notwithstanding the difficulties of alienage and language, makes an honest effort to better his condition here. With such as are unworthy of this consideration, however, I believe we should deal in a manner befitting their attitude.

With the narcotic peddler and the chronic violator of our laws I have no sympathy. If they do not like our institutions they are at liberty to go somewhere else. We Americans have set our own standards and we are proud of them. The alien who doesn't like our form of government or our laws can find other countries in which the laws are different. If my official position requires me to help such aliens out of the country, it will be a pleasure to perform the function.

Immigration to the United States has been reduced from over 700,000, under the last year of the old quota law, to approximately 300,000 in 1928. Besides being more effective as a restrictive measure, the new law has almost eliminated hardships, and as a workable policy the present system has been developed to a high point of efficiency.

Not all of the efficiency of the present system is the result of legislation. From the outset restricted immigration had a host of enemies. Their onslaughts took the form of stories of hardships which the law was alleged to have created. As has been explained, every effort has been made to minimize these hardships, many of which came about not through the operation of the statute but through excusable error or willful disregard of law by aliens themselves. Many of the stories published about hardships were either entirely untrue or sufficient facts were withheld to make them essentially untrue. A half-truth is often more vicious than a falsehood. Here are two which recently came to my attention:

The press has quite generally carried the story of a young man born in Rhode Island, who, it was said, lost his citizenship through service in the British military forces during the world war and was refused admission at New York. The published story stated that he served throughout the war, was wounded and still carried fragments of shrapnel in his body. Very naturally regret and even horror were expressed at the thought that an American-born man should be refused admission to his native country when his only offense had been that of serving in the army of one of our allies during the world war.

The true story is that this man never served in the war at all. He ran away from home in 1914, shipped on a cattle boat to Great Britain and worked there as a laborer throughout the war period. Incidentally, he escaped service in our military forces by remaining out of the country while we were in the war. In 1921 he enlisted in the British air force and worked as a laborer in that service for two years. For the last seven years he has been working as a laborer when he could find a job.

Instead of going to the American consul and inquiring as to his status, this man came to New York with no documents whatever. Having enlisted in the military forces of, and having sworn allegiance to, a foreign country during times of peace he necessarily expatriated himself. By this act he ceased to be an American citizen. He became an alien within the meaning of our immigration law, and having none of the documents required of aliens he was necessarily refused.

Here is a case of a different nature:

In December, 1924, immigration officers apprehended a boatload of aliens being smuggled in from Cuba. Among them was a girl nineteen years of age. With the others she was ordered deported as the law directs, but at the request of the trial court deportation was delayed until her services as a witness against the smugglers were no longer needed. The trial was concluded only recently.

The girl's deportation was about to proceed when it came to the attention of the labor department that during her stay in the United States she had married an American citizen and had become the mother of an American child. She is still deportable, and although under the law she might have permission to reapply for admission, under the new deportation law, passed during the closing days of the last congress, she may be forever debarred and may not be able to rejoin her husband and child in the United States.

I do not know what will be the outcome of this case, as it must be passed upon by the solicitor, but I am glad to say that I directed a stay of deportation, with instructions that every possible effort be made to adjust the matter so that this girl may be permitted to leave the country voluntarily later to re-enter lawfully and join her husband and child. It is my hope that this can be accomplished.

These are only two examples of the human problems that are constantly presented to the labor department for solution. We always realize that we are dealing with human beings and we try to solve their problems in a human way. Public officers expect to be criticized and sometimes deserve it, but before condemning the immigration service too severely when reading sob-stories one should be sure that one has all the facts.

If space permitted, it would be interesting to discuss some of the many phases of the cases which come to the secretary of labor for decision.

Gradually the law is being improved, but I believe we should carry out still further the principle of selection. That principle is largely dominant now, but several steps need to be taken to make it completely so. More and more our consuls, technical advisers and physicians ought to broaden their investigations in respect to the characters and cultural backgrounds of prospective immigrants.

We ought to make sure that every applicant is not only physically sound and mentally alert, but also that he comes of a line of people of strong character and that his record for honesty, sobriety and industry assures his wholesomeness and worth when he ultimately asumes the mantle of American citizenship.

We ought also to give preference to those few men, skilled in new industries and new methods, who occasionally are required to set in operation more and greater opportunities for employment of our people. The need for those particular men first should be definitely established here and then, by certificate of the secretary of labor, they should be allowed to enter ahead of some new immigrant who would add nothing to our future or perhaps even be a burden to overcrowded industries. Along the same lines it seems desirable to set aside an allotment of a few quota numbers to be assigned by the secretary of labor in cases of extreme hardship.

Of course, we still have the problem of the non-quota aliens who may enter in unrestricted numbers merely because they were born in countries of this hemisphere —Mexico, the South and Central American republics or Canada. Immigration from these countries is as great, approximately, as from all the quota countries combined, and the numbers may be increased.

Aside from the problems which grow out of this lack of restriction, I believe that the suggestions which I have made in the previous paragraph would just about cure all the apparent ills of the restrictive policy as expressed in present legislation.

Of course, a codification of the various acts which make up the body of the laws would be helpful in making them more understandable by the great mass of the people, but we have now reached a point where only a few finishing touches need be applied to make the immigration laws meet the needs of the people of the United States. It is our country and our problem, and any revision of the laws, if made, should be solely on the basis of what is best for us. This is what I term my "selective" policy toward immigration.

Youth's Crusade for Peace

United In a World-Wide Movement For a Peace Based On the Solid Foundation of True Friendliness Instead of Flimsy Theory, a Million Youths Are Exchanging Visits With Other Lands In a Pilgrimage of Fraternal Understanding

BY CHARLOTTE KELLOGG

Author of "Bobbins of Belgium" and "Mercier, the Fighting Cardinal of Belgium"

WASHINGTON. As I packed my bag for California, a friend telephoned: "Oh, I'm sorry. I hoped you would dine tomorrow with our fifty Atfrican student guests."

San Francisco. Another friend: "If you had only arrived yesterday, you would not have missed our hundred Australian students—such delightful young people."

Honolulu. I picked up a last summer's number of "The Mid-Pacific," a magazine, and read that ten students from each country bordering the Pacific had recently set out on an encircling Pacific friendship cruise. Antedating Mr. Hoover's trip to South America!

Tokio. A letter from a Czecho-Slovakian acquaintance told me that Prague was happily preparing for the entertainment of some fifty young visitors from the United States.

By this time my imagination saw the world's youth suddenly cut loose from its moorings and embarked on some planetary mission whose import I determined to discover. Here was movement not sporadic and local, but world-wide and apparently concerted. What was the meaning, what were the potentialities of this perennial Youth pilgrimage?

The unit of today's arithmetic seems to be the million, so I was not surprised to learn, at the outset, that these visiting bands represent a world company of organized young men and women already more than a million strong. And since we live in what future historians will label the Post-War-Period, I was not surprised to find that their union is another of the great fruits of the terrible war—there are such fruits.

The traveling troops, captained by good will, bannered by faith, are just one outgrowth of the present world's longing and striving for a reliable foundation for peace.

Superlatively, Youth was war's victim. At its close, the flower of Western youth lay blood-drenched on Flanders and other fields. Surviving youth faced physical and mental starvation, spiritual despair; it quickly began to arm against the menace of post-war defeat—began in Europe, where the danger was greatest.

They began practically. They must have education; if they were to have it, they must wrest books, food, shelter from a chaotic world. These they could win as an organized body where they would lose as individuals.

There grew up swiftly in many countries student federations concerned primarily with securing these first necessities. Soon young men and women were opening their own restaurants, food and book shops; their own student houses.

At the same time national organizations were looking toward an international union which could facilitate the attainment of these objectives while envisioning other, higher ones. At Strassbourg, the very year following the armistice, they raised their standard—a victorious pennant—"Confederation International des Etudiants."

The Confederation's first resolution revealed the determination of young women and men, facing the post-war world, to make it a warless world. There is only one road to international understanding and peace, youth said—it is the open, old-fashioned way of neighborliness. It bridges areas of separation, cuts across barriers of ignorance. For, in order to know our neighbors, we must visit them, either over transcontinental hedges or around continental blocks. Student youth organized at Strassbourg "to create bonds of mutual esteem and friendship among students of the world."

Since then official delegations from more than thirty countries have met in a similar way to plan for further neighborliness. They have met at Prague, The Hague. Oxford, Warsaw, Copenhagen, Prague again, Rome and, last summer, at Paris.

In 1924 the Confederation achieved the delicate task of bringing students of conquered enemy countries into the general union. Germany, Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey sent official representatives to sit for the first time beside delegates from France, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland in the council meeting of the Confederation at Warsaw. This Youth accomplished, while the most important international organization of adult scientists was still struggling to reach a like mile-post. I believe the young people got there two years ahead of their elders!

In the meantime they had established a central office at Brussels and a special travel bureau at London. While they were carrying on exchanges in text-books and scientific films, in athletics and debating and building a direly needed student sanatorium at Leysin, Switzermalnd, they were organizing student camps and arranging for yearly exchange visits among more than a thousand students.

To facilitate these and student movements generally they secured advantages of primal importance. They won the privilege of reduced travel rates on railway and steamship lines and achieved (through what agency I will explain later) an international student identification card—in effect, an intellectual passport, which shows what the student traveler has done, and enormously facilitates his movements. They arranged for a collective or group vise and fee, which reduces to cost of passports.

Which suggests that American youth has given its hand in this attempt to lay the only sure foundation for a different, warless world. It has. More than 500,000 strong, young men and women from every state in the union have fallen into line with the world student army that visions as the supreme victory an understanding world friendship.

That is why Asiatic guests were enthusiastically invading South American ports; why African guests were pouring into Washington, Australian into San Francisco, Oxfordians into New Haven—all eagerly awaited by young Americans. That is why large numbers of our own students set forth joyously for Europe last summer—embarked knowing that they were expected by potential friends who already had made interesting plans for them really to get acquainted with other peoples.

America's National Students' Federation grew out of a meeting at Princeton in 1925 of 200 delegates from forty-five colleges and universities who went there to try to arrive at a consensus of opinion on the World Court. In the end they formed the National Students' Federation of America, "to achieve a spirit of co-operation among students of the United States, to give consideration to questions affecting students' interests, to develop an intelligent sudent opinion on questions of national and international importance and to foster understanding among the students of the world in the furtherance of an enduring peace."

It was in 1927, at Rome, that the American federation joined the international body.

Our branch has instituted its own travel service for sending and receiving guests—from now on there will be successive incoming and outgoing friendship pilgrimages. It has been writing to, and is writing to, student unions throughout the world, telling what is being done here and offering to send its publications to any country desiring them. It has interested itself in the problems of other young people—sending to the confederation, for instance, a resolution of protest against the persecution of Jews and other minorities in certain universities.

This is no paper organization. It is tremendously in earnest, extremely busy. Its national activities are engrossing, but they do not dim its ultimate purpose. Responsibility for the international debates alone—taken over from the Institute of International Education—would form a considerable item on any agenda. England plans to send us two teams a year. Australia, Canada, South Africa, Holland and Germany wish to send English-speaking teams. We, in return, hope to send visiting teams to each of these countries.

The travel division hums. It offers two types of facilities: one of official representatives—upper classmen—and the Open Road Tours for others. In connection with the latter, the bureau limits itself to giving advice, contracting for space and making other arrangements with steamship and railway companies.

But for the official tours it assumes larger responsibilities. The delegation of 100 who will go to Europe this summer, for instance, will be divided into groups of from ten to fourteen, each under the leadership of a graduate or senior student. Each group will follow one of ten interesting programs which the national federations of various European countries have outlined. These itineraries include, in common, an extended stay in one particular country, one week at the International Student Center in Geneva and another at the Cite Universitarie in Paris. Besides, there is the 1929 Pan-Pacific Students' Congress to plan for!

This is but a glimpse into the international activities of our American unit in the great confederation. Like endeavor is sponsored by more than a million post-war youths.

Paralleling these major undertakings are innumerable more indirect approaches toward better understanding among them, such experiments as those of certain California pioneers—it does not surprise us to find enthusiasm in the Far West antedating the work of our national organization. For some reason southern California is a particularly fertile field for international effort.

Some six years ago a handful of young idealists in the University of California dedicated themselves to the task of bringing areas of distrust in the world. How to begin? Practically, in their own schools, by enrolling in modern language courses. They recognized, at the start, that the greatest barrier to understanding is diversity of languages. They found that by cutting out less important subjects they could easily take on a language or two. Spanish proved a favorite; and they told us, their elders, that if we did not overwhelm our minds with a staggering amount of unrelated, unessential reading—drown them in a sea of ink—we could just as easily equip ourselves for adventures in bridge building.

In the meantime, southern California youth said, all peoples today do understand a common language—the language of beauty? They selected from the world's paintings certain outstanding ones, bought excellent prints of them and set down briefly on the reverse of each an account of the painter and the particular culture he represented. These became a local exhibit which has never yet caught up with its with its waiting list!

As a corollary to the loan exhibit, these young people set up a show case at a strategic point in a college corridor where six thousand students pass daily. In it each week they place some object of striking beauty, stressing its origin. There is now great interest in each succeeding display.

They launched a Latin-American week, uniting in this celebration with other southern California colleges. There were talks, "movies," a Spanish barbeque—a variety of ingenious attempts to "put across" information about our South American neighbors.

Suggestions poured in. At the Institute of Technology youth hung in a conspicuous place a fine world map equipped with a system of colored lights, and beside it, on a bulletin board furnished with corresponding lights, they listed important world occurrences. There is a long list of other similar activities.

The University of Kentucky, adopting one part of the Californians' project (they have circulated their peace plan) has designated certain foreign countries for special study. Last year its young people had a Russia month, an Italy and a China month. Next year they propose giving three months to Spain, Argentina and Mexico.

Of course other groups have been and are working along similar paths toward the common goal. We have witnessed increasingly international exchanges for study in various fields, many of the intellectual ones made possible by such fellowships as those of the Cecil Rhodes, Rockefeller, Guggenheim, the Commission for Relief in Belgium Foundations and the National Research Council.

Of very important evidence is this fact—that the Chinese young women and men who are part of the five million now enrolled in the great movement for mass education in China (which may be the dawn of the Chinese renaissance) have ever before them that cardinal teaching of their sage Confucius: "Under the sky, one family." Western young people know that for them and Eastern youth there is but one objective.

Most of us catapult in and out of Washington's monumental railway station blind to the inscription chiseled across its front: "He who would bring home the wealth of the Indies must carry the wealth of the Indies with him." Youth all over the world today is heeding this reminder. It points the way to youth's goal.

As we struggle toward peace we realize once again that it is pretty hard to make over a present generation. This need not discourage us. It is but historical repetition of what has gone before. Often the best we do toward achieving our own aspirations is what we do in helping the next generation to start on a better way. In other words, our hope lies in helping youth in its ambitions.

Fortunately, our intellectual leaders realize this. There is in Europe today an organization which, because of its progress during the six years since it started, speaks to the whole intellectual world with authority. Directing it are such planetary trail blazers as Einstein, Bergson, Marie

Return of Edmund Davey

A Blue Ribbon Short Story---By Walton Green

IN THE late afternoon of Tuesday, October 18, Edmund Davey disappeared from his country house on Long Island.

At 10:30 on Wednesday morning in New York, the board meeting at which Davey should have presided as chairman met and adjourned sine die. Eight minutes later the news was on the ticker, and every trader in the street was frantically selling the market.

At 5:10 p. m., in the midst of a thunderstorm, the body of Edmund Davey crashed to the pavement of Broad street, directly under the windows of his own offices.

The police examination ended in a fizzle. The first ten minutes developed the fact that Edmund Davey had not been in his office that day.

The second ten minutes brought word from the conorer that when the body of Edmund Davey struck the pavement of Broad street he had been dead some twenty-four hours—killed by a shot through the heart.

The New York police had combed every office and inspected every window on the front of the building beneath which the body had struck. There was nothing doing. Edmund Davey's body must have been thrown from an airplane. But the weather bureau scouted the suggestion. It had been on watch during the storm and would have heard and seen any plane.

The Police were forced back to Long Island, where the chief of police of Binghampton had organized the search on the night of Davey's disappearance and questioned the Davey household.

The Binghampton end, on rechecking, yielded this:

At 4:20 p. m. on Tuesday Edmund Davey had left his house to take a walk. He was accompanied by his nephew, Chester Ellery, who acted as his confidential secretary. At 6:30 o'clock Ellery had returned alone, remarking that his uncle had left him on the North Sea road to go to Scallop Cove to meet his partner, Amory Munn, at the latter's fishing shack.

Before leaving the house Mr. Davey had told one of the servants he was bringing Mr. Munn back for dinner. This was substantiated by the servants and by Miss Helen Phillips, Davey's 19-year-old ward.

Ten minutes after Davey and Ellery started on their walk Munn telephoned from New York to say he could not get down in time to meet his partner at the shack, but would come to the big house for dinner. The butler informed him Mr. Davey had started for Scallop Cove, but had not yet had time to get there. The butler would call him in half an hour and deliver the message. Mr. Munn told him to ask Mr. Davey to call the office before he started back. The butler did call the shack half an hour later, and spoke to Mr. Davey, who stated he would telephone New York and then start back at once. That was the last heard of him.

At 7:15 Munn arrived in Binghampton, bringing Holmes Herrick, another partner, with him. They telephoned the shack, but there was no answer. By 8 o'clock the household became uneasy. At 8:30 Ellery, Herrick, and Munn started in separate cars to search the roads. By 10 o'clock the local police were notified.

There seemed no loophole in any one's story. All the servants were accounted for. There were no house guests. Davey was a bachelor in his late forties. His establishment was run for him by a combination housekeeper and social secretary—Mrs. Sydenham, a divorcee of 30-odd, derelict of a once socially prominent family. The police checked on her past history and on her movements of Tuesday afternoon without result.

The only possibility remaining in the household was the 19-year-old girl. She admitted frankly she had been out in her runabout from 5 o'clock until after dark. She had been sketching at the North Sea not far from where her guardian was last seen, and admitted she had been alone all the time. The authorities considered the possibility of her involvement too remote to bother with.

Chester Ellery had gone for a walk with his uncle. If he had parted from him on the North Sea road, as he said, then the time at which he arrived at the house fitted perfectly. Ellery had retraced his route in company with the police shortly after daylight on the morning after the disappearance. The footprints of the young man and the older man were readily discernible on the wood roads. On the hard macadam of the North Sea road there were no tracks. Nor were there any tracks leaving the North Sea road between that point and Munn's fishing shack. Ellery and his uncle had certainly reached the North Sea road. Ellery had certainly gone home as he came—his returning tracks equally visible. His uncle had vanished.

Similarly, the movements of Munn and Herrick were accounted for to the minute. They had left the office in New York at 5:10 and had driven directly to the Davey house in Binghampton. They reached there at 7:15 and at 8:30 they had started the search.

Equally at sea were the authorities when they attempted to build a theory of the crime based upon motivation. Munn was a brilliant young attorney who had been taken into partnership five years before. Davey had made him rich and was making him richer each year. Munn had no apparent reason to want him dead, and every obvious reason to want him alive. Herrick was in similar case.

Ellery was immensely wealthy in his own right. He had a sinecure job, and seemed to get along with his uncle. No discernible motive here.

As to the girl, while she had little in common with her guardian, and was known to disapprove his mode of life, yet her contacts with him were amicable enough. Furthermore, she was permitted to lead her own life with her own money—money which the guardian administered with shrewd care and with increasingly profitable returns. She had nothing to gain, and probably much to lose, by his death—added to which was the sheer improbability of her having been even accessory to so physically difficult and grotesque form of killing.

This improbability extended to Mrs. Sydenham, though jealousy might have furnished the motive. Davey was a ruthless and epicurean pursuer and possessor of women. He had pensioned off the faded divorcee of his past and it was not improbable she knew of his philanderings. And it was not impossible she had had him killed by hired gunmen. But her alibi was tight.

The police had nothing to go on against any one.

In the early afternoon of October 24 Assistant District Attorney McGlone finished reading a particularly scathing editorial in the evening paper. Twenty minutes later he descended the steps of a basement shoe cleaning parlor and took the chair nearest a door in the rear. He tapped gently on the door and drew a torn half of a card from his pocket. The door opened a crack. McGlone's torn card was compared, and he stepped inside. A dozen men were standing at the bar.

"Hello, Slim," he said distinctly.

Slim Hermann's eyes flashed sideways under motionless lids.

"This Davey killing—what do you know?" asked McGlone.

"Nothing."

"Could you get me anything on it?"

"What's they in it for me?"

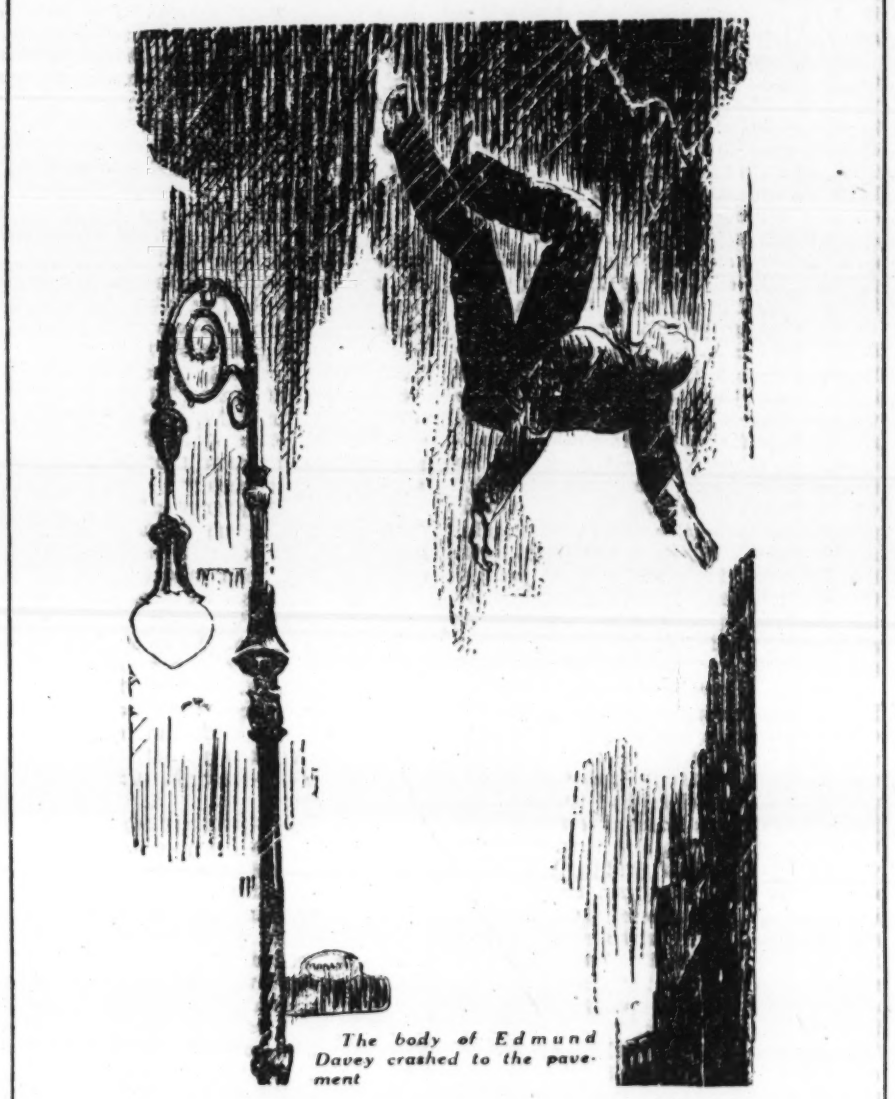

"Well—I guess we could give you the Brooklyn warehouse job. The chief was going in to the grand jury with that next week, but I might talk him into holding off while you see what you can do. And we've two other indictments over you, Slim."

"Figuring to frame me?" asked Hermann, impersonally.

"The Brooklyn job and one other indictment. I'll give you."

"All right, mister. Slip me the dope."

For nearly an hour the two men talked.

The body of Edmund Davey crashed to the pavement

Slim spent the evening drifting from cabaret to speakeasy, and from speakeasy to dubious apartments. It did not take Mr. Hermann many hours to find out everything discreditable in the nonpublic life of Edmund Davey.

At 7:30 o'clock next morning he was in Wall street. Then he located the janitor and proceeded to the roof of the building, where he spent fifteen minutes. The janitor, forewarned by McGlone, took him down to the Davey offices.

In all the rooms which gave on Broad street he opened the windows and examined the sills. Then he took a whisk broom and swept the sand and outdoor litter of each sill into separate envelopes, which he carefully marked. In the largest room, to which he came last, he paused for some time. This room was in the corner of the building and had windows on two sides. It was obviously the sanctum of the senior partner. Giving off from it was the secretary's anteroom. The sill of the single window in this smaller room held the usual dust and litter, but all four adjacent windows of Davey's room were clean swept.

A few moments later Slim was opening windows in the offices directly beneath those of Edmund Davey. He repeated his upstairs performances. Only this time he took dustings—not from the sills, but from the flat tops of the cornices over the windows.

He then presented himself at the Davey offices and was taken to the room of Amory Munn.

"The district attorney has telephoned me and I've given orders that you're to have the run of the office," said Munn. "Now, is there anything you want to know from me?"

"Not as I know of now, Mr. Munn. Maybe you got a hunch yourself, mister?"

"Blackmailers, kidnapers, jealous woman, business associates, money," Munn continued meditatively, "any of them possible—none of them probable. What I mean is—all the usual motivations fail in the fact of the extraordinary method of disposing of the body. Take every one around him. His household—Mrs. Sydenham—his niece—even young Ellery. Why, there isn't a soul in that whole assembly who isn't a lot worse off by his death rather than better off—to say nothing of the fact that every one's time is accounted for."

"Most of 'em is, Mr. Munn—yours, f'r instance. But how about young Ellery?"

"Preposterous. Chester is an extremely rich young man in his own right. He was being taught the game by one of the ablest men in this country."

"Young Ellery mixed up with any skirt? How about the niece?"

"Out of the question. Chester sometimes seemed to resent his uncle's manner toward Miss Phillips, but that's all it was."

"Well, mister, I'll be on my way. Can I talk to Mr. Ellery and Mr. Herrick and Mr. Davey's stenog?"

"Certainly. Mr. Ellery is still in Binghampton, but the others are here. I'll take you out to Miss Auerbach first."

Miss Auerbach thawed a little and beamed a little.

"Where was you when the bulls came up here after Mr. Davey's body hit the street?" asked Slim.

"Right here where I always am, outside Mr. Davey's office."

"Any one in that office?"

"Sure—Mr. Munn and Mr. Ellery. They'd been in there all the afternoon. No—wait a minute. They both went in together right after lunch to go over Mr. Davey's private effects, but Mr. Ellery was in his own room next door when the dicks arrived."

"Dicks?" quoted Slim, reproachfully. "Where do you get that stuff? And how do you know Mr. Munn was alone in Mr. Davey's room?"

"How do I know? Because about ten minutes before he yelled to me and I went in."

"Huh, huh? Well, what did he yell?"

"I don't know. Something like 'My God, Miss Auerbach'—I didn't get all of it, only my name. It was right in the middle of the storm, and thundering something fierce."

"And you went right in?"

"Well—soon's I could."

"What did Mr. Munn want?"

"Wanted to know why in hell I hadn't come sooner. He's always that way. I told him the door of his office had blown shut and I didn't hear him at first."

Mr. Hermann's next conference was even more unproductive. The dead man's attorneys read him the four paragraphed will. There was a long list of minor bequests to servants and retainers, but the entire residuary estate was left in trust for the establishment of a school of political science. Apparently there were neither dependent relatives nor friends to be taken care of. Nor was there any life insurance. Financial motivation for the murder was apparently ruled out.

Slim, though nettled, was by no means discouraged as he drove down to Binghampton later in the morning. For two hours he drove up and down every road in the neighborhood. Then he traversed on foot the route taken by Davey and Ellery. At the point where this path joined the North Sea road he sat down and rested. After ten minutes of meditation he crossed the highway, made his way shoreward, and ascended a wooded hill that ran out into a promontory forming the eastern shore of Scallop Cove. He found a small clearing at the top, with tent pegs and broken down tables and the remains of many fires.

From his hilltop he had already sighted the fishing shack.

He approached it from the water side, circled the cabin, noted the padlock on the door, and moved to a rear window. The soundless speed with which he raised the window and insinuated his body into the room was second nature to him. Slim was standing in the cabin, gazing imperturbably at the back of a man who stood facing a wall telephone.

It was a cardinal principle with Slim never to register surprise. The other man apparently shared the quality. The deliberation with which he turned from the telephone—the unhurried naturalness with which he dropped some small object into his overcoat pocket, and the finished insouciance with which he allowed himself to become aware of the intruder's presence evoked a glow of professional approbation in Slim.

"You, I take it, are the Mr. Hermann the office telephoned about. My name is Ellery—Chester Ellery. But why, may I ask, did you follow me through the window?"

"Door locked—didn't know any one was in the cabin."

"Quote so. Well, what can I do for you?"

"Nothing much, I guess. I s'pose this is Mr. Munn's shack, where Mr. Davey was heading after you left him on the North Sea road, ain't it?"

"Exactly."

"Did you figure he might 'a' got bumped around here, or maybe in the cabin itself?" Slim's tone was innocent.

"I don't know what to think. We never went near the cabin the first night, because my uncle had told the butler he was starting back. You see, we were thinking in terms of kidnapping or ransom. So we were spending our time trying to locate strange cars in the neighborhood. Next morning Mr. Munn said we ought to search the cabin after all, so we all came over here together."

"Well, I'm wondering why he didn't call up the New York office from here like the butler asked him to. Any chance of him trying and the line out of order?" Slim was guardedly interested in this young man's interest in the telephone.

"Exactly the idea I had," said Ellery. "In fact, I was just going to try central when you gumshoed in on me."

"Let's try it now." Slim walked to the telephone and lifted the receiver. There was no reshponse.

"No," prompted Ellery, "it's the old country style. You have to turn the crank on the box before you lift the ear piece and press the button on the left side with your other hand at the same time."

Operator answered promptly. The line was O. K. One budding hunch gone wrong.

"Well, I got to get back to the city end," said Slim. He had his man sized up and he wanted to get rid of him. They walked back to the car and started for Binghampton. Slim, who still nourished a lively curiosity concerning the small object which Ellery had transferred to his overcoat pocket, got busy during the drive. Thanks to his early training in removing small valuables from the person of another, it was a simple matter for him to identify the object as a screwdriver and to return it to its owner's pocket without discovery. This accomplished, he dropped Ellery at the big house and drove off in the direction of New York.

Once safely out of the village, however, he returned to the shanty.

His first interest was the telephone. It was an old-fashioned, wooden backed wall instrument with a large wooden box under the transmitter which housed the ringing apparatus and dry batteries. The sloping top was held in place by round-headed screws. The screwdriver slots in the heads showed signs of recent use. The front wall of the box had two nickel plated bells, hinges, and a keyhole.

In forty seconds—despite the handicap of his gloves—Slim had the door open. He flashed his torch inside. Thick dust—but recently disturbed, and the batteries shifted from their original positions. It might mean anything—or nothing.

He flashed the beam of his torch toward the shadowy corner of the telephone and caught a glint of high light on the varnished surface. It was caused by a fresh patch of varnish which had not been wholly rubbed down into dullness with the surrounding wood. In the center was a barely discernible high spot, round and about an inch in diameter. Slim opened the door. From the inside the spot showed as a plug of black walnut set into an auger hole in the door and hurriedly touched up with varnish. He gave the back of the plug a couple of smart taps and the walnut inlay dropped out readily.

In another moment Slim was bent over the instrument again, sniffing at the hole with the delicate eagerness of a trained bird dog. Then he replaced the plug with care, dropped to his knees, and went over the entire floor of the cabin. It was of light lumber, gray-black with the grime of years. There was a charred spot the size of a dinner plate directly beneath the kerosene lamp which hung from the ceiling—perhaps the result of a match dropped on the oil-soaked patch under the lamp.

Slim was through with the cabin for the time being, but not with the neighborhood. It was necessary to find out how the body had been carried away. The obvious method was by automobile. If so, no trace would remain. An airplane seemed out of the question, as there was no take-off field larger than a handkerchief within many miles. A seaplane would probably have been heard in this quiet neighborhood. Remained a rowboat, sailboat, or power boat—and a night passage to the Connecticut shore. Slim inspected the long landing stage which rode out into shallow waters of Scallop Cove. It yielded nothing.

He came ashore and began painstakingly to reconnoiter the ground about the cabin, walking in gradually widening circles, until he was a quarter of a mile away from his starting point. Presently he came to the wooded knoll he had visited a few hours before. This time the tent pegs took his notice. Everything else about the place was old and weather beaten, but these stakes were fairly new, and overlarge for their purpose. There were eight of them, scattered about indiscriminately. Slim looked about for the site of the tent. He found the eight holes for the stakes, describing a rough circle nearly twenty feet in diameter. "Some tent," reflected Slim, "big as an army pyramidal—now why?" And then it came to him. He took samples of sand which lay about the tent site.

Three hours later Slim was back in New York. It was evening, and he called McGlone at his apartment.

"Say, mister," he began, "this is me, and I guess they'll be something doing pretty soon. But I want some help. I need a couple of pals to pull a job with me tonight. Real guys, y'understand—but they got to be expert accountants—and they got to be fast workers. Do I get 'em?"

"All right," McGlone assented. "What time and where?"

"Tell 'em to have their shoes shined at ten-thirty. Get me?"

"Certainly," snapped McGlone, and rang off.

Slim called up the weather bureau and asked for the report of October 18 and 19. Much encouraged when those conditions fitted his theory, he decided to put to the touch the most vital point of his whole fantastic hunch.

In place of notebooks and memoranda Mr. Hermann used his highly trained head. So, now he brought out of his mind index the name of an airman of whose freak performances he had read in a newspaper weeks before.

Slim located his man in a Long Island telephone directory, called his house, and represented himself as a reporter on an evening paper.

"We've had an inquiry for a contraption, like yours," he began, "and we want to know if you can tell us where you had it built."

"Sure," returned the other, giving the name of the maker, "and they're building me another right now. That one was stolen a few weeks ago."

"Stolen?" asked Slim. "How come?"

"Yes, sir—stolen right out of my garage down here at Shinnerground Bay, about two weeks ago."

Slim listened intently to the details, promised the man a follow-up story, and hung up. Shinnerground Bay was about four miles westward of Scallop Cove.

At half after ten Slim slipped into the shoe cleaning emporium. If he was surprised to see McGlone he did not show it, nor did he give any sign of recognition. He bought cigarets and sauntered out and slowly walked around the corner to a dark side street. Here he hailed a taxi and waited at the curb until McGlone and the second man joined him. They started downtown.

Twenty minutes later they were in Broad street. It was a simple matter for Hermann to decoy the janitor out of the way while the other two slipped past and began the long climb to the thirtieth floor. It was an equally simple thing for the three men to enter the Davey offices. Slim opened every desk and box and so-called strong room in the place. He worked so fast he kept far ahead of his companions. At six o'clock in the morning they were at breakfast. McGlone's brief case bulged with memoranda and copies of accounts and lists. He had also risked the retention of a few originals.

"It'll take Rogers and me all of four hours to sift this stuff," he whispered. "One of them's been stealing, but which one there's no way of telling until I compare these private lists with the lists in the securities boxes. Those boxes go down to some safe deposit vault at the close of business every evening. They'll be back in the office at 9:30 to day. I'll get a crack at them this morning. I'll have to get Ellery and Betts and Herrick out of the office. By noon I ought to know something. Where will you be after lunch?"

"Down at Binghampton," said Slim. "Will you call up the telephone company and tell 'em to come through for me on a rush job if I want to trace some calls this morning? Thanks. I'll give you a ring about one o'clock."

He wanted to know if any one had made telephone inquiries of the weather bureau on October 18. He had checked on the movements of every one in Davey's office and on the calls from that switchboard. He was interested only in the hour and a half from twelve-thirty to two o'clock on that day.

Bowling Green exchange reported eighteen calls to the weather people during those hours. Only three were from telephones in the Wall street district. Of these, one was from a cigar stand in the basement of Davey's building. This was Slim's piece of luck. He repaired to the cigar stand, had a pleasant chat with the proprietor, and then went uptown to his hangout. Here he borrowed a .32 caliber automatic pistol—he never owned any weapons himself—and made changes in the ammunition. Then he drove to Binghamptpon. Half way down he stopped to call McGlone. The prosecutor spoke hurriedly.

"Nothing positive yet, Slim, but we're getting warm."

"Never mind, mister. I'm giving a little blow-out myself this afternoon. I'd like for you to get the mob down here to the cabin soon's you can, 'bout four o'clock, say. Call 'em all separate. I want 'em each to think they're coming alone. We want Ellery and Munn and Herrick and Miss Auerbach (I like the sound of her name) and the people from the big house down here. O. K.?"

Hermann continued his journey, went directly to the fishing shack, and busied himself with the telephone. He spun the crank and called central to be sure the line was in order. Then he opened the battery box and went to work. His last act was to remove the wooden plug from the hole between the bells and to lap it carefully on the floor directly under the telephone and just at the edge of a creeping shaft of sunlight.

It was now a quarter before four. Slim went outside, lay on a warm sandbank, and smoked. He was tired, but pleased. His party began to arrive. When the crowd had assembled he went in.

McGlone greeted him with obvious relief.

"I kind of thought it'd be a good idea to get every one together that was connected with this job and talk things over," said Slim.

"Excellent," said Amory Munn.

"F'r instance—why didn't Mr. Davey call your New York office from this cabin before he started back, like you asked the butler at the big house to tell him to do—that's correct, ain't it?"

"Yes, sir," the butler vouchsafed. "I got through to Mr. Davey at the camp here and gave him the message. He said he'd call the office at once."

"Perhaps he did," suggested Amory Munn. "No one seemed to think it important. But our switchboard girl ought to know."

"I'll call her," Ellery said. As he approached the instrument his foot struck the walnut plug. He glanced down negligently and reached for the receiver.

"Here—let me—I know the hang of it," Munn said, pleasantly, and stepped to the machine. As he neared the wall, he dropped a bunch of keys with which he had been playing, recovering them, and straightened up. Slim saw the plug had vanished.

"The trick of these old-fashioned phones is to press the button with your left hand and spin the handle with your right. This way—do you——"

There was a crashing report, and Munn staggered back, clutching his breast and twisting drunkenly towards the center of the room.

Slim spoke in a conversational tone.

"Watch his face, everybody. That's the guy that bumped Mr. Davey!" In two long steps he was beside the reeling figure, Ellery and McGlone with him. Munn was placed in a chair.

"You ain't shot, Mr. Munn," Slim resumed. "It was only a blank cartridge. Maybe you got a few splinters through your vest. You wouldn't 'a got even that if you hadn't put the plug back in the pistol hole. That's where you lost your nerve. You done a smart piece of work up to then."

The man is crazy. I know nothing of Mr. Davey's death. Every one knows just where I was every instant of the time."

"I think we had better hear Hermann out," McGlone cut in. He passed some memoranda over to Slim. "Perhaps this will fill in a few gaps, Slim. Sorry, I couldn't get it to you earlier."

"In the first place the district attorney says Munn has been stealing bonds from Davey for over a year," said Slim.

"Yes," McGlone affirmed. "It'll run into three-quarters of a million. Mr. Davey never checked the securities in the safe-keeping boxes—left that to the junior partners. Munn did most of the checking. He could take what he wanted. All he had to do was to change the typewritten lists in each box to conform to the reduced number of bonds. He could have kept it up indefinitely if it hadn't been that a new pair of partners was going to take over the job of checking on November 1st. The office practice was to change twice a year. It is a tiresome job and every one ducked it except Munn. When he realized it would be suspicious to insist upon keeping it he decided to kill his partner and cover up."

"Nonsense," sneered Munn. "How much of that do you think you can prove?"

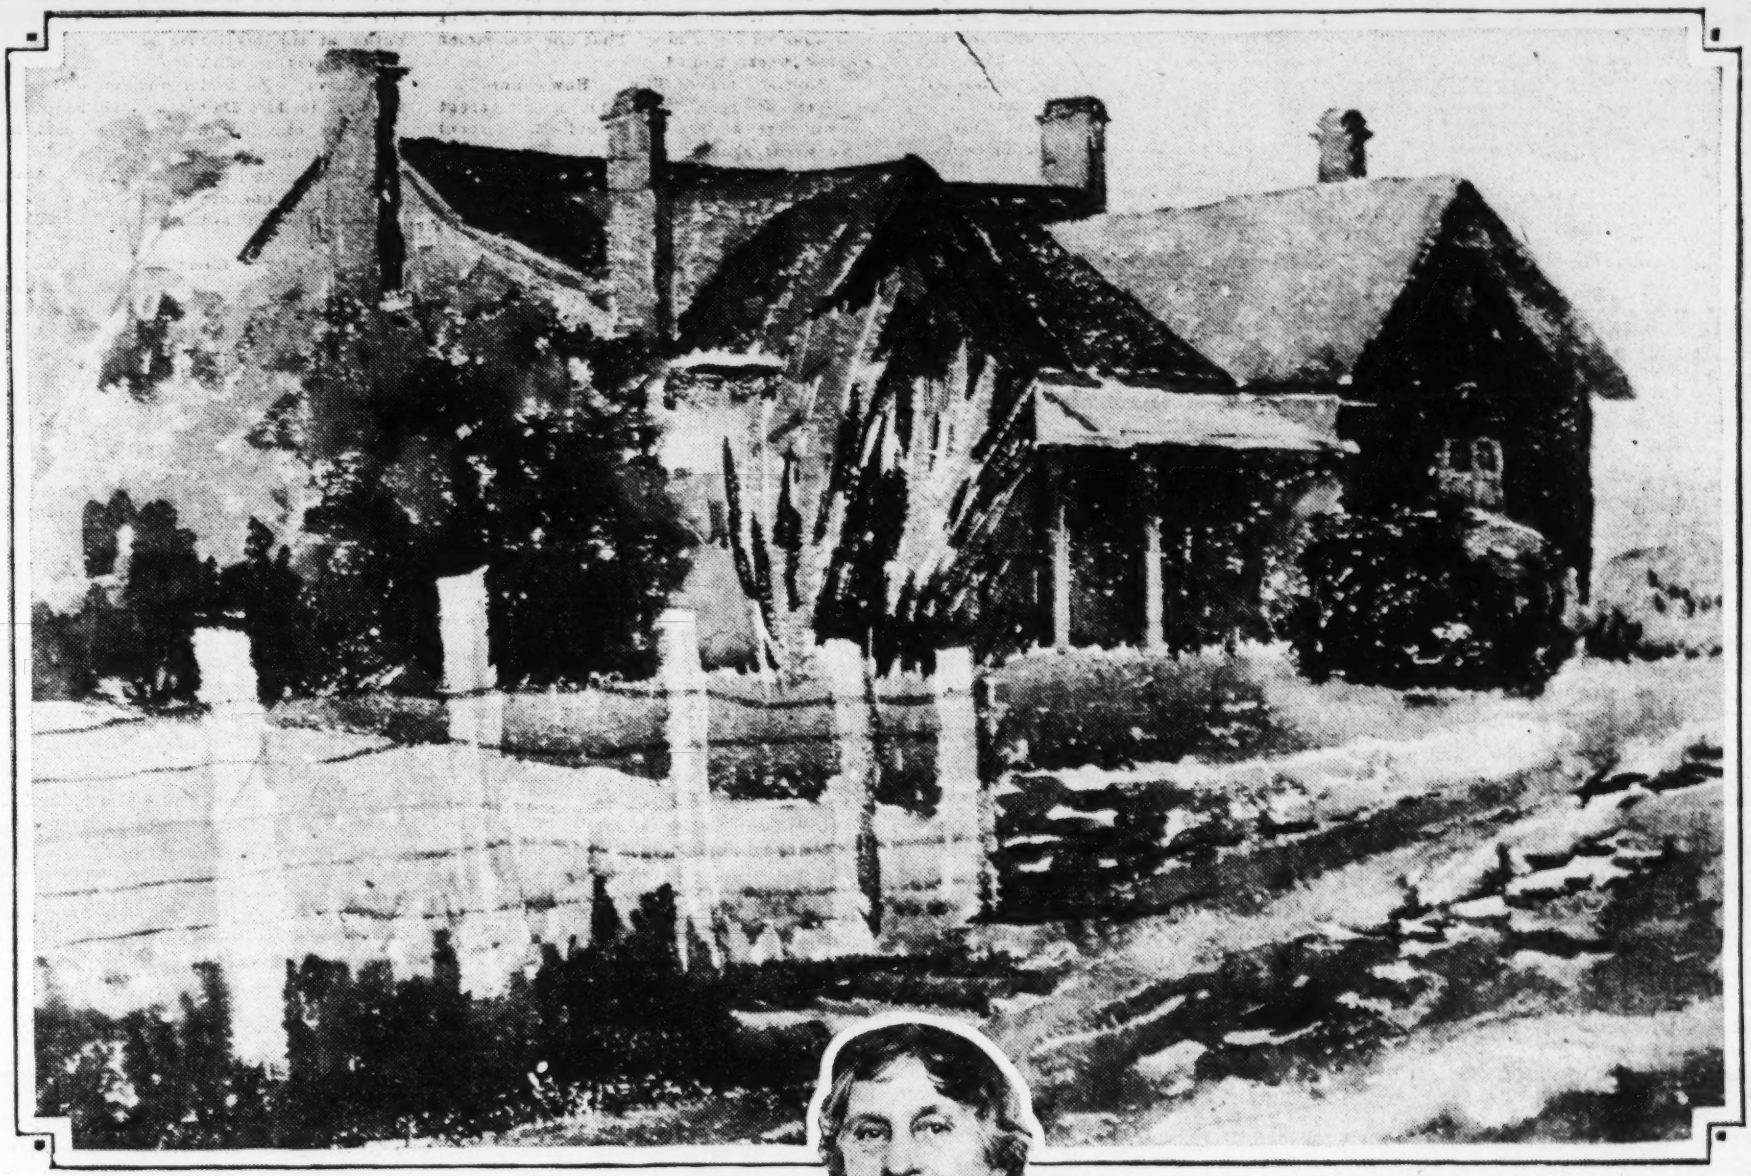

"Most of it," rejoined McGlone. "You see, we have Mr. Davey's private lists, your private lists, and your accounts with three brokerage houses where you've been playing the market short and dropped over a million dollars. Well, go on, Slim."

"Mr. Munn, he figured on the perfect crime," continued Slim, softly. "Perfect crimes is all the rage, nowadays. For a perfect killing you got to have three things. You got to work absolutely alone, you got to have a watertight alibi, and you got to get rid of the body for good and ever. Mr. Munn, he come pretty near doing all these things. Like as not he'd got away with it if it hadn't been for a change in the weather.

"Now, disposing of the body ain't so hard. Nine out of ten killers does it day in and day out. But the combine of working alone and of making a alibi, too, that's harder. But Munn got around that by making the actual killing automatic. He made Mr. Davey shoot himself with this here telephone, while he was in his office in New York with a hundred people around him. The idea come to him some time when he was looking at this old type phone. You answer a call in the regular way, but to get central you got to turn

The Story of the Huff House

Atlanta's Oldest Residence Has Been Occupied By Members of the Huff Family from Pre-Civil War Days to the Present Time

Has Stood Atop Its Hill For Nearly Eighty Years to See Mighty Changes Take Place. Was Saved from Burning Once By Brave Scot

THE Atlanta Woman's Pioneer society recently presented to Miss Sarah Huff at a dinner given by them in her honor at the ancestral home of the Huff family, in the suburbs of Atlanta, a beautiful loving cup in commemoration of her loyal work in behalf of this organization.

Miss Huff is one of the first members of this patriotic Atlanta society. She has lived here all her life, having been born at the old homestead.

The old Huff House where Miss Huff still lives has the distinction of having flown the flags of three governments.

It was the headquarters of Major Hotchkiss for a time, when the Confederate army was massing for the defense of Atlanta.

Across the way was the headquarters of General Joseph E. Johnston until his release from command on July 18, 1864.

General Thomas, of the United States army, occupied Huff House for a short time during the seige of Atlanta, in the summer of 1864.

When the torch was applied to other homes and to the churches and schoolhouses of the community the British flag was run up and floated defiantly over Huff House. This was done by George Edwards, a brave Scotchman, and a close neighbor and true friend of the family of the absent soldier. He also saved his own residence from the flames.

He told the torch-bearers that Huff House belonged to an English widow, and dared them to destroy it. Miss Huff's refugeeing mother was of French extraction, and was the loyal wife of as brave a Confederate soldier as ever drew his sword in defense of his country.

And so, the historic old home tops the highest eminence between Atlanta and Marietta. A landmark for the pioneer residents of the city of Atlanta to point across the hills, and tell of the mighty armies once marching round and about the old-time roads then leading to and through its neighborhood.

For nearly eighty years it has stood atop its hill. What wonders it could tell had it eyes with which to see the mighty changes taking place from its lofty viewpoint—from one railroad, passing its portals at its erection, in 1855, to the nine or ten tracks now passing in front of, or reaching around it; from the few country homes dotting the old-time spaces, to an army of church steeples and mighty skyscrapers rising out of the smoke toward Atlanta.

This is the story of Huff House, the oldest occupied residence in Atlanta.

Georgia's West Point Graduates

Activities and Achievements of Four Georgia Boys Who Graduate From U. S. Military Academy This Year

BY FRANK T. KETTER

FOUR cadets of Georgia, three of whom are from Atlanta, graduate on June 13 with the 1929 class of the United States Military Academy. They are Cadets George Franklin Baltzell, Jr., Ezekiel Wimberly Napier, William Lewis Bell, Jr., all of Atlanta, and Cadet James Percy Hannigan, of Columbus, Ga.

The career of George F. Baltzell is overwatched by many generations of army officers in his family. His great-grandfather, of the same name, rode horseback from Frankfort, Ky., to West Point in order to join the plebe class, and his father was a brigadier general in the United States army, and a member of the famous "Kitchen Cabinet" of President Jackson. The brother of the youngster who rode horseback to West Point became chief justice of the supreme court of Florida. In all there have been seven generations of Baltzells in this country in each of which there was a George who participated in every war in turn, as officers of the United States army, with the exception of the cadet's grandfather, George Jacob, who served as a lieutenant in the Confederate army.

Baltzell's heritage is equally as proud on his mother's side and there is a long list of prominent men in the political and civil affairs of Florida and Georgia. Emminent in this list are his mother's father, William Yates Atkinson, who was governor of Georgia and his great-grandfather who was Homer Virgil Milton, governor of Florida.

Cadet Baltzell graduated from the Central High school at Washington, D. C., and attended the University of Georgia, where he was a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon, class of '25. A little more than five years of his life has been spent in Washington, the remainder in Atlanta. His father is at present stationed at Jacksonville, Fla., but for the past four years has been at Fort McPherson, Atlanta. The Baltzells make their home in Atlanta and also at Jacksonville, Florida.

Cadet Baltzell is a private in the Corps of Cadets. In athletics he has engaged in all the intramural sports and has never gone out for a varsity team.

Probably the most popular man in his class for three years and unflagging in his activities. He was chairman of the "Furlo" banquet committee, chairman of the Yearling Color Line Committee, of the third class and first class Smoker Committee and was activities editor of the "Howitzer," the military academy year book. Many of the biographies in the "Howitzer" come from his pen. In other ways he has proven himself as leaning greatly to writing and his work is well worth the effort.

George appeared in the motion picture "West Point," in which he took the part of "riding" a plebe with questions at the mess table. He will join the infantry and will probably go to Fort Scriven. His graduation leave will be partly spent in Washington and part in Atlanta.

George has many other activities to his credit, among them being associate editor of the "Howitzer," member of the staff of the "Pointer," the cadets' magazine, as a humorist, and member of the gun club and fishing club. It might be well to quote the forthcoming "Howitzer" concerning him: "No other member of the class is as well known and liked as our vice-president, George. He has been endowed with that rare faculty of forming immediate friendships with all whom he encounters. As an influence on class morale, George is an institution. Beneath an extremely informal exterior, he possesses a warmth of understanding and sympathy."

Baltzell is the son of Colonel and Mrs. George F. Baltzell and was appointed to the military academy by Senator Park Trammell, of Florida.

* * * *

Ezekiel Wimberly Napier, cadet sergeant and all around athlete, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Napier, 970 North Highland avenue, Atlanta. He was appointed from the regular army by the president, having graduated from the Sidney Lanier High school at Montgomery, Ala.

Napier made the varsity B squad in gymnastics and track in his first year at the military academy. He played baseball and football on intramural teams in that same term. The following year he went out for polo and track and in his third year made the wrestling squad, varsity team, besides intramural cross country and soccer. This year he specialized in tennis. He was a member of the first class election committee.

Napier has applied for detail to the air corps and will spend his graduation leave in New York city working at engineering if the opportunity comes his way.

He spent two years in the field artillery at Fort Benning, Georgia, before coming to West Point and proves the statement that a man can enter West Point from the army with considerable achievement in his program.

The forthcoming issue of "Howitzer," the military academy annual has this to say about him: "'Dope' is cheerful and apparently happy. If voting by proxy were permitted one could express his political preferences accurately and succinctly by placing an 'X' in the straight democratic circle. His fortunes at the academy have wandered about considerable. 'Dope' has forsaken the goats and his fellow bucks for the castles and chevrons. Periods approaching despondency have miraculously been displaced by hours of joy sprinkled with wit, whenever the necessary effort for such a metamorphosis appeared not too great. No upheaval of nature or calamity of war can change his appreciation of life —to us he will always be dear 'Dope.'"

* * * *

Cadet William L. Bell, Jr., of 820 Piedmont Ave., N. E., Atlanta, moved but recently from Virginia where he was appointed to the military academy by Representative Andrew J. Montague of the third district of Virginia. He has made a splendid record in three paths, military, athletic and academic.

During his plebe year Christmas week, when all the upper classmen are away and cadet officers are selected from the plebe class, Bell was chosen regimental supply officer. In the following year, which is most unusual, he was made a fourth ranking acting corporal. In his third year he was a fifth ranking cadet corporal and this year he was made a captain seventh in rank.

In his academic work Bell stands very high, being in the first fifty of his class of 300 men. He has held his high average throughout his four years.

He made his letter "A" in gymnastics the first year, and for three years following he repeated the performance. He was a member of the locally famous team of Bell and Poole who worked together in spectacular acrobatics whenever there was a Hundredth Night Entertainment and for many Color Line Entertainments. Besides his record-making achievement in gymnastics he went out for intramural football, soccer and track and participated in two indoor meets in gymnastics. He won his numerals in the indoor meet.

He was a member of the Dialectic Society for three years and a member of the Cadet Chapel Choir for his entire four years. A signal honor came to him when he was selected as a member of the class ring committee.

He graduated from the John Marshall High school at Richmond, Va., and at that time lived at 2131 Park avenue, Richmond. Bell was a member of the "Howitzer" staff, participated in Camp Illumination and Color Line.

* * * *

Cadet James P. Hannigan, son of Mrs. E. L. Upson, 2419 Bell street, Columbus, Georgia, was appointed from Massachusetts, where he lived up to two years ago. His home formerly was in Springfield, but his birthplace was San Francisco, Cal., where he lived for ten years.

Cadet Hannigan graduates from the Military Academy having been made a cadet lieutenant this year, of the seventh rank and also having been manager of the varsity boxing squad. He stands high in academics.

In his second year here he was made third class assistant manager of the B squad football and the following year assistant manager of boxing. Meanwhile he played baseball, lacrosse, soccer and went out for track. Also in his second year he was third class manager of boxing. In recognition of these services he was awarded a manager's "A."

Hannigan was humor editor of the "Pointer," the cadet's magazine, for his entire four years and humor editor of the "Howitzer" the year book, for two years. He was stage director for the Dialectic society during his entire four years and in addition to these activities he was a member of the Camp Illumination Committee, the Christmas Card Committee and the Furlo Banquet Committee.

His first choice of service is with the field artillery and has not yet made a choice of station. His graduation leave will be spent in Connecticut and Massachusetts.

Previous to coming to West Point he received considerable military training at the C. M. T. at Camp Devens. He was made a corporal in his plebe year at Christmas week when all the upper classmen are away and cadet officers are chosen from the plebe class. He was made a regular cadet corporal in his third year and finally reached the grade of lieutenant.

VACATION

You offer a glimpse of the colorful Nile—
A "new thrill every day."
Roaming in flower-filled valleys hemmed by Snow Peaks and Canyons over the way!

You promise a voyage of "all my dreams,"
To the blue Adriatic shores,
Where the Roses of the Riviera
Hold open unknown doors!

You tell of the magic of moonlight nights
In an old Convent Garden that smiles
On the clear water of an Italian lake,
Where a Purple Pergola beguiles!

Skirs of adventure—world wonders—delights!
There's a thrill in the thought alone—
That sail down the Mediterranean,
And a game of cards at Mentone!

Each Spring I'm almost persuaded
To 'sign on the dotted line'—
Til the fragrance overcomes me
Of a wild honeysuckle vine. . . .

A fragrance that carries visions
Sweeter than foreign clime—
And offers thrill enough to stay
At home—Vacation time!

The People of Pitcairn Island

A Thrilling Story of Pirates---By Charles B. Driscoll

The two captains went ashore.

PITCAIRN ISLAND is about the loneliest spot on the inhabited earth. It is a mile wide and a little more than two miles long. It is in latitude 25 degrees south and longitude 130 degrees west, and while that does not mean anything to the average reader, it is almost the only possible description of its situation, so far is this little speck of land from everything except salt water.

You will not find Pitcairn on ordinary maps of the Pacific ocean, but on a detail map made for navigators one finds it a little south and east of the Paumotu group of islands. It is, besides being isolated, very forbidding in aspect, so that, once you find it in the great world of water, you begin to wonder how anybody ever got up on top of it. It rises out of the water to a height of a thousand feet. Sheer walls of rock present an inhospitable shore to the mariner, all around the island. And that isn't the worst of it. There are dangerous reefs, partly exposed and partly covered by shallow water, almost surrounding Pitcairn. Many ships have been wrecked on these reefs.

In 1767 this island was first seen and noted by white men. Cartert, British explororer, was sailing these lonely seas in H. M. S. Swallow. At the lookout, sweeping the waste with a spy-glass, was a young cadet named Pitcairn. He was a nephew of a certain Major John Pitcairn, who eight years later was to change the course of history on the village green at Lexington, when he was to shout, "Disperse ye rebels; lay down your arms!" The rebels, as you may have heard, didn't disperse, and that put Major Pitcairn in the most embarrassing position of his life.

Captain Pitcairn in 1767 cried "Land ho! There's a rocky island off the starboard bow, sir!"

When Carteret had a good look at the impossible rock, he said, "We'll make young Pitcairn's name immortal. This is Pitcairn Island, and much joy to anyone who can live on it."

That was all until January 23, 1790, when the ship Bounty, carrying Fletcher Christian and eight other mutineers, together with six men, twelve women and two boys of Tahiti, sighted the towering cliffs of Pitcairn.

Fletcher Christian was looking for a permanent hiding place. He and his eight men were indubitably guilty of mutiny and piracy. They all knew full well that the long arm of the British admiralty would reach out across the world and bring them at last to Execution Dock at Wapping, unless they could find a hiding place that would isolate them from the world of men for the rest of their lives.

Christian was a well-informed mariner. He had heard of Pitcairn and its notation as an inaccessible rocky islet by Carteret a few years previously. He deliberately set out to find this loneliest spot, and found it.

* * * *

The little inlet found by Christian that day is still called Bounty Bay. It is a terrible place to make a landing, but the only possible landing place in the circuit of the island. Reefs are all about, and the white surf continually boils about submerged rocks that threaten death to mariners. The present inhabitants of the island have flat-bottomed boats, and they have become expert in guiding these frail craft through the surf to meet such ships as heave to outside Bounty Bay and discharge mail in baskets that are dropped into the flat-bottomed boats from the vessels' booms. If you wish to visit Pitcairn Island today, and are fortunate enough to obtain permission from the British commissioner of the western Pacific, you must take your chances in one of those mail baskets and a surf boat.

(The present chief of the island, or president of the council, as he is called, is Richard Christian, direct descendant of Fletcher Christian, who headed the mutiny and founded the colony on Pitcairn island).

The mutineers and their friends landed from the Bounty's boats, searched the island, and found it uninhabited. There were cocoanut trees and other sources of food. The soil on top of the rocky foundation seemed very rich. There were many wild goats. Drawings and markings on rocks and in caves indicated that the island had been inhabited ages ago by a rude people that probably had introduced the goats. Here, said Christian, the mutineers would be safer than anywhere else in the world.

The Bounty was brought close enough to shore to be tied to a tree by a long line. Everything that could be moved was taken out of her. Most of her rigging was carried ashore, and if only the mutineers had kept the carpenter of the Bounty with his chest of tools, they could have broken up the vessel and made use of all her planks and spars. But Christian wanted to make sure that nobody could leave Pitcairn to spread the news.

He burned the Bounty. "Now," he said, "we are here to stay." And so they were.

The white men staked out farm claims, and each one took a Tahitian wife.

All went well for two years. Then the wife of one of the mutineers named Williams was accidentally killed while hunting birds' eggs for her spouse. Williams was grieved, but proposed to make good his loss by taking over the wife of one of the Tahitian laborers. The dark-skinned gentleman objected, and there was trouble in the island Eden.

The black men formed a plot to murder all the whites. The black women, who were strong for the Englishmen, revealed the plot. The Englishmen began to oppress the Tahitian men shamefully, and the black men began to abuse their wives for having got them into all this trouble. One black woman murdered her husband, and there was much fighting and breaking of heads.

Finally the natives (natives of the Pacific, but not of Pitcairn) stole arms and attacked the Englishmen while the latter were working in the fields. Fletcher Christian was one of the first men shot to death. Williams, who had started the whole mess, was killed, as were John Mills, Isaac Martin and William Brown.

Only four of the white men survived. They were Edward Young, who was hidden by the native women; William McCoy, Matthew Quintall, and John Adams, whose right name was Alexander Smith. He had taken the name Adams upon arrival at Pitcairn, as if the change of name were to symbolize the taking on of a new life.

After the massacre of the whites, the Tahitian men began to fight among themselves. Their women, together with the black wives and widows of the white men, turned upon them, and in one night massacred all of the black men on the island.

Quintall and McCoy set up a still, and began the manufacture of a powerful firewater. Most of the small population of the island went upon a prolonged spree. McCoy, in an attack of delirium tremens, killed himself. Adams and Young jointly murdered Quintall with hatchets, in a fight over women.

Two white men, Young and Adams, were left. Young died of asthma in 1800, the first of the Bounty mutineers to die a natural death.

John Adams now became the patriarchial ruler of the colony and the only white male on the island. His subjects were eight black women, twenty-three half-caste children, and a few black babies. Three of the children bore the name of Christian. Edward Young's offspring numbered six. Four of the youngsters were Adam's.

I have before me a little book written by Rosalind Young, great-granddaughter of Edward Young, in 1894. This volume was the property of Frank Stoaling, a sailor on H. M. S. Cambrian, which visited Pitcairn Island July 21, 1906. The sailor got seventeen of the islanders to write their autographs on the inside of the back cover of his book. Of the seventeen, six are Christians and seven are Youngs.

* * * *

Adams reformed himself and his subjects. He destroyed the still, established prohibition that actually worked, and dug out the Bounty's Bible from a dusty corner or a hut. He proclaimed regular worship, as nearly according to the Church of England ritual as he could, and required attendance at services.

The settlement of Bounty descendants, presided over by Patriarch Adams, was first discovered in 1808, nineteen years after the mutiny of the Bounty, by Captain Mayhew Folger, of the American ship Topaz. Descendants of Captain Folger still live in Ohio. His son, Robert Folger, who lived in Massilloon for many years, was one of the most enthusiastic collectors and commentators interested in the history of the mutiny of the Bounty and the Pitcairn colony.

The Topaz, out of Boston, was on a sealing voyage. She chanced upon Pitcairn by accident. Half-caste young men put off in a boat and asked Captain Folger to come ashore. He did, and was greeted by Adams, who entertained the American and introduced him to his colony of English-speaking young men and young women.

Folger reported his discovery, but news traveled slowly, and it was six years more before two British naval vessels, the Briton and Tagus, commanded by Captain Staines and Pipon, happened to sail close to Pitcairn while on a cruise of the Pacific, and were greeted by young men in a flat-bottomed boat.

The two captains went ashore at Bounty Bay with the English-speaking young men, and were met on the beach by Patriarch Adams, the only surviving mutineer of the Bounty.

The long arm of the British admiralty had found Fletcher Christian's hideaway! But twenty-five years had passed. Christian was gone. There remained of all the mutineers only one, a gray-bearded patriarch, ruling benignly over an Acadian people, with the Bounty's Bible as his law-book and philosophy.

Adams was afraid the captains had come with their two big warships to take him back and hang him for the crimes of the Alexander Smith that he once was. But nothing was more unlikely.

The entire population of Pitcairn gathered about Sir Thomas Staines, the senior captain, and begged that Adams, their teacher and friend, might be spared. The good captain was much moved, and assured them that he would not be a party to any move to break up their idyllic colony.

* * * *

Five years later another ship called at the island. The existence of the colony of descendants of the mutineers of the Bounty had now become widely known. The British government made no effort to arrest Adams, who was growing old gracefully and governing wisely. The colony received gifts once in a while from passing whalers.

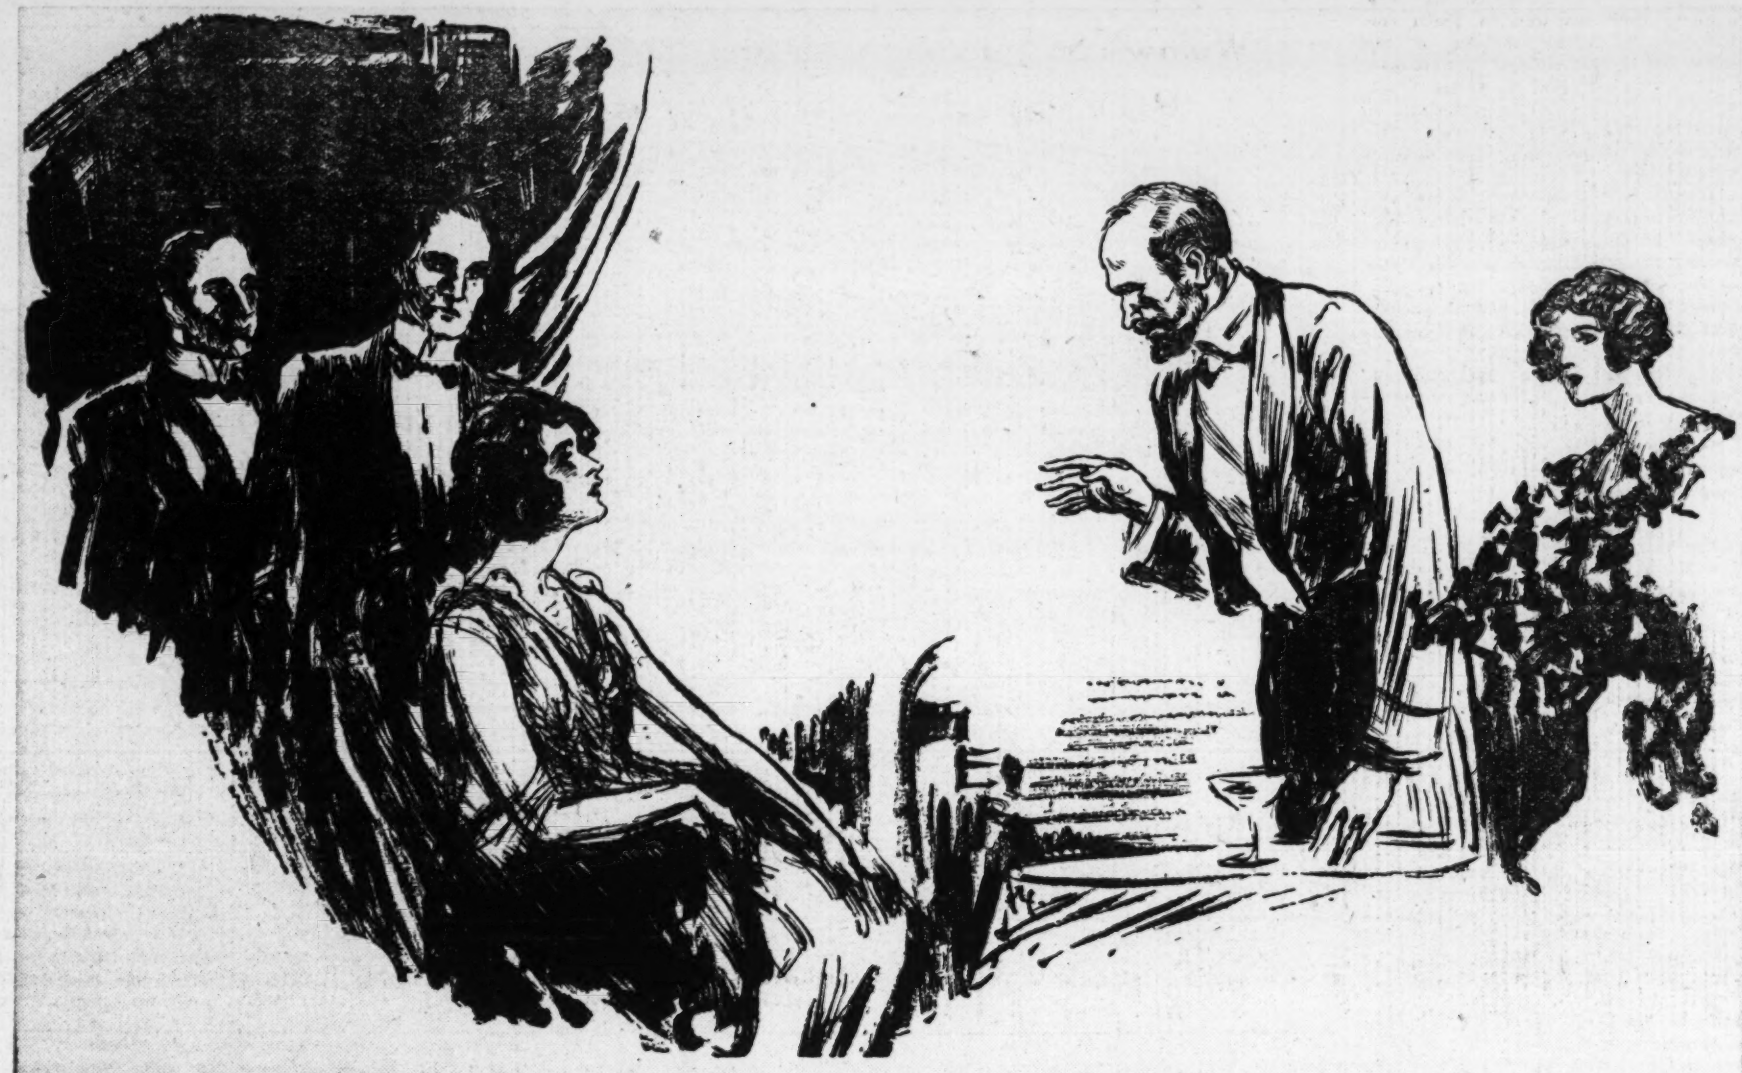

The Pitcairners welcomed at least a dozen shipwrecked crews during a period of fifty years, giving freely of all they possessed for the relief of distressed mariners. Their generosity and humanity became INSTALLMENT V.

I SUPPOSE I had heard of Vigil, but I had never met one who had been there or seen, so far as I remember, its name in print; and while that is nothing to go by, for I am not well informed, I have since referred to the guide books to find the city dismissed with half a line. This is to me a mystery, for though, perhaps of little importance, Vigil is more attractive than many a well known resort, and I can only suppose that the singular absence of any kind of hotel has stifled, again and again, its claim to renown.

The town lies among mountains upon either side of a river which flows very swift, and if you approach from the east you will suddenly see it beneath you, spread out like a map and resembling those fabulous cities that painters raised in their backgrounds five hundred years ago.

Now when we first saw it, George and I were afoot as well as alone, and so were able to loiter as long as we pleased.

The car had gone on to Vigil with the servants upon her front seat. I had thought this arrangement a wise one and George had agreed. Four miles from the city therefore the change had been made, and almost before our guests knew it the servants had taken our places and we were out in the road.

The duke sat still but the grand duchess started up with a little cry.

"I beg you'll excuse us," I said, with my hat in my hand. "It's better so. The less attention attracted, the fewer questions asked."

"If you want another reason," said George, "Chandos dislikes the limelight until he has shaved."

The grand duchess smiled.

"I expect you know best," she said. "I don't know how we happened to fall into such good hands. Good-by—for the moment."

"So long," said the duke casually. "An' many thanks. What do you want for this car?"

"She's not for sale," said Hanbury.

Then I nodded to Bell, and the car slid forward.

When the dust had settled we walked down the road in its wake and presently came to the standpoint which, had we not been afoot, we should not have enjoyed.

I have said that the town was below us, and so it was; but it was four miles distant, so that we had by no means a bird's eye view. The air, however, was clear as is the air of those parts, and the red and gray roofs and buildings stood out very sharp and pleasing with the brilliant blue of the river cutting them across like a sash.

We at once perceived the cathedral thrusting two massive towers, and a building by the side of the river which must, we thought, be the palace, for there were trees about it and open space. Four bridges spanned the river, one of them covered and crooked, and so I suppose very old, and far to the north we could make out a big parade ground upon which we could see quite plainly the flash of steel.

Here let me say what I should have set down before this—that the moment we came to the frontier we knew that the prince was not dead for the flags were masthead high, and though we asked no questions it was everywhere perfectly plain that nothing unusual had occurred.

At last I turned from the city and looked at George.

"I should like to stay at Vigil," I said. "The servants can go to Salzburg and fetch our things."

"Very well," said George, slowly. "I've only one thing against it, and that's Duke Paul. Not that he'll trouble us; he was plainly immensely relieved when we got out of the car. But I should like to forget him. Intercourse with that youth is like drinking a glass of cheap claret which is badly corked. Long live Prince Nicholas."

"I'm with you," said I. "If the old fellow dies we'll leave Vigil the very next day."

"Once he's proclaimed," said George. 'Did you promise to stay till then?"

"Practically," said I.

George nodded approvingly.

"She's out of the top drawer," he said. "I'd like to see her on Flattery, with scent breast high and the merchant making for Bulrush by way of The Dale. Why the devil is she backing this waster?"

"You can search me," said I, and meant it. For a little we smoked in silence regarding the distant city so gay in the sun.

"I can't understand it," said George, violently. "Of course she loathes him—that's nothing. The girl he found in the chorus loathed the sound of his voice. He is—loathsome. Very well. Loathsome or not, she's got to marry him. Why? Because she's the obvious person to play the princess. If you want another reason, she's the head of the second line. She's betrothed to the heir apparent, not to the man. She goes with the throne."

"I agree," said I, heartily.

"Then why the blazes doesn't she let him rip? Let him work out his own damnation and lose his throne?"

"And marry Johann?" said I.

"Johann's married," said George. "I looked at the almanac last night."

If her attitude troubled George, it confounded me.

The girl had no wish to be princess. She had said so before us all, and no one that heard her say it could doubt that she meant what she said. She detested the duke. Upon her chastisement of him I lay no stress; a woman can dissemble her love. But spirits of her sort do not like spirits of his. The thought of becoming his wife must be plain horror.

These two premises admitted she had everything to gain by inaction and nothing to lose.

By folding her hands at Anger she might well have escaped a future to her more repulsive than death. Let she had come out to fight. . . .

The matter passed my understanding, and I would very gladly have put it out of my mind; but this I could not do, and that for a reason which I think I have made plain enough.

George Hanbury was speaking as though to himself.

"'Vanity of vanities,'" he said, slowly. "'All is vanity.' And that's a peach of a watchword for a couple of fools who are going to Vanity Fair."

"One fool," said I quickly.

"Two," said George. "If I had any sense I should take you back to Maintenance—if necessary, by force."

* * * *

We lunched very well and simply beneath the awning of a tavern in the heart of the town. Far above us the bells of the cathedral rang with a pleasing jingle each quarter of the hour; on the roof of an aged house we could see a stork like a sentry, beside his nest; an apothecary's faced us, with monks behind the old counter and a Latin superscription above the door, and next to this stood a handsome white stone cinema house, whose boards announced a film which was being shown in London two months before.

In the streets, which were old and paved, yokes of oxen went plodding by the side of open taxis as silent of movement as themselves, and peasants, clad in white linen and wearing embroidered sashes and waistcoats laced with gold, were mingling with men and women whose attire would have passed unremarked in the Place Vendome.

Later when we went strolling we found these curious conditions on every side. Ancient and modern fashions seemed to thrive knee to knee, and primitive styles and manners were neighbored by others which might have come straight from Paris the day before.

When, however, we sought a hotel, there was none to be found, and a man we accosted advised us to go to the station if we had need of a bed. Thither we accordingly went, but the lodging offered us was shameful and I would sooner have slept on the riverside.

We then returned to the tavern where we had lunched and asked the host to recommend us an inn, but to our dismay he immediately mentioned the station as affording the only shelter which we could possibly use. When we protested the fellow threw up his hands. Vigil, he declared, had boasted two handsome hotels before the

What Has Happened to Justice?

Mystery Still Clings to Killing of Jackson and Widow's Suicide — Death Stepped In at Psychological Moment to Stop Solution of Case

WILLIAM E. JACKSON, one of the best known detectives in New England, was shot to death one evening in the kitchen of his farmhouse on the outskirts of Willimantic, Conn. Only one shot was fired, but it was a very accurate shot, for the bullet hit in the cheek and penetrated his brain. His wife and daughter said they had gone to a store and returned to find him dead.

Trenor A. Rice, a deputy sheriff and former boarder in the Jackson home, took charge of the place after the tragedy, shooed away reporters, helped make the funeral arrangements, served as a pallbearer at the funeral, and at the conclusion of the services was placed under arrest and charged with the crime. According to reports, Jackson had expelled Rice from his home for being over-friendly with the young daughter.

But Trenor Rice was not tried for the murder of William Jackson. Some one else confessed to the killing.

* * * *

The murder of William E. Jackson, 53, a rather well-known detective, occurred on the night of January 29 last. He was shot at close range in the kitchen of his farm on the outskirts of Willimantic, Conn. His body was found by his wife, Gertrude, and his daughter, Juanita, when they returned from a store half a mile from their home. Forty minutes before, they said they had left him reading in the kitchhen.

Jackson, a personal friends of the late Theodore Roosevelt, under whom he had served as a Rough Rider, had apparently been killed without warning. Only one shot had been fired. The .32 caliber bullet had entered the right cheek directly under the cheekbone and had penetrated the brain. There were no signs of a struggle.

The authorities at first thought that the crime had been committed by vengeful friends of certain criminals he had tracked down in his long career. He had figured prominently in the hunt for the Diamond brothers, the New York bank robbers who were electrocuted some years ago, and had also been one of the chief witnesses in the recent trial of the "ice box bandits" of Worcester, Mass.

Snow lay on the ground but had been so trampled down that there were no distinctive footprints. Or so it was announced.

Mrs. Jackson could give the police no hint regarding the identity of the killer. Neither could her daughter. Neither could Trenor A. Rice, the deputy sheriff who had been boarding with the family until a little while before the tragedy. Mrs. Jackson was 53, Rice 37, the daughter 24.

Rice had come to live with the Jacksons after his second wife separated from him with the intention of suing for a divorce. Subsequently he had moved to his small poultry farm about a mile through the woods from the Jackson home. He and Jackson had long been associates in criminal investigation work.

Exactly why did Rice leave the Jackson home? If we knew that, it would help a lot.

After the tragedy the deputy was called to the Jackson place to feed the cows and chickens. He remained on the scene as a self-constituted guard. Newspaper men found him vigilant. He helped Mrs. Jackson and Juanita make the funeral arrangements.

In the meanwhile, as the body lay in the Jackson home awaiting burial, the bewildered Willimantic authorities summoned to serve as chief investigator Detective Edward J. Hickey, of Hartford, Conn., the officer who captured the notorious mail robber, Gerald Chapman. This same detective, incidentally, has been much in evidence in the murder of Walter Huntington, Harvard student, near Windsor, Conn.

Hickey examined the scene, talked with Mrs. Jackson, listened to neighbors, and visited Rice. The Hartford detective declined to make known his findings but the general impression in Willimantic was that he had settled his suspicions upon Rice. The deputy sheriff, according to the gossip of the neighborhood, had been overfriendly with Juanita Jackson and had been ordered out of the Jackson home by her father.

Mrs. Jackson, according to reports at the time, had a theory that her husband had committed suicide. She could not explain, however, exactly how the weapon had disappeared from the scene after he had killed himself. Hickey told her he was quite positive that it had not been a case of suicide.

Rice turned over to the detective two revolvers which he said the slain man had given him. One was a .32 caliber, the other one a .38.

Reporters heard the whispers and stormed the Jackson home. Rice would not admit them, and when they questioned him about his part in the case, he flared up angrily but admitted he expected to be arrested soon. He would be arrested, he said, solely for questioning as to his knowledge of the crime. In the meanwhile he would continue to protect the Jacksons from the newspaper pests.

The funeral took place on February 2. It was a strange affair. All the town's notables attended. Rice was an honorary pallbearer. He was also the chief object of suspicion.

William Jackson's body was laid to rest in a grave within 150 yards of Rice's farmhouse. That evening Rickey began questioning Rice in the Jackson home. With the assistance of Policeman Arthur Hurley, of Willimantic and State Policeman Rowe H. Wheeler, who with the slain man had been two of the four original members of the state police, Hickey grilled the suspected man for twenty-four hours.

And at the conclusion of the long ordeal it was announced that Rice had confessed.

The announcement was made by Lieut. Edward P. Leahey, of the Willimantic police, but Hickey refused to confirm Leahey's statement, and refused to give out any details of the supposed confession. Nevertheless, whether he really confessed or not, Rice was held for the crime, while the gossips of the community nodded their heads and told one another that it was just as they had suspected.

But the gossips were to have quite a surprise presently.

Several persons at least among the town's 15,000 inhabitants refused to believe that Rice was the guilty person. Two of those whose faith in him was unshaken were Mrs. Jackson and her daughter. They went to see him and told him they were sure he had not committed the crime. Another skeptic was Mrs. Edna Rice, the accused man's estranged wife, who said that Trenor was "a mean devil, but hardly a murderer."

Rice at first said he did not want a lawyer and then retained former Attorney General William A. King as his chief counsel.

"He is shielding some one else," said his brother, Frederick Rice. "I do not intend to let my brother take the rap in defense of some one else."

As we look back on this whole case now it is easy to imagine that Rice might have been arrested and charged with the crime for a purpose far different from what appeared on the surface. To the general public he appeared to be the one suspected person, but was he really suspected in the eyes of Detective Hickey and his associates? Or was he a decoy?

A week passed. Rice stayed in jail. But no warrant had yet been issued for his arrest—he had merely been entered on the police books as held on a murder charge. Also, the inquest had been scheduled for the 6th, but it was mysteriously postponed.

Were the authorities waiting for something to break? Or was the climax all a surprise to them?

The grand jury convened, deliberated twenty-three minutes, and returned a first degree indictment against Rice. That was on the 11th. Mrs. Jackson and Juanita appeared as reluctant witnesses. Hickey was the last witness to be heard and apparently gave the most testimony. He refused to reveal what his testimony had been.

The next day the coroner's inquest opened. Coroner Arthur E. Bill questioned Mrs. Jackson for more than an hour. When the session was over the widow returned to her home, considerably unnerved, with her daughter, a neighbor, Mrs. Ada Andrews, and a policeman who had been assigned to guard the Jackson home. They sat for a while talking over the case. Then——

"Excuse me a moment," said Mrs. Jackson, and she went upstairs.

Juanita, a willowy, black-haired girl, continued chatting with Mrs. Andrews. Half an hour passed.

"I wonder what ma is doing upstairs so long," remarked the daughter.

"I'll go up and see," said Mrs. Andrews.

Mrs. Andrews looked into a couple of rooms and then went to the bathroom. The door was closed but not locked.

The widow lay on the floor of the bath-

Famous Mystery

The Murder of Helene Knabe In Her Ind

BY PHILIP KINSLEY

DR. HELENE KNABE, 35 years old, a woman of fine professional attainments, good character, and beautiful body, was found dead in her bed, her throat cut, on the morning of October 25, 1911, in the Delaware apartments, Indianapolis.

While an effort was made at the time to explain this as a suicide, the case remains as Indiana's greatest unsolved murder mystery. There is nothing in the evidence to preclude murder, while there is much to make the suicide hypothesis untenable.

As murder the case must rank as the work of an intelligent and resourceful person, one who covered his tracks thoroughly, and whose conscience has not led him into weak betrayal or confession during these seventeen and one-half years. It was not a passional crime. The woman was killed because her death meant security for some one else.

The only person ever accused of the crime, Dr. William B. Craig, former dean of the Indiana Veterinary college, was acquitted on instructions of the court because of insufficient evidence to warrant a verdict of guilty. His trial was held two years after the murder. From the record of the case, Judge Alonzo Blair was fully justified in his action. Dr. Craig is still living in Indianapolis. It was not proved that he was at the flat that night or that he had any motive to kill Dr. Knabe.

Thomas R. Marshall, then governor of Indiana and later vice president of the United States, had a real conception of the fine psychological features of this case and advocated the employment of experts who would make a complete study of her life, here and in Germany, and examine particularly into her professional practice and relationships.

"She was murdered," he said at the time. "Assault, revenge, or to keep her from telling something may have been the motive. The history of murders is that there is always something by which the agents of the law can trace the murderer."

This has not proved true in this case.

* * * *

Lew Shank, then mayor of Indianapolis, was keenly interested and worked personally on the case. He had a theory that it might be solved on the basis of abnormality, that there was a love relationship here such as those described in "The Well of Loneliness." Investigation, however, did not support this, and the assault theory was denied by physicians who examined her body as it was found, unclothed, on her bed.

While the authorities, with some exceptions, talked of suicide, the women of Indiana who had known Dr. Knabe and were determined to have her killing investigated thoroughly, raised a fund of $10,000 and employed Harry C. Webster, private detective, who has had charge of work of the Indiana Bankers' association for many years. The Indianapolis Council of Women and Nu Sigma Phi, a medical sorority, were active in this. The Webster investigation led to the Craig trial.

Helene Elise Hermine Knabe was born in Ruegenwaldermunde, Germany, on December 22, 1875. Her father, who was of noble lineage, was separated from her mother and she was taken to a small village, where she worked in the fields and lived with peasants. Her yearning for knowledge was strong. As a girl working in the vineyards she heard of the work of Pasteur. Her cousin, Augusta Knabe, had gone to America, and at the age of 21 Helene, after a long period of saving and preparation, followed her. She came to Indianapolis and entered domestic service in the home of Dr. John Gaston. This was the winter of the terrible Durrant murders in San Francisco and the Luetgert murder case in Chicago.

For several years the girl worked and studied, never losing sight of her goal. She was graduated in liberal arts from Butler university, and in 1904 received her degree from the Indiana Medical college. She was an excellent bacteriologist and pathologist, and in 1908 worked in the laboratories of the state board of health. She resigned to take up private practice, and in 1909 went on the faculty of the Indiana Veterinary college, of which Dr. Craig was dean. She had a fair practice, but felt at times that men physicians were antagonistic to her and were keeping her down. Her practice was clean, and honesty as a physician was one of her outstanding characteristics. At the time of her death she was studying for the position of physical training teacher at the Athenaeum. She was a woman of courage and tenacious purpose to succeed.

Dr. Knabe had lectured before women's clubs and the Y. W. C. A. and had aided in illustrating several medical books. She was particualrly interested in the Pasteur serum work and the study of rabies. At one time she thought she had a specific cure for cancer. Her financial affairs were not prosperous at the time of her death, for her estate showed debts of $158. Two days before her death she had written a letter to a woman friend whom she had planned to entertain during a meeting of women's clubs the following Wednesday.

Dr. Knabe was an athletic woman, with a strong, fine body and delicate hands. She weighed 158 pounds. She lived alone in a bedroom and office suite in flat 2, the old Delaware apartments, on the northeast corner of Delaware and Michigan avenues. She had an office assistant, Kathryn McPherson, a girl who usually went home at night, but occasionally slept with the doctor. The office was a comfortable one in a respectable neighborhood, the windows close to the street. The building still stands and is now known as the Barton hotel.

Miss McPherson and Augusta Knabe, who was always her closest friend, where the last persons, except the murderer, to see Dr. Knabe alive.

They recalled nothing unusual in her life on that day. She had worked as usual, and had seemed in a normal, cheerful mood. Her cousin left her downtown about 6 o'clock. Miss McPherson left her at the office shortly afterwards. She cooked a porterhouse steak for her supper. She had told Miss McPherson that she intended to stay at home and study that evening.

The evidence found in the room next morning shows Dr. Knabe had prepared for bed, probably before midnight. Her clothes were carefully folded over a chair. Her hair had been taken down and the pins and a switch placed on the dresser. She had put on a nightgown and a silk kimono of navy blue and red poppy flowers which had been given to her the previous Christmas by her cousin. This kimono played an important part in the evidence before the grand jury which led to the indictment of Alonzo Ragsdale, undertaker, as an accessory to this crime. The indictment against him was quashed after the Craig acquittal, and he is now dead.

* * * *

It was not known who entered Dr. Knabe's flat after midnight. It was no burglary job, for the windows were closed and the dust on the sills undisturbed. The lock had not been tampered with. Whoever came in must have had a key, or was known to Dr. Knabe, who admitted him. There was no one in the hallways to see. The woman's valuables were not touched, although it was noted as peculiar that there was no correspondence of recent date in her desk. Could it have

ACCUSED

DR. WILLIAM B. CRAIG, at that time dean of the Indiana Veterinary college, was tried for the murder of Dr. Knabe, but was acquitted on instructions of the court. It was not proved that he was in the woman's apartment on the fatal night, or that he had any motive for the killing. He is still living in Indianapolis.

blood stains on the pillow and on the electric light switch near the door. Her left arm hung over the bed and had been gashed slightly. Her right hand and arm were extended upward, the fingers pointing toward her throat, where she had received her death wound.

Her throat had been cut with a long, sharp instrument such as surgeons use, and the cut had been made by a strong hand and by one who had a knowledge of anatomy. The cut was more than three inches wide, and so deep that it almost reached the spinal column. The windpipe had been severed. Death had been instantaneous, and it had occurred at least six hours before the body was found.

The great fact which disposes of the suicide theory is that the knife which had been used was never found.

Another fact is that the cut was made on the right side of the neck. She was a right-handed woman and, if this had been self-inflicted, the cut would have begun on the left.

A third interesting fact is that the mouth and eyes had been closed before rigor mortis set in, as though a man with mortician's knowledge had been there. The right arm, it also appeared, had been raised in an unnatural position at this same time.

Miss McPherson, in great excitement, went to the telephone and began to notify Dr. Knabe's friends. She says she did not touch the body. She called Augusta Knabe first, and the cousin arrived in about half an hour. She tried to get Dr. Craig, but was told he was not at home. She did reach him about 11 o'clock, she said, and told him of the death. He came over to the flat. It is in testimony that an hour before this he had told friends at the college that Dr. Knabe was dead.

Dr. Ernest C. Reyer, Dr. Charles E. Ferguson, and the coroner, Dr. Charles O. Durham, were among the first to arrive. Dr. Durham then and thereafter regarded this as a murder case. There was some discrepancy in the testimony of Miss McPherson and Augusta Knabe as to whether the pillow was on the body when they reached there, or whether Miss Knabe placed it there to hide her cousin's nakedness. The Craig defense sought to show that these two women, for motives of their own, concealed the suicide evidence and hid the knife. This seems a wild theory, with nothing to support it.

What appeared to be a bloody thumb mark was on the pillow. The fingerprint evidence in this case is strangely lacking. There was no post mortem to show whether the woman had been drugged.

Jefferson Haynes, a negro janitor of the building, was one of the first to be questioned. He lived in the basement underneath the Knabe apartment. He said that sometime during the night he was awakened by screams and the sound of something falling to the floor. He thought he heard voices above. As there were several tenants in the building, he did not investigate. At 5:30 o'clock in the morning, when he arose to call his daughter and go to work, he thought he heard some one walking on the floor above. He was a respectable man, an elder in Shiloh Baptist church, and was not suspected.

Mrs. J. W. Smith told the police that many times during July and August she had seen, from her house across the street, a man loitering near the Knabe apartment. He even peered into the window once, she said. She notified the police, and the man did not come any more. He wore a dark suit and dark crushed hat.

Arnod Moore, who lived in the Emmetts flats nearby, saw a man on the night of the murder looking in through the Knabe window. He had a mustache and wore a dark suit and dark crushed hat. He could not identify Craig at the trial.

Harry W. Haskett, a former deputy sheriff of Hamilton county, was passing the Delaware apartments about 11 o'clock that night. At the passageway between the Delaware and Vendome apartments he met a man who walked out hurriedly. He looked at the man when he came in the circle of the street light and described him as about 130 pounds, wearing a long dark overcoat and dark crush hat. He pointed out Craig at the trial as similar in appearance, but was unwilling to identify him as the man. Craig wore glasses at the trial. The man seen on the street did not have glasses.

Dr. Craig was born in Scotland and was 40 years old at this time. He had been a widower for several years and had a daughter, Marion, 14 years old. He had come to Indianapolis at the age of 18. He attended a veterinary school in Toronto and was graduated from the Indiana Medical college in 1893.

He had met Dr. Knabe two years before and had been instrumental in getting her on the faculty of his school. The two often went automobile riding and attended the theater together. Dr. Knabe used to go to the Craig home, and was fond of the daughter. She had a picture of father and daughter in her office. The Sunday before she died she had been at Craig's to return a book he had loaned her. Dr. Craig also had loaned her a small amount of money.

There were stories of a rift between these friends during the spring, but the only evidence of trouble is testimony that Dr. Craig objected to Dr. Knabe's lecture hours being changed from afternoon until morning, and that he lost his temper once over this and told some one to "tell her to go to hell."

There was a good deal of jealousy and rivalry at the college, but it all simmers down to little when examined for a motive for murder. The prosecutors of Dr. Craig offered to show that he had broken an engagement to marry her, that another woman had captured his affections, that Dr. Knabe had even gone so far as to buy her trousseau, that she had pleaded with him and quarreled with him, and had made herself a nuisance to him. But this did not come out in the evidence, except that Dr. Craig had "discussed marriage" with another woman, a Miss Catherine Fleming, of Avon, Ind., and there was nothing but a normal been letters the intruder was after? There were three keys to the place—one held by Miss McPherson, one by Augusta Knabe, and one by the doctor. Dr. Knabe's key was missing from her ring in the morning and was not found until a week later, when detectives discovered it in plain view on the chiffonier which had been searched many times before. Some one had taken her key and had put it back.

Miss McPherson was the first to enter the room in the morning. She came at 8:15 o'clock, as usual. The door opened with unusual ease, she thought. She walked into the reception room and, looking into the bedroom, saw her employer dead on the bed. The curtains were down, with the exception of one, which was raised about a foot. One light was burning in the chandelier. The room bore signs of a struggle. One of Dr. Knabe's slippers was near the bathroom, another close to the bed. The rug had been disarranged.

Dr. Knabe usually slept with her head at the foot of the bed. This morning her head was pushed down under the steel bar at the head. She was in her nightgown, which was pushed up above her breast. There were flecks of blood on her hands, blood on her left thigh, and on the floor. There were great war; as luck would have it, the one vying with the other, each had been wholly refitted in 1914—this at prodigious expense which the custom, sure to be attracted, was to defray; instead of increasing their custom, the black years which followed had taken even that which they had and had brought them both to ruin, so that one was now the war office and the other had been turned into flats. There were inns, he said, for the peasants, but at these we should find no bedding nor so much as a private room, and though there was always the monastery, the discipline there was a by-word, and at nine o'clock of the evening the doors were shut.

This unexpected setback disordered our simple plans, for, our personal comfort apart, we were especially anxious not to attract attention and had to that end decided to make no use of the car, but to lay her up in some garage until we should need her again. Now, however, it seemed that since there was no room in Vigil we should have to leave the city and put up at some country inn and—what was far worse—go to and fro daily, because the grand duchess was expecting that I should be within call. The more I considered such a shift the less I liked it, and I was wondering desperately whether we could find a house agent and hire some flat or apartment for two or three weeks, when the landlord who had left us staring, came back and ventured to ask us whether we were proposing to make some considerable stay.

George shrugged his shoulders.

"Man proposes, but Vigil disposes," he said. "How the devil can we stay in a city which harbors no guests?"

The man nodded over his shoulder.

"Sir," said he, "a particular friend of mine has this moment come in. He is butler to a gentleman who has a very fine flat. His wife is the cook. His master is away just now, and the flat is to let."

"By all means produce him," said George.

The man was quiet to look at and well behaved. When we asked if the flat had been placed in some agent's hands, he replied that his master had left the matter to him, because there was but one agent and him he disliked. He had, he said, full authority, provided that he and his wife remained as butler and cook and the rent was paid in advance, a month at a time.

The tale was easy to tell and I think we both suspected that here was a faithless servant betraying a master's trust, but for what it was worth we decided to see the flat and hailing a passing taxi we drove there at once.

The flat was upon the ground floor of a fine, three-storied mansion which rose upon the bank of the river within its own ground. By its side stood a big garage, divided like the house, into three, one-third, as the butler vouchsafed, belonged to each of the flats. Though it had not been built as a flat, the apartment was most convenient and made our rooms at Salzburg seem very rough. It was well and comfortably furnished with a lot of leather and oak and some very pleasant etchings hung on the walls.

When we asked what was the rent the servant named a figure which seemed to us fair, and indeed, we would have paid more, for the place was just what we wanted and there were a butler and cook to take the cares of housekeeping out of our hands; but though we were ready to agree, we could not help thinking of Maintenance and how we should blame a stranger that accepted the word of our servants that he could make use of our home.

While we were hesitating the butler divined our thoughts and speaking very civilly suggested that we should visit the Riechtenburg bank, "for," said he, "that is my master's bank, and any one there will tell you that I have authority to act upon his behalf."

That was enough for us, and George sat down at a table and drew up a rough agreement which the three of us signed, and though we had not enough money to pay a month's rent then and there, the butler said that that did not matter and asked if he should serve dinner at eight o'clock.

I will not dwell on our good fortune, for I think it speaks for itself; but I must confess that it lifted a weight from my mind, for it is one thing to commit a friend to a thankless venture, but another to condemn him to discomfort which the giving up of your venture would automatically relieve.

We then returned to the garage where we had left the car and gave the servants the orders which we had composed.

Rowley was to leave for Salzburg to fetch our luggage at once. Traveling by train he would be back at Vigil at five the next day. Bell was to take a note to the grand duchess—addressed, of course, to the house at which he had set her down and containing a sheet of the notepaper which we had found in the flat—and when it was dark to bring the car to its garage and then report to us that this had been done.

By the time we were back in the flat it was half past four, and within five minutes I was asleep in a loggia which was overlooking the river and might have been a pleasance of Morpheus himself.

It was ten o'clock that evening before Bell came to report.

As he entered the room the bell of the telephone rang.

It was the grand duchess speaking.

"Listen," she said. "How soon will you have your things?"

"Tomorrow," said I, "in the course of the afternoon."

"Then will you both dine with me—tomorrow at nine o'clock? Or do you never dine?"

"If you please," said I, "we should like to break our rule."

"Good night," said the grand duchess, and put her receiver back.

When I had told George Hanbury I turned to Bell.

"Everything all right?" I said.

"Yes, sir," he said. "The car's under lock and key."

"Well, you turn in," said I. "You've earned your rest."

"Very good, sir," said Bell. He hesitated. "If I should hear any movements am I to let you know?"

George and I looked at him.

"Any movements?" said George, laying his paper down.

"Such as a car, sir," said Bell. "I mean, if Major Grieg wants to he could be here before dawn."

"But why should he want to?" said I. "Besides, if he did, for the moment we've covered our tracks."

Bell looked from me to George. Then he moistened his lips.

"Excuse me, sir," he said, "but I thought you must know. Major Grieg has the flat above this. I carried his letters upstairs five minutes ago."

* * * *

At ten minutes to nine the next evening George and I mounted the steps of a house in the Lessing Strasse, a short, quiet street, full of lime trees, and running down to the river, not far from the palace itself.

Before we had time to ring the door was opened and we were presently ushered into a high pitched salon, well and delicately furnished after the style of Louis XVI.

The grand duchess rose to greet us, looking more lovely than ever, so very white were her shoulders and so shapely her slim, bare arms.

At once she introduced us to the Countess Dresden of Salm, "who is really your hostess," she said, "for you will eat her dinner and this is her house; but she lets me call it my party, because she has always spoiled me, ever since I was her bridesmaid six years ago."

The countess laughed.

"How many people in Vigil," she said, "would jump at the chance?"

She was young and very good looking and had a most charming smile, and I set her down at once as the wife of some high official, accustomed to entertaining and to playing a gracious part.

"There's one other guest," said the grand duchess, "and that is a man; but he very much wants to meet you and thank you for all you've done. He's the lord president of the council and almost the only courtier we really trust. You see I hide nothing from you and I want you to know where we stand. His name is Sully—the Baron Sully, if you like."

Here the door was opened and the man of whom she was speaking was ushered into the room.

It was our sometime tutor.

I looked round dazedly.

Madame Dresden was openly laughing, and the grand duchess was smiling at Hanbury, who was standing with his mouth open and a hand to his head.

Sully greeted the ladies. Then he laid his hands on our shoulders and held us fast.

"I am told," he said, "that your German does me credit; that you both speak fluently, Hanbury with a fine carelessness, and Chandos with a rugged sincerity which knows no law."

"O, what a shame!" cried the grand duchess. "And I never put it like that."

But we were all laughing, for the description was as faithful as witty, as all of us knew.

Not until dinner was over was reference made to the matters which had led us to Riechtenburg.

Then the grand duchess looked at Sully, who sat on her right.

"How is the prince?" she said.

"He is like the master of a ship, your highness, in waters in which no ship can live. He carries on according to the best traditions, but the next big wave will be the end of him. Till then—well, he held a council this afternoon."

"And Johann?"

"Duke Johann gives rise to anxiety. As you know, he is colonel-in-chief of the Black Hussars. As such, he must do duty with them for one month in each year. Well, he has selected this month. Whilst we were talking yesterday the matter was being rushed through. It appeared in orders last night, and this morning he took up his command. He is on duty now—at the palace."

"At the palace?" cried the countess.

"At the palace," said Sully. "Today is the first of July. Today at noon the Black Hussars were due to relieve the Grays. They will be there until September, when they in their turn will be relieved."

Th grand duchess set down her glass.

"He commands the Praetorian guard."

"I hope not," said Sully. "But every soldier in and about the palace will normally do as he says."

The grand duchess drew in her breath.

"It's an ace of war, Baron."

Sully raised his eyebrows.

"Unhappily, your Highness, that is a matter of opinion. We consider it such. But one paper says, 'In view of H. R. H.'s disposition, Duke Johann's decision to command his regiment during its arduous term of duty as body guard is a particularly graceful act.'"

"He's very clever," said my lady musingly. "What can we do?"

"Not very much," said Sully. "Sahreb has been told to go sick and Kneller has been wired for to take his place."

"As lord in waiting?"

"Yes. But Kneller is a general upon the active list. He is, therefore, the duke's superior officer and could, for instance, put him under arrest."

I think we all started, for Sully was not the man to use such words lightly, and violence of any sort was foreign to his soul.

"Does the prince know?" said the countess.

Sully nodded.

"When I told H. R. H., he laughed. 'Wheresoever the carcase is,' he said. Then he sent for Duke Johann and thanked him heartily. 'I am much touched, Johann. On your last day of duty, I shall be photographed with the field officers of the guard. Sully, you will remind me.' The duke did what he could to express his thanks. When he was gone, the prince laughed till he coughed. Nothing will make him believe that his hour is at hand."

There was a little silence.

Then—

"Grieg has resigned his commission," continued Sully. "At least the Gazette says so, and I don't imagine he'll say the Gazette is wrong. I'd have liked to put him out of the country, but he wouldn't take that lying down."

"I'm disappointed," said the grand duchess. "Grieg ought to be broken—and to drag Johann down in his fall."

"That is a scandal," said Sully, "which I would cheerfully face. But a charge of treason is a very high explosive, and, as such, we cannot use it, except to shatter the duke. And we've no evidence against him."

"Grieg?"

"Never," said Sully. "And all the hope he has is in Prince Johann."

"And the others the same?"

"Undoubtedly," said Sully. "Besides, their bare word would be useless. And so would Grieg's. And I hardly think it likely that they have their orders in writing for what they have done."

"Not their orders," said George. "We all looked at him. "But Grieg's not the man to risk being double crossed. I don't know about the others, but I'll bet he's got some writing which Duke Johann will have to redeem if he comes to the throne."

The grand duchess returned to Sully.

"Mr. Hanbury's right," she said. "Grieg would never trust Johann. What's more, scandal or no, Grieg ought to be under arrest."

I confess I agreed with her. Grieg had received his sentence, and—a man may as well be hanged for a sheep as a lamb. What was still more to the point, if Johann came to the throne, the sentence would be revoked.

Sully looked very grave.

"The inevitable court martial, Your Highness, would have been momentous. Counsel would have been engaged; Duke Paul would have had to appear. It was felt that it would be improper to subject His Highness Duke Paul to such an ordeal."

"Ah," said the grand duchess softly, and that was all.

Her little exclamation showed me the truth.

Court martial Grieg, and Duke Paul must be cross-examined. That was a prospect his supporters dared not face.

The horrid irony of the business filled my mind. At every turn it was Duke Paul himself that put a spoke in his wheel. Great hearts were fighting his battle—with the man and all his works like a millstone about their necks.

"Still," said Sully, "I am hoping that Grieg is an empty gun—a gun that has been fired and cannot, lest it burst in the hand, be fired again. Meanwhile, I am very thankful that Your Highness is here. Since the news became known, there has been a marked rush to book seats for Wednesday night."

The grand duchess turned to me.

"It is the prince's birthday, and a gala performance will be given in the opera house. Tosca. Paul and I have got to be on parade."

"Such parades," said Sully, "are invaluable. I trust you will persuade his highness to appear with you tomorrow at the polo and on Tuesday at the fete of St. Anatole."

The grand duchess raised her eyebrows.

"I'll do what I can," she said.

Then she glanced at the countess and the five of us rose.

When the door had closed behind the two women, Sully returned to the table and lighted a cigaret.

"I became your tutor," he said, "when Duke Paul's father had renounced his right to the throne. I felt very strongly that his renunciation should not be accepted, that every effort should be made to induce him to think again. But the prince was angry, very naturally very angry. A man, he said, that put his hand to the plow and then looked back was not fit for the kingdom of man. When I opposed him, he told me to take the same road. . . . Perhaps he was right. No one will ever know that. But, when he fell sick, he recalled me. As you know, I left you and came. 'Why did you oppose me?' he said. I told him because I had mistrusted the Duke Johann."

"You saw further," said George.

"In politics," said Sully, "there are two kinds of sight—near sight and long sight. Neither is satisfactory. The prince has one and I have the other, and heaven only knows which is the best. At the present moment I wish that I had his eyes, for I cannot see my way clearly, and he, as I have told you, has his fast shut."

George looked at me over the rim of his glass.

"Sister Anne, what do you see?"

"The palace guard," said I, "must be changed."

"That," said Sully, "is impossible."

"Then the prince must be moved."

"The physicians are against it," said Sully, "and the prince himself would refuse."

"Then," said I, "the prince must contrive to live until August the first."

"And I'll back the lady," said George. "Duke Paul must be dummy, and the grand duchess play the hands. Out and about the place from morning to night. The theater,

Selecting the Right Camp

Swimming, Racing, Baseball and Horseback Riding at Camp.

Parents Should Select the Camp Having a Director Best Suited to Develop Their Boys, One In Which Companions Would Be Most Congenial. Many Camps Are Over-Equipped and Are Not the Best Ones at Which to Obtain Maximum Benefits

BY MRS. HAROLD (COACH) BARRON

SINCE the popularity of summer camps has grown so rapidly, the educators and psychologists have studied this modern form of recreation. Their reports have been so favorable that the leading directors of education have advised parents to send their children to camp during the summer vacation.

The many thousands of camps are constantly inviting boys to join their happy group. One of the greatest problems confronting parents is: which is the best camp for our boy?

Every camp draws its character from the individuality of the director and his staff. When you find a genial, cultured gentleman, who has carefully selected a very capable staff—naturally, a very successful camp results. Most of the camp directors are of this type, who, in addition, have had the experience and executive ability to supervise the many activities of camp life. The personality of the camp is richer and larger because he is a part of it. Most of the camp directors realize that health is both mental and physical. Then, too, the moral influence is second to none.

It is always advisable for parents to select a camp in which the boy would become a happy members. Nothing is worse than an individual who for some reason, does not get what his parents hoped he would get out of the summer's camping experience. Very often a child is enrolled in the wrong camp. I have seen this happen in many camps. They are what we term misfits. The fault was neither in the camp nor the camper.

Well-meaning parents are either too quick to enroll the boy with the first eloquent camp representative, or they are carried off by some unusual attraction offered by an over-equipped camp. The most important feature of any camp should be one of character development. Individual pleasure is often stressed and, naturally, is more appealing to the growing boy. Just as a circus appeals more to the boy than school, so is an elaborate camp more attractive than one whose aim is to develop character as well as to entertain. Boys wish to attend camp with their pals—sometimes this desire is laudable—while in many cases, the separation from one's playmates is beneficial. When the little friends dominate or retard a boy's development, a new environment which offers more desirable friends is, of course, the better plan.

Ed and Al may be congenial but are they as well developed as Bill or Jim? Perhaps the combination of Ed, Al, Bill and Jim would help to bring out dormant qualities or repress undesirable characteristics. Very often a boy's friends are determined by the boys in the neighborhood in which he lives, or students of the school which he attends. This condition is as unfortunate as the "social clique" which is now becoming obsolete in sensible, democratic society.

A camp director selects boys of good character from respectable families, if he wishes his camp to exhibit a personality. It is his privilege to be as particular about the boy's family and home conditions, as it is for the parents to investigate his reputation. This selection results in a large group of boys who should be congenial and helpful. To live with boys whose parents have had the same standards of life, but with different ideas of maintaining them, is a very desirable feature of camp life.

Under the sympathetic guidance of the director, the campers easily exclude undesirable characteristics in camp environment because the society of other boys requires it. Really, it is remarkable how much the summer camp can accomplish during its short term of eight weeks. Many timid boys gain confidence, and the forward child admires modesty.

This was well illustrated on the return of one timid boy, who had been sent to camp with the parent's hope that as well as spending a happy vacation, he would gain a little confidence.

"I'd like to see anyone who'll call me sissy now, mother," were Johnny's first words as he stepped off the train that was returning him and a carfull of other boys after two months at camp. Johnny would never have been mistaken for an athlete, but he had a smile that you liked, and you knew that here was one little timid boy who had returned quite a little man. The mother burst into tears of joy upon seeing him, and the father hugged him close and glanced up the track as he winked very hard to keep back the mist that came to his eyes.

Johnny had been "too young" when an educator had suggested that he would learn more that would help him to progress into the life of reality at camp than he could learn elsewhere at such little pain to himself and the family. He went to camp with much misgivings on the part of his mother. Johnny didn't know about vitamins when he went to camp and knew only a little more when he returned. yet he did know that a big football player counselor told him that all athletes ate different kinds of vegetables with other food because he said, "Just as an automobile needs gas and water and oil, we need different kinds of food to make us run along in the best speed."

He had never heard at camp about "formation of correct habit systems," but he knew that MEN had to pitch in and help out in clearing up the tent, and had to be a good sport when the team lost. Johnny wouldn't have been able to explain what self-reliance meant—but he knew that the director, when talking to them around the campfire, had told them that each one was able to do certain things better than others and that all of them must always be trying to discover just what he liked best to do.

Atlanta is very fortunate in having a number of camps representatives from North Georgia, North Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia. Parents who'll take the time to interview these educators will surely be able to place their boy in the right camp. The problem is to find the director who might best serve your boy.

Things New and Old About the Bible

BY REV. W. P. KING

"MORALITY IN THE MAKING." By Roy E. Whitney. New York. The Macmillan company. Price $1.50.

This is a thought-provoking book and well repays a careful reading. The author assumes the viewpoint of modern scientific evolution and of modern psychology.

WILLIAM P. KING
Book Editor and Editor of
THE METHODIST QUARTERLY REVIEW
Nashville, Tenn.

According to the author a moral act involves the consideration of the approval or disapproval of the actor or of some one else. We are moral, because of the inescapable desire for approval. Experience has created in us the powerful desire which makes us moral.

Desire has its origin in the reaction of our organisms to pleasurable experience. The three fundamental desires are the desire for food, the desire for skin comfort, and the desire for sex satisfaction. Related to these is the fourth desire, the desire for approval, out of which our morality springs.

The contention is made that morality is natural, and that nature is so constituted in its impartial and exacting laws as to make morality possible. The writer discusses in an unusual and interesting way the place of man's will in the attainment of morality. The individual is beset by opposing desires. The desire that should prevail is the desire for approval. Confronting a moral emergency the man is to throw the weight of his choice alongside the energy that is released by his desire for approval. The man thus becomes responsible for his acts and is justly held so by society. We are under obligation to throw into the scales of our motivation the force of our approval or disapproval.

The power of influence is based on the possible satisfiers which we are able to bring to the consciousness of another.

Some of the apparent defects of this treatise is that which the author expresses his devotion to facts, at the same time he fails to reckon with all the facts that have to do with the making of morality.

We are convinced that a writer should not deal cantingly in religious phraseology. The author used the word God only one time more than the Book of Esther, and it is then used as a synonym of nature or human nature. Now if we are to place any sort of reliance upon human consciousness, we must reckon with the God-consciousness in the general run of normal human beings. It is not the verdict of this normal human consciousness that the divine approval plays and has through the different stages of human development constantly played a large and undeniable part in the determination of human morality and conduct. It is evidently a very serious omission to attempt to give the origin and growth of morality, and ignore the function of the religious motive.

In words that are not affected or weakened by modern knowledge St. Paul gives the true philosophy of human conduct and morality. "But with me it is a very small thing that I should be judge of you, or of man's judgment; yea, I judge not mine own self. For although I know nothing against myself, yet am I not hereby justified; but he that judgeth me is the Lord."

This is said with the admission that much of the analysis of the motives of human morality are true and illuminating, but that the author fails to recognize some of the major facts of human life and consciousness.

AN ANTHOLOGY OF RECENT PHILOSOPHY. By Daniel Sommer Robinson. New York. Thomas Y. Crowell Co. Price $4.

This new volume will prove invaluable to the student, who wishes to enter into some sort of understanding and discrimination of the varied types of philosophy. Every possible theory has its serious defenders. The fact that some of these theories contradict the common verdict and the commonsense of humanity does not discourage the advocates.

"No one in practice treats himself or his fellowmen or his pet animals as machines, but scientists who have never made a study of Speculative Philosophy seem often to think it their duty to hold in theory what no one outside a lunatic asylum would accept in practice."

At our present stage there is a bewildering confusion and conflict of scientific and philosophical beliefs. Many cherished dogmas have been cast into the cemetery of dead infallibilities. Out of the clash of opinions, let us hope that we are at last to receive light. It may be some time before we are able to accept Einstein that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points, or to hold with Dr. John B. Watson that heredity is a very minor item in determining character, and that environment is everything. Some of the contributors to the volume would fasten upon us an inescapable fatalism while others hold that science and all knowledge are achievements of freedom, and that freedom is a necessary presupposition of any valid thinking. We have set forth vitalism and mechanism, idealism in the form of Spiritual Pluralism and Absolute Idealism, Realism in the form of Critical Realism, and the New Realism, Pragmatism, Agnosticism, Skepticism, Positivism, and the New Scholasticism.

A few of the illustrious names are William James, Will Durant, W. E. Hocking, John Dewey, S. Radhakrishnan, James Ward, B. P. Bowne, Henri Bergson, Josiah Royce, F. H. Bradley, Bertrand Russell, J. B. Pratt, F. C. S. Schiller, H. A. Overstreet, E. S. Ames, D. S. Robinson and James H. Ryan.

PERSONAL POWER. By William L. Stidger, D. D. Garden City, N. Y. Doubleday Doran & Co. Price $2.

Dr. Stidger is at present Professor of Pastoral Science, Boston university.

It is not difficult to imagine that this dynamic personality is slightly restive out of the active pastorate.

In his various pastorates, standing room was at a premium for the late comers. But as a teacher of preachers, it is possible that his influence may be widened.

Dr. Stidger testifies that his Dramatic Book Sermons are the most popular and helpful field for sermonizing into which he has entered. The sermons of this volume enter the realm of psychology.

The book is divided into four sections: Sources of Power, Fear and Faith, Discipline, and Goals.

While he draws on the books of different authors for the main ideas of his sermons, at the same time he exercises the penetrating insight which sets forth in cleanness the primary truth which he would drive home to the hearts of his hearers. The author's own comment and illustrations are refreshing interludes.

The entire volume is rich in sermon values. There is enumeration and discussion of the instincts; the instinct of self-preservation, the reproductive instinct, the gregarious instinct, the combative instinct, the maternal instinct, the instinct of anger, and the instinct of religion.

The various fear complexes work havoc in life; fear of disease, fear of poverty, superstitious fears, business fears, social fears, domestic fears, fear of water, fear of shut-in places, fear of great open spaces, inferiority fears, fear of defeat, fears arising out of ignorance, fear of death, and religious fears.

The author sets forth the remedies for fear.

Preachers will find most helpful suggestions for his people on "Growth," "Self-Control," "Faith," "Power," "Habit," "The Home" and "The Child."

The volume will further serve the useful purpose of inciting the reader to lay hold of the books of the noted authors who are enumerated in the "Introduction."

The pastor will discern the possibility of arousing the flagging energies and the sagging attendance of hearers at his evening services.

There are psychologists whose theories are devitalizing and paralyzing to the higher energies of the soul.

The psychologists of good repute, quoted in this volume are invigorating and life-giving.

Return of Edmund Davey

the crank and press the button. So he took a .38 caliber rod——"

"Rod is pistol," interposed McGlone.

"——and set it in the box and tied the trigger to the racket on the ringer—you can look inside and see just how easy I done it with my own rod. Then he bored a hole in the front to set the muzzle in and so's he could patch it up with a new plug afterwards and not leave a big splintered place that'd show. Mr. Ellery suspicioned something wrong with the telephone—I don't know how he found out——"

"I couldn't make out why my uncle hadn't telephoned," supplied Ellery.

"Exactly," continued Slim. "You suspicioned something phoney about the box, but I come on you before you had a chance to find the plugged hole."

"One moment," broke in Herrick. "How do you know Davey was killed here?"

"I looked in his clothes and found a few slivers of black walnut that come from the twin of this black walnut plug. They's black walnut splinters in Mr. Munn's vest right now. Anything else?"

A deep sigh ran through the room.

"Then he figured his time alibi to the last minute. He made the date to meet his partner here, just like he'd often done before—but never meaning to keep it. When he calculated his partner has started he calls up the big house and has the butler call Davey at this shack. That does two things. It makes the butler certain Mr. Davey is starting home, so no one thinks of searching the shack until the next day, and it makes Mr. Davey kill himself when he tries to call New York."

"What if I'd walked all the way to the cabin with my uncle?" demanded Ellery.

"Not likely when your uncle was going to a private conference. Hadn't you left him just the same way several other times? And even then—even if you'd seen him killed—it might have been done by any one. With Munn's alibi, you couldn't pin it on him."

"How can you now?" It was Munn speaking.

"We'll come to that later. Well, then Mr. Munn, he comes down to the big house, bringing Mr. Herrick with him so's he'd never be alone a minute. Everything is perfectly regular, and he does what everybody else does and always with some one else—until every one starts separately to hunt—which is sensible because more territory can be covered. He's pretty certain no one will go to the cabin, because of Mr. Davey having said he was leaving. So he comes straight here and finds his partner shot through the heart as per program. He takes the rod out of the box, puts things in order, and corks up the muzzle hole with the plug which he had all ready.

"Then he gets to work on the body. He hadn't figured on any blood on the floor. But he's a smart guy at that. He wipes up all he can and burns the rags. Then he pours kerosene on the stain you see there and lets is burn a while. He shifts that hanging lamp so it is right over the burned stain and looks like the lamp drip had caught fire accidental. There's the old hook hole in the middle rafter, and the new hook in the next one. There's the kerosene can in the corner by the woodbox.

"Next he puts on his gloves, picks up the body, and carries it to the picnic ground on the little hill over here where he has his balloon——"

"Balloon!" there was an astonished chorus.

"Yes—a pocket sized balloon of thin silk with a light basket not much bigger 'n a flower vase. But it held four hundred feet of gas and would float a man twenty-four hours. Maybe you read about it in the papers? Belonged to a guy living four miles from here. He flew to the Adirondacks with it, packed it into the basket, and carried it to the nearest town on his back. Mr. Munn stole it from this guy and sent it off that night with Mr. Davey's body in it. You can see the stakes where he tied it down while he was filling it with gas. I ain't located the empty gas tanks—but likely we'll find 'em in the bottom of the bay."

"But it might have landed anywhere," objected Herrick.

"Not a chance. Mr. Munn, he followed the weather reports and picked his time. On the day of the killing he called up the weather bureau from Ludwig's cigar stand in his own building. They told him strong northwest winds for thirty-six hours—and long before that the balloon and body would be away out to sea and way under water."

"But he didn't figure on an unseasonable thunderstorm and a gale from the sea that brought the balloon back the next afternoon," commented McGlone.

"No," continued Slim, "and he didn't figure on his dead partner flying crazy-like up the bay and trying to get into his own office. And he didn't figure on the balloon basket banging and scraping against the building and leaving sand from the picnic ground on Mr. Ellery's window sill just like it did on his own. He brushed that off, but he didn't think to look at the next window, nor at the window tops on the floor below. And he didn't figure on his window getting all dark like with the balloon and the body bobbing at him through the glass. And he didn't figure on losing his nerve and screaming and throwing up the window and pushing crazy-like at the body 'til it tipped out of the basket and the balloon shot up and away. Wot was it you heard Mr. Munn call out to you that day, Miss Auerbach?"

"I—I—don't really remember. It was something like 'My God—Miss Auerbach!'"

"Yeah—p'raps. But can you say for sure it wasn't 'My God—you're back'?"

"It's all mad—all circumstantial," Munn said huskily. "No witnesses, no guilty act on my part."

"No?" queried Slim slowly. "How about just now, when you dropped your keys and picked up the plug I'd left for you on the floor and put it back in the hole? Tell it to the judge!"

McGlone arose and beckoned to Hermann.

"I've certainly got to hand it to you, Slim," he said. "We'll take him up with us in my car. The chief will want to see you—he'll be ready to give you the whole office."

"Never mind the office, mister. What I want is you should remember them other two indictments."

BY MARK HELLINGER

NOW that the summer season has rolled around, it becomes necessary to turn the column's attention to the great American sport of "going to a roadhouse." When Sunday night happens along, "going to a roadhouse" becomes a serious business with many people. It is really a much more important thing than it appears on the surface.

Personally, we wouldn't give you a dime for most of the roadhouses in America, even if they were wrapped up nicely and tied with a pink ribbon. We enjoy the Pavillion Royal, out on the Merrick road, and we found Woodmansten inn, where Vincent Lopez held forth last year, a highly satisfactory spot. In the main, however, roadhouses are pretty pesty things.

Of a recent evening they dragged us to a roadhouse. And just to show you how truly important these roadhouse parties are in the scheme of things, permit us to give you a rough idea of the night in question.

You'll begin to understand what great fun we Broadway columnists really have.

* * * *

It was around 6 o'clock in the evening when we arrived at our host's home. We hadn't breakfasted yet, and there was a knawing sensation in the pit of our stomach. In other words, we were hungry.

The host clapped us on the back.

"Hello, old boy," he cried. "Glad to see you. Meet Miss Jones, Miss Smith and Miss Scram. You know, Mr. Martin and Mr. Scott, don't you? Good. Sit down, old boy, and make yourself at home."

We sat down and made ourself at home—whatever that means.

For half an hour or so, the air was filled with small talk. Nobody mentioned anything about dinner.

"Yes, siree," the host was saying to no one in particular, "I bought American Rubber and Cement at 61 and held it until it hit 61 3-8. Took a nice profit on that, even though my broker urged me to sell.

"When the market opens tomorrow, I'm going to buy in quite a lot of Bulgarian Operation, preferred. Got a hot tip on that one from Sam Marcus, who knows a fellow who knows Otto Kahn. Fine fellow, Sam Marcus. Know him, Mr. Hellinger?"

"Is that the fellow that runs a restaurant?" we asked hopefully.

The host didn't take the hint.

"No, no," he responded impatiently. "Marcus is a fellow who knows a fellow who knows Otto Kahn. Fine fellow, Sam is. You ought to meet him. He's the man that gave me the tip on Kennedy Surgical Implements, Limited."

"My goodness," we drowsed. "You don't say so!"

We turned from him in desperation and joined the ladies. They were talking, too. It was with a sense of relief that we realized they were not stocks.

"Yes," said the little lady who had been introduced as Miss Smith, "I had heard about the sale so I got up early in the morning and went right over. Sit down, Mr. Hellinger. Right over here. We're talking about a gown sale over at Ginsberg's. Do you know old man Ginsberg, Mr. Hellinger?"

"The fellow," we murmured tiredly, "that runs the restaurant?"

"Oh, no," was the inevitable answer, "this is Ginsberg, the gown man. You must know him. He goes to all the opening nights and speakeasies and things. Terrible flirt, he is. Would you believe it, my dears, he hadn't shown me more than five gowns when he sent the model out of the room and tried to kiss me.

"Imagine his nerve! Why he must be 65, if he's a day. So after he had kissed me three or four times, I pushed him away.

"'Why, Mr. Ginsberg,' I said. 'I'm surprised at you. And me a friend of your daughter, too! Just because I'm in the theatrical business doesn't mean that you can take such liberties with me. I'm really surprised at you!'

"Well, my dears, you should have seen how polite he was after I gave him that piece of my mind. He didn't try to kiss me more than once or twice more—and when I finally picked the gown I wanted, he gave me a 10 per cent discount! Imagine that. I just know he lost money.

"Wait, my dears, until you see that new gown. Will you be jealous? My goodness! It's cut like this and this and this. The neck is cut like this and this and this. Then it has a slenderizing effect around here and just a suggestion of a bow right here. It's rounded off about here and the entire ensemble is trimmed with point lace.

"I just adore point lace. Don't you, Mr. Hellinger?"

We looked at the lady through tired eyes.

"You mean the fellow," we asked, "that runs the restaurant?"

* * * *

At 7 o'clock, the host took us to another room and showed us the baby. A fat little fellow, the kid was.

Yes, Peggy Joyce was present at the roadhouse your correspondent describes.

Above, Rudy Vallee, who certainly has the ladies daffy over him.

Right, E. Ray Goetz, who was the amazing Peggy Joyce's companion at a roadhouse table.

"Yes, sir," chirped the host, "that's little Roscoe. Chubby, isn't he? I should say so. Eat? Good Lord—but that boy can eat! He's the hungriest little fellow you ever did see."

We deliberated whether to inform the host that if he didn't bring some dinner along pretty soon, we'd probably eat the baby. At that moment, the baby raised a chubby finger and stuck it in our eye.

"Ha, ha," laughed the host, "that's my little man's way of showing you that he likes you. Whenever he does that, Mr. Hellinger, I know he likes a person. He's a wonderful little fellow, my Roscoe. Maybe he'll grow up to be like you, Mr. Hellinger. Maybe he'll be a columnist."

"We hope so," we muttered to ourself as we caressed our injured optic. "It will serve him right."

At 7:30, we decided that we could stand it no longer. We had just about made up our mind to grab our hat and run like the devil when the host glanced at his watch.

"Well, well," he well-welled, "it's getting to be time for dinner. Where shall we go?"

We leaped to our feet. As we did, the women all spoke at once.

"Oooh," they all yodeled, "let's go over to Rudy Vallee's place."

We sank back in our chair. That guy, Vallee, is getting on our nerves. Just what he has that makes the women so daffy about him is beyond our comprehension. He has a tricky little voice and a nice personality—but one grows tired of that combination. At least, we do.

In all our experience, we have never seen a man raise such particular havoc among the damsels. He has women of 50 bouncing around as though they were 15. Compared with Vallee, the late Rudolph Valentino was a Ben Turpin.

"I've got a better idea," cried the host. "Let's drive out somewhere and have dinner on the road!"

We tried to protest, but it was no use. The host had made up our minds for us. We knew that it would be at least another hour before food was served—perhaps longer. We walked to the window and peered out.

"Say," we asserted happily, "look there. It looks as though it were going to rain. Getting a bit black out. Look at those clouds. Maybe we ought to stay in New York and have dinner."

The host clapped us on the back. He was one of the best backclappers we had ever met.

"Don't be silly, old boy. Nice ride into the country will be good for you. Plenty of room in the car for all of us. Nice little ride will be just the thing. It will help you to work up an appetite."

Some fifteen minutes later we were on our way.

* * * *

We had chosen the seat next to the chauffeur. The rest of the party had clambered into the back. The chauffeur was a cheerful sort of a guy with a look of health that was positively disgusting.

"Looks like we'll have quite a long ride," was the way he opened the conversation. "Road ought to be pretty crowded right now. Lucky if we get there before 9:30."

We nodded unhappily.

"I was wise," he continued. "I packed in a swell dinner just before we started. Yes, sir. Had a good plate of soup and a fine, juicy steak smothered with onions. I love a good steak, don't you?"

We sighed. At that time, we were getting too weak to do anything else. After riding about ten minutes, just to make our happiness complete, it began to rain.

This was no ordinary rain. There was thunder and lightning and a veritable deluge of water. Sitting in the front as we were, we were getting the full benefit of the downpour. Suddenly the host poked his dome through the window.

"Getting wet, old boy?" he inquired.

There's no use of boring you with the remaining details of that horrible ride. Drenched to the skin, cold and miserable, we huddled close to the chauffeur as he discussed new brake linings, food and how dangerous that road was on rainy days.

At exactly 9:20, we pulled up to the roadhouse.

* * * *

The place was jammed. We had hoped that our host might take us to the Pavillion Royal, where the food is really excellent and Paul Whiteman's orchestra entertains. But no. Our host had brought us to a new place. He would.

They finally found us a table on the dance floor. One of those tables, you know, where the dancers poke their elbows into your ginger ale and four out of five try to see which can step the hardest on your corns: Lovely.

After all, however, we were finally settled. That was something. Food was now but a matter of minutes. The waiter came over, his pencil poised.

"What's the best thing on the menu?" we asked him. "Something that's ready."

"Duckling," he responded shortly. "It's very good."

"Nope," we countered. "No duck. Don't like it. What else have you?"

He looked at us as though we were Lon Chaney.

"You ought to take the duckling, sir. It's honestly very fine."

We gritted out teeth.

"I'm telling you," we said, "that I don't want any duck. Get me. I DON'T WANT DUCK! What else can I have?"

He glanced over the menu. Meanwhile, the rest of the party had agreed that they wanted duck. Finally the waiter shrugged his shoulders.

"I'll see the head waiter," he offered. And he walked away.

Five minutes later he was back.

"I asked the head waiter," he cried, "what other dish to offer you. He says that the best thing on the menu is the duckling."

We sagged in our chair.

"It's no use," we breathed. "It's absolutely no use. All right, get me the duckling. But for God's sake, make it snappy."

The waiter marched away with an air of triumph.

* * * *

We glanced at our watch. That damned waiter had been gone for fully ten minutes. Our stomach was crying for help.

From out of the crowd our waiter appeared. To our consternation, he was empty handed. He looked down at us.

"I'm sorry, sir," he grunted, "there's no more duckling."

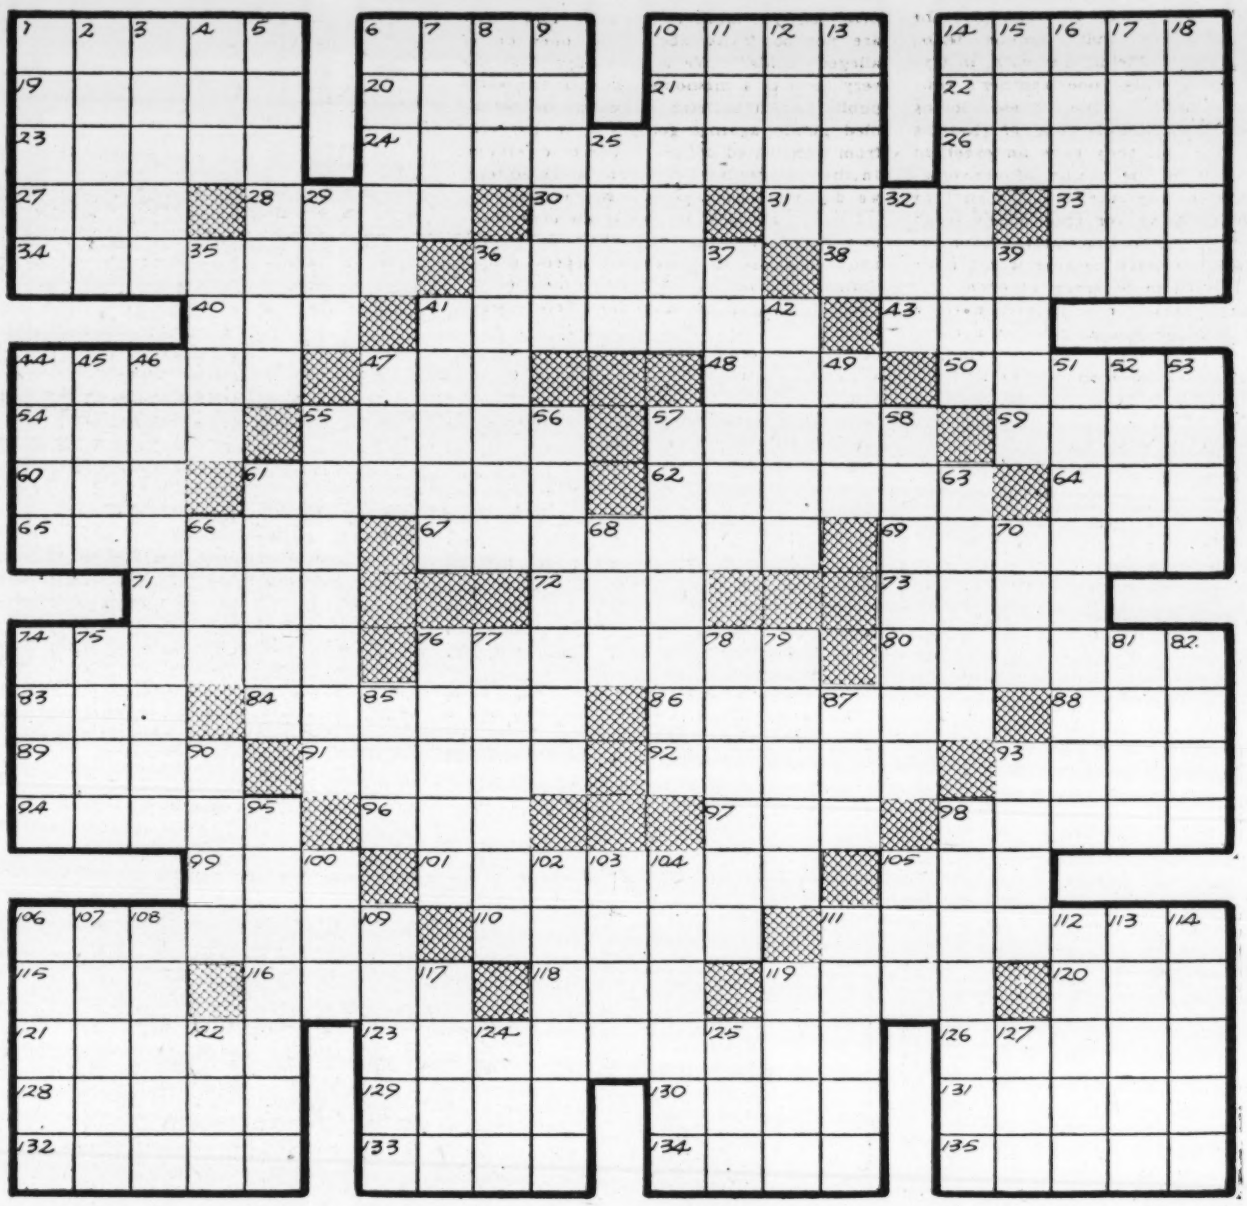

With a horrible scream, we jumped to our feet and rushed madly out of the roadhouse. We ran down the road in that pouring rain and stopped at every hot dog stand along the route. When we finally had enough, we found a cab and were driven back to New York.

What became of our host, we do not know. He hasn't called us since and we certainly haven't called him. He's probably still sitting there, waiting for some food. . . .

Solutions of Last Week's Puzzles

Sunday Health Talks

—By— William Brady, M. D.

ONLY old-timers will remember the difficulties that famous team, Weber & Fields, met with, in trying to dodge one another's conversational spray. True, these loving friends were inordinately fond of chatting at close range, but they gave an excellent demonstration of the reality of conversational spray, at any rate, and I wish they were with us today, for they might teach a great health lesson that most health authorities will not teach because it is a trifle too novel for them to grasp at once.

That any illness or indisposition is a "common cold" or just a "cold" is a question of opinion merely. No physician or health authority can or will define a "cold" or "the common cold," because there is no such entity. The illness or indisposition that purports to be a "cold" is one thing or another, and so you can't define it, as you might define pneumonia, diphtheria or rhinitis. Not only is it impossible to define a "cold," but it is usually impossible to diagnose it in the beginning, that is, to say offhand precisely what it is going to develop into. It is surely a mistake to call it a "cold" if it turns out to be measles. Even the old-timers acknowledge that. But isn't it quite as much a mistake to pretend it is a "cold" if it turns out to be grip, flu or meningitis? Not so, say the old-timers; in that case one may readily assume the original "cold" has been neglected, or the patient has postponed seeking treatment, and in consequence the actual illness has supervened. Here one falls back on the good old theory of lowered resistance, which has no scientific foundation but nevertheless covers a multitude of diagnostic or prognostic shortcomings.

We doctors make a play on the "frankness" of the modern medicine man. We are not so frank about this question of alleged "colds." We acknowledge that the very term is a misnomer, and in the same public health bulletin we warn the befuddled public against going out in the cold from overheated offices, shops or dwellings. In the movies they have continuity editors; we doctors need a consistency editor.

I have proposed, and very few other doctors have accepted, the term "cri" (pronounced kree) to cover all alleged "colds," until the actual nature of the illness or indisposition becomes manifest. People want a name for the illness even before a good doctor can determine what it is. Cri is a simple term. All these illnesses or indispositions are universally recognized as respiratory infections; so if you call your trouble cri you mean merely that it is probably one of the common respiratory infections. Incidentally you honestly acknowledge that your trouble may be communicable, and you give your friends and associates fair warning to keep out of your range. Why the doctors and health authorities are so reluctant to accept and use this idea is a mystery, since they offer no practical principle of the sort themselves.

The danger in the spray of uncovered coughs or sneezes has been pretty widely heralded, even by the conservative medical and health authorities. Up to the present, however, there has been no public health education concerning the spray of ordinary conservation, so far as I have observed, except my own feeble and sometimes handicapped efforts. But ours is a progressive profession, and I am delighted to announce that at last we have officially and definitely recognized conservational spray as a source of danger. Yes, sir, it is so recorded. A radio health talk broadcast by the American Medical association a few weeks ago, included among the precautions recommended to keep yourself free from colds, this one:

"Give coughers and sneezers and spray talkers a wide berth. Don't let them aim at your face."

This, I believe, is the first official recognition of conversational spray in public health education—aside from my own yammerings about it. A trifle vague, perhaps, but that may have been the result of the censor's work; I know that when I tried to tell about conversational spray over the radio the censor positively forbade my direct or clear explanation of it, though he saw no objection to anything I cared to say about cough or sneeze spray. He felt that nice people might find the thought of conversational spray unpleasant. So I couldn't talk about it on the air.

Now that the ice has been broken, I look forward confidently to a general acceptance of the conversational spray idea by all health authorities, even if the old-time doctors hold out against all these new-fangled notions to the very end. I had begun to despair of getting recognition for the conversational spray idea; in fact I was becoming bitter, not to say sarcastic about it. It did seem as though the old guard would recognize conversational spray perhaps when the Red Cross and divers allied organizations decided to take the hand out from under the head in applying Schaefer's prone-pressure method of artificial respiration in drowning cases.

Weber & Fields never did appear to mind so much while they were out of one another's range. That is the practical health lesson the famous pair could teach the people of this country right now. What is the effective conversational spray range? How near must one be to an open-face cougher, an open-face sneezer or an open-face talker to be endangered by the spray?

Cough or sneeze spray range is up to 12 feet.

Conversational spray range is less than five feet—that is, ordinary, quiet conversation. Put this knowledge into practice in your own health cultivation.

Keep your quarry across the counter, across the desk, across the aisle, across the room, more than five feet from you, and you are safely beyond his range, no matter what his spray may contain, or vice versa.

The germs of all the known respiratory infections are likely to be present in the droplets of moisture or secretion in such spray, and particularly in the earliest stage of the illness.

The radio talk broadcast by our medical organization included very specific directions for washing the hands before eating, after shaking hands with anyone who has a cold, and the like. In fact the washing of the hands is given first place in the precautions recommended to keep yourself free from colds. I believe it would be a great benefit to public health if people washed their hands with soap and water much more frequently than most people do now, but I do not believe that respiratory infections are carried by such indirect means.

The conversational spray is the main mode of infection, and now that it has been accorded official recognition we may point out this danger to the public without fear of shocking or disgusting people who seek to enjoy good health.

What Has Happened to Justice?

room, dead. Beside her was a .22 caliber rifle. She had been shot in the heart.

Presently the Willimantic police had a new and very startling announcement to make public. This was that Mrs. William E. Jackson had committed suicide and left notes to Trenor Rice and his lawyer stating she had killed her husband and that Rice had had no part whatever in the tragedy.

The public was interested, tremendously interested, in this turn of events. So Mrs. Jackson had left notes assuming all responsibility—but what did the notes say, exactly?

That was a natural enough curiosity. The gossips had been saying that Jackson and his wife had quarreled during the week before the shooting. Detective Hickey, furthermore, had questioned Mrs. Jackson rather closely. Now suddenly she had killed herself—and left some notes.

But the contents of the notes were not revealed then. The authorities decided that it would be a bit premature to make them public. And, anyway, they didn't believe the widow had told the truth about the murder of her husband. They insisted that she had sacrificed herself, taken the whole blame on her own shoulders, to save Rice.

Coroner Bill said that the suicide had apparently been carefully planned. The envelope containing both notes had been stamped and addressed. She must have planned to mail the letter during the day, he said, but found no opportunity, for the envelope was found in her stocking.

"We feel that the ends of justice will be best served by not publishing the contents now," he said.

Attorney King said he could make no comment on this development until he had seen the "confession notes." He said that at the proper time he would insist that they be turned over to him, as they would have a most important bearing on the conduct of the defense.

"Certainly I am convinced that Rice is innocent," he said, "but this is a queer town and sometimes they do funny things. It looks to me as though they are out to get Rice."

By this time another witness had died in the Jackson home—Mrs. Andrews. That was on March 18, while she was acting as housekeeper.

The notes were made public on March 29, while Rice was awaiting trial.

The letter to King follows:

Dear Mr. King:

Will and I had a terrible fight over his physical condition. Thenor never was mentioned in the argument. Trenor knew nothing of the argument. I alone was here with him. It was either he or I who was to be killed. I wouldn't have Juanita alone with him. She knows the life I have lived. Trenor can tell what I put up with.

Eleanor Hanna can tell you he threatened my life six weeks ago over a scrap about milking cows. He threatened me several times. I was never afraid of him until that day. He choked me almost to death. Then he grabbed the gun. I wrested it from him and in the few words that followed I shot him.

This is a true confession. They must not harm Trenor. I love him as my own son. He knew nothing of it. They say he is guilty. He isn't. I flushed the shell down the toilet. They are persecuting him, not prosecuting him. Give him my love.

MRS. JACKSON.

The second note, addressed to Rice, follows:

Dear Son:

Forgive me for the suffering this has caused you. I am to blame. You are not in any way responsible. Your name was never brought into the argument. It was over Will's physical condition. He has threatened me twice before. This time it was either he or me, and I got the first shot.

Hickey is too sure he has the case locked tight, but he is not so smart. He said he has the shell and more, but I flushed the shell down the toilet. My dress had the sleeves torn out but in the excitement no one saw it.

He choked me almost to death and would have shot me if I hadn't shot him. Be good.

Lovingly,

MOTHER.

State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford went ahead with his plans to try Rice on the indictment. His contention was that Mrs. Jackson had known that Rice planned to kill her husband and went away purposely to provide him with the opportunity. He revealed, furthermore, a note said to have been found in Jackson's coat the night he died.

The note, dated two days before the murder, read:

Mr. T. A. Rice: Mrs. Jackson has notice twice to keep away from your place on Brown avenue. If she does not, I will start action in the superior court. If you wish to wreck her and Juanita in Willimantic, keep on.

W. E. JACKSON.

The date of the trial was set for late in April. The public looked forward to it, hoping that perhaps the witnesses would clear up a great many things that had been veiled in mystery.

But the trial did not take place.

On April 26, State's Attorney Bradford appeared before Judge Marvin in superior court to ask that the case against Rice be dropped.

"It is sometimes the duty of the state's attorney to make such a motion because he is satisfied the accused is innocent," said Bradford, "but this is not a case of that kind.

"My investigations have not led be to believe that Rice is innocent of the charge on which he stands indicted. But we are faced with a situation in which it seems futile to attempt to prove his guilt. Two of our most important witnesses, Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Andrews, are now dead. Without their testimony our case is hopeless."

The court granted the motion. Trenor Rice went free.

All in all, a rather strange case. As the story ends there are gaps left. Rice has been legally cleared of the crime and yet there hangs over him that final damning imputation of the state's attorney. Certainly if the man is innocent, he deserves a better break.

From Rice's viewpoint—and surely from the viewpoint of public interest—it might have been better to hold the trial, lay bare the whole case on the records, and let justice stand or fall by the verdict.

Teethina Ended Baby's Colic

"For three months my baby suffered with colic," writes Mrs. Willie Phifer, Quebeck, Tenn. "Then I started giving her Teethina and it proved to be the very medicine she needed. It soon put an end to her colic after everything else failed. She is now four months old and weighs sixteen and one-half pounds.

"I wish every mother could be induced to use Teethina. So much worry and suffering would be avoided."

Teethina has proved its value to thousands of anxious mothers like Mrs. Phifer. It is a safe, gentle laxative—thoroughly efficient, yet harmless. It cleanses Baby's bowels as nature intended—without griping or nausea. For three generations it has been used to relieve Colic, Diarrhea, Colds, Indigestion, Constipation, Gas and such ailments. It costs only 30c at any drug store, yet money can buy no finer remedy for baby, especially at teething time.

FREE! Send for sample package and Dr. Moffett's Baby Book.

TEETHINA
Builds Better Babies

Broadway Banter

BY FORNEY WYLY

AT THIS time of year when there aren't so many new plays opening up, it isn't a bad idea to glance at the list of attractions which have been rocking along for some time. If you have it in the back of your head to meander up this way during the next few weeks, you could do far worse than pay a visit to the following plays:

* * * *

In the first place, no matter what I say, nine out of ten of you will first present yourselves at the New Amsterdam theater, there to behold Eddie Cantor in what is a really good musical comedy, "Whoopee." This on-to-the-New-Amsterdam move on your part is a habit you formed when Marilyn Miller during most of your visits here was appearing in something or other there. There seems to be an inviolable rule that some ghastly misfortune will overtake anyone who so much as looks at any play until Miss Miller has been given the once-over. So during her absence from Broadway, you will no doubt see Mr. Cantor in "Whoopee" before all others, even though I might confide in you that "Follow Thru" is by far the best of the current musical concoctions.

* * * *

"Follow Thru" has first of all the reigning song hit of the moment, "Button Up Your Overcoat," sung by the Zelma O'Neal who put "Varsity Drag" on the map in "Good News." Miss O'Neal also has another song, "I Wanna Be Bad," both of which you may hear her sing on victrola records. On records put out by another concern, you may hear Helen Kane sing with that ridiculous voice of hers, the same numbers. And I'll be the brave lad who is not afraid—not Forney—to say that Miss Kane's singing of "Button Up Your Overcoat" is far more attractive than Miss O'Neal's. There is no denying that the O'Neal voice, however, is better suited to "I Wanna Be Bad." None of which has anything to do with my original plan of telling you "Follow Thru" is a swell show and should head your list of shows to be seen.

* * * *

Let's finish with the musical shows before delving into the voiceless, legless affairs. "Hold Everything" is one of the best bets on the boards, having as its main boast the funniest of the musical comedy comedians, Bert Lehr. "You're the Cream in My Coffee," its song hit, has also helped materially in putting over this play. "Spring is Here" may be seen without any pain whatsoever, in fact it is one of the breeziest of the new shows. "The Little Show" is the revue hit at present, with most people favoring "The New Moon" as far as operettas go. I also recommend "Lady Fingers" as one of the best of the high-kicking group.

* * * *

The play I think I have enjoyed most, however, of all those viewed since last fall is Phillip Barry's "Holiday" at the Plymouth. The fascinating Hope Williams, does much to make "Holiday" the joy that it is. "Let Us Be Gay" is another of the highly sophisticated plays which is going strong. I liked it immensely. Then there is that magnificent English war play, "Journey's End," which is as fine a play as any I ever saw. There is not a woman in the cast and it is described by many people as an even better "What Price Glory?" Colin Keith Johnson, its leading man, is acclaimed by most of the swooning feminine audience as the best looking man on the New York stage at present. And incidentally when you meet him at parties he is so shy and reserved you'd think he had a hair-lip he was trying to hide out. He chances to be that actor who is even better looking off than on stage. Dependable plays to see include the lovely Katharine Cornell in "The Age of Innocence," the blithesome Mrs. Fiske in "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh" and the delightfully, quaintly English "Bird in Hand."

* * * *

Then, too, while the play, "The Love Duel" is not too good, any play in which Ethel Barrymore is the star is always interesting. "The Perfect Alibi" at the tiny Charles Hopkins theater is a grand mystery play and is certainly worth seeing. Getting back to musicals again, "Hello, Daddy" is entertaining if for no other reason than watching the frolicsome Betty Starbuck wend her gay way through the piece. If you haven't seen "Strange Interlude," of course that should be well up toward the top of your list. You might also be interested in seeing the "Passion Play" at the Hippodrome. I also discover with sudden alarm the omission of "Courage," which will wring tears from the hardest hearts when young Junior Durkin and Janet Beecher start emoting. The above plays should keep you out of mischief part of the time you are in these hills. Which is probably just what you don't want to happen to you. So let's drop the whole thing.

friendship shown with Dr. Knabe. It was not necessary for Dr. Craig to produce his alibi, that he had been at his college and his home during the night of the murder.

* * * *

The trial was held at Shelbyville, Ind., beginning December 1, 1913. The grand jury had indicted Dr. Craig and Mr. Ragsdale a year before. The undertaker, who had cared for the body of Dr. Knabe, and was appointed administrator of her estate, brought in the missing kimono to the grand jury. It had been washed and there were signs that chemicals had been used to remove bloodstains. It was charged that he had visited the apartment to cover the crime, although no one had seen him and no motive was shown for such an act. He had been in the undertaking business in the city for twelve years, was married, and had five children.

Ephriam Inman was special prosecutor at the Craig trial, and Henry N. Spaan the attorney for Craig. Spaan stated at the opening of the case that it was suicide, but later admitted in court that it was murder, but that there was no evidence as to the guilty person. Judge Blair agreed with this in allowing the motion of the defense to dismiss the case after the state had rested.

"You are instructed," he told the farmer jury, "that, according to both the law and the evidence in this case, a conviction of the defendant is not warranted, for the reason that the evidence does not prove the defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. Therefore I direct you to return a verdict of not guilty."

Nothing has been done in the case since that time.

Seth Nichols, a discharged United States sailor, told the Portsmouth, N. H., police that he had killed Dr. Knabe for $1,500. His aunt, who had been a patient of Dr. Knabe, proved that he was not near Indianapolis at that time and called him insane. He finally repudiated his story.

J. E. Guthrie, a Canadian in jail at Pine Bluff, Ark., made another false confession.

There is in Indianapolis a lawyer who is something of an expert in reading character. He relates that, while riding on the electric car from Noblesville to Indiana a few weeks after the Knabe murder, he fell into conversation with an Indianapolis man, a stranger, who, under mental stress, told the lawyer he had killed Dr. Knabe. The next day the lawyer went to the police about it, and was told that this man had just committed suicide.

As the Craig trial was held after this, it would not appear that the police thought highly of this solution of the murder.

* * * *

One theory is that in the course of her practice Dr. Knabe had a girl patient who had been treated unlawfully by another physician, and that she had made an investigation of such practice in Indianapolis and was about to expose conditions.

With a woman of her courage, honesty, and professional pride, such a solution seems plausible.

Augusta Knabe had a dream a few nights before her beloved cousin's death. She dreamed of a big snake that was about to attack Helene. The snake has a definite symbolism in dreams, and is not associated with death or danger, but this suggests that Augusta might have been worried about her cousin, might have known some menace. It was a crime planned by a person with a motive. This person took a long gambler's chance that he or she could kill and escape suspicion. The years have justified this as an intelligent hope.

Revelations from the spirit world were once threatened in this case, to such an extent that the attorneys for Dr. Craig warned the state investigators that they would not stand for the testimony of a medium who had been searching in her way for an answer to this mystery. The spirit did not intervene, and human agencies have failed.

The People of Pitcairn Island

known to the world, and more and more gifts were sent.

On March 29, 1829, one hundred years ago, John Adams, the last surviving mutineer of the Bounty, died at the age of sixty-five. His grave is still marked by a simple monument, and is held in great reverence by the inhabitants of the island, many of whom are his descendants.

Several English and American male adventurers and missionaries have, in the course of a century, cast in their lots with those of the Bounty people. Some of these were rescued mariners, shipwrecked on the reefs, and others went out to Pitcairn voluntarily. These men from the outside married native women, and thus some fresh blood has been introduced. But of course there has been much inter-marrying during several generations.

Pitcairn has been swept by half a dozen plagues of disease. Influenza nearly wiped out the little colony. Just now there is prevalent a susceptibility to tetanus infection which seems to have been developing slowly for three or four generations. A great many of the islanders have died of this disease.

The Pitcairn Island colony now numbers about 150 persons. In 1856 the entire population was moved to Norfolk Island, a week's sail distant, but later about half of the people returned. The descendants of the mutineers now occupy both islands.

About forty years ago the islanders were converted in a body to the Seventh Day Adventist church, to which they still belong. They have always, since the time of Adams and the Bounty Bible, exhibited evidence of a heavy consciousness of the sins of their fathers of the Bounty mutiny. For my part, I think Fletcher Christian and his companions were jolly well justified in their mutiny against their tyrant captain, William Bligh.

Justified or not, these men were technically guilty of mutiny and piracy. The story of their escape from the legal consequences of their acts, with the amazing results of their flight to the lonely island retreat, is one of the most romantic episodes of maritime history.

Youth's Crusade for Peace

Curie, Gilbert Murray, Robert Millikan. It is called the Committee on Intellectual Cooperation and is one of those fringes depending from the League of Nations to which we fearlessly attach ourselves! That it has met a universal need is proved by the fact that already the daily work that comes to it unsought is more than it can cope with.

It has acquired so much moral authority in connection with all the problems in its domain that it can readily gain the ear of governments, institutions and press associations, and can induce them to reply to questions and attend meetings. So we can estimate the importance of its existence to the world's youth, in whom it believes.

It would be interesting to review the activities of this body, but here we need only remind ourselves that student youth looks to it for approval and aid. In such practical matters as those of passports and fees and fares, for instance, the committee was able to win victories (through the League of Nations) where the students themselves might have waited long years for concerted action.

And here we may leave this army of youth. North, south, east and west they will continue their quest. We will meet them in world ports and capitals. But while other travelers will be seeking only pleasure and information as ends in themselves, to student youth these will be but means to an end. Their unique objective is world friendship.

polo, shopping. But he must be in the picture."

Sully seemed to wince.

"He is very difficult," he said. "Grieg's attempt has sorely shaken his nerve."

"Naturally," said George quietly. And then, "You mean he keeps house?"

"Yes."

"The police?"

"The police are wolves in sheep's clothing, so far as he is concerned."

"I see," said George, frowning. "If he felt safe would he go when and where he was told?"

"Not always," said Sully.

"Then he must have reason to think that when he is out with her highness he is safer than anywhere else."

Sully sat back in his chair.

"Bring that about," he said, warmly, "and you add five years to my life."

"Easy enough," said George, and turned to me. "Duke Paul trusts bell and Rowley, and we're not using the car. Put the three at her disposal—not his."

"With the greatest pleasure," said I.

George returned to Sully.

"The duchess had a fancy car,
With chauffeurs white as snow,
And everywhere the duchess went,
The duke was sure to go."

Sully rose to his feet with shining eyes.

"Kingmaker," he said.

Our Weekly Meeting

June days are wonderful days for boys and girls. Everybody has a smile and a song this time of the year, because June brings promise of many joys. First of all, there comes the end of the school year, and we are all glad to have a rest and some recreation. Poets have sung of June and its joys, and deservingly so because it is one of the months in which we find the beginning of the summer pastimes and pleasures.

So this week our contest is going to be about "June Days." You will have plenty to write about, so I need not suggest anything. The main thing is to sit down and write. This beautiful weather is apt to coax one away from the pen and ink, but when you think of it, only a little time is needed to write your letter or story or verse, or make a drawing. The title must be about "June Days."

Every week we get new members who are just finding out about our club and the contests we hold each week. If any of your friends want to join the club, tell them to fill out the membership blank and send it with a stamp, and they will receive by return mail a club button and membership certificate. Then they will be entitled to take part in all of our contests.

The meeting will please come to order. Imagine yourself now sitting in one great assembly hall whose roof is the sky, and whose rows of chairs are the many states of our great Union. Imagine yourself sitting next to members from Texas, Maine, California, Connecticut, Utah—from all over the country, and some from British West Africa, South America, Canada, China and other far-away places. They are all attending the meeting as it takes place on this page.

Our postcard circle consists of those members who enjoy exchanging postcards with members. It is growing each week by leaps and bounds, and is a most popular feature of our club.

We open our meeting today with a communication from a member in the Buckeye State:

Dear Seck:

I am a great reader of your stories. I started reading them when I was about six years old. Since then I have enjoyed reading every story. You have some very exciting adventures, don't you?

I joined your club a year ago. Since then I tried for a prize and won! My! I was proud then. Once I tried to write a letter good enough to win a book, but did not succeed. Here is another one, though, for I am sticking up to one of your favorite sayings, "Try again." I read your book "Seckatary Hawkins in Cuba," and liked it very much, especially when you saw that face in the window at night. It was a library book, though, so it was not mine to keep. But I have read that book and want to read another.

Before closing I want you to know that I think I belong to a mighty fine club.

Yours, fair and square,
JANE STUBIG,
876 Hereford Drive, Akron, Ohio.

We were all very glad to hear from you again, Jane, and your nice letter wins one of our books which will go forward some day this week, so keep your eye on the mail man.

Down in Georgia where the peaches grow lives this next little member on Peachtree street:

Dear Seckatary Hawkins:

I read about you and your club every day and like it better than anything in the paper.

We have a club up in an old tree near my house, but do not have as much fun as your club does. I think you are very kind to the Skinny Guy. I am president of our club. I would appreciate very much if you would send me a book of your club so I can read it to our club. Every one in my club reads about you every day and likes it very much.

Your new friend,
CAROL STOEKER,
885 W. Peachtree, Atlanta, Ga.

For your neat letter, Carol, we are awarding you one of our books, which you can read to your club members, and they will then learn a lot about our earlier adventures down on the river bank.

Next we hear from a member in the Lone Star State, who lives in a town whose name is rather difficult to pronounce:

Dear Seck:

I am glad to say that I read your adventures every day; and that is not all—I enjoy reading every sentence very much.

I would rather join your club than do anything.

Look out, Seck, you and your pals for you may get in trouble. But I truly hope that the Pelhams will not win their battle with you all.

Yours, fair and square,
COLEMAN STALLINGS, 13.
R. R. 3, Box 41, Nacogdoches, Tex.

Don't worry, Coleman, we boys down here on the river bank will keep our eyes on those Pelhams across the river, and you can bet your life we won't let 'em catch us napping. You'll get a book, too, in a few days.

Moving westward on the way we tarry a while at Kansas to meet this new member:

Dear Seckatary Hawkins:

I would like to join your club. I live two miles and a half from town. I go to town school. I have lots of fun living on the farm. I have three ponies and a bicycle. I have a dog named "Blacky." If he would get lost like Tommyhawk, I don't know what I would do.

I read about you in the paper all the time. I hope I get one of your books, because I like to read about you.

I am eleven years old and in the fifth grade. I hope Link gets Tommyhawk back and joins the club.

Sincerely yours,
MAX BURGER,
Randall, Kans.

Listen, Max, if any of us fellows could say we had three ponies for pets, we'd be happier than the birds in spring. You surely must be a happy boy, and we hope you'll enjoy the book we are sending you for that nice letter.

Being come to the end of our page, we must adjourn till next week, when we will hold another meeting on this very same spot. Don't forget—send in your letter and don't delay. And remember—if you don't win, don't give up! Never give up! Always get up and say to yourself: "I'm no quitter. I'll try till I succeed." And then you will.

Radio meetings this week on Tuesday, 7 p. m., Eastern time, Station WSAI, and on Saturday, 5 p. m., Eastern time, from Station WLW. Tune in and attend.

Bye, till next week.

Yours, fair and square,

Seckatary Hawkins

THIS PASSWORD WILL KEEP YOU GUESSING

Last week it seemed that every one of our members knew "Constantinople," and had very little trouble in figuring out the password.

But this week it is going to be harder work. Of course, if you have studied your history very well during the past year in school, you may get this one right off the bat; but if you haven't done so well in your history, it may be that you will have to ask your teacher to help you with this one. Here it is:

"C O M E I N, A D A"

The letters are all mixed up, of course, as usual with our passwords. Change them around, and when you have them properly arranged, they will spell the name of a place that was the seat of empire under Alexander the Great. That ought to give you the clue to solve it right off. That is, if you have studied your history well. Now, then, let's hear from you.

A NEW CONTEST EACH WEEK

Read the Rules Carefully.

In this week's contest the title must contain the words "JUNE DAYS." You may write a letter or story or verse, or draw a picture. Write on one side of paper only. Your composition must be written without any assistance from older persons. Drawings must be made in black drawing ink. All contributions must bear the writer's full name, address, and age. The contest will close Thursday. Prize winners announced June 16th.

PRIZE:. A SECKATARY HAWKINS BOOK

Address all submissions in this contest to Seckatary Hawkins, care The Atlanta Constitution.

IN THE SECKATARY'S MAIL BOX

Dear Seckatary Hawkins:

I have been a member of your wonderful club for about six months. Please, Seck, tell Dick Ferris, Jerry Moore, Shadow Loomis, Perry Stokes, Johnny McLarren, Bill Darby, Roy Dobel, Lew Hunter, Little Gil and Lord Harry and other members of the club to write me.

I wish Howard Cooper and Howard Parks would answer my letters. I am a member of the Airplane Model League of America. If members of your club would like to join the A. M. L. A. club write me and I will send them a membership blank. I take the "American Boy." Gee; it is a good thing to read.

I have a mouth organ and can play a few tunes.

I save your twe pages every Sunday. How are Happer Nam and Daddy Joe? Hope they are fine. I like every one of your rules and I try hard to obey them.

I will close now, wishing each member good luck.

Yours, fair and square,
HOWARD WADDELL, JR.,
221 E. Liberty St., Sumter, S. C.

Dear Seck:

I have just finished reading your page. I found it very good indeed.

Seck, I am a member of your club. I have my badge and still have the rules in my trunk. I want them to stay there too, for I am learning to use them. When I make a mistake I try to correct myself.

Well, good-by, Seck. Tell all the members to write to me. My address is:

LESSIE ESTES,
Bremen, Ga.

Dear Seck:

I have been watching your column in The Atlanta Constitution every Sunday. Though we do not take The Constitution, I beg daddy to let me buy it every Sunday.

I would like very much to join your club. I am a little girl 10 years of age, and live in the country. My sister and I raise little chicks and pigs which I love very dearly.

I like the colors and motto. I think the colors are beautiful and the motto I could never think of a better one than "Fair and Square."

Your friend,
LOUISE BELK,
Route 2, Box 51, Doreum, Ga.

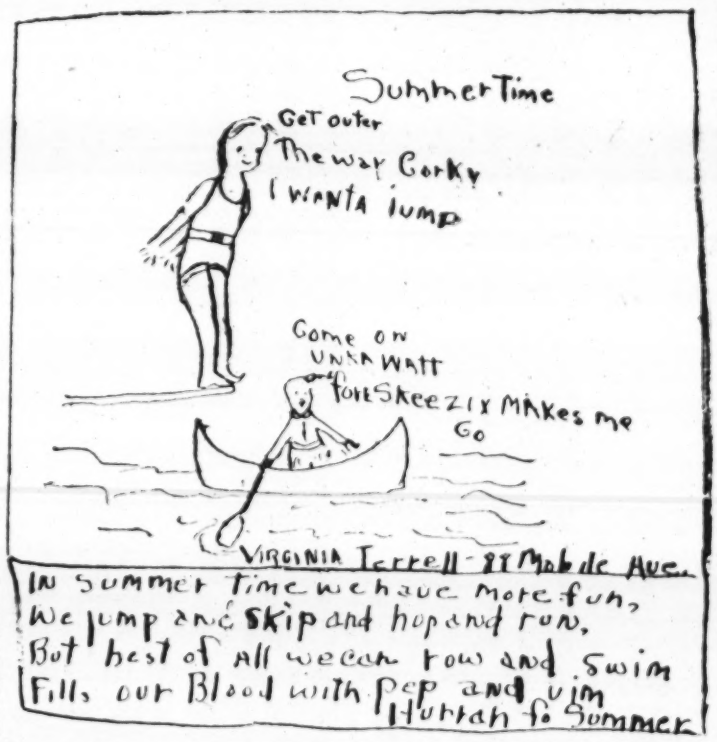

Dear Seck:

I am not very tall, but a little bit stout (as Little Gil says) like you, Seck.

Really, Seck, I want to know if I may remain a member of your club. I will be fifteen the ninth of June. Am I too old? I joined your club in February, 1929, and surely have enjoyed being a member. If I cannot remain a member please write me a long, long letter so that I may keep it to remember you and your club by. I will try and remember the motto, "Fair and Square."

Yours, fair and square,
MARY CARTER,
Route 4, LaGrange, Ga.

VIRGINIA WINS PRIZE

Dear Seckatary Hawkins:

I want to be a member and have a badge to wear. Will try to win one of your books in the contest, too. I am seven years old and in the third grade. I live with my mother in girls' dormitory at school. We are going to camp this summer. I hope I can learn to swim. My school closes with a picnic next Friday.

JANE WEATHERS,
Mount Vernon, Ga.

Dear Seckatary Hawkins:

I am already a member of your club and enjoy reading your page every Sunday. I want all of you boys and girls to write to me. I will answer all letters I receive. I wish for your gang many more thrilling and exciting neventures in the old neighborhood.

ALTON BARBER,
Route 1, Dallas, Ga.

Dear Seck:

I like your stories and adventures very much. Wish I could be with you all down on the river bank. I know you have fun.

Wonder what has become of the Skinny Guy. Hope he shows up soon. I am eight years old and live on the farm. I like to go to school. My school will close this week. I would like to get letters from any of you club members.

Yours, fair and square,
C. T. CANTRELL, JR.,
Flowery Branch, Ga.

SUMMER.

Summer is here; Summer is here!
With it bringing lots of cheer,
Bees and butterflies are flying,
While old Jack Frost is sighing.
—ANNIE JO TERRELL,
Age 10, 81 Mobile Ave., Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Seck:

Our school was out Friday and I passed to the sixth grade. I am ten years old, have brown eyes and black hair and my complexion is dark. I live in Ramhurst, which is just a little village. My hobby is reading and I want one of your books to read.

It is raining here this morning. We have not gotten out of bed yet, so I am writing in bed.

I received the pin and am very proud of it. I lost the rules and don't know what many of them are, but I will remember as many as I can.

I have four pets, two calves, one cat and one dog. They all play with me. I have just gotten well of the Chickenpox, and have a headache. My brother, Warren, Jr., is just taking them. He has little bumps all over him and he is real sick, too.

I am so sorry the red head won the race, but hope you all can hold your meeting on the old river bank anyway.

I read about all the little boys and girls getting a book of your adventures. It makes me want one. So wishing you good luck.

Your loving club member,
GWENDOLYN EARNEST,
Ramhurst, Ga.

Dear Seck:

I wish I could attend the meetings, but as I can't I will write every week and stick to the motto, "fair and square," for I think it is a very good one.

I am sending you my poem. Hope you will like it fine. Will tell you something about myself. I am a little boy 12 years old and am in the fifth grade. I am four feet, two inches high, have brown hair and eyes. I live in the country and like it just fine. I think it is a fine place for any boy or girl.

I will step for this time, hoping to hear from you and all the members.

Yours, fair and square,
JOHNNY MALLORY,
Route 1, Sneads, Fla.

Dear Seck:

I am five feet high and weigh 102 pounds, have light hair and fair complexion and blue eyes.

We have a club of boys and we had a good clubhouse until about two weeks ago, when a wind storm blew the paper and pictures down.

Yours, fair and square,
KENNETH DISON,
Box 330, Dungannon, Ga.

P. S.—I would like to correspond with other members of the club. Will answer all letters I get. K. D.

Dear Seck:

I am so glad that Monk didn't win the race and that Link came when he did.

I am going to tell you what an exciting time I had May 3. It was field day and I was in the overhead relay. I was the captain and there were four others besides me, and when the gun shot I threw the ball to the first girl on my team. It went through every hand until it came back to me and I was the first one to get to the line, so we won the relay race. I hope Jerry wins the race. Tell all the club members to write to me.

Yours, fair and square,
VIRGINIA DICK,
Covington, Ga.

Hello, Seck:

I sure am glad that I am a member of your club. I read your adventures on Sunday and also through the week. Please don't let them take Little Gil away from Old Daddy Joe, if you can help it. I expect I like Little Gil almost as much as you do.

I sure di wish I could be with you all on the river bank, even though I am a girl.

I am fourteen years old and am in the eighth grade.

Seck, tell all the members to write to me. I will answer all I receive. I try to be "fair and square" always.

A member of your club,
MARY ODOM,
264 Miller Reid Ave., Atlanta, Ga.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Chapter CXXXIV—Business in the Middle Ages.

By J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

THE ADVENTURES OF SECKATARY HAWKINS AND HIS CLUB

Saturday mornings are usually happy hours for us boys down on the old river bank. But I, for one, found no happiness in the morning hours today, nor in the afternoon or evening, for that matter.

In the first place, I had to stop at Doc Waters' office to run an errand for him right after breakfast, and I was late when I arrived at the clubhouse, where the meeting had already been held, and all the boys, except Perry Stokes, had gone out on the river in their canoes, to find a good fishing hole.

"There has been a call for you on the telephone, sir," Perry Stokes said, as I came in. "I told 'em you'd be in sure sometime this morning, sir. They said they'd call again."

I sat down at my desk and turned in my chair to face him.

"Who do you mean 'they'?" I asked. "You know the voice, Perry."

"Yes, sir, I did, sir! It was Jeckerson, sir."

"I knew it!" I said, as I turned to my desk and took out my pen and ink. "Give me the notes of the meeting, Perry, so's I can write the minutes."

He handed me a card.

"I wrote it all down, sir," he said, "as you always tell me to do. I hope you can read my poor writing, sir."

"The writing's all right. You scratch like an old hen, but I can read it. No, I can't, either. What's this you've got scribbled over here in the corner of this card—looks like you were trying to draw a picture of the river or running water or something like that—"

"Oh, no, sir, that's a reminder—to remind me to tell you, I mean, that Little Gil and Lord Harry were the only two members absent, besides yourself, sir."

The ringing of the telephone bell interrupted.

"Hello!" I snapped, putting the receiver to my ear quickly. And the voice I was expecting answered me. Jeckerson, the famous detective from Watertown.

"Just to remind you, boy!" he said, in a low, even voice. "Don't let the birds get away. I let you have your way, you know, and I'm looking to you to keep the kid and the King of the Hoboes here on the old river bank."

"Don't worry!" I said, in a low tone. "I gave you my word. I'll play fair and square with them—and with you, Jeckerson. Trust me."

"You know I trust you. But there is something else in the wind. I can't make head or tail out of this puzzle, Hawkins, but I want to warn you not to let anybody kidnap the kid—Little Gil, I mean."

"What!" I exclaimed. "Hey—Jeckerson—they cut us off—hey, listen, Jeckerson."

"No use. There was a click. The phone was dead. Perhaps Jeckerson had hung up. Well, I guessed it was just as well. Perry Stokes was standing between the curtains of the doorway that led to the meeting room.

"Anything that I can do for you, sir?"

I shook my head.

"No, Perry," I said. "I've got to work out these puzzles myself."

"Look here, sir!" cried Perry, suddenly, pointing to the window behind my chair.

I looked, but I was not quick enough. All I saw was a smudge of ugly color as something moved away from the window.

"What was it?" I demanded, in a low voice.

"The face of Jacobi, sir!" answered Perry in a whisper. "The miserable old tramp, sir, who wanted us to give Little Gil to him!"

I stared at the window, as if I expected the ugly mask of Jacobi to return. But it did not come back. Still I continued to stare at the window. And as I stared, slowly through my mind came Jeckerson's last words over the phone—"I warn you not to let anybody kidnap the kid—"

"Jacobi!" I exclaimed under my breath. I put away my pen and ink and closed my big book. I was to do not writing that morning. I hurried out and got my little red canoe, and together Perry and I went to join the other boys fishing. Because I felt that while I was fishing I would better be able to sit and study slowly and carefully just what I must do—for Little Gil. The fish were biting everybody's hook but mine—but I didn't care, I was thinking.

And after lunch, when all the boys returned, I stayed in my writing room while they dug more worms for the afternoon's fishing. Shadow Loomis looked in and saw me sitting there in my chair, as I stared at the open book upon my desk.

"The fellows have all gone, Hawkins," he sang out; "aren't you goin' fishin'?"

"No," I said, shortly, without turning to look at him.

"The fish are bitin' good—funny you don't want to go. You're always the biggest nut for fishin'—"

"Let me alone, Shadow! I don't want to go. Not today, anyway. I'm angling for bigger fish, I think. The only thing that puzzles me is what to use for bait."

"Bigger fish?"

"You heard me. It's too bad I'm secretary of this club—I've got to pass up many good times while you fellows go out, leaving me here alone to see that nothing happens to our clubhouse."

Shadow took a step closer, and leaned across my desk.

"Tell me what to do!" he said, in a low tone. "If there's a way I can help you out, give me orders, and by George! I'll do as you tell me."

I laid my hand on his as I looked up into his face with a smile.

"Good old Shad!" I said, softly. "Don't I know you would? But I didn't want to take you away from the river, when the fish are biting so good, Shadow. It's about Gil, of course."

"Little Gil again?"

"Again, and always, until we've solved the mystery that's wrapped about him, Shadow. Just now it isn't Gil to be exact—it's Jacobi!"

"Jacobi? That miserable bum? Has he been here again?"

"Don't get excited, Shadow. That miserable bum has been around here more often than we have seen him. He's a sneak, Shadow. And he's after Little Gil, for some reason. Now, I'm goin' to know that reason, Shadow, or take a good lickin' tryin' to find it out. I don't like to hate anybody, y understand, Shadow, but I can hardly help it—when I think of Jacobi! Because he's hounding Little Gil—I mean Y' understand, of course, just how I feel."

Shadow pressed his lips tightly together, and I could hear his teeth grit.

"We've got to stop that Jacobi fellow!" he exclaimed, softly. "We've got to get him, Hawkins, and rid this river bank of him, so we may know peace and quiet again."

"You said it. And I'm out to 'get' him, Shadow. But how? That's what I told you, when you came in—I'm after bigger fish, but I don't know what to use for bait."

Shadow straightened up.

"That's simple," he said, with a little smile. "Little Gil!"

"Little Gil!" I repeated, staring at him. "No! No, Shadow—I don't want that little kid to have any more heartaches than he has had already—I like that kid, Shadow—"

"A bully little boy," broke in Shadow, nodding. "Had the tough breaks, all through his little life. He's a wonder, Hawkins. He's got more brains than six of us put together, and he'd be a great kid later on, if he only had a chance—"

"I'm going to see that he gets that chance!" I said, quickly. "That's why I don't want to use him for bait, you see? Can't you see, Shadow? With a bum for his daddy all his young life, what chance did he have? Nothing! But he's a fine little kid—I like him, I do. And I'm going to help him. He's going to get that chance you speak of. And I'm the one that's going to see that he gets it."

Shadow got up and turned to go.

"You're a wonder, Hawkins," he said, softly, shaking his head. "I never saw the likes of you—always taking an interest in somebody who is a total stranger to you, and worrying your head off to see that others steer clear of trouble, even though you get in worse trouble yourself. I can't understand you."

"I'm not askin' you to understand me," I said, quickly; leastways, not that part of me. But you understand the other things, don't you, Shad?"

He turned with a smile, and held out his hand to me.

"Like a book, I understand you!" he said. And he pressed my hand warmly. He let it go and started for the door. His hand on the latch, he turned. "That's one of the reasons I've always liked to be a member of your club," he added. "And you can't go wrong, Seck. If you need me, give me a call. But I know you won't. There's horseshoe in your pocket, even though you can't find it there. You'll land these bigger fish, kid, and you most likely won't need any bait to speak of!"

And with that, then, he was gone. Hardly had the door slammed when Perry Stokes came sliding in.

"Well, Perry," I said, "I didn't know you had been listening in. Thought you were down with the boys, fishing."

"So you're the boss?" he demanded.

"Not now, sir," he answered, smiling; "I heard every word you fellows said. I thought I'd better stay with you, sir, since this seems to be a worrysome day for you, sir. I wish you didn't have to worry, Hawkins. I wish we two could skip out into the woods this bright sunny day and pick a bunch of violets for our mothers, sir, instead of worrying about tramps, sir."

I laughed softly, and patted him on the arm.

"Somebody has to worry about the tramps, Perry," I said, half jokingly; "they are poor fellows, these bums—no home, no folks, nobody to say a cheerful word to 'em or care what they do—I am sure God wants somebody to worry about tramps, Perry."

Perry sighed.

"I suppose so, sir," he said, and took up his feather duster and proceeded to get busy cleaning the chairs. I opened my bottle of ink and put the stopper over on a blotter, and had just picked up my pen when there came a gruff voice outside—

"Who's the boss, yere? I want to talk to the guy who's runnin' this shack, an' I aim to talk mighty quick an' sudden an' to the point."

"Whoever you are!" I yelled as loudly as I could. "Whoever you are, come in here, an' if I am not the boss, I'll take his place and talk to you as quick and sudden an' to the point as you like."

Heavy footfalls in the meeting room without, a startled cry of Perry brushed aside, and in the curtains of the doorway, gazing down at me with all the ugliness that he possessed, was the miserable old tramp, Jacobi!

His ugliness startled me! I had always known he was ugly. But never had I dreamed he could appear so formidable as he did now, as he clutched the curtains in both hands, and glowered down at me. His eyes were shot with red; his face was covered with a month's growth of beard, and his forehead was wrinkled with a thousand creases like a piece of old leather.

"So you're the boss?" he demanded in his raucous voice, and his lips curved downward at the ends, and showed ugly brown snags that were all that was left of his teeth.

"I just pretend to be," I said, nodding. "Don't be bashful, Jacobi. You see I know what name to call you. I've seen you a couple of times before, anyway. You can't fool me. So be careful what you say—"

"Careful? Why, I could wring your neck, you young cockalorum! You kin crow, cain't you? All right. Know who I am? I'm King o' the Hoboes, now. Elected, too, by the bums, an' it means I got 'em all behind me to do as I tell 'em. If I wanted this shack o' your'n—"

"Our clubhouse, if you please—"

"Call it what you like! Makes no difference. I could ha' burned it down many a time. I'm givin' you one more chanst. Don't ask me no questions. Listen to every word I say, and listen good. I'll give you leetle boys one more chanst—"

"We're not little boys—we've run this clubhouse years before you came here, Jacobi—"

"Well, then, this is the last year you'll run it—hear me! One time I bunked in the old dug-out in Burney's Field. I had Little Gil with me then—oh! you start, do you? That name seems to make you get interested, eh? All right, good is good, bad is bad. I had Little Gil with me, away from his old good-for-nothin' Daddy Joe—was goin' to make a man outo' him— and what did you do? Answer me that—you youngster—what did you kids do?"

"We got him out of that underground place, because it was not healthy for him."

"No you didn't. Healthy wasn't in it. You get him out o' there because somebody told you there was diamonds in that dug-out—yeah, don't stall, now, tell the truth. And you got Gil out and—"

He stopped suddenly and stooped over and gripped me by the shoulder.

"What did you do with those diamonds?" he demanded.

"Let go of me!" I yelled. "You're hurting me. I didn't see any diamonds—we didn't take anything out o' that underground room but Little Gil—"

"Tell that to the marines!" snarled Jacobi. "What did you do with Little Gil when you took him out of that dug-out?"

"We let him go where he wanted to," I said. "Honest, Jacobi—"

But he put his hands to my throat now, and I couldn't talk any more. I squirmed away from him, and he fell flat upon the desk, upsetting my ink. Perry Stokes came in, and yelled.

"Happer Nam, sir! Happer Nam is coming, Hawkins."

I felt Jacobi's fingers loosen their hold upon my throat, and I sat up. Jacobi was paused above me, his head turned to the doorway, his hands leaning in the mess of ink upon the blotter on my desk. I saw him shift his position and place his hand again upon another part of my blotter, as he whispered:

"Happer Nam, eh? He's watching you, is he? Well, another time will do!"

And with that, then, he slinkodded heavy-footed over to the rear window, lifted the sash, and was through in less time than it takes to write it down.

I put my hands on my throat and rubbed. There was a pain about my windpipe, and silently I breathed a prayer for Perry Stokes.

"Lucky you thought of fooling him with that Happer Nam stuff," I said.

"I was not fooling, sir! Here is Happer Nam, sir. Quietly, sir, as he always comes, sir."

I swiveled around in my chair. There between the curtains of the doorway stood a silent, dreamy-eyed person—

"Happer Nam!" I exclaimed. "It's you!"

"Yes, it's me, don't you know. I'm on the trail of someone—"

"Jacobi, sir!" broke in Perry. "Tell Happer about Jacobi—"

"Has he been here?" demanded Happer, growing suddenly excited.

"Through that window," I said, pointing. "Just left—after nearly squeezing the life out of me—" and I again put my hand to my throat.

Happer Nam slipped noiselessly and swiftly through the window and was gone.

Perry and I stared at the vacant space of that open window, and for a few minutes we did not say a thing.

"Well," I said at length, "you see how it is, Perry. Jacobi is going to ruin our club, before he gets through."

"Not as long as Happer Nam is around here, sir. He's afraid of Happer, sir."

"Yeah," I said, dreamily, as I turned back to my desk and started to set things right again. "Well, Perry, if Happer hadn't come just then, maybe I wouldn't be talking to you now. Next time maybe, Happer might not be on time, and—"

I stopped.

"Go on, sir," said Perry; "you were speaking, sir—and I was listening, sir—"

"Cut it, Perry!" I said sharply. And I waved my hand at him to stop talking. I had caught another idea. The upset ink bottle on my desk blotter! The imprint of Old Jacobi's hand—plainly marked on the dry blotter over on the edge, where he had leaned after he had got the ink on his hand—

"You were saying, sir," began Perry, again.

"No matter what I was saying, Perry!" I cried out. "I believe I've got a chance—I've got a chance to land a bigger fish, Perry—I'm sure we'll land him!"

Which we did.

At the Longchamps Races

Mousseline and Rep Are Popular Fabrics. Great Variety Is Seen in Coats

Reading from the left: A black mousseline frock trimmed with rose mousseline and black lace, from Worth. Black rep gown from Germaine Lecomte, with yellow georgette vest. Black mousseline, with ecru lace, from Miler

THE races at Longchamps are as much a fashion parade as the dressmakers' openings. There one sees what the best dressed women have elected to wear. This year all the best of the new styles were apparent. Among the most noteworthy frocks worn at this smart event were those in black touched with color.

In fabrics mousseline was most often seen, with black rep a close second. The three frocks pictured above were sketched at Longchamps for this page.

Chosen as being representative of what will be worn this summer, they will prove useful for any woman's summer wardrobe, being suitable for informal dinner wear or for any afternoon event.

Variety was the keynote of the coats worn at the races. The smartest were full length, many were in redingote style. All flared slightly from the waistline. All were considerably longer in the back than in the front. In fabrics, broadcloths and wool velvet were favorites. Black was the most popular color for the more formal type of coat.

The way in which the sleeves were set into the coats was interesting. A modified raglan effect frequently was seen—that is, the back of the sleeve was cut in the regular raglan effect and the upper, or front, portion of it in one piece with the front of the coat.

Tailored suits were popular at Longchamps, most of them being made with unlined coats of three-quarter length. Striped worsted and feather weight tweeds in mixtures of two shades of one color were important.

A Paquin model of reseda green worsted, worn by a beautiful fair-haired young Englishwoman, had a most interesting coat. It was hip length and high waisted. The hem line was cut in a rounded effect with five flat frills peeping from beneath it. A huge collar of gray fox completed the coat.
